2 Hours Free, Other Rates Increased New Parking Fees As City Takes Over

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city took over operation of the off-street municipal parking system this week with a new set of fees ranging from free parking for not more than two hours and increased costs for all others.

The system includes the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot, both located in Quincy Center. The new parking plan, devised by Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon and Mayor James Sheets, is part of Sheets' goal of revitalizing and bringing more shoppers into the downtown.

The city will offer monthly parking passes for $35 apiece—an increase of $10—for those who regularly park for multiple hours in the downtown for employment or other reasons. The passes will be available through the Quincy Transportation Department.

Those who park at the garage for less than two hours will do so at no charge. The free parking will include all of the bottom level of the Ross Garage—over 400 parking spaces—and an additional 300 spaces on the first above-ground level.

Everyday parkers will park on the second and third above-ground levels, Sheets said.

Other new fees are as follows:

•2-3 hours: $2 with validation, $5 without.

•3-4 hours: $3 with validation, $7.50 without.

•4-5 hours: $4 with validation, $10 without.

•5-8 hours: $12 (no validation available).

•8-12 hours: $15 (no validation available).

•12-24 hours: $25 (no validation available).

Previously, people paid 25¢ an hour at both parking locations. Monthly parking passes were also available for $25.

2 Agencies Will Provide Home For 3 Homeless Women

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services (QNHS) have joined forces in a joint program to provide housing for formerly homeless women.

QNHS has used federal housing dollars to acquire and rehabilitate a home in Quincy to accommodate three women. Upon completion of the work, the agency will then turn the property over to QISC to rent and manage the property.

The women will rent units at an affordable rate as a result of the production of the affordable housing by QNHS. The house will be named after two women, mother and daughter, who were both active in addressing the needs of the homeless.

Women living in the housing will be self-sufficient and have resources for rent. QISC will select from eligible candidates who have no other resources and find it difficult to pay existing market rents.

"I am so excited by all of the housing initiatives of Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services," said QISC Executive Director Joseph Finn. "QNHS recognizes the housing development and affordable housing are the roots of strong, viable, city neighborhoods. I am happy that Norm Grenier has been a leader in making certain that housing opportunities

Look Forward To Senate Challenge

Flag Amendment Supporters Optimistic After U.S. House Vote

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Local supporters of a Constitutional amendment that would make it illegal to burn or physically desecrate the American flag said they are cautiously optimistic following a vote in support of the measure by the U.S. House of Representatives.

The amendment, which would permit Congress and the state to enact laws to prohibit flag desecration, has gone to the Senate for review. The bill is a reaction to a 1989 Supreme Court ruling that eliminated such laws as a violation of free speech rights.

Quincy Housing Authority Executive Director John "Jake" Comer said he was thrilled when the House voted 312-120 in favor last week (24 votes more than the two-thirds majority necessary). Comer is former national commander of the American Legion and has lobbied for the amendment the past six years for an organization created by the Legion, the Citizens Flag Alliance Inc.

"Happy" is not the word to describe how I felt," said Comer, who was present when the vote took place. "I really feel I was in the House when history may have been made. The whole place went wild. It really was enormous, the finest hour I've ever spent in Washington."

Comer said the issue of flag-burning is not about free speech. While he treasures that freedom, he noted, desecration of the flag is taking things too far.

"With every right, there's a responsibility to the country, and that's the key," he said. "The flag is not just a symbol, it's the true meaning of what this country is all about."

commander of the Legion and has backed the proposed amendment, said he too is happy about the House's support and hopes the Senate will follow suit. "I'm very pleased with the results," he said of the House vote. "The American Legion has been in the forefront of the issue. Now it's our duty to work to get it passed in the Senate."

Bradley added that since 1989, Gallup polls on the issue have shown that an average between 78 and 82 percent of the people are in favor of the proposed amendment.

"We feel very positive in our efforts," said Bradley. "It's not being done for the American Legion, or for veterans, it's being done for 'we the people.' It's not a veterans' issue, it's a people issue."

Bradley said he is "guardedly optimistic" about the proposal making it through the Senate. Comer said he is relatively confident that flag supporters currently have the support of about 65 of the country's 100 senators, with 67 votes needed for the measure to pass.

Regarding the two Massachusetts senators, both men agreed that the opinion of Sen. Edward Kennedy, who is vehemently opposed to the amendment, cannot be swayed, but Comer and Bradley said they will lobby for the support of Sen. John Kerry, who has expressed opposition in the past but, more recently, a willingness to take a second look at the bill.

Two weeks ago, the City Council voted 7-1 to pass a resolution in support of the proposed amendment. Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien was the only council member to vote against the resolution, citing freedom of speech as the main reason for his opposition.

Graffiti Ban Becomes Law

The City Council has passed a law that fines graffiti vandals $200 for defacing public property and makes them reimburse the city for any damage.

The council voted 6-0 last week to pass the ordinance. Councillor Timothy Cahill, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers were not present for the vote.

However, another law that would have banned the sale of spray paint to minors failed to pass because it did not receive the five-vote minimum.

EXPLORER AIDS DISCOVERY

Q: Why does my dentist use that metal pick all the time? It gives me the creeps!

A: That "metal pick" is a very essential instrument! Also known as a dental explorer, it's used to "feel" for hidden dental problems not always visible to the naked eye. By using an explorer when examining your teeth, a dentist is able to make use of all his senses. The importance of this becomes clear if you keep in mind that simple decay, especially in its early stages, is often hidden within the structure of the tooth. It's rather like an iceberg, which appears harmless to the naked eye, but which can do great damage if not detected in time. Remember the Titanic, and allow your dentist to explore for all possible dental dangers.

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of:

Election '95 Warms Up

McCauley Candidate For School Committee Seat

Former Quincy Mayor Francis X. McCauley announces his candidacy for the two-year School Committee seat.

In announcing his candidacy, McCauley, 65, said that his 25 years of experience in all aspects of city government make him well-qualified to serve on the School Committee in 1996 and 1997.

If elected, McCauley said he would focus on the school curriculum. The former School Committee chairman voiced his support for foreign language programs as well as the accelerated school concept now in place at the Sterling Middle School. McCauley also noted that overcrowding in the middle schools will be one of the major issues facing the committee in 1996 and 1997.

Currently the executive director of the State Board of Retirement—serving in the administration of State Treasurer Joseph D. Malone—former Mayor McCauley was involved in many significant school projects during his career in city government. As mayor and chairman of the School Committee for eight years, McCauley oversaw the implementation of a major school reorganization plan that established the middle school concept in Quincy public schools. He was also instrumental in the construction of Quincy College's Saville Hall as well as the rehabilitation and renovation of the Central Middle School.

FRANCIS MCCAULEY

As a school committee member and city councillor, McCauley was involved in the major renovation of and addition to North Quincy High School; the construction of the Lincoln-Hancock School; and additions to both the Squantum and Merrymount elementary schools. As chairman of the City Council's finance committee in the 1960s, he led the fight for council approval of the bond issue for the construction of the Quincy Vocational-Technical School, now the Center for Technical Education.

McCauley served as Quincy's 30th mayor from January, 1982 through January, 1990. During his tenure, Quincy was selected as the 1989 recipient of the Mayor's Financial Leadership Award. Presented annually by the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the award recognizes sound financial management practices and the implementation of innovative solutions to the financial problems of the nation's cities. Other notable achievements of the McCauley administration include the construction of a new police station and a multi-million dollar addition to Quincy Hospital.

In addition to his eight years as Quincy's mayor, McCauley served four years as Ward 1 councillor, six years as a School Committee member and four years as councillor-at-large. He is the only person in Quincy history to have been elected to each of the city's four elective offices.

An honors graduate of Boston College High School and Bentley College, McCauley also attended Boston College Business School. He was associated with the Presidential Cooperative Bank for more than 23 years, retiring as the bank's president in 1981 upon his election as mayor.

McCauley and his wife, Sandra, live at 210 Manet Ave., Houghs Neck. They are the parents of five children, all of whom are graduates of Quincy public schools. Two of their nine grandchildren attended school in Quincy, including Bryan McCauley Logue at Atherton Hough Elementary School.

Harold Candidate For Councillor-at-Large

Ending months of speculation, former State Sen. Paul Harold has announced he is a candidate for city councillor-at-large in the fall election.

Harold made his announcement to a gathering of friends, neighbors and supporters at his home on Furnace Brook Parkway following the July Fourth Parade in Merrymount.

"I want to put my experience to work for my home town, and serve the city and people of Quincy," he said. "My breadth of experience in government gives me unique qualifications to serve in local government at probably one of the most critical times in the relationships among the federal, state and local governments."

"The proposed budget cuts and reorganization of grant programs basically can leave the cities holding the bag unless there is a forceful and articulate voice at the local level. This is the job I want to do.

"The issues of crime, taxes and development are going to determine the long-term viability and attractiveness of our city, and I want to make sure we do it right. I also want to rein in the MWRA, especially on rates, and get the services we're paying for from the state and federal governments."

Harold served as councillor-at-large from 1976 to 1979, when he resigned to serve full-time in the State Senate, where he served for 14 years. He ran unsuccessfully for Congress in 1992.

Harold has been active in a number of Quincy civic and charitable organizations, most recently serving on the advisory boards for Quincy Hospital, the Thomas Crane Public Library and Quincy College, as a non-paid mediator for Quincy's public housing tenants, a sponsor for Quincy Youth Soccer and Youth Hockey teams, and as director of the Quincy Historical Society and Salvation Army.

He is an attorney and college lecturer in Constitutional law and government and politics.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and Councillor Joseph LaRaia supported the ban but fell one vote short because of those who were absent. Council President Michael Cheney and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan voted against the measure, saying it goes too far.

Fabrizio, who has called the ban "crucial" to controlling graffiti in the city, said he will reintroduce the ordinance when all nine council members are present.

In other business, the council voted to increase permit fees for the city's building, gas, health, plumbing and wiring departments, most of which have not been raised since 1978. The council's Ordinance Committee had approved the increases last month.

The council also agreed to allow bars, taverns, veterans' clubs and other establishments catering solely to adults to apply for exemptions from the cigarette lockout-box rule. The businesses must apply to the Quincy License Board for an exemption.

In addition, councillors voted to rezone the Fore River shipyard from Industrial "B" zoning to Planned Unit Development (PUD). The shipyard had been rezoned for industrial use earlier this year to pave the way for a Greek shipbuilding company, but the firm subsequently pulled out of the deal.

DeCristofaro said he favored the rezoning because PUD gives the council more control over any development at the site.

DON'T BLAME IT ALL ON MENOPAUSE

"Oh, it's just those raging hormones!" About the time women start hitting the menopause years - anywhere from their 40's to 60's - they often start hearing the "raging hormone" answer to various physical complaints. While menopause can cause troubling symptoms in some women, there is danger in blaming hormonal changes for every ache, pain, and problem. Symptoms such as dizziness, headaches, trouble sleeping, heart palpitations and depression may be side effects of menopause, or they may be sign of totally unrelated, potentially serious conditions. Ill health should never be accepted as simply part of life, no matter what that part is. Troublesome symptoms should always be checked by a professional.

P.S. Some 70 percent of women actually experience no or minimal physical symptoms due to menopause.

If you are passing through the "change of life," consult your doctor for all the options available to you. If you are experiencing any persistent symptoms, see your doctor. Kilroy Really Was Here

The U.S. Air Force Band of Liberty will salute World War II veterans in a special concert appearance tomorrow (Friday) night at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Maybe they could play one for Kilroy, the phantom of World War II.

Kilroy never made it overseas but his famous calling card "Kilroy Was Here" did. And it became a big morale booster for U.S. soldiers, sailors and marines fighting their way along the road to Berlin and Tokyo.

"Kilroy Was Here" became as famous a World War II slogan as "Remember Pearl Harbor" and "Praise The Lord And Pass The Ammunition."

And it all started right here in Quincy.

There was a real Kilroy. His full name was James J. Kilroy and he worked as a rate setter at the Fore River Shipyard.

He coined the "Kilroy Was Here" phrase on the spur of the moment in 1942 as the yard was turning out some of Uncle Sam's mightiest warships.

Kilroy some years ago related to me how it came about:

He was in charge of incentive work for testing the tanks of ships under construction at the yard. He would figure out how long it should take and how much it should cost to test the tanks for water tightness. Then he would assign the job to various work gangs.

"I was fairly new on the job at the time," Kilroy recalled. "And some of the men were giving me a bad time. They claimed I was making my estimates without first inspecting the job."

"One day I was emerging from the tanks of a corvette when I overheard one worker saying to another: 'Hey, was Kilroy really here to inspect this job?'"

Kilroy—somewhat miffed—pulled a yellow crayon from his pocket and scrawled on the tank hatch for all to see: "Kilroy Was Here."

And, from then on, he scribbled the same message on other ships he inspected for the benefit of any Doubting Thomases.

"That did it," Kilroy said. "Soon the whole yard was in on the act."

The message began appearing everywhere in the yard. On ship bulkheads, tool shacks, lunch pails, etc.

It sailed with the ships around the world. The crews picked it up and left it through the Pacific: on a wall of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel in Honolulu. On coconut trees. And even outside the Imperial Palace in Tokyo.

It was carried to London, Paris, and Rome and Berlin. Scrawled on buildings, billboards, guns, planes, tanks, etc. Even a general's helmet and an admiral's gig got it.

In it's own way, "Kilroy Was Here" served as a morale booster during those grim, dark days of World War II.

"And it scared the hell out of me," Kilroy said. "I lived in fear someone would jail me for defacing property."

"I'd go into the rest room of a restaurant and find it scribbled on the wall. It was always afraid the manager might happen in and ask me my name."

Kilroy was a former Boston city councillor and a former state representative from Jamaica Plain who later lived in Halifax a number of years and served on the Silver Lake Regional High School Board.

I have recalled the origin of "Kilroy Was Here" because of a letter (see Readers Forum, Page 5) from a storyteller by the name of Mike Gauld in Nottingham, England who has been researching the Kilroy legend.

Gauld, no doubt, would be interested in the fact that after the war, the American Transit Association conducted a nationwide contest to determine who really originated the slogan.

Kilroy proved his claim. And for a prize he received a 22-ton trolley car which he converted into a playhouse for his nine children.

Jim Kilroy died in 1962 at age 60.

His name belongs to World War II lore along with Roosevelt, Church, Stalin, Hitler, Mussolini, Eisenhower, MacArthur, Halsey, Toyko Rose, Axis Sally, etc.

Former Senator Paul Harold, who officially announced his candidacy for City Councillor at-large this week, has a fundraiser set for Wednesday, July 12, 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club. Tickets, $50 per person, are available at the door or by calling 773-6785.

HAROLD

WONDERING who that little boy whose photo appeared here last week is? Well, so you won't be kept in suspense, he grew up to be City Clerk Joe Shea.

AND, a long-time familiar City Hall figure, Gemma Fertile is retiring, closing out a 30-year career with the city.

Gemma has been administrative assistant in the City Planning Department where she worked since 1968. She was with the School Department prior to that from 1965 to 1968.

A reception for her will be held tomorrow (Friday) from 1 to 3 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room in City Hall annex.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1908 POSTCARD view of Hancock St. was taken from in front of what is now Rogers Jewelry store looking south towards School St. On the right, The Quincy Department Store was on the first floor of the Durgin and Merrill building. Further down, the Kincaide Furniture sign is on the building just after today's Adams Arcade which is the site of the planned DeCelle store. Sanborn & Damon's hardware store on the left was open in the Square for over 60 years. In 1915, Hancock St. was widened to its present 80 feet from here to School St. and was paved with cobblestones. That had to be a welcome improvement, as this view shows a set of trolley tracks on a dirt street and, visible in the streets in the immediate foreground, are the granite blocks which were placed across the street at the corners to allow crossing without stepping in the mud or whatever.

Beverly Zimmerman Remembered

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

She was a writer, an editor, an advocate for the Jewish community and an extensive reader, but most of all she was a teacher.

Beverly Zimmerman lived and worked in Quincy. Her stay at The Woodward School for Girls was short, two years, but it was an exciting two years.

Beverly was more than just an educator. Teaching at Woodward encompassed most of her life. She taught her classes, published articles, attended conferences, participated in fund-raisers, chaperoned field trips, ran trivia contests, supervised lunch, mentored students, and organized enrichment speakers. She was at her job all the time, encouraging, inspiring, counseling, supporting, motivating and guiding.

Her Jewish heritage was an integral part of her teaching. She brought cultural awareness to the school and community as a member of the newly-formed Quincy Jewish Committee.

Beverly began her teaching career in the Boston public school system. She brought a wealth of knowledge and experience to her colleagues and students at Woodward: her expertise in writing and reading, and her desire to prepare young women for college and an enlightened future.

There are few "thank yous" in teaching. It's a job without a lot of visible rewards. Sometimes, years later, a student returns or remarks what a great influence one teacher had on her life. Beverly was such a teacher, but in our case, we will have to remember her years from now, and what a wonderful inspiration Beverly was on our lives.

As Henry Adams wrote, "A teacher affects eternity; no one can tell where his (her) influence stops."

A writing scholarship her been established at The Woodward School in Beverly's memory. The family has requested donations be sent to The Woodward School for Girls Foundation Inc., 1102 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Seeks Origin Of 'Kilroy Was Here'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

May I first of all introduce myself? My name is Mike Gauld, and I am a storyteller based in Nottingham, England. I tell my tales in a room, in a quaint little public house that is named "Ye olde Trip to Jerusalem."

The "Trip," as it is called locally, is the oldest inn in England, erected in 1189 A.D. The pub is actually built into the rock upon which Nottingham castle stands.

I am currently researching the legend of a character named Kilroy, and in particular the phrase "Kilroy was here." I would like to know how and where this phrase originated.

The basic story that I have is that this man was an immigrant in the 1920s, who lived and worked in Quincy as an inspector in a shipyard.

The story goes: "After some time the foreman on site began to question the amount of inspections that

Kilroy claimed to have made. Not satisfied, the foreman made him "re-check" numerous items again.

Kilroy's future response to this was to scribble on every item that he checked the now famous phrase, "Kilroy was here."

Another explanation of this story is that Kilroy was a phantom that appeared on the battlefields of the Second World War.

A third version again states that this man was an inspector, but this time at the Bethlehem Sheet Metal Co. in Pennsylvania.

If you or any of your readers can give me any further information at all, I would be most grateful.

The story of Mr. Kilroy is indeed marvelous, and I seek to re-introduce him into the British culture.

I thank you all for your time and for your kind attention.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa was seeking to rent a garage in North Quincy as temporary quarters for men and equipment from the recently demolished Atlantic fire station. Three pieces of equipment from the old station were being stored outside at the Wollaston station.

Following a meeting with the owner of the garage the city wanted to rent at Holbrook Rd. and Safford St., Albert Scavo and Councillor Richard Barry, the mayor was prepared to submit the order to a special meeting of the city council.

Bids for the new fire station were scheduled to be open July 16. The estimated cost was $150,000.

SHIPBUILDING COMMITTEE RE-CHARGED

William O'Connell, chairman of the Quincy Shipbuilding Committee, launched new efforts this week to assist the yard in getting a substantial share of the Navy's $3 billion shipbuilding and conversion program for 1963.

The committee's meeting came only hours after the yard learned it had lost the bid on the Navy's second nuclear guided missile frigate to the N.Y. Shipbuilding Co. at Camden, N.J., a $53 million job.

O'Connell met with Vincent Cogliano of Local 5, Henry Fall of Local 90 and Irving Coughlin of the Fore River Graduate Apprentice Program in advance of his meeting yard Manager Sam Wakeman.

Corn Meal Bread/Polenta Pizza

I thought my mother's recipe for corn meal bread pizza (or polenta pizza) was lost, but last week as I was reading over some of her recipes, the corn meal recipe was tucked in a corner.

Since I found it, I've made the polenta pizza a couple of times and the taste is so familiar and reminiscent of some of her recipes.

It's easy and can be prepared ahead of time and either eaten cold or heated in the microwave or oven. I made one over the weekend and placed it in the freezer for later use.

Corn Meal/Polenta Pizza

4 medium sized potatoes (cut up and boiled)
2 cups corn meal
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup romano or parmesan grated cheese
1 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon pepper (gives it that distinctive spicy flavor)
2 tablespoons olive oil

Boil the potatoes, and mash them in the same water. Add the rest of the ingredients and beat until blended. If mixture becomes too dry, add a smidgen more of water.

Slightly oil two pie plates and place the mixture and with the top of a fork, scratch the surface creating a distinctive look.

Bake in a 350 degree preheated oven for about an hour until top is crusty. Serve hot, room temperature or cold. It goes great with New England boiled dinner or just alone. (Cut in pizza type slices).

(If making it into corn bread, use a baking pan as if you were preparing brownies and then cut into squares.

Storytellers Series At Library Begins July 11

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center, will host the ninth annual Summer Storytellers Series sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council beginning July 11.

A wide variety of performers will entertain families with children age 5 and older Tuesdays at 7 p.m. in the Central Children's Room at the library.

Programs include:

• "The Case of the Missing Woodpile," a musical mystery presented by the Gerwick Puppets, July 11.

• Traditional American folk tales told by storyteller Ellen Block, July 18.

• "Rumpelstiltskin Revisited," a collection of modern fairy tales rendered by Sara Jacobson, July 25.

• Tales and music of the Bahamas performed by Derek Burrows, Aug. 1.

• Songs and stories with the theme "Evergreen" told by Jim Douglas, Aug. 8.

• A performance of Balinese dance theater by Niyoman Catra blending modern tales with ancient epics through dance, song and story, Aug. 15.

In addition, a series of "pajama time" story hours will be hosted by storyteller Dottie Moynihan in the Art Gallery adjacent to the Children's Room.

The story hours have been specially prepared for children ages 2-5 accompanied by a parent. They have been developed for the convenience of parents with both preschool and school age children or those whose children are too young for the traditional storytellers series.

For more information, call the library at 376-1300.

Beechwood Fund-raiser To Benefit Playground

An "Attic Treasures" Fund-raiser and Raffle will be held Thursday, July 13 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Beechwood Community Life Center, 440 East Squantum St.

Seniors from Quincy are organizing the two-fold fund-raiser to benefit a much-needed playground for pre-schoolers. The raffle will be held at 5 p.m.

"The little ones come to Beechwood every day from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. They need a playground," said Mary Centola, Beechwood's Elder Action director.

"To date, we've raised $10,000," said Sharron Beals, executive director.

"We are close, but need an additional $2,500 to begin our playground construction. We are thrilled that Quincy seniors are rallying to help. Seniors already provide invaluable volunteer assistance at the Center and promote countless intergenerational activities and events."

An initial playground meeting to organize was held early in June, Beals added.

Contributions for the "Attic Treasures" sale and raffle can be brought to Beechwood any morning between 7:30 a.m. to noon. For more information, call Centola at 471-5712.

Two Honored For Long Years Of Service To Beechwood

Beechwood Community Life Center honored two as "Partners in Community Service" at the center's annual meeting.

Together the two honorees have contributed 27 years of service to the center.

Ed O'Leary, Beechwood's President was honored for 14 years of uninterrupted service "for remarkable dedication, commitment and leadership in funding, developing and relocating Beechwood on the Bay". O'Leary was one of the center's founders working with Beechwood's first director, Dr. Cecil Paul and first president, Don Strong to establish the intergenerational center. He helped formulate the mission and incorporate the organization in 1981.

"Ed O'Leary worked tirelessly over the years to develop and strengthen the intergenerational center", said Sharron Beals, Executive Director. "This last year he led the boards' development effort to relocate the community Center in September".

Although Ed is stepping down as President and is retiring from the board, he will continue as a member of Beechwood's Development/Fundraising Committee which is planning a large fundraising event on April 12.

Bill Horte was honored by the Beechwood Board for 13 years of continuous service and dedication to developing family services through the center have been recognized and appreciated through the years.

Horte has served in many capacities through the years. His leadership and assistance were especially valued on Beechwood's Finance and Building/Grounds Committees. "Bill Horte was of great help as we sought guidance and resources for our recent relocation and facility rehabilitation" Beals said. "Even as he retires from the board, he has offered future counsel and assistance."

2,300 Delegates In Attendance 1995 White House Aging Conference Called 'Most Important In Century'

By JOHN NOONAN

The four-day 1995 White House Conference on Aging held recently in Washington, D.C. was billed as the most important conference of the elderly this century.

The resolutions passed by the 2,300 delegates from all 50 states, the territories and District of Columbia on the closing day will be forwarded to members of Congress and President Clinton for implementation.

Officials said the impact of the resolutions may be felt into the 21st century.

Four areas comprised the agenda of the conference: assuring comprehensive health care, including long-term care; promoting economic security, maximizing housing and support service options, and maximizing options for quality of life.

Some of the top officials from government, senior organizations, advocacy groups and the media addressed the audience in the Washington Hilton hotel auditorium.

Among the speakers were: President Clinton, Mrs. Hillary Rodham Clinton, Vice President Gore, Mrs. Tipper Gore, Sen. David Pryor, conference chairman; Secretary of Veterans Affairs Jesse Brown and Hugh Downs, host of the popular ABC-TV program "20/20."

Arthur Flemming set the tone for the conference when he spoke at the opening session. Flemming, 92, has served under or worked with eight Presidents of the United States in promoting programs of the elderly as a Cabinet member or consultant and is considered on the staunchest senior advocates in the country.

The conference consisted of general, speakout, workshop, and issue resolution development sessions covering a wide range of emotional issues on growing old.

The growing number of elderly afflicted with Alzheimer's disease was brought up at several sessions. The need for long-term health care coverage was paramount in many discussions. Increased home care assistance and the treatment of elderly patients with compassion and caring was also stressed.

The conference was geared to build upon the legacy of the first three conferences with more grass roots participation, a greater focus on intergenerational issues, and a commitment to designing strategies for implementing the policies adopted by this year's delegates.

On the closing day, 40 resolutions were adopted which were considered pragmatic and doable. The top five resolutions were:

- Keeping Social Security sound now and for the future.
- Preserving the integrity of the Older Americans Act.
- Preserving the nature of Medicaid.
- Ensuring the future of the Medicaid program.
- Preserving advocacy functions under the Older Americans Act.

During the past year, more than 120,000 citizens in all parts of the country participated in mini-conferences on the grass roots level to sift the thousands of recommendations submitted to the White House Conference on Aging National Policy and Advisory Committees.

The recommendations were winnowed down to manageable resolutions, copies of which were sent to all official delegates in advance of the conference which opened at the Washington-Hilton. It was then that the delegates took over and spent hours in general sessions, workshops, caucuses, and lobbying for the 40 resolutions that were adopted.

The number of delegates for each state is based on the percentage of the state's population age 55 and over, compared to the nation's total population age 55 and older. Each state must also appoint women over 55 as half of its delegates. The delegates are also representative of each state's rural, urban, and minority populations.

Governor Weld appointed 23 delegates to represent Massachusetts. Each member of Congress appointed one delegate.

While Massachusetts had a total of 32 official delegates there was no delegate representing Quincy, which has the highest ratio of senior citizens of any city of comparable size in the country.

The idea for White House Conferences on Aging (WHCoAs) first originated more than 40 years ago. President Harry Truman directed the Federal Security Agency to hold such an event in 1950.

Conferences were held in 1952 and 1956, but the first official WHCoA was held in 1961. Many recommendations of that event, including Medicare, Medicaid, Social Security reform and the Older Americans Act, became law in the mid-1960s.

The subsequent conferences held in 1971, 1981 and this year have continued to focus on a variety of issues affecting older Americans.

Marin Karsmarski Big Sister Of The Year

Marin Karsmarski of Quincy has been named the Big Sister Association of Greater Boston's North Shore Big Sister of the Year for 1995.

She is one of several Big Sisters recognized for her commitment and support to her Little Sister during the agency's Annual Meeting.

Although Karsmarski and her Little Sister, Neiliz, had lived near each other on the North Shore at the time they were matched, eventually she moved south of the city, and Neiliz moved further north of Boston.

Karsmarski, who has been matched to 15-year-old Neiliz for almost three years, works at Fidelity Insurance.

Throughout their match, and in spite of their distance, Marin has responded to her Little Sister's personal challenges and many changes by remaining a consistent, stable and reliable adult friend.

"A volunteer Big Sister steps forward because she wants to make a positive difference in the life of a girl in her community," said Jerry Martinson, executive director of the Big Sister Association. "Mrs. Karsmarski has gone above and beyond to help make that difference, and a wonderful friendship has resulted."

The Big Sister Association of Greater Boston, founded in 1951, is the oldest and one of the largest Big Sister agencies in the United States. This program provides female mentors to girls between the ages of seven and 15 years of age. Currently, 250 girls are waiting to be matched. The need for volunteers is great.

For more information about the program, call Ellen Friedman at Big Sister Association at 236-8060.

Atty. William Jackson YMCA Board Chairman

William D. Jackson, an attorney with the firm of Jackson and Sutherland, P.C., Quincy, has been named 1995-1996 chairman of the South Shore YMCA Board of Directors as announced by CEO Ralph Yohe.

Jackson, a Norwell resident, who has served on the YMCA board since 1983, succeeds Alex Clark, president of The Vulcan Company in Hingham, who remains on the board as immediate past chairman.

"I have been a member of the South Shore YMCA since 1975," said Jackson. "Each year I become increasingly impressed with the work the Y does, not only for people like myself but also for children, older people and physically-challenged people."

"It is both a pleasure and a privilege to serve as chairman of this outstanding organization."

Serving with the new chairman as officers are Mark C. Dickinson, president of Dickinson Development Corp., and John Sheskey, John M. Sheskey & Associates, vice chairman; Phyllis White of Weymouth, clerk; K. Douglas Briggs, president of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Co., treasurer; and Phyllis P. Godwin, CEO, Granite City Electric Supply Co., assistant treasurer.

The South Shore YMCA also welcomes six new board members: David E. Bradbury, chairman and CEO of The Co-operative Bank; Hugh J. Devine of Devine & Pearson Advertising; Robert J. Fleming of Fleming & Langlois P.C.; Bruce S. MacKilligan, Bank of Boston/South Shore; John J. O'Connor III, Citizens Bank of Massachusetts; and Mark A. Osborne, The Hibernia Savings Bank. Former Director Emmett W. Eldred, Pittiglio, Rabin, Todd & McGrath, Weston, Mass., has rejoined the board.

7 Residents Graduate From Bunker Hill College

Seven Quincy residents recently graduated from Bunker Hill Community College in Boston.

They are: Thomas D. Bowes, Derek Carver, Michael J. Mansfield, Debbie Wai-Tu Tam, and Elaine O'Toole, who received associate degrees, and Olga Lucia Campos and Susan M. D'Arrigo, who received certificates.

Three of the students were also recognized at the school's recent Honors Ceremony. Carver and O'Toole received high honors and Mansfield received honors.

In addition, O'Toole received the departmental award in Medical Radiography/Option I and Carver received the academic excellence award in Medical Radiography and a Trustees Scholarship Award.

Claire O'Brien Receives Ward 4 Person Of The Year Award

Claire O'Brien was recently presented the Albert J. Conti Southwest Person of the Year Award from the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association.

The presentation was made by Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio during a ceremony at the Ward 4 Community Center.

The award was established by the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services in memory of Southwest resident and activist Al Conti. It is awarded annually in recognition of outstanding community service.

O'Brien was honored for her continued dedication to neighborhood community service in a celebration that included words from Steve Hawko, board president; Rep. Steve Tobin, Councillor Tom Fabrizio, Normand Grenier, executive director of Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services; and Councillor Michael Cheney.

O'Brien has been the treasurer of the Ward 4

CLAIRE O'BRIEN accepts the Albert J. Conti Southwest Person of the Year from the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association. Making the presentation is Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio.

Neighborhood Association since 1989. She has also volunteered countless hours to keep the community center clean.

"Claire can always be counted on to take care of the hospitality at all of our community and board meetings. She has served on the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services board of directors for three years, volunteers for the Quincy SHARE program and has been a school crossing guard at St. Kevin's School in Dorchester for over 20 years," said Jana Johnsen-Harrington, director of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association.

Many of O'Brien's family members were present at the celebration. Her husband John and their children spoke of their mother's dedication to their lives, including her being a "Bluebird Mother" when they were young.

After the presentation, coffee and dessert were served.

Air Force Band To Honor World War II Veterans

The U.S. Air Force Band of Liberty will perform a free concert in honor of Quincy and South Shore veterans of World War II on their 50th anniversary Friday at 6:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium, Hancock St., Quincy.

The show is being presented by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Metropolitan District Commission and the City of Quincy. Seating will be on the "home team" (Hancock St.) side of the field.

All World War II veterans and their widows or widowers who attend the concert will be presented with a Certificate of Appreciation from the Department of Veterans' Services for their service to the country. The event will include a variety of color guards and a full band concert.

WSSH Radio will distribute free ice cream to children. The U.S. Postal Service van will be present to sell the new World War II commemorative stamps. A parents booster club will sell pizza and soda at the concession stand.

In the event of rain before noon July 7, the concert may or may not be moved to the gymnasium at the Quincy Center for Technical Education (Vo-Tech School). However, if there is no rain up before

Veterans Retirement Bill Given Preliminary Approval

State Sen. Michael Morrissey announces the Public Service Committee has given preliminary approval to a bill which would allow state employees who are veterans to add up to four years of their military service towards their state retirement.

Currently, veterans are credited with so-called "bookend service", which allows them to receive credit for military time only if they are in state service prior to entering the military and they return to state service immediately upon the completion of their military service. The military time must be sandwiched between their time spent employed by the state.

"This legislation will give veterans credit for their service regardless of when they served or were employed by the Commonwealth," Morrissey said. "These men and women gave up a portion of their lives to serve their country and this bill will give them credit for time spent in the military, which is consistent with what state law currently allows teachers for out-of-state service.

"Public service is public service, whether in service to the Commonwealth, cities and towns or the military and it should be treated the same way."

Senate Bill 1457 would pertain to approximately 4,000 veterans who are employed by the Commonwealth and establish a local option for cities, towns and counties so that they will be able to provide the same benefit to their veterans.

The bill will now be referred to the Senate Committee on Ways and Means for further action.

25th Annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival July 20-22

The 25th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival, featuring good buys and family entertainment, opens Thursday, July 20 for a three-day run through Saturday, July 22.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, will be held on Hancock St. which will be closed off to vehicular traffic between Granite and School Sts..

As in the past, shoppers will be able to stroll down Hancock St. looking over merchandise on the sidewalk in front of participating stores. The accent will again be on good entertainment for the entire family and good buys for Quincy shoppers.

Entertainment and other activities are scheduled for 10 a.m. through 9 p.m. Thursday and Friday and through 4 p.m. Saturday.

Opening ceremonies will begin Thursday at 10 a.m. as numerous canopied booths ready a festive appearance for the three-day event. A central stage will be set mid center on Hancock St.

Planned entertainment includes Alexander, King of Jesters; Rick Adams, One Man Band; Puppeteer Marie and her Friends. The Quincy Alumni Band and a special appearance by The Power Rangers.

Demonstrations are planned by two local karate schools, Tae Kwon Do and Wah Lum King Fu, O'Malley's Boxing Gymnasium, which is new to Quincy Center, and Chinese Folk Dancing Troupes from the Chinese Language School.

Big evening entertainment is planned for Thursday and Friday. Joe's Yardrock Big Swing Band will take attendee back to the Big Band Era on Thursday evening and on Friday, Country-Western music will take over featuring the Bluehill Kickers and Barry Wood, WCLB's on-air personality as well as appropriate dancing demonstrations.

Entertainment is sponsored by QCBPA members including F.W. Woolworth, Fleet Bank, Shawmut Bank, Burgin & Platner Insurance, Faxon Trust, Messina Enterprises, Shaw's Market, Medical Associates of Quincy, Joe's Pub & Yardrock Cafe, Quincy 2000 and the Cooperative Bank.

Other three-day event include pony rides, children's rides, caricature artists, a Norfolk County dog sniffing demonstrations, a crime prevention booth, the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association blood pressure testing booth and numerous crafters and vendors for browsing and shopping opportunities.

Those interested in attending are asked to watch for local advertisements listing the complete time schedule of events.

Through July 8th At Fine Light Photography Registration Underway For MDA Beautiful Baby Contest

Registration is underway for a beautiful baby contest to benefit the greater Boston chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Children ages five and younger can register at Fine Light Photography, 1386 Hancock St., Quincy Square, by visiting the studio or calling 770-1890.

A $5 entry donation to MDA will entitle participants to a 4-inch by 5-inch photograph as a souvenir of the contest.

Photos will be taken at Fine Light through Saturday, July 8th. All entries must be registered by July 8th.

Photos of contestants will appear in the July 20th issue of The Quincy Sun. Photos will also be displayed at the Quincy Sidewalk Sale on July 20-22 and at Fine Light Photography from July 22-28.

Winners will be notified and announced the following week in the Aug. 3rd issue of The Quincy Sun.

Parents, family, friends and customers will be asked to cast their votes (donations) for the beautiful baby of their choice by donating $1.00 for each vote. Voting can be done during the Quincy Sidewalk Sale or at Fine Light Photography. Donations can also be sent directly to MDA, 275 Turnpike Street, Suite 201, Canton, MA 02021, Attn: Elise Kerrigan.

All contestants will be assigned a number at the time of registration. To vote for a particular baby, checks should be made payable to MDA and the contestant number of choice must be written on the check.

A "ballot box" will accompany the photo display. All votes must be received by MDA and Fine Light by July 27.

The child receiving the most votes (donations) will win a 16-by-20 wall portrait ($115 value) from Fine Light Photography and a $50 U.S. Savings Bond and a free one-year subscription from The Quincy Sun. Second place winner will be awarded with a 10-by-13 custom portrait and a year subscription to the Sun. Third place will receive an 8-by-10 custom portrait plus a year subscription to the Sun.

All prizes are donated by The Quincy Sun and Fine Light Photography Studio.

Money raised from the event will help MDA continue its research and patient service programs covering 40 neuromuscular diseases. Since MDA does not seek or receive any funding from the government, individual contributions are vital to the Association's success.

For more information, pick up a flyer at Fine Light Photography, 1386 Hancock St., The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., both in Quincy Square; call Fine Light at 770-1890; or contact the MDA office in Canton at 617-575-1881.

VETERANS MEMORIAL STADIUM will be the site of a concert by the U.S. Air Force Band of Liberty Friday at 6:30 p.m. The show is being presented as a tribute to World War II veterans. Discussing plans for the event from left are Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry "Hank" Bradley, Mayor James Sheets, MDC Commissioner David Balfour Jr. and Tech. Sgt. Benny Pelphrey, a member of the band.

Rev. Esther Sanger To Be Honored July 11

Rev. Esther Sanger, founder and executive director of the Quincy Crisis Center and the Mary-Martha Learning Center in Hingham, will be honored at a special tribute Tuesday, July 11 from 7 to 10 p.m. at The Ocean Terrace, Marina Bay.

Among those on hand for the event will be Mayor James Sheets and Hingham town officials.

Rev. Sanger, who has been described as the "Mother Teresa of the South Shore," has dedicated her life to caring for the homeless, hungry, alcoholics, drug users, AIDS victims, battered women, elderly poor, deserted mothers with babies, and others in need.

Although she has been diagnosed with advanced-stage terminal cancer, she still rises daily to prepare for the noon-time feeding program at Faith Covenant Church in Quincy and to answer the Crisis Center's hot line.

Rev. Sanger is a graduate of Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, where she received her B.A. degree in social work and M.A. degree in family counseling, and an ordained minister in the Church of the Nazarene. She founded the Quincy Crisis Center in 1979.

Tickets for the tribute are $50 per person and may be obtained by calling the Crisis Center at 471-7075. Proceeds will benefit the Crisis Center and the Mary-Martha Learning Center.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Quincy Leads South Shore In Economic Development

By PETER BROWN

While part of the Massachusetts economy and real estate market is bearing the remnants of the recession, the City of Quincy continues to experience a renaissance, a revitalization of its spirit and character.

Making its transition from a manufacturing-based economy to a modern one, Quincy has adapted to the economic changes of the nation and the world. The power and dynamics of the business community and the administration combined have set wheels in motion that have encouraged new commerce and development without losing sight of history.

Less than three years ago, vacancy rates were high and companies' announcements to relocate or go out of business were regular news. At that time, Mayor James Sheets unraveled a master plan for the future of Quincy. His vision was to make Quincy the leader of the economic development on the South Shore. This included commercial district revitalization, retail development, building improvements, industrial attraction and retention, access and traffic improvements, tourism development and long-range master planning.

His brainchild, the Quincy 2000 Corporation, was founded in 1992. This non-profit, economic development corporation was designed to unite Quincy's public and private sectors in a common economic development mission.

Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, says the corporation's objective is to "promote development that will enhance both the position and the perception of Quincy as a desirable place to live, work, invest or visit." Its focus is attracting new business as well as retaining existing business.

Based on the commercial activity in 1994 and the first months of 1995, the mayor's dreams have become reality. Here are some examples of retail development.

Home Depot has opened in West Quincy. The new 60,000-square-foot Granite Plaza on the site of the former Grossman's store is full. Half of its retail space is occupied by TJ Maxx.

Granite Crossing shopping center, a $20 million project is being built on 28 acres in Quincy Point and will include a 135,000-square-foot Wal-Mart and 75,000-square-foot Roche Bros. A 75,000-square-foot Super Stop & Shop on Newport Avenue has been approved, as has an 85,000-square-foot Shaw's Supermarket in North Quincy. The city is issuing RFPs to developers for building a six-story, 250,000-square-foot office space with structured parking on Hancock Street that will bring 800 to 1,000 people to Quincy each weekday.

In addition, Pilgrim Health Care will be relocating its operations from Norwell to Crown Colony Office Park in Quincy.

The services industry has remained strong in Quincy and continues its growth. Its largest employers include CNA Insurance, Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance, Arbella Insurance, State Street Bank, Putnam Investor Services, Harvard Community Health Plan and Boston Financial Data Services.

Boston Financial's recent expansion necessitated leasing nearly 40,000 square feet in Presidents Place on Hancock Street in Quincy Center. The office and retail complex, owned by Citizens Bank of Massachusetts, perhaps most embodies Quincy Center's dramatic recovery and future potential. According to Boston Financial's Vice President Paul Alpert, their workforce had grown from 1,200 in 1991 to 1,700 employees today and had outgrown its main building.

"We were getting cramped," said Alpert.

Boston Financial looked in and out of Quincy for new space, and the 350,000-square-foot Presidents Place fit the bill.

"Our space requirements and need for quality amenities are more than answered at Presidents Place," said Alpert. "In addition, we are pleased to have found a building permitting us to grow in Quincy. Throughout our 21-year history, we have enjoyed tremendous success operating in the City of Quincy."

According to Peter Sullivan, who was responsible for brokering the lease, location was one of the prime factors in Boston Financial's decision as it has also been for other companies looking to relocate or expand at Presidents Place. Since Quincy Center is only a three-minute drive from a major highway, people have quickly found out how easy it is to get into Quincy.

"Being close to so many highways makes the Presidents Place property easily accessible for both employees and clients, a characteristic enhanced with a T-station across the street (one of four in the city)," said Sullivan. "Travel to all points is also appealing--whether it's Boston, the Route 128 belt or beyond--this facility offers tremendous "reach" without the hassles of commuting to and from Boston."

All the main indicators are strong. The first class office vacancy rate is less than 6 percent, in an area with significantly more square feet than other areas. Because of Quincy's many outstanding attributes and its rich heritage, tourism is a big factor in its economy. The population is growing, business associations are active, and plans for a commuter rail in Quincy are underway.

As the gateway to the South Shore, Quincy has a promising and exciting future.

Morrisette Loses First, Rebounds Over Weymouth

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team saw its unbeaten streak end with a loss to Randolph last week, but it rebounded with a win over Weymouth.

The 4-3 win against Weymouth Friday left Morrisette (10-1) alone atop the Zone 6 standings. Weymouth's (8-2-1) only two losses this season were to Morrisette.

A clutch hit by Tim Zaniboni in the bottom of the seventh gave the Quincy club the victory.

Although not as sharp as he had been in his previous outings, ace Tom Malvesti improved to 4-0 with a nine-strikeout effort, despite giving up his first two earned runs of the season.

Weymouth jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first, but Morrisette tied it in the fourth. Singles by Joe Biagini and Malvesti and a walk by Paul Marnikovic loaded the bases. Biagini scored the equalizer on a wild pitch.

They took a 3-2 lead in the sixth when Zaniboni and Malvesti scored, again courtesy of wild pitches.

A triple by Weymouth's Chris Traderi knocked in Jamie Barrett with a tying run in the top of the seventh, and set up Zaniboni's game-winning hit.

Ron McGann led the bottom of the inning with a walk, went to third when Jim Sapienza singled, and scored on Zaniboni's hit.

Sapienza led Morrisette with a single and a double. Malvesti cracked two singles and Biagini and Marnikovic clubbed one hit apiece.

Morrisette played flawless defense and turned three double plays.

Before the Randolph game, it appeared that if Morrisette was going to lose it would be because of the pitching of the likes of Kevin Sullivan and Dan Morse, two of the premier hurlers in the South Shore.

But that was not the case. Morrisette got men on base easy enough, but failed to get them across the plate as they left 10 men stranded and lost 5-4 in extra innings.

Shoddy defense (five errors) led to four unearned runs and Morrisette's first loss of the season.

Closer Jeff Russell took over in the seventh and suffered the loss. He was hit with an unearned in the seventh which tied the game and an unearned run in the eighth which gave Randolph the win. Two errors led to the winning run.

Sullivan was wild in the first inning, allowing Morrisette to take an early 3-1 lead. After McGann singled, Sullivan walked the next four batters. McGann scored on a wild pitch, Sapienza walked with the bases loaded and Marnikovic singled in a run.

In what proved to be a crucial play, the inning ended when Biagini was thrown out at the plate as he tried to turn Marnikovic's hit into another run.

Morrisette scored their final run in the third when Biagini stole second and came home on Marnikovic's infield hit. Biagini reached when he was awarded first after an interference call.

Sullivan walked the bases loaded with one out in the fourth and was replaced by Morse. Morse pitched 4 2/3 innings of scoreless ball and allowed just two hits.

Zaniboni and Tom Cunio cracked singles for Morrisette.

Closes Out Distinguished Career Mike Casali: A Role Model As Coach, Teacher

By KERRY BYRNE

If you define a great coach as one who has made a positive influence on the lives of others, then Mike Casali is among the greatest this city has ever had.

For 30 years, until the early 1980s, Casali coached football, basketball and baseball at Central Junior High. He has spent the last 15 years as a guidance counselor in the Quincy Public Schools system.

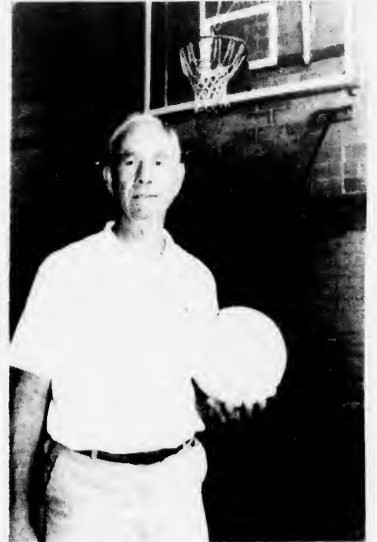

The end of the recent school year brought to a close the coach's distinguished educational career. But, in what can only be considered a credit to the man and his methods, his influence did not end when he retired from coaching.

"Mike Casali probably had more of an influence on kids than any other teacher I've dealt with in my 20 years in education," said Vin Moscardelli, who coached against Casali then worked with him during his 12-year stint as principal of Central.

Many who played under Casali are now in education and coaching, and they attribute that fact directly to the influence he had on them as young athletes at Central. Now, as they attempt to pass on the lessons they learned from the coach, his wisdom is reaching a second generation.

"I think most people assume I became a teacher because of my father," said Mitch Finnegan, son of former Quincy athletic director Marty Finnegan. "That's part of it. But Casali played a big role. He influenced everyone who played under him." Finnegan is a teacher, coach and director of the Impact Quincy drug abuse prevention program.

Ed Miller, former North Quincy High basketball coach and current athletic director in Marshfield, echoed Finnegan's sentiments. "He was the consummate junior high school coach and role model. He was very instrumental in my success and getting me into the business of coaching."

Another educator who attributes his career choice to Casali is QPS guidance counselor and North Quincy coach Paul Bregoli. "He was a role model," said Bregoli. "He was the person you wanted to be when you got older because of the way he treated you and the way he conducted himself. He was fundamentally a good teacher."

What was Casali's secret? What was it that made young boys want to follow in his footsteps? If it could be summed up in two words they would be care and respect. Casali cared not only about the children who played under him, but about all those in the Central family.

His concern manifested itself in the way he reached out not only to the model student/athlete, but to those who may have been in a little trouble. He felt that, through athletics, he could help turn boys around.

"He was particularly good with kids who might have had problems in the front office," said Finnegan. "He wanted them to become part of the entire school community."

"He always had a way of handling the wise guys," said Miller. "We had some tough kids back then, and he handled them all."

Casali described his approach this way: "My theory was the worse they are, the harder you have to work to get to them. They're the ones who probably need it the most."

The way he saw it, respecting his young athletes was the only way to do business.

"He almost never yelled or screamed," said Finnegan. "He never needed to. He didn't operate out of fear. Kids respected him because they knew how much he cared about them."

In his years at Central, Casali fielded outstanding

Babe Ruth

Kelly, Wiltshire Burn Fire Dept.

Mark Kelly and Steve Wiltshire were the main men as Bryan Post burnt Fire Dept., 8-7, in Babe Ruth League baseball.

Kelly worked the mound and fanned 10 batters, while Wiltshire continued to swing a heavy stick, going 3 for 3 with two towering triples. Both young men turned in outstanding defensive plays.

Bryan Post jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first on Wiltshire's single and Michael Shaw's line drive triple.

Fire countered with a run on Billy Walker's double.

BP went up 6-1 in the second as Kevin Cellucci singled and Wiltshire crunched a bases-loaded triple. They put the game out of reach in the fifth with two runs, courtesy of hits by Shawn Manning and Shaw, and Wiltshire's second triple.

Fire made a comeback bid with five runs in the last two innings, but ran out of steam. Key hits were made by Manny Vasquez, Jose Diaz and Walker.

The Elks improved to 16-0 with a 5-1 win over Golden Print.

Bobby Johnston posted the win with 5 2/3 innings of two-hit ball. Chris Bregoli picked up the save.

It was a 0-0 contest through three, but in the fourth the Elks got all the runs they would need when Rusty Corner singled, Steve Clarke reached on an error to score Corner, and Bregoli slapped an RBI base hit.

Golden Print countered with a run in the bottom of the fourth. A series of walks set up an RBI single by Flores.

The Elks scored the final three runs in the sixth, thanks to a walk by Corner, singles by Clarke and Bregoli, and a throwing error.

Print pitcher John Sullivan had a superb outing against the loaded Elks lineup. He fanned 10 and allowed five hits.

teams year after year - but to talk to his former players, outstanding teams in terms of wins and losses were not an end to him. His mission was to get as many boys involved in athletics as possible.

"He won I don't know how many city championships," said Bregoli. "But he never emphasized winning. He emphasized fundamentals, teamwork and respect, and the kids responded by giving their best. Nobody wanted to disappoint Mr. Casali. The result was that his teams won a lot more than they lost."

With his success came the opportunity to move on to high school coaching; a move that would be seen by many as an advancement. To Casali, education and coaching were not about advancing his own career; they were about advancing the careers of those who played under him. It is a lesson in humility many high school coaches these days should take to heart.

"He had plenty of opportunities to take positions at the high school level, but he felt he could have a bigger impact in junior high," said Finnegan. "And I think he just enjoyed what he was doing so much."

Today, hundreds of kids are being coached by Casali, though they don't even know it. In the classic Christmas movie It's a Wonderful Life, it took a suicide attempt and divine intervention before George Bailey was made to realize what an impact his life had on others.

For Casali, things are not so extreme. His influence is apparent each and every day. All he has to do is look at ball fields and basketball courts around the region. If he sees young boys reveling in the joy of being a part of a team, then there is a good chance he had a role in it.

"Quincy's losing more than just a coach and a teacher, it's losing an institution," said Bregoli of Casali's retirement.

Quincy is losing the old coach, but not the coach's lessons. It will take many more retirements before those fade away.

St. John's Junior

Bocce Club Rolls To Dramatic Playoff Win

A heart-stopping 3-2 win by South Quincy Bocce Club over A.H. Campbell highlighted the action in the St. John's Little League playoffs.

In a contest drenched in drama, Bocce Club's Jason Bedore faced a full count before drawing a two-out, bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the last inning that knocked Matt Gardner in with the winning run.

Gardner set up his game-winning run with a solo homer in the second inning. Brian Keefe also scored in the second inning to tie the contest. A.H. Campbell had scored both their runs in the first.

Pat McGovern hit the single that drove in Gardner.

Dave Centrella and Wayne Larsen combined for the win. Each man fanned eight batters and allowed one hit in three innings of work. A.H. Campbell jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first, but Centrella and Larsen stifled them the rest of the way.

Campbell's Corey Fitzgerald and David McDonnell combined for 11 K's and gave up a total of three hits.

Ryan Casey's double knocked in both Campbell runs. Adam Culley, Nick Transfaglia, Sarah Dufrane and Alan Morano each made outstanding plays.

Bocce Club also beat Hogan Family, 10-3.

Six runs in the first inning put the game out of reach. Chris Doherty's two-run roundtripper and Gardner's solo shot were the most damaging hits of the inning. Others playing well were Keefe (2 for 2, three-run homer), McGovern (2 for 2, triple, home run) and Centrella (2 for 3, single, double, two runs scored).

Centrella also posted the win with three innings of six-strikeout, two-hit ball.

Larsen and Centrella combined for a no-hitter in Bocce Club's 4-1 win over President's Pharmacy.

Centrella smacked a solo shot in the fourth inning. Gardner went 2 for 2 with a triple and two RBI while Doherty scored two runs.

Gardner, in his first game of the season in right field, made the contest's outstanding defensive play.

Junior League

Colonial Federal Banks On Lockhead

Chris Lockhead spun a two-hitter and knocked two hits himself as he led Colonial Federal to an 8-3 win over Burke in Junior League action.

Scott Markarian sparked the winning attack with a two-run dinger. Jimmy Cattaneo and Tom Doucette stroked two hits apiece.

Burke's Justin Hall recorded two RBI and Peter Turowski pitched three strong innings of one-hit ball.

Burke rebounded with a 10-7 win over Beacon Sports.

Dan Duggan had a solid day at the plate with a 3 for 4 effort and two RBI. Turowski ripped a three-run homer in the third.

Burke did the bulk of the damage in the fourth when they sent six men across the plate. Pat Bregoli and Hall combined for back-to-back roundtrippers. Bregoli's was a three-run shot.

Ryan Hutchings helped Burke with two hits.

Bregoli recorded the win and Hall the save.

Beacon scored all seven runs in the fourth inning. Mark Giese ended the contest with two hits and two RBI. Chris LaCorte also had two RBI.

The Jaehnic Chiropractic Club hung on for a 4-3 extra-inning win over Keohane's to improve their league-leading record to 15-3.

Fred Butts doubled to

He made a diving one-hop catch and came to his feet gunning to Doherty to complete a rare 9-3 putout.

Corey Fitzgerald did it all for A.H. Campbell as they edged Hogan Family, 8-7.

Fitzgerald posted the W with three innings of one-hit ball. He fanned six. At the plate hit went 2 for 3 with a two-run triple.

John D'Olimpio hit a single and drew a bases-loaded walk that brought in the winning run. Nick Transfaglia walked twice and scored twice while Adam Culley went 2 for 2 with a walk and run scored. He also did a fine job behind the plate.

In a rematch, Hogan Family topped A.H. Campbell, 13-8.

Leading the Hogan Family were Jamie O'Neil (triple, two runs scored), Nick Coneys (2 for 2, walk) and Jimmy Constance. Constance worked the mound for three innings, fanning five, while going 2 for 2 at the plate and scoring two runs.

Adam Culley, Alex Culley, Sarah Dufrane and Billy Brooks led the Campbell effort.

the lead off the extra frame and scored when Chris Doherty's ground ball was hit too hard to be handled cleanly.

Patrick Jaehnic allowed only one earned run in six strong innings of work. The win was recorded by O'Toole who struck out two batters in the seventh. His record improved to 6-1. Dan Dorsey and Dan O'Donate smashed three hits each for the victors. Jaehnic helped his own cause with a double, while Kevin Weeks, Brandon Sleeth, Tom Buckley and Chris Ham each hit solid singles.

Jeff Butts earned the game ball by throwing out a potential winning run at second base. Buckley threw out two potential base-stealers from his catching position.

Keohane's played a sharp defensive game, cutting down three Jaehnic runners at home plate. Two of those throws to the plate were made by center fielder Mark Tetreault. Strong defensive plays were also made by shortstop Charlie Viodie and 10-year-old rookie catcher Ryan Donahue.

Wayne Moynihan pitched three strong innings and reached base four times.

International

Tran, Infrerrera Lead R & D

The arm of Tony Tran and the stick of Steve Infrerrera helped lift Recupero & Davis to a 12-1 win over Everlasting Engraving.

Tran posted six strikeouts and did not allow a run until the sixth inning.

Infrerrera went 2 for 2 with a home run. Jamie

Panagos also had a big day at the plate with a 3 for 4 effort that included a two-bagger. Jamie MacIsaac went 2 for 4.

Sparking the R&D defense were second baseman Mark Peterson, shortstop John Fish and infielder Steve Maffeo.

John Ly led Everlasting. He fanned four batters while going 2 for 3 at the plate. First baseman John London, center fielder Chris Lumaghini and shortstop Jarrod Decelle also played well.

CHECKING FOR AC LEAKS

It comes as a big disappointment when a car owner turns on the air conditioner in his or her car to find that it is not blowing cold air. The most common cause of this problem is a lack of refrigerant in the system. Any automotive air conditioner will lose some refrigerant over time, but any system that needs charging more frequently than every third season probably has an unacceptable large leak. Most auto air conditioners hold at least two pounds of refrigerant. A loss of more than half a pound of refrigerant per season is considered to be a significant leak. To check for a leak, the auto technician will check each fitting with a leak detector, along with the seal behind the compressor clutch. Remember, leaks of the R-12 refrigerant damage the earth's ozone layer.

Hint: Attend to AC problems

It makes good sense to keep every system in your new or older car properly maintained. This is especially true with your AC system, particularly if it uses R-12 refrigerant. To help you do this, the professional service team at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is available at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550. We use the ALL-DATA CD-ROM for the very latest in technical service bulletins. Hours: Mon-Fri 9am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Cheney: Roller Hockey Rink Will Be Built

City Councilor Michael Cheney announced that he has notified John Sullivan of Dale Ave., Quincy, that a roller hockey rink will be constructed in the city sometime this year.

Sullivan appeared before the City Council approximately one year ago and presented a petition with over 200 signatures from Quincy residents requesting the City to construct a roller hockey rink for the youth of Quincy.

The Park Department will announce at a later date which site has been selected for the rink. Financing will come from the $700,000 that was allotted for park improvements in a bond issue passed by the City Council last year.

"Bids are out, but it is unclear how much the new facility will cost," said Cheney.

"We are pleased to provide a new type of recreational facility for the youth of Quincy," he added. "Roller hockey has become very popular." He said that it will help keep the youth of Quincy occupied.

Cheney has had ongoing discussions with John Sullivan relative to constructing the new facility. Sullivan has agreed to coordinate efforts to form a roller hockey league. The rink will be regulation size that that it can host tournaments.

Milford, Brighton, Rockland and South Boston have roller hockey facilities.

For more information on the new league, call Sullivan at 472-0445.

A Thought For The Week

As we go through life, all of us at one time or another face many crises. When these crises occur, confusion sometimes occurs. To face a crisis requires courage - and courage is a personal matter. Courage cannot be leased, borrowed or bought. It must be drawn from one's self. And when courage is shown, it often draws out the courage in others. When courage is shown, confusion can, and often does, disappear.

Ever since time began, the greatest source for courage has been traced to a foundation on a faith. Faith creates hope. Without faith and hope, courage is difficult to come by. In spite of dark clouds, faith, hope and courage will always be the means to let us see the rays of sunshine again.

Growing Legislative Support Cited Death Penalty Return See In Future

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Despite the most recent defeat of Gov. Weld's death penalty bill, a majority of Quincy's State House delegation members have expressed confidence that capital punishment will someday be reinstated in the Bay State.

The Massachusetts House of Representatives voted down the measure last week by a vote of 83-73. Last July, it voted 86-70 to defeat the bill.

The state Senate supported the bill this year and last by votes of 22-18.

All three of the city's state representatives—Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti—voted to support the death penalty. Quincy's senator, Michael Morrissey, also has backed the bill.

Bellotti said the Legislature is becoming more and more conservative and that the death penalty will inevitably be resurrected in the state.

"I think it's (the vote) going to get a lot closer with each new election," he said. "I think there's a good chance we'll have a death penalty in Massachusetts within a couple of election cycles."

Bellotti said he supports capital punishment because "anyone who maliciously and willfully takes the life of another deserves it." He added that he feels those who oppose the measure for fear of putting an innocent person to death have nothing to worry about.

"I think there are enough safeguards in the bill to prevent an innocent person from being executed," said Bellotti.

Told of Bellotti's optimism, Morrissey expressed similar sentiments.

"I think they're getting closer (in the House)," he said. "The margin seems to be getting tighter with each vote. We just have to keep working on it."

Morrissey said he has heard from a number of constituents who strongly favor the reinstatement of capital punishment.

"They see some of the violent, heinous crimes that are happening," he said.

Mariano, however, said he is not as confident that Massachusetts will bring back the death penalty in the near future.

"I'm not so sure of that," he said. "This is a very emotional, personal issue for most people. Once your made is made up, you usually don't switch. The only time you have a change is when there's an election year."

"So I think the only way (capital punishment) will be reinstated is through change in the legislative body."

He added that his own position will not change.

"I really feel that the death penalty, if it stops one person from committing an atrocious act of first-degree murder, it's certainly worth the expense," said Mariano.

Tobin, arguably Quincy's strongest advocate for the death penalty, could not be reached for comment. Last year, however, he told The Quincy Sun he is confident a new version of the bill calling for the deaths of those responsible for the deaths of public safety officers will be passed in the near future.

Tobin attended the New England School of Law with Norwell State Trooper Mark Charbonnier, who was shot to death last year during a routine traffic stop.

Weld and Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci have called the House "out-of-touch" with the majority of Massachusetts voters, saying that most people favor the death penalty. They also said they will make capital punishment votes a major issue in the 1996 legislative races.

The governor's capital punishment plan calls for lethal injection for people convicted of premeditated first-degree murder with any of 12 aggravating circumstances. Among those categories are killing a police officer or corrections officer, murder for hire, murder with torture or extreme atrocity, and murder in connection with rape or drug trafficking.

Last week's House vote came after five hours of emotional debate, including a number of references to a recent killing of an elderly man in Avon, allegedly by three 18- to 20-year-old men who compared themselves to the controversial movie "Natural Born Killers," which was released to the public last year.

The last state execution was held in 1949. The Supreme Judicial Court (SJC) struck down the death penalty law in the 1970s.

In 1982, voters approved a capital punishment amendment to the constitution that then-Gov. Edward King signed, but the SJC ruled it unconstitutional in 1984.

New Parking Fees As City Takes Over

garage may obtain special validation tickets there to pay a discount price for the extra time. Those who do not take advantage of the validation will pay a higher fee.

Sheets said he could not be as specific about the Hancock Lot, but he noted that it will have the same fees as the Ross Garage, including the limited free parking. He added that things will change at the lot, however, once construction of a planned office/retail complex begins there.

However, Sheets did say that those who use validated passes at the Hancock Lot will be asked to use the Revere Road entrance. Passes will be punched into a machine at that entrance, while other parkers will be asked to use the main entrance across from Quincy District Court.

Sheets said he feels the new increases are fair, especially when one takes into consideration the limited free parking.

"I don't know that it's a steep increase, when you consider the first two hours are free," he said. "I think it's quite reasonable when compared to the fees charged in other communities. And if you park there for less than two hours, it's a rather dramatic decrease."

The mayor added that the operations will be strictly enforced by parking personnel to ensure people do not take advantage of the free parking for more than two hours. Tires of cars will be marked, he noted, and while abusers will be given a warning for the first week or so, they will be ticketed thereafter.

Sheets said this week is a transitional one of sorts to allow the system to be put into place.

"Jack (Gillon) is using this week to put everything in order," he said.

While he did not have exact figures, Sheets said the city will spend about $135,000 to paid a total of five full-time attendants at both parking sites, an average of about $27,000 per employee, although a parking foreman will make more than the other four. He added that about $50,000 will be spent on "five or six" part-timers.

Sheets deferred to Gillon for exact salary amounts. Gillon could not be reached for comment at press time.

It previously cost approximately $225,000 a year to pay a private company to run the parking system, the mayor noted. Sheets said the new plan is designed to be "a wash" in terms of dollar amounts, although he hopes that additional shoppers attracted by the free parking will mean a substantial profit for the city.

Overall, the mayor said he is pleased with the new parking plan.

"The main purpose is to provide free parking for those who want to shop at the retail stores on Hancock Street and in the Parkingway," he said. "We want to make it a pleasant experience for the shopper."

The mayor added that a bond issue currently before the City Council for consideration includes funding for lighting, landscaping, and other aesthetic improvements in and around the garage which, if approved by the council, will add to making downtown shopping an enjoyable time for all.

Jeffrey Ketcham Attends MDA Camp

Jeffrey Ketcham, 9, of Quincy, was among 48 campers who recently participated in the Muscular Dystrophy Association's Camp Florian at the Massachusetts Hospital School in Canton.

"This camp gives me the opportunity to do things that are fun and interesting," said Jeffrey, who has congenital muscular dystrophy.

Jeffrey also had the opportunity to participate in various camp recreational activities continuing throughout the camp session which ended July 1.

For the past six years, members of the Worcester Harley Owners Group have teamed up with the MDA by volunteering their time to brighten the lives of children by providing cycle rides on opening day.

Camp Florian allows children ages 6-13 dealing with one of 40 neuromuscular diseases to participate in various camp recreational activities designed to help them focus on their abilities, not their disabilities.

Camp Florian is named after the patron saint of firefighters in honor of hundreds of New England firefighters who help raise funds for MDA in support of patient services, support groups, and research facilities.

NEWSCARRIERS WANTED

Here's a chance to earn extra money by building a Quincy Sun home delivery route.
Telephone: 471-3100

Kenney To Head Park-Rec. Board

The Quincy Park and Recreation Board announced its new members for 1995.

This year's Board is: Peter Kenney, chairman; Michelle Lydon, vice chairman; Frank Santoro, secretary; Bryant Carter, Jr.; Howard Crowley; Stephen Hawko; Rep. Ronald Mariano; Rhonda Merrill; and Kathleen Mitchell.

Six of the board members are appointed by the mayor and three by the City Council. Each ward must be represented by the Mayor's appointments and one of the at-large appointees must be a member of the School Committee.

The Board is responsible for establishing policy and overseeing the Park and Recreation Departments. Barry Welch is the Recreation Director and Thomas Koch is Executive Director of the Park Department.

Chairman Kenney is an executive at Cook and Company in Marshfield and a life-long resident of Quincy. He served as Executive Secretary to former Mayor Francis McCauley.

"It's great to have such a qualified group of individuals for this year's Park and Recreation Board," said Mayor James Sheets. "With the present amount of money being invested in our park and playgrounds it is reassuring that we have such an accomplished group overseeing the work."

Delegation Members Call U Plan 'Huge Success'

Quincy's State House delegation has called the Massachusetts Educational Financing Authority's first offering of the U Plan a "huge success."

Families joining the pre-paid college tuition savings program for the 1995 enrollment period totaled 28,700 participants.

"My philosophy of government includes creating opportunities as efficiently and effectively as possible," The U Plan has encouraged the purchase of $26 million in tuition bond purchases with an additional college savings commitment of over $30 million in installment payments, all without requiring any annual state funding. The U Plan has already proven itself to be a good deal for families and taxpayers alike.

The U Plan locks in tomorrow's tuition at today's rates.

Rep. Ronald Mariano said, "Families can make either lump-sum purchases or sign up for a minimum $25 monthly installment plan. Investments are used to purchase a fixed percentage of tuition guaranteed by 67 participating colleges and universities, regardless of future tuition increases. Investments in the U Plan are tax advantaged and guaranteed by the state."

"We are thrilled with the level of response to this new savings program," said Peter Mazareas, MEFA's Executive Director. "And more importantly, we are happy to help so many families benefit from the U Plan. These U Plan families have taken the important first step towards establishing a structured savings program their child's education."

"U Plan families have not only taken a step to guarantee their kids' college future, but they are also acting to promote future economic development in Massachusetts," said Rep. Stephen Tobin.

"Higher education is the third largest industry in Massachusetts, pumping $10 billion into the economy each year. By insuring that our youngest have the path to college open, we too are making sure good jobs at good wages remain in state."

City Council Passes Pooper Scooper Law

Pet owners now have to pick up their cats' and dogs' droppings on city property including beaches, parks, streets, sidewalks and other areas or face up to a $50 fine.

The City Council voted 6-0 last week to pass the much-talked-about "pooper scooper" ordinance. Councilor Timothy Cahill, Ward 3 Councilor Lawrence Chretien and Ward 6 Councilor Bruce Ayers were not present for the vote.

The law was proposed in May by Mayor James Sheets to help keep Wollaston Beach clean enough for swimming. Tests have indicated that animal feces washed into storm sewers may be responsible for about one-third of beach closings during the summer.

The new ordinance calls for first-time offenders to receive a warning, with fines of $20 for a second offense within a calendar year, $25 for a third offense and $50 for subsequent offenses.

City officials have said they hope to see voluntary compliance with the law despite the fines, since to do not plan to use animal-control or police officers out on any kind of organized patrols to enforce the law.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said he plans to mail information detailing the new ordinance to the city's licensed pet owners.

Gerwick Puppets At Library

The Gerwick Puppets will present the musical mystery "The Case of the Missing Woodpile" Tuesday, July 11 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The show is the first program in the library's ninth annual Summer Storytellers Series sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council.

The program is designed for families with children age 5 and older. For younger children, an evening storytime will be offered in the Art Gallery adjacent to the Children's Room.

Lenny Gerwick and Deborah Costine have brought the Gerwick Puppets to Quincy many times in the past. Each production includes hand-painted scenery and hand-made puppets.

The Summer Storytelling Series will continue with performances by Ellen Block July 18, Sara Jacobson July 25, Derek Burrows Aug. 1, Jim Douglas Aug. 8 and I Nyoman Catra Aug. 15. Each performance will be accompanied by a preschool storytime hosted by Dottie Moynihan.

A "Booked for Lunch" children's book review program will be held for children in Grades K-8 Thursday, July 18 from 1 to 2 p.m. at the library's North Quincy branch. Those who attend are asked to bring a sandwich. Beverages will be provided.

Preliminaries In Wards 3, 4, 5 And 4-Year School Committee Seats

8 Contested Races In Fall Election

Cheney May Call Special Meeting LaRaia Named Assessor McIntyre Could Fill His City Council Seat

City Council President Michael Cheney is considering calling a special meeting of the City Council to name a successor to fill out Councillor Joseph LaRaia's term.

LaRaia on Tuesday was appointed assessor by Mayor James Sheets to succeed Henry Bertolon who is retiring after 24 years on the job. The position pays $44,500 a year.

If City Council tradition is followed, the one to replace LaRaia would be Charles McIntyre as runner-up in the 1993 election.

Cheney told The Sun Tuesday he is "leaning toward" filling the seat but will not make a decision until next week.

"It would be a shame to let the seat go vacant even on an interim basis because I believe people deserve as much representation as possible," Cheney said.

"I'm leaning toward making an appointment," he added.

McIntyre, son of the late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre and now a Norfolk County assistant district attorney said he would accept the appointment if offered to him providing there was no conflict with his present duties in the district attorney's office.

JOSEPH LARAIA

"Yes, I would accept the appointment if there is no conflict," McIntyre told The Sun.

He said he will ask for a legal opinion.

At a special meeting, councillors would nominate candidates and vote, with the one receiving the most votes getting the appointment.

Asked if he thought McIntyre would probably be the one selected, Cheney said: "I would prefer not to comment on that until I have decided whether the council should try to fill the seat."

Councillor Tim Cahill said he does not think the council should fill LaRaia's term which expires Dec. 31.

"I oppose filling the seat," he said. "It's not necessary because it's a council at-large seat. No ward will be hurt by (temporarily) having only two councillors at-large."

"I would recommend that the new city councillor (elected in November) begin serving after the election."

Cahill said he approved of LaRaia's appointment as assessor but questioned the timing of the announcement.

"I think the timing is

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Thirty candidates filed nomination papers by Tuesday's deadline, setting the stage for four preliminary election runoffs Sept. 19 and eight contested races in the Nov. 7 final.

Mayor James Sheets will face a re-election challenge for the first time as he seeks a fourth term and there could be as many as four new faces in the City Council and four in the School Committee.

Preliminary elections will be held for council seats in Wards 3, 4 and 5 and for three four-year School Committee seats.

Two candidates have been given free rides unless sticker candidates appear on the scene.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers has no opposition and former Mayor Francis McCauley is the only candidate running for the sole two-year School Committee seat.

Contested races include challenges to councillors in Wards 1 and 4 as well as bids for open seats in Wards 2, 3 and 5. Seven candidates will vy for the three four-year seats on the School Committee.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said this year's election will be one of the most interesting in recent city history because of the number of candidates. He noted that other than 1989, which had a similarly crowded political picture, one would have to go back as far as 1971 to find an election that generated as much interest.

"It's going to be a good election," said Shea. "It will be a relatively quiet preliminary, but the final (election) will be a busy, and very interesting, race."

The preliminary election for Wards 3, 4 and 5 and the four-year School Committee seats will be held Sept. 19. The final election will be held Nov. 7.

Sheets is being challenged by 78-year-old Roger Lyons, a retired contractor who lives at 211 West Squantum St.

Sheets, who as a city councillor initially defeated developer Peter O'Connell in the 1989 mayor's race, was re-elected unopposed in 1991 and 1993.

There will be at least four new city councillors following the election as four incumbents are vacating their seats. Council races are as follows:

•Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson is facing a challenge from Joseph Kasparian Jr., 62, of 42 Rhude St.

•In Ward 2, two candidates are running for the seat being vacated by the retiring Ted DeCristofaro: School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi, who held the seat before DeCristofaro; and Mark Roberts, 32, of 30 Curtis Ave.

•In Ward 3, three candidates are vying for the seat being vacated by Lawrence Chretien: Stephen Doherty, 36, of 206 Beale St. and Patrick McDermott, 25, of 146 Taylor St.; and Timothy Delaney, 35, of 270 Wilson Ave. Chretien has opted to run for one of the city's three councillor-at-large seats.

•Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio faces competition from Michael D'Amico, 20, of 602 Willard St., who challenged him in 1993; Michael Larkin, 51, of 89 Alrick Rd.; and Gregg Rennie, 28, of 100 Gridley St.

•In Ward 5, four candidates are running for the seat being vacated by Charles Phelan who is leaving the council for personal reasons: School Committee member Stephen Durkin, Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, 64, of 80 Clay St.; Dennis Dockham, 32, of 63 Elm Ave.; and Steven Reilly, 37, of 287 Beach St.

•The at-large race includes Chretien, former state Sen. Paul Harold, also a former councillor; and incumbents Timothy Cahill and Michael Cheney, the current council president. Incumbent Joseph LaRaia is stepping down to accept an appointment to the Quincy Board of Assessors from Sheets.

Ayers is the only council member running for re-election unopposed.

There will also be at least two new school committee members, as Raymondi and Durkin are leaving four-year seats open to run for the council and McCauley will own the two-year seat. Linda Stice is running for re-

Vote Set For July 20

New Reduced Parking Fees Need Council Approval

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City Council President Michael Cheney has called for a special meeting so the council may vote on the new reduced downtown parking rates proposed by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

The meeting will be held Thursday, July 20 in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

The council has the final say on the proposed parking rates, which pertain to two Quincy Center parking locations: the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot. Mayor James Sheets, who must approve the rates before the council, has voiced his support.

The rates were agreed upon Monday by Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon and a QCBPA committee and approved Tuesday by the QCBPA Board of Directors.

The new rates are:

•Ross Garage: up to 2 hours, free parking; 2-3 hours, 25¢; 3-4 hours, 50¢; 4-5 hours, 75¢; 5-6 hours, $1; more than 6 hours, $5.

•Hancock Lot: up to 2 hours, free parking; 2½ an hour after that.

Those who park in the area may receive validation for reduced rates at participating downtown businesses, but those who park in the Ross Garage for more than 6 hours will not be eligible for that privilege.

In addition to the daily rates, the QCBPA approved charging $35 for monthly passes for both parking areas that will be sold at the Ross Garage. Businesses that border the Hancock Lot will be authorized to allow their employees free access through that parking area so they may park in their individually-owned lots.

Sheets authorized the city to take over the parking system, which was previously operated by a private company, last week. The new rates were

Morrisette Post Clubhouse Proposal Also Approved Council OKs Plan For Elks Land Project

City officials have given the green light to the Quincy Lodge of Elks for its planned landfilling project on Quarry Hill.

The City Council granted the Elks a special permit to complete the project during a special meeting last week.

Neighbors of the new Elks Lodge and function hall off Quarry Street had previously expressed concern that a mountain of fill on the property was piled up to an unsafe level, and that it contained demolition and construction debris.

But City Engineer Saeed "Fred" Mizra told those at the meeting that the embankment has now been graded to the desired safe slope and will meet city standards.

Mizra said the only thing left for the Elks to do is cover the embankment will loam and grass seed.

The council also received letters from Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey saying the project is safe.

Atty. Roy Gioruso, representing the Elks, also attempted to put side neighbors' fears by saying the fill contains no hazardous materials.

In other business last week, the City Council voted sell land on Quarry Hill to the Morrisette American Legion Post and to rezone the land for a new clubhouse.

Mayor James Sheets must give final approval to the sale of the 2.5-acre parcel off Quarry Street. He is expected to accept the post's offer of $50,000 for the property, which includes two old quarry holes.

Post officials said they must still determine whether the property is suitable for a clubhouse before they complete the deal with the city, but added that they were pleased to get the council's support.

The legion, which sold its old headquarters on 54 Miller St. to the Saturn car dealership for $1 million last year, wants to build a one-story clubhouse on the parcel, set up picnic grounds, and open the area to the public.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, who supported the rezoning, said he will ask Sheets to include a deed restriction specifying that the property will revert to the city if the Post ever decides to sell it. Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien also wants to ask Sheets to consider a public easement through the grounds.

Ambulance Co. Sets Up Customer Billing Hot Line

Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Company, which provides service to Quincy Hospital, has set up a toll-free hot line for residents to call if they have complaints about their bills.

The number, 1-800-498-0480, went into effect last week.

The company also has designated customer service representative Sheli Hersherson to handle all Quincy-related calls and letters.

The measures are being taken while the Natick-based company is audited by hospital officials to determine whether it billed city residents for service in violation of its contract.

The company, which makes between 2,000 and 3,000 trips each year from Quincy, has cooperated with the audit and said it will rectify any errors in billing, including making reimbursements where warranted.

According to its contract with Quincy Hospital, Norfolk-Bristol cannot change indigent or uninsured residents for service to any hospital. If a patient has insurance, it must charge no more than the allowable rate and must bill the insurance company directly. Norfolk-Bristol cannot bill the patient for the balance if the insurance company declines to pay the full amount.

The company first acknowledged in May an error involving 128 bills, which it explained as clerical, following a story in The Quincy Sun. Company officials said in each instance, bills were sent incorrectly to collection agencies.

The problem was first discovered by Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymondi who said two of his clients were billed incorrectly by Norfolk-Bristol. Since then, more than 30 residents have come forward with complaints about billing approaching either Raymondi, who also serves as vice chairman of the School Committee, or other city officials.

The audit is still under way, and officials from both the hospital and ambulance company have said they are making progress on resolving the billing issue.

Quincy residents who think they have been wrongly billed or are experiencing financial hardship should send a copy of their bill and an explanation to: Sheli Hersherson, 21 Cocasset St., Foxboro, MA 02035.

Quincy Delegation Approves Funds For Higher Education

Quincy's legislative delegation helped lead efforts to successfully override gubernatorial vetoes of budgetary increases for colleges and universities.

The move comes as the Quincy delegation and their colleagues in the House considered vetoed items in the state's FY'96 budget.

"Public higher education is crucial to providing the working families of Massachusetts an alternative to ensure that their sons and daughters can compete for the jobs of the twenty-first century. This investment will provide generous returns in education and economic development for future generations," said Rep. Stephen Tobin.

Earlier this month, the Legislature voted to increase the appropriations for the 31 state colleges and universities by $24 million. Governor Weld vetoed $19.2 million of the proposed budget boost which prompted the Quincy delegation and their fellow education advocates in the House to push for the override.

Rep. Ronald Mariano expressed his satisfaction with the education components of the new state budget. "Working within the confines of an overall 2.6 percent spending increase, education was clearly a priority with a full funding of education reform worth $232 million and this higher education increase."

Rep. Michael Bellotti added, "Addressing such critical concerns as water and sewer rate relief, public safety, local aid and education, we believe our budget effectively and efficiently funds our legislative priorities."

QHA In USDA Summer Food Program

The Quincy Housing Authority is participating in the USDA Summer

Food Service Program for children. Through the program, meals are provided to children age 18 and under without regard to race, color, national origin, sex, age or handicap.

Meals will be provided at 333 Palmer St. through July 27 and 9 Bicknell St. through Sept. 1. They will be available at both Germantown sites (known as "Summer Fun") from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

For more information, call the Quincy Housing Authority at 847-4378.

Day Program For Youth Aboard USS Salem

The U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum of Quincy announces it is conducting a day program for area youths aboard the USS Salem, a 717-foot, 21,000-ton retired warship.

Called "School of the Ship," enrollment is open to area children 7-14 years of age, with morning and afternoon sessions planned for weekdays throughout the summer.

"Not only is the ship an exciting site, we've got a number of fascinating education and recreational activities planned," said USNSM Executive Director and Chief Officer William MacMullen. "In this program, children will learn about life at sea, crafts such as model making, lessons on citizenship and more. And in addition to our counselors, we'll be involving historians, former sailors, craft and trades people and others.

"There will be a lot for children to experience and enjoy at 'School of the Ship' aboard the USS Salem," MacMullen added.

Council Passes Mayor's $3.7M Bond Package

The City Council has approved Mayor James Sheets' $3.7 bond package for a new computer system for Quincy schools, repairs to the Ross Parking Garage in Quincy Center, and other city projects.

The bond, approved by the council last week, includes:

- $1.6 million for the computer system upgrade, which will affect all the city's schools.

- $675,000 for structural and aesthetic repairs in and around the garage, including new lighting and landscaping, and new gates for the site, which was taken over by the city last week.

- $475,000 for a new ladder truck for the Wollaston Fire Station and $75,000 for truck equipment and garage repairs.

- $300,000 to complete street improvements in Wollaston Center.

- $150,000 to repair East Squantum and Dorchester streets, $350,000 for other road work and $100,000 in sidewalk repairs.

Councillors had initially expressed reservations about the bonding, saying Quincy has borrowed too much for city projects in recent years. City Auditor Robert Foy, however, said the additional $3.7 million would not raise the city's debt beyond a manageable level.

The city currently has $32.5 in bonds outstanding.

Councillor Timothy Cahill voted against the computer bond issue, saying he would rather see the upgrades over the next few years and expressing concern that the network would give students access to the Internet, citing recent news articles about the easy access to sexually explicit material over the worldwide computer network.

But Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, who helped develop the technology plan, said school personnel could adequately control what children see, and students need not have Internet access to benefit from the computer system.

Cahill also voted against doing the road improvements, saying he does not believe the city should be borrowing money for everyday repairs.

Latest Census Shows:

Population, Minority Segment Up

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The latest city-wide census shows Quincy's population and minority segment have not changed significantly over the past year.

Quincy's overall population grew one half percent, from 87,171 to 87,652, an increase of 481 residents.

The minority population also experienced a slight boost of 381 people. The revised 1994 figures show the number of minorities in Quincy is 13,490 or 15.39 percent of the overall population. The 1993 census showed Quincy with 13,109 or 15.04 percent minorities.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said the census shows Quincy is a "full" community.

"We're built out and we're fill filled. We didn't find any empty units (through the census). We're full and nothing is really being built," Shea said.

"The overall population changed very little. We're up about 500 people to almost 88,000. Of the ethnic bases, the census is as close as we can get."

Asians still constitute the largest segment of minorities in Quincy with 11,337 or 12.93 percent of the city-wide population. Blacks are the second largest minority with 1,401 or 1.59 percent of the population. Hispanics are third, 752 or .85 percent.

Ward 6 in the northern end of the city, notably Wollaston and North Quincy, has the most Asian minorities with 22 percent.

Quincy's ward population is essentially even, fluctuating only a few hundred people. Ward 4 has the most residents with 14,689. Ward 1 has the fewest citizens with 14,481.

The overall breakdown by ward is:

Ward 1: 14,481
Ward 2: 14,602
Ward 3: 14,622
Ward 4: 14,689
Ward 5: 14,671
Ward 6: 14,587

DO YOU HAVE DIABETES?

True or False: People with diabetes must take insulin shots. Lots of people would answer yes, and they would be right - partially. One of the problems with diabetes, though, is that too many people have misconceptions about it. For example, some diabetics do require insulin injections to help their bodies process glucose, a kind of sugar. However, other people with diabetes can manage through diet and exercise alone. One of the most dangerous little-known facts about diabetes is that people can develop it without knowing. Among the signs to watch for are extreme thirst or hunger, frequent urination, dry skin, blurred vision, drowsiness and nausea. Treating the disease early can help prevent serious complications. P.S. Among the "triggers" that can cause people to become diabetic are stress, illness and getting too fat. Misconceptions about medical treatments abound - get the information you need by relying on a physician you can trust. Will Joe Be Back?

The final curtain appears to have dropped on the political saga of Joe LaRaia.

His appointment as an assessor by Mayor James Sheets would seem to indicate that LaRaia—after a colorful career spanning 36 years—has taken his final political bow.

It also raises a few questions.

With LaRaia you can't really be too sure he won't return to the campaign trail.

He has come back a number of times through the years—even after defeats that had many predicting "The End" to the Joe LaRaia Story.

He has had ups and downs like an elevator. But he always came back.

He could come back again even though the odds would appear to be against it. A steady job is better than political risk.

And if he doesn't come back to the arena, he will have done something his enemies never could do: end his political career. On his own terms.

The announcement of his appointment Tuesday came only a few hours before the 5 p.m. filing deadline that day for nomination papers in this year's city election.

LaRaia had taken out his nomination papers in May for re-election to the City Council at-large. But he didn't file them.

That didn't come as too much of a surprise. Speculation that he was getting the assessor appointment was spreading around City Hall like a prairie fire last week.

Ironically, LaRaia will be succeeding Henry Bertolon who is retiring. Bertolon was a close ally of late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre whom LaRaia had a running political feud for many years.

There was a little grumbling on the timing of the appointment announcement. If it had been made last week, some thought, perhaps another council at-large candidate might have gotten into the race.

The Tuesday announcement left no time for a candidate to pick up nomination papers, scramble around for signatures and file them before the 5 p.m. deadline.

Actually, Bertolon's retirement decision wasn't something sudden. Bertolon, who has been assessor for 24 years, decided in April to retire and made it official in a letter to Sheets June 4.

In the letter, incidentally, he said he thought the assessor job should go to a "younger, computer bright" person because the job is now a more complex one. Bertolon is 69. LaRaia is 63 next month.

If the appointment had been made in June, another at-large candidate might have stepped forward.

The big question: who benefits from LaRaia's appointment?

LaRaia, certainly. The job pays $44,500.

But who benefits the most politically in this year's council at-large race?

LaRaia's departure leaves a four-candidate field:

Michael Cheney and Tim Cahill, Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien and former Senator Paul Harold.

Most observers—even with LaRaia in the race—were conceding Harold and Cahill two of the three seats off their past strong vote-getting records.

And, if they were right, this would leave Cheney and LaRaia battling for the third seat. They thought LaRaia had a good shot at it.

Now it appears that it's a two-way fight between Cheney and Chretien for that third seat. Which one benefits the most now that LaRaia is out of the picture?

Both will probably benefit—but one of them more. Which one won't really be known until the ballots are counted Nov. 7.

There won't be any preliminary election for councillor at-large because seven candidates are needed for that and there are only four.

And, if Harold had not decided to run, there wouldn't be a final election fight either.

Without Harold in there, Cheney and Cahill would have been re-elected and the LaRaia seat would have gone to Chretien. All three would have been automatic winners.

Meanwhile, LaRaia's appointment is effective Aug. 1 and will expire February, 1997.

Coincidentally, that is another city election year.

Will he be back?

Hospital Receives $40,000 Donation From Auxiliary

The Quincy Hospital Auxiliary recently presented a check for $40,000 to the hospital's Charitable Foundation.

Hospital CEO/Director Ralph DiPisa accepted the check on behalf of the foundation at the auxiliary's annual spring luncheon.

The donation will be used for improvements to the Level 11 Care Nursery for underweight and problem babies.

The luncheon was followed by a business meeting at which President Carol Herbai presided.

The annual scholarship award for a volunteer was awarded to Kathleen Healey, a North Quincy High School graduate, who will attend Boston University, majoring in psychology.

Peg Crehan, director of Volunteer Services cited Miss Healey's leadership, membership in National Honor Society and more than 100 hours of volunteer service at the hospital.

Karen Tufts, gift shop manager, announced that the donation to the auxiliary from the shop profit this year amounted to $24,000. The shop is staffed by volunteers and has recently been enhanced by renovations and additional items of merchandise.

Auxiliary officers elected for the year are as follows:

President, Carol Herbai, 2nd vice president, Arlene Constant, recording secretary, Mildred Jacobs, treasurer, Yolanda Romanelli, assistant treasurer, Natalie Fossati.

Directors are, Barbara DeWolfe, 3 years, Ardelle O'Brien, 2 years and Marion DeSantis, 1 year.

Chairman for the luncheon was Janet Hassler. Entertainment was provided by pianist Ann Stoyke.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1926 POSTCARD shows the construction of the first seawall along Wollaston Beach. The stair-like construction of this wall provided plenty of seating space along the beach but not a lot of protection from the higher tides. It was replaced in 1960 by the present seawall built by the U.S.

Army Corps of Engineers. On the right in this view is a lifesaving boat stationed at the end of the Wollaston Yacht Club ramp. In the center you can see the original Wollaston Bowladrome building.

Says Summerfest Safety In Question

Editor, The Quincy Sun: I just wanted to say how enjoyable the first Summerfest Concert was for all who attended.

The evening weather was cool and comfortable and the country and western music by the John Penny Band was great entertainment. Their talent was appreciated, and the crowd rewarded them with enthusiastic applause.

The only distraction from this happy time was watching numerous unattended little children climbing up and down the stage and getting too close to the entertainers and their equipment. The children were having a grand time dancing and jumping to the music, but it was nerve-wracking to witness a scene which could have resulted in a serious accident. I even heard one of the performers politely caution the children to be careful of the large on-stage speakers.

I would think that the stage itself should be reserved for the entertainers, as the open area encircling the stage offers plenty of space for the children's activities and avoids a potentially dangerous situation. Another place which would be safer if made off limits to the children is the stone slope behind the stage which empties onto the performance area. An unwary child could have a bad fall on this rocky surface.

These minor adjustments could serve to avoid a major accident. I look forward to enjoying the upcoming Summerfest Concerts and hope they are fun and safe events for all.

Revaluation Faces Delay

By PAUL HAROLD

The issue of revaluation of the city's real estate was delayed at least until June 26, the date when Councillor Richard Barry would return from two weeks military duty.

Councillor George Burke suggested that the city take advantage of the time by going back to court to seek removal of the injunction that prevented the city from preparing or sending out property tax bills.

Meanwhile the council's delay created an "unhealthy climate for issuing bids" and it was expected that architects for the new vocational technical school would withhold their plans.

WIDENING OF GRANITE ST. BRIDGE SOUGHT

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa called upon the MBTA to widen the Granite St. bridge as part of the construction on the South Shore rapid transit extension.

The Mayor noted that since the MBTA plan called for use of three tracks through the city (two for rapid transit and one for freight) the Granite St. bridge would have to be widened and the other dilapidated bridges in the city replaced.

The Granite St. bridge widening project was part of the city's program to provide better access to the business district that included widening Granite St. from Upland Rd. to Hancock St.

PAPER ST. IMPACTS FINANCING OF APARTMENTS

Bank financing for the new St. Moritz apartments on Willard St. could be jeopardized if Thistle St. was recognized as a legal roadway.

Developer Alfred Keith conferred with Mayor Della Chiesa and Planning Board Chairman Walter Schmitz to resolve the matter.

If Thistle St. was recognized as "legal", the St. Moritz complex would be five feet under the required setback of 20 feet from the street. On the other hand, if Thistle St. was not "legal", the construction would comply with the city's zoning.

Arts In Parks Opening Concert Attracts Nearly 400

The first concert in the Quincy Arts In The Parks Series held recently at 1000 Southern Artery, attracted between 300-400 people.

City Council President Michael Cheney, who organized the eight-week event, opened the series by welcoming residents and community members.

Entertainment included The Made In The Shade Dixieland Band and special guest, clarinetist Billy Novik; Two For The Show; The Quincy Alumni Band, Riverside Theatre Works teenage ensemble Mixed Emotions.

Cheney, who is also founder and director of First Night Quincy told the crowd how he came up with the idea for the summer series.

"The success of First Night over the past three years has resulted in many people asking for the same kind of celebration of the arts in the summertime when we can all be outside enjoying the lovely weather," he said. "You asked for it, you got it. Next summer, we hope to expand to as many as 16 to 18 concerts. All the concerts are free and open to the public because we want a real community celebration."

The next concerts will be as follows:

July 11, at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater on the Southern Artery; July 18, at Lebreque Field on Sea St. in Houghs Neck; July 25, at Fore River Field at the end of Shaw St.; Aug. 1, at Bishop Playground behind Montclair School; Aug. 8, at Kincaide Park on Water

St. across from Lincoln-Hancock School; Aug. 15, at Wendell Moses Playground on Hutchins Ave., next to the Squantum School; Aug. 22 at the Granite Workers Memorial at Shea Park on Copeland St.

All concerts are at 6 p.m. and will feature Made In The Shade, Two For The Show, The Quincy Alumni Band and Riverside Theatre Works.

All concerts are free and open to the public. Those who attend are encouraged to bring lawn chairs or blankets for sitting. For more information, call 376-1071.

Michael Chase Inducted Into Vo-Tech Honor Society

Michael Chase of Quincy was among the 22 students at Don Bosco Technical High School in Boston who were recently inducted into the National Vocational-Technical Honor Society (NV-THS).

They joined 13 present members to bring the total to 35 in the second year of the Don Bosco chapter.

Edward G. Noonan, the school's financial administrator, was named an honorary member. His son Wesley, a member of the society, made the presentation.

Instructors of the technologies presented the certificates to the students in their particular field of study.

Fr. Richard J. McCormick, SDB, director and superior of Don Bosco, delivered the opening prayer and blessed the pins which were presented by John Goff, principal.

Paul Walsh, a member of the faculty in the Drafting and Design Department and advisor to the chapter, was the emcee for the ceremony and led the new members in the pledge.

Chase is in science tech.

Quincy Catholic Club Awards $1,500 In Scholarships

The Quincy Catholic Club recently awarded six high school seniors scholarships totaling $1,500 at a Mass held at St. John's Church.

Rev. William McCarthy, club chaplain was celebrant of the Mass.

Those receiving certificates were: Jennifer Duggan, a recent graduate of Milton High School, Matthew Feeney from St. Sebastian's Country Day School in Needham.

Elizabeth Kelley and William Potter, Quincy High School; Carolyn

Shea, the Winsor School in Boston; and Steven Weafer, Xavarian Brothers High School in Westwood.

Following the Mass, the students were guests of club members for dinner at the The Four's in Quincy. Mrs. Jean Hall, club president, presided at the dinner.

Mabel Biagini provided music during the evening.

Chairman of the Scholarship Committee was Anna O'Brien assisted by Mary Boethel, Marion O'Malley and Rita Waters.

Beechwood Honors 8 Over 90 Years Old

A special celebration honoring eight participants all over 90 years was recently held at Beechwood on the Bay.

"The remarkable thing about these eight special people" said Mary Centola, Elder Action Director, "is their independent functioning!" "They all live in their own homes in Quincy. They all regularly and actively participate at the Center." Their life stories are phenomenal, as are their talents and zest for life" adds Sharron Beals, executive director at the Center.

At a recent luncheon their "life" stories were recorded:

Helen Fraser (92) told of a career as a secretary (she married her boss).

Nora Gosbee (96) entertained with her "professional warbling" (whistling).

John DeLuca (90) told of finding his wife (of 66 years) in the office where he worked.

Edith Lundquist (91)

Beth Wong
Wins Winsor
Art Award

Beth Wong of Quincy recently received the Linda Alles Award for art at The Winsor School graduation exercises.

A junior at Winsor, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gock L. Wong.

born and raised in Quincy spoke about her career in bookkeeping.

Evelyn Johnson (92) also is a retired bookkeeper.

Mildred Gustafson (94) was a teacher.

Dee Tobbin (92) told of her life as a "Southern Belle" in Georgia.

Lydia Gallagher (94) shared a lifetime routine of "writing it all down: names, addresses, things and ideas I want to remember that's one way to solve the memory problem".

"These active 'Non-agenerians' are an inspiration to all the Center and we enjoy their active presence in our midst", said Centola.

The eight are "the planning committee" for two upcoming parties for Nora Gosby's 100th birthday and Al Benedetti's 102nd

Public Schools Summer Institutes Begin

Cost to 400 young scholars are expected to participate in the Quincy Public Schools' 14th annual Summer institutes for Academically Talented and Motivated Students beginning this week, according to Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, assistant superintendent of schools and program director.

From July 10-21, at North Quincy High School, 150 students entering Grades 4-8 have signed up for a number of learning activities such as Chem Lab, Newscast!, Jazzin' and Jammin', Crime Lab, Hola Amigos, Photography, Software Exploration, Computer Art, Musical Theatre and Art Studio Workshop. Afternoon field trips will provide additional enrichment experiences.

For the same two weeks, the Summer Institute will offer for the first time two enrichment programs for 35 students entering Grades K and 1. Entitled Animals Through the Arts and Sensational Science, the programs will provide the young child with a variety of hands-on enrichment and readiness activities along with storytellers, puppeteers, and field trips. The Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center will be the location.

Four more Institutes will round out the summer. From July 24-Aug. 4, Naturekeepers (for students entering Grades 2-4) will be at the Bernazzani School for 48 students and the Institute for Marine Ecology (for students entering Grades 5-8), meet in the science labs at North Quincy High.

Fifty students (entering Grades 4-8) interested in the performing arts will participate in Raise the Curtain at North Quincy High School during the weeks of July 31 to Aug. 11. Selections from two American musicals, "Oklahoma!" and "Peter Pan," will be presented.

Let's Go Beachcombing! (for 25 students entering Grades 1 and 1) will be held during the weeks of Aug. 7-18 at the Squantum School.

Griffin said the Summer Institute seeks students who are highly motivated, enjoy learning, and are excited about exploring new activities. Classes are small and intensive, and the instructional staff is excellent, she added.

Limited openings are available in the Institute for Marine Ecology, Raise the Curtain!, and Let's Go Beachcombing!

For a brochure or more information, call 984-8742.

Dental Dialogue

DON'T FEED THE PLAQUE

Q: Just what is plaque?

A: Plaque is a colorless, sticky substance made up of living bacteria, and it's found in every person's mouth. Plaque forms constantly on and around teeth, and is most dangerous when it colonizes. It is a primary cause of decay, gum disease and tooth loss. The good news, though, is that a good oral hygiene program, including careful brushing and daily use of dental floss, can prevent harmful accumulation of plaque. The main food of the plaque bacteria is sugar. Thus, when we eat processed foods with a high sugar content, we are literally feeding the plaque, and helping it prosper. So remember, avoid sugary snacks and please, don't feed the plaque!

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of:

Skilled nursing care takes more than just hard work.

The annual survey conducted by the Department of Massachusetts nursing homes is rigorous, to say the least. It covers every aspect of the care provided to our elderly residents. When Elihu White Nursing & Rehabilitation Center received another outstanding survey score for 1995, it wasn't just because our 200 employees worked hard. It was also because they put their hearts into caring for the residents they serve. From nursing and housekeeping to maintenance, dietary, and rehabilitation, every staff member at Elihu White takes pride in the responsibility of his or her role.

Over the years we have worked closely with virtually every hospital in the area, and with many, many physicians to ensure the comfort, safety, and security of their patients. These are just a few of the reasons

South Shore families have entrusted the care of their loved ones to the Logan

Family and Elihu White for more than 35 enjoyable and fulfilling years!

Quincy City Health Care Co. To Govern BSCS Group

The board of directors for Quincy City Health Care Company, the sister corporation of Quincy Hospital, has agreed to assume the governance of Bay State Community Services (BSCS).

Under the agreement between Quincy City Health Care Company and Bay State, The QCHCC board becomes the board for BSCS.

Officials said the new arrangements provides continuity of services for the current clients of BSCS, with no changes in the services.

Officials said the arrangement also creates a relationship between Quincy Hospital and Bay State that is similar to the one that currently exists between the hospital and the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association. The affiliation demonstrates Quincy Hospital's commitment to provide integrated health care services along with the continuum of care, while also ensuring access to needed services for the community, they said.

Bay State Community Services provides a wide range of social services, including mental health, substance abuse, residential, educational, prevention and day treatment services for people south of Boston. Bay State focuses on improving the social functioning of adults, adolescents and children within a framework that recognizes the primary importance of family and community.

"Quincy Hospital is very concerned about improving the health of our community. That is why we have placed such a strong emphasis on developing all levels of health and medical services," said Ralph DiPisa, director and CEO of Quincy Hospital. "By affiliating with Bay State Community Services, we are complementing our existing inpatient and outpatient mental health services. We see this agreement as part of our mission to ensure vital health services within this area."

"Bay State Community Services serves over 2,000 people each year in all our various programs," said Ken Tarabelli, executive director of Bay State. "Our programs help people throughout the South Shore. We approached Quincy Hospital to consider incorporating BSCS into their system because we believed that this arrangement offered an opportunity to ensure continuity of our services and meet future challenges."

Bay State was incorporated in 1991 as a private non-profit corporation that merged three 20-year old agencies--Survival Inc., South Shore Council on Alcoholism and Mayflower Mental Health Association. In 1993, the Center for Community Counseling and Education, Inc., and Billings Human Services, Inc. joined the organization.

Quincy Hospital is a 282-bed, acute care public hospital, with a 28-bed Transitional Care Unit. The hospital has been serving Quincy and the neighboring communities for more than 100 years. The hospital opened a new $60 million patient care facility in 1990, and in the past several years has developed a Transitional Care Unit, a Partial Hospitalization Program for geropsychiatric patients and the Quincy Hospital Home Health Department.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Multi-Families Returning A Good Investment

By ART FOLEY

Quincy has always had great inventory of multi-family properties. A few years back, they were popular investments and a great place to start buying real estate.

Then came the Tax Reform Act of 1986, onerous lead paint laws and a slow economy and the multi-family fell out of favor with the average investor.

In the last year or so, we've seen the economy slowly improve, apartment rentals get a lot stronger and rents stabilizing after falling for about five or six years.

An analysis using Banker & Tradesman statistics for multi-families (defined as two family-eight family properties) in Quincy since 1990. See chart above.

When the demand for multi's exceeds the supply only one thing can happen: prices will go up. In real estate, there is a tremendous amount of lag time before occurrences in the marketplace, such as the drastic tax reforms of the mid-1980s translate into sales and prices. In other words, it took people, the average investor, several years to realize the negative effects of those changes on their pocketbook.

Conversely, when the multi-family market bottoms out (which I think is happening as we speak), it takes a while for it to respond to positive forces in the economy.

The analysis shows a steady increase in the number of multi's being purchased while at the same time, a declining average price. A 70 percent increase in activity, with an 11 percent decrease in average price, from 1990 to 1995.

With a slowly improving economy, less onerous paint laws and some positive tax law changes looming, the future of multi's looks a lot brighter than it has in the last several years. If interest rates continue to stay low, real estate will be one of the few places you'll consistently be able to get a tax-free return in excess of 10 percent.

Quincy is in a great position with a stable economy and great potential for future growth. Naturally, the multi-family market will benefit from this also. The dark ages of owning real estate are behind us and the future is bright and getting brighter every day.

City Offers First-Time Home Buyers Program

Mayor James A. Sheets announces the City of Quincy, through its Department of Planning and Community Development (PCD) and Quincy Housing Partnership, is offering First-Time Homebuyers Program to prospective homeowners.

Since 1991, the city has helped over 50 households attain affordable homeownership.

The city's program consists of two parts to help income-eligible households more easily qualify for mortgage financing. First, the city uses its Federal HOME funds to help applicants in meeting downpayment and closing costs. Second, the program breaks the loan into a first and second mortgage, with the latter being subsidized through funds from the State's Executive Office of Communities and Development and the Massachusetts Housing Partnership.

The city was recently awarded another $100,000 to continue to make this "soft second" mortgage available.

The city's First-Time Homebuyer program has the following features:

- A 5 percent downpayment; (the applicant must provide a minimum of 3 percent of the down payment with the city providing up to 2 percent.

- The city can also provide an additional 1 percent of the purchase price toward closing costs.

- A conventional first mortgage provided by participating banks of up to 75 percent of the purchase price at below market interest rates and no points.

- A "soft" second mortgage of up to 20 percent. This second mortgage is "soft" because applicants pay only a portion of the interest, and no principal, for the first ten years of the mortgage.

- No private mortgage insurance (PMI) is charged to the applicant. (The Soft Second program includes a loan loss reserve account)

Three lending institutions have been selected through a formal solicitation process to participate in this round: The Cooperative Bank, Citizens Bank, and Colonial Federal Savings. Applications are being accepted by the city on a first-come, first-served basis, subject to Fair Housing and Equal Credit Opportunity policies.

To qualify for assistance under the city's First-Time Homebuyer Program, prospective homeowners must be a first-time buyer, provide evidence of good credit and complete a required homebuying education series. All homes purchased must be located within Quincy, and are subject to price limits as designated by FHA mortgage guidelines for the Boston area. Household income must also be within federally-designated income guidelines based on size of household.

However, those whose income exceeds the HUD income guidelines may qualify under another homeownership program funded through the Massachusetts Housing Finance Agency (MHFA). The PCD shall process the application for those households whose income are less than $50,000 for 1-2 person households and $57,000 for 3 or more person households who may qualify for this separate program through MHFA, subject to the availability of funds.

Two Quincy Schools Form 'Buddy Program'

Lincoln-Hancock Community School and Sterling Middle School have initiated a "Buddy Program" between fifth graders at Lincoln-Hancock and sixth graders at Sterling. Linda Monaco of Lincoln-Hancock and Patricia O'Brien of Sterling each selected six students to participate in the program which had its first session

June 12, "Fly-Up Day" at Sterling. Both groups will meet again Thursday, July 20 from 9 to 11 a.m. at Sterling and Thursday, Aug. 17 from 9 to 11 a.m. at the

Thomas Crane Public Library. At the sessions, students will discuss a book they have been reading from the Quincy Public Schools Summer Reading List. "We believe that this program will foster students' reading skills and make their adjustment to middle school much easier," said O'Brien.

The program is sponsored by the Extended Time Task Force of the Quincy Public Schools Title I Program.

periodic attention to prevent engine "melt-down," reminds the Car Care Council. Internal engine temperatures of up to 5,000 degrees place heavy demands on the cooling system.

Protect your investment by flushing the system, replacing antifreeze-coolant and, with a pressure test, checking radiator, hose connections and pressure cap.

Driver Errors That Cause Most Accidents

National Safety Council says two-thirds of highway accidents are caused at least in part by driver error, including:

- Following too closely;
- Overdependence on our brakes;
- Driver inattention;
- Driving too fast for conditions;
- Inability to control skids;
- Failure to use mirrors, signal for a turn, yield or turn on headlights at dark and, finally, from the Car Care Council,
- Failure to maintain brakes, lights and windshield wipers. Also, neglect of tires and ride control systems that affect the vehicle's stability and roadability.

Ecological Issues Affect Car Care Costs

Beyond keeping up with changing technology, automotive service technicians now face a new challenge: keeping up with the automotive "green" list. Air conditioning service, for example, now demands sophisticated equipment and procedures; drain oil, tires and batteries must be properly disposed of.

Depending upon local ordinances and state or federal laws, antifreeze and oil filters are on the list. It's unpopular, if not illegal, to throw tires or batteries in the trash. Cleaning solvents, antifreeze, even shock absorbers, which contain oil, are among materials on EPA's list, or proposed list, of materials to be disposed of properly.

It all adds up to a cleaner environment, says the Car Care Council, but at a cost that must be shared by vehicle owners and the industry that services them.

Investigate Erratic Power Steering

Does your power steering act up when you're maneuvering into a parking space? Is the steering wheel hard to turn? Is there a screeching noise from under your hood as you turn the wheel?

These are classic symptoms of a loose, glazed or worn drive belt. Or your power steering fluid may be low.

Replace a worn belt before it fails completely. If fluid is low, find out why, says the Car Care Council. Fixing a leak may involve nothing more than tightening a hose connection.

Smaller Engines Not As "Forgiving"

Automotive designers have come a long way with the comfort and performance of downsized cars. But one thing has not changed: the smaller engine does not take kindly to neglect.

You may be ready for a vacation trip, but is your car?

Legion

Lost Groove That Led To 10-1 Start Morrisette Drops 3 of 6, Tied With Weymouth

By KERRY BYRNE

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team had a less than stellar week, winning three and losing three to fall into a first place tie with Weymouth in the Zone 6 standings.

Morrisette (13-4) and Weymouth (12-3-2) have 26 points each. They were scheduled to engage in a pivotal battle last night (Wednesday) at Weymouth at 5:45. Morrisette hosts Milton tonight (Thursday) at 8 o'clock and travels to Randolph Monday for a 6 p.m. contest.

Jim Sapienza's bat was the biggest in a game of big bats as Morrisette topped Quincy, 26-12.

Sap drove in nine runs on a grand slam and two triples. Joe Biagini had four hits, including a pair of two-baggers. Ron McGann stroked a double and a single.

The Quincy attack was led by Jesse Casler who cracked a roundtripper. Donahue had three hits, including a double.

Morrisette's Tom Malvesti suffered his first loss of the season as his team fell to Milton, 11-4.

Malvesti traditionally has trouble on the mound at Milton's Kelly Field. This time his difficulty was compounded by a pulled thigh muscle and he lasted only three innings.

Mike Sheffer had a solid offensive outing with a double and a single. Paul Marnikovic and Biagini each slapped a pair of singles while McGann, Sheffer and Sapienza drove in runs.

Morrisette rebounded with an 8-3 win over West

Roxbury in which hurler Scott Kelly earned his second complete-game victory of the year.

Kelly K'd seven and allowed six hits.

Morrisette took a 4-1 lead in the fourth and never looked back. They were spearheaded by the stick of Sapienza, who had two hits with a double and two RBI. McGann and Marnikovic had two hits while Andy Joyce smacked and RBI single.

Morrisette showed signs of schizophrenia in a split Sunday of a double-header at Braintree.

In the first game the visitors played poorly, losing 9-3. Squandered opportunities on offense and five errors in the field led to the loss.

Jeff Russell suffered the loss. Jeremy Neilson pitched two innings of shutout ball in relief.

Morrisette racked up nine hits, including a Tim Zaniboni single and home run that cleared the center field fence. Tom Cunio went 2 for 2 with a double. McGann had two hits and an RBI, and Marnikovic smacked a pair of singles.

In the rematch, the Quincy club bounced back behind starter Joe McCarthy for an 11-2 win.

McCarthy, who typically starts slow and strengthens as the game goes on, allowed both runs in the first inning. One run was unearned. McCarthy went the distance and allowed six hits.

He was backed by a great defense that was lacking in the earlier loss. Morrisette made but one error and turned four double plays.

Malvesti gave his club a lead in the first with a three-run shot over the center field fence that scored McGann, who had walked, and Sheffer, who had doubled.

Sheffer ended the game with three hits, including a double and two RBI. Sapienza had three hits and one RBI while Malvesti, Joyce and McCarthy had two hits apiece. Zaniboni clubbed one base hit.

Morrisette ended the week in a disappointing way, blowing a 3-0 lead in the bottom of the seventh to lose in extra innings, 4-3, to Canton.

All four Canton runs were unearned.

Mike Kenney, who had pitched six outstanding innings of shutout ball, was relieved by Malvesti in the seventh after giving up a walk and a base hit.

A misjudged fly ball allowed two runs to score. A single sent in the tying run.

In the top of the extra frame, Morrisette got the lead man on base but a double play ended the threat. In the bottom of the inning, Canton led with a triple and proceeded to load the bases before an infield error allowed the winning run to score.

Morrisette scored all of their runs in the first inning. Sheffer reached with a double and scored on an error. Sapienza drove in two runs with a single.

Sheffer, McGann and Zaniboni led Morrisette with two hits. Malvesti had one.

Kenney allowed only three hits, walked one and struck out seven. Malvesti was charged with the loss.

Smith Team Sweeps Broom Golf Tourney

Todd Smith captained his team to a 10-under score of 60 as they swept to victory in the 15th Annual Broom Classic golf tournament.

Smith, a North Quincy High School graduate now living in Chicago, teamed with Quincy High basketball coach John Franceschini, John McKay and Paul Presiosi. They edged by one stroke the team of Barry Sullivan, Rick Radzik, Mike Gormley and Jay Sarson.

Third place went to Jack Warren, Walter Hanon, Brett Buckley and Ed Lizzotte.

A total of 17 teams took part in the tournament.

Phil Carlino sunk the longest putt and John McKay hit the longest drive. Dave DiCarlo, Paul Nestor, Al Bortolotti, Paul Messina, Greg Pomes and Jim Kelley all won closest-to-pin awards.

Bortolotti received the second annual Broomstick Award from last year's winner, George Peachey, for service to the tournament.

All proceeds of the tournament will go to the Quincy Elder Citizens Bureau, Inc.

Bertoni Golf Tourney Seeking Sponsors

Support is needed for the annual Bertoni Memorial Golf Tournament which benefits the Quincy Visiting Nurses Association (QVNA).

The tournament will be held Monday, Sept. 11 at the Halifax Country Club beginning at 8 a.m.

Support is provided by 'Sponsors,' 'Friends' and 'Patrons.' Sponsors contribute up to $100 or prizes, Friends donate $100-$250 and Patrons, $250 or more. For prizes, Sponsors can donate gift certificates, sports equipment, special gift items, promotional items or prizes for holes in one, winning golfers and outstanding foursomes.

All other ideas are welcome.

Last year the tournament raised more than $12,000, and event organizers hope to be equally successful this year.

To help, or for more information, call Stephen Robbins at 472-2828.

Baseball Hitting Camp July 17-20 At Adams

The Quincy Recreation Department's Baseball Hitting Instruction Camp will be held July 17-20 at Adams Field.

The camp is open to those of Little League and Babe Ruth League eligibility. It will run from 8:30-10:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. The cost is $28.

To be considered of Little League eligibility players must be 10, 11 or 12 as of July 31. To be considered of Babe Ruth League eligibility players must be 13, 14, or 15 as of July 31.

North Quincy High and Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth coach Jack Outerbridge will direct the camp.

A JUGS curve ball/fastball pitching machine will be used for batting practice.

Registration is on a first-come, first-serve basis at the Recreation office, 100 Southern Artery, between 9 a.m.-4 p.m.

THE ONE-PAYMENT LEASE

It is estimated that about 250,000 consumers will opt for payment car lease customers the one-payment method of leasing their cars in 1995. As its name implies, this lump-sum payment involves paying for a car lease in one big payment. Its rise in popularity is due to two factors. For one, the one-payment lease is designed for cash-paying customers who seek to make payment that is lower than they would otherwise make with the sum of monthly lease payments. Just as a cash purchase costs less than the sum of lower loan payments (owing to lower interest charges), so too does the one-payment lease cost less.

Beyond that, when one-payment lease customers use home equity loans to finance their leases, they are able to deduct the interest. This tax strategy makes particular sense for those in higher tax brackets.

Our customers continue to tell us they find our pricing competitive, while at the same time finding our service staff to be superior. LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is proud of that, and we want you to know we will continue to work toward improving our record. If you know us already, then you know what we're saying is true. If you are new to this community, then by all means, try us. We are located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550. Hours: Mon-Fri 8am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer. Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

Sports Spotlight

By ★★

As many of you have noticed, my column has not appeared in The Quincy Sun the last few weeks.

Let me explain why. I have been going through a period of great difficulty. Some call it artistic angst. If I were a painter this would be called my blue period. If I were a half-haired retro-60s hippie wannabe under the influence of heavy hallucinogens, I would be 'in search of myself.'

But being short, dumpy white kid with few marketable skills, I do not know what to call it. Anyway, I now go by the name ★★. If you have trouble pronouncing ★★, you can simply refer to me as the writer formerly known as Kerry Byrne.

But this is apropos of nothing.

The main reason why I have not been heard from is because I have been training for a summer-long, spike-filled, forearm-bashing, chest-thumping, Viking-like season of beach volleyball.

I can do so because Quincy has unofficially become the beach volleyball capital of the East Coast.

The accomplishments of the city's high school volleyball teams (which include more than a half dozen state titles) have been well documented over the past decade. Recently, permanent nets have been set up at the Pageant Field's Kennedy sand volleyball courts while new nets can be seen along the snow white sands and scenic waters of Wollaston Beach.

And, in case you missed it, this past weekend The Tent at Marina Bay was the site for the first Boston-area visit by the Miller Lite/AVP Pro Beach Volleyball Tour. Suddenly, Quincy is a big draw for the best beach volleyball players in the world.

Tour spokesmen and athletes such as Karch Kiraly, the world's top ranked beach volleyball player, expressed interest in making Quincy a regular stop on the volleyball tour, which until recently made stops only in California and Florida.

If they do return, it's certainly the type of event sports fans should not miss: the world's premier athletes battling for big bucks in front of thousands of spectators. It was estimated that 8,000-11,000 people came to Marina Bay over the weekend to watch the action.

To those who have only seen the indoor, six-man variety of volleyball, the two-man beach brand is a completely different ball game.

Kiraly, who began playing beach volleyball in California at the tender age of six, and who has in his trophy case two Olympic gold medals, described the differences:

"Beach volleyball is a lot harder because you have two people covering the same size court. But it's also simpler to understand. Indoors there are so many hitters and so many plays, the playbook is very complex. And things happen so fast indoors that you don't always know what's going on. The outdoor game is simple to understand. Basically, you have one guy at the net and one going trying to cover a lot of court."

What it means is a lot of one-on-one confrontations at the net as the mammoth players attempt to shove the ball down each other's throats.

The size, speed and strength of these players are impressive to say the least. Most of the players are well over six feet tall and they just destroy the ball. Kiraly estimates that his serve travels upwards of 75 miles per hour.

So, keep your eyes open next summer for the return of the tour. It's not often that the best athletes in the world play in your backyard.

Kiraly and his friends did not play in The Tent, but on the parking lots outside The Tent, which were turned into a network of seven beach volleyball courts.

The metamorphosis was made possible by 1,200 tons of sand that were trucked in by a firm out of Houston. When there are no beaches available, the tour has been known to ship in upwards of 2,200 tons of sand in order to build their own courts.

The tons of sand have already been redistributed to help improve conditions at the Collins Rest-A-While Playground, Point-Webster Playground and the Kennedy Volleyball Courts at Pageant Field.

I'd like to offer my congratulations to Sean Thomas of Merrymount.

Sean, who until recently had gone by the name No Game Thomas, shocked the basketball world when he pulled out a 22-20 win during a game against ★★ Saturday.

Sean unveiled a heretofore unknown outside game that ★★ found difficult to counter. He was, however, unable to take the ball inside. He obviously lives in fear of ★★'s awesome power and intense play in the paint (some call it hacking) and will have to improve on his strength if he hopes to hang and bang with the big boys during the upcoming high school football season.

Sabb Visit Highlights All Star Games

A visit by New England Patriots linebacker Dwayne Sabb highlighted the recent St. John's Junior Farm League and Little League all star games.

Sabb spent three hours signing autographs and talking to kids about the dangers of drug use. He also got the games underway with the ceremonial first pitch.

In the Junior Farm contest, the National League topped the American League, 8-4.

The National League scored three runs in the first inning thanks to hits by Matt Callahan, Bob McEvoy, Liam Powers and Andrew Dougherty.

The American League responded with two runs in the top of the second. Brian Garrant, Ryan Feldhoff, Billy Wagner and Shawn Gibbons did the damage.

A second-inning attack paced by Dan Reggiani, John White, Tony Pep and Dean Sandomato led the three runs for the National League and put the game out of reach of the American League.

The Nationals added two runs in the sixth inning.

Jeremy Craig, Josh Hall and Brett Martinson pounded hits for the American League. Chris Kirschner made a nice defensive play. They scored one run in the sixth and one in the seventh, but were unable to complete the comeback.

In the Little League outing, the National and American League clubs battled to an 8-8 tie.

The Nationals were led by Mike Prez, John Moran, Jim Constance, Adam Culley and Corey Fitzgerald.

Pacing the American squad were Matt Gardner, Dave Centrella, Chris Cambarion and John Lupo.

The commissioner, manager and coaches of St. John's Baseball wanted to thank those businesses sponsored and helped in the success of their 37th season.

The league sponsors were Agniti Insurance Agency, Hogan Family, Bolea-Buonfiglio, A.H. Campbell & Sons, Continental Cablevision, Di-

Bona Plumbing & Heating, Sunshine Fruit, S. Matarazzo Dentistry, Nation One Mortgage, Sweeney Funeral Services, Presidents Pharmacy, Reggie's Oil Co., 7-Eleven, South Quincy Bocce Club and Sweeney Brothers.

Red Storm Falls, Then Rises

The St. John's travel baseball team, the Red Storm, were shutout in their first game but rebounded with a 4-2 win over South Marshfield in a game played at Shea Field.

Dave Centrella worked a complete game, striking out nine, walking none and allowing three hits, to lead St. John's to the victory.

Centrella also hit an RBI triple and scored a run. Chris Doherty was the top Red Storm batter as he whipped up a single, double, one run scored and two RBI. Ted George and Nick Transfiglia scored runs after drawing walks.

In the field St. John's pulled off that old defensive standby, the 9-1-4-3-6-1 double play.

South Marshfield was sparked by the pitching of Donald Ethier and the RBI singles of Mark Worsosky and Joe Cronin.

In their first outing, St. John's lost 4-0 to East

Marshfield in a game played at The Complex at Marshfield.

East Marshfield struck for all four runs in the fourth inning against pitcher Chris Doherty. Doherty had a fine overall outing, fanning eight and allowing just four hits and two earned runs.

He also went 2 for 3 with a single and double to lead the offense. Dan Jones and John Lupo had the Red Storm's only other hits.

Tom Callahan made the defensive play of the game when he made a diving catch in right field to end the third inning and prevent runners on second and third from scoring. Shortstop Centrella and second baseman Bill Page combined with catcher Jim Constan to nail runners attempting to steal second.

Marshfield pitcher Steve Hicks and batsmen Mike Gamrun and Alex Bocciting played well.

International

Maffeo Closes Season With Birthday Blast

Steve Maffeo was both birthday boy and hero as his Recupero & Davis club closed the season with a 13-12 win over K of C in a three-hour-plus, extra-inning marathon.

Maffeo provided the winning run with a solo roundtrip blast in the eighth. He was serenaded with a chorus of 'Happy Birthday to You' as he crossed the plate.

The home run lifted R&D into sole possession of the top spot in the final regular season standings.

If K of C won, there would have been a three-way tie atop the league.

Jamie Panagos pitched seven innings of nine-strikeout ball for R&D before being relieved by Tony Tran in the extra session. Tran struck out the side to seal victory.

Panagos also did a good job at the plate, going 3 for 4 with a triple. Joe Barkhouse went 2 for 2 and caught several pop-ups behind the plate. Tony DiBona went 2 for 5.

Tran played solid D in center field and Jamie MacIsaac was sharp at first.

K of C's Jim Barrett had a stellar day at the plate with a 4 for 5 outing that including a pair of three-baggers. Chris Haidul went 3 for 5 while Dan Pelluzzi smacked a triple and Pat Pezzullo stroked a double.

The Knights' defense was led by Pezzullo at second, Pelluzzi in left field, and Matt Rodenhiser at shortstop.

Rodenhiser fanned four in three innings of relief work.

Recupero & Davis, ATSS, Knights of Columbus and Sub Chef finished with the top four records in the International League and will battle for the title this week.

The final International League standings:

R&D, 13-3; ATSS, 12-4; K of C, 11-5; Sub Chef, 8-6-2; Everlasting Engraving, 8-7-1; State Street Global Advisors, 6-10; Noll Electric, 4-9-1; Feenan Financial, 3-11-2; Osco Drug, 4-12.

3 Residents Graduate From Tufts University

Three Quincy residents have received degrees from Tufts University during its 139th commencement held May 21.

Eddy Chan On Tufts Dean's List

Eddy K. Chan of Quincy has been named to the Dean's List at Tufts University in Medford. He is a resident of 10 Sturtevant Rd.

Triple A

Late Surge Lifts PAL

Quincy PAL scored four runs in the last inning to pull out an 8-7 win over CNA Insurance.

Extra-base hits by Shawn Jafarzadeh, Pat Lahar and Rich Zapata led PAL to the win. Bert Vivatyukan and Lahar smacked base hits. Matt

Petit drove in Pat Lahar with the game-winning run in the bottom of the sixth.

Lahar rounded out his solid performance by throwing out four runners attempting to steal bases.

Joe Flanigan and Steve O'Hare played well for CNA.

Babe Ruth

Local Hands Elks Only Loss

Brian Ross led Local to a 5-2 upset win over the Elks in Babe Ruth League baseball.

Poor baserunning and shoddy fielding contributed to the Elks' only loss of the season.

Ross went the distance against the loaded Elks lineup, allowing five hits and fanning seven.

Jeff Russo tripled for the winners and Mike Reidy doubled.

Matt McLoughlin had two hits for the Elks.

The Elks closed the season with a 19-1 record and the American League title of the Babe Ruth League.

The Elks beat Sons of Italy, 12-5, using a nine-run second inning to coast to the win.

Justin Adams' two-run double and RBI singles by Rusty Corner, Matt McLoughlin and Chris Bregoli keyed the outburst. Corner, McLoughlin and Jack Daly had two hits each. Daly's effort included three RBI.

Corner picked up the win.

Bregoli and Corner split the pitching duties in a 10-

1 win over Morrisette, with Bregoli posting the W.

Daly continued his hot hitting with three hits and two RBI. McLoughlin also had three hits while Bregoli chalked up two hits and two RBI. Adams also knocked in two runs.

Mike Centrella clubbed two hits for Morrisette.

Bobby Johnston recorded the victory in the Elks' 10-4 win over Tirrell Services.

Bregoli paced the offense with three hits and three RBI. Scott Staiti chipped in with three hits, including a double and two RBI.

Morrisette had an awesome end-of-season run with four convincing wins.

Rich (Axl) Rose, Mike Centrella and Greg Peck had big offensive days as Morrisette topped Tirrell Services, 13-5.

Axl Rose gunned two doubles and a single. Centrella had two hits, including a three-bagger. Peck had three base hits. Also having big days at the plate were Jason Crossman (two singles, double), Pat Kenney (triple) and Ryan Ploof (two singles).

Tim Doyle, Bill Miller, Mike Feiner and Jesse Winters led the defense.

Playing well for Tirrell were Joe Valentini, Mike Armstrong, Mike Feetham and Eric Sullivan.

It was an old-fashioned slugfest as Morrisette doubled Local, 20-10.

Centrella had a monster day with three singles, two doubles and a home run. Rose fell a home run shy of hitting for the cycle. Peck had a pair of two-baggers and Pat Kenney hit three singles while Ploof and Jamie Grossi smacked two base hits each.

Crossman, Chris Cummings and Josh Smith anchored the defense behind pitcher Ploof, who fanned eight men.

Steve Maze sparked the Local effort with two singles at the plate and a strong day behind it. The catcher made three putouts at the plate.

Hurley Ryan McMahon led Morrisette to a 7-1 win over Houghs Neck with a long stretch of shutout ball and eight K's. Ploof pitched in relief.

Axl Rose had a single and triple while Centrella and Tim Doyle smacked a pair of singles each. Ploof, Crossman and Chris Duffy looked sharp on defense.

Houghs Neck was led by the play of Matt Gibbons, Brian Walsh and Dan Nichol.

Morrisette put it all together on offense and defense in a 17-0 win over Fire Dept.

Jamie Grossi earned the win with a one-hit effort.

Centrella was the top batsman with a single and a pair of two-baggers. Ploof had two singled and one double. Rose (single, double), Peck (double) and Grossi (two singles) also hit the ball well.

Crossman had his usual stellar game in the field. Jesse Winter and Billy Miller were also solid on defense.

Mark Regan stroked a single for the only hit Fire Dept. managed against Grossi. Chad Fitzpatrick and Ronnie DeNapoli made a series of nice plays in the field.

KARCH KIRALY, the world's No. 1-rated beach volleyball player, got a chance to strut his stuff outside The Tent at Marina Bay this past weekend. Kiraly and partner Scott Ayakutubby took first place in the $100,000 Miller Lite Open at Boston leg of the Miller Lite/AVP pro beach volleyball tour. See Sports Spotlight, page 16.

Volleyball Tour Leaves Mark On City Playgrounds

The Jacob White Construction Co. of Houston donated more than 1,200 tons of sand to the City of Quincy to be used at Park Department facilities.

The sand was left behind by the Pro Beach Volleyball Tour which stopped last weekend at Marina Bay. The sand is estimated to have cost $17,000 but was donated to the city free of charge.

It will be distributed to the Collins Rest-a-While Playground, Point-Webster Playground, Kennedy Volleyball Courts and the Ryan Boathouse at Black's Creek.

Point-Webster and Collins will use the sand as a protective surface around the playground equipment.

5 Quincy Residents On Thayer Honor Roll

Five Quincy residents have been named to the Dean's List for the third term at Thayer Academy in Braintree.

They are: Sarah F. Brandon, Philip Lai Yin Chan, Scott J. Dunn, Christie-Jade Rizzo and Rachel L. Shea.

Youth Softball

Club Chretien Advances With Playoff Wins

Club Chretien won its first two Quincy Girls Softball League junior division playoff games.

In the first outing, Chretien buried McEvoy Security, 18-9.

Julie Rackauskas and Courtney Riley teamed up with strong pitching on the mound while Beth Goodrich, Katin Markham and Riley paced the offense with two hits apiece.

Base hits were also stroked by Missy Miller, Alyssa Hawksley, Marilyn Powers and Rackauskas.

Meaghan Lahar, Kristin Gallagher, Susan Spring and Meghan Chagnon chipped in with base hits and strong play of defense.

Leading the McEvoy effort were Jen Ryan, Heather Duffy, Liz Thomas, Mary Beth Bent, Ashley Nee, Lindsey Langille, Jeanne Sheehan, Madeline Teribelli and Liz McEvoy.

Club Chretien took their second game, 18-10, over Keohane's.

Riley and Chagnon led the winners with outstanding efforts on the mound and at the plate. Riley went 3 for 4 with a home run, while Chagnon went 4 for 4.

Also knocking the ball around for Chretien were Katy Mercurio (3 for 3), Hawksley (home run), Goodrich, Powers, Spring, Lahar, Markham and Miller.

Playing well for Keohane's were Koya Frey, Corey O'Connor, Jessica Rogers, Maura Rogers, Breanne Therrien, Lynn Gilbody, Danielle Rogers, Courtney Allen and Dianne Gilbody. The team exploded with nine runs in the third inning.

Lauren Sullivan led Quincy DARE to a 12-6 win over South Shore Engine.

Sullivan struck out eight batters while going 3 for 3 with a double, home run and four RBI.

She managed to outduel South Shore Engine's Staci Andrew who struck out 12 batters.

DARE's Casey Lorman, Michelle Pilalas, Caitland Callahan and Cristina Conley each went 2 for 3. Pilalas' effort included her fifth home run of the season, a double, and four RBI.

Outstanding plays for the winning club were made by Melissa Braga, Ashley Fowkes, Kerri McAteer, Kristin Dwyer and Sara Page.

Andrew also powered

Engine at the plate with a 2 for 3 effort that included a triple and three RBI. Kristin Ciampa cracked a two-bagger.

In a senior division first-round playoff game, the Wisialko Whiz Kids edged Network Plus, 10-9.

Deirdre Jacobs struck out seven and walked just two in earning the win. The key hits were stroked by Marissa Lentini and Kristen Bowes.

Jane Fitzgerald made two huge plays as she tagged out runners at the plate. Meaghan Cosseboom bare-handed a fly ball for another impressive looking putout.

Jenny Tam sparked Network Plus at the plate and made a catch on a line drive that prevented two runs from scoring.

Residents To Ride In Pan-Mass Challenge

Nine Quincy residents will take part Aug. 5 and 6 in the Pan-Massachusetts Challenge (PMC), the single largest fundraising event for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's Jimmy Fund.

The PMC is a two-day, 192-mile bike ride which passes through 36 Massachusetts towns, beginning in Sturbridge and ending in Provincetown.

This year the PMC introduces a new one-day, 83-mile Boston to Bourne route. There is also a 109-mile ride from Sturbridge to Bourne.

The Quincy residents taking part are Alice Tobin, Ed McGovern, Chauncy Mayfield, Patrick Morrissey, Patrick McDermott, Christopher McDermott, Heather Kelley Carr, Michael Carr and Peter Haley.

Since its inception in 1980, the PMC has contributed more than $13.5 million to fund cancer research and treatment. This year, the PMC hopes to raise $3 million.

The PMC is a ride, not a race.

Anyone with a bicycle who is age 15 or older and in good physical health can participate as long as they are committed to meeting the minimum fundraising requirement of $1,000 for the two-day ride or $500 for either of the one-day events.

Those interested in participating in the ride or volunteering to help should call 1-800-WE-CYCLE or Email PMC1995@aol.com.

James P. McGuinness, 83

Letter Carrier; "Mayor Of Norfolk Downs"

A funeral Mass for James P. McGuinness, 83, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Ann's Church.

Mr. McGuinness died July 9 in Southwood Nursing Home, Norwell.

A letter carrier in the Norfolk Downs section of Quincy for 30 years, he was known as the "Mayor of Norfolk Downs." He retired in 1972.

He attended several Democratic national conventions and was a candidate for the Quincy City Council from Ward 2, Quincy Point, in 1939 on a platform to reduce the tax rate, provide supervision of youth activities at the Fore River Clubhouse and establish a five-cent carfare to the Fore River bridge. He was opposed to establishing "obnoxious industry" along the Quincy Town River.

Mr. McGuinness was treasurer of the reunion committee of the 1930 graduating class at Quincy High School that still gives scholarships to seniors at all three Quincy high schools. He was a high school athlete and a charter member of the Quincy Point Boys Club.

Born in Scituate, he moved to Quincy when he was 6 years old. He attended the old Washington Grammar School and was certified in public speaking and political economy and government through courses at the State University Extension.

He was a welder at the Fore River shipyard for three years.

Mr. McGuinness was chairman of bands and the parade for the 1960 na-

Dorothy J. Graney

A funeral Mass for Dorothy J. (McGrath) Graney of North Quincy was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Agatha's Church, Milton.

Mrs. Graney died July 8.

Wife of the late William E. Graney Sr., she is survived by three sons, William E. Graney Jr. of Quincy, John F. Graney of Milton and Joseph A. Graney of Braintree; three daughters, Marianne Graney, Judith Graney and Tracy Graney, all of North Quincy; a sister, Margaret Kulda of Burlington; and six grandchildren.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St. tional convention of the National Association of Letter Carriers in Boston.

A Navy storekeeper first class during World War II, he took part at the Easter Sunday landing at Okinawa April 1, 1945, and suffered a knee injury during an air raid while flying from Okinawa to Guam.

He was a member of the Morrisette American Legion Post and the Charles J. Cavanaugh Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans in North Quincy.

Mr. McGuinness was past president of the Parent-Teacher Association at the Coddington School and was chairman of fund drives for the Red Feather campaign and the YMCA.

Husband of the late Mary (Evaska) McGuinness, he is survived by two sons, James W. McGuinness of Weymouth and Mark F. McGuinness of Scituate; a daughter, Martha Lutz of Virginia; seven grandchildren, and a great-grandson.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Edna C. Necktas, 74

Retired Factory Worker

A funeral Mass for Edna C. Necktas, 74, of Quincy, was celebrated July 6 in St. Joseph's Church.

Miss Necktas died July 4 in Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

She was a retired factory worker for Delay, a recording company in Holbrook.

Born, raised and educated in Boston, she lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy in 1971.

She is survived by a brother, Thomas J. Necktas of Quincy; four sisters, Rosa McLellan of Quincy, Katherine MacNeil of Randolph, Jeannette White of Hyde Park and Alice Owens of Dorchester; and many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society, 294 Pleasant St., Stoughton, MA 02072.

Christina Hagerty, 94

A funeral service for Christina (McDonald) Hagerty, 94, of North Quincy, will be held today (Thursday) at 10:30 a.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Mrs. Hagerty died July 9 in Braintree Manor after a long illness.

She worked as a nurse's aide at Oceanside Nursing Home for five years before her retirement in 1971.

A native of Prince Edward Island, Canada, she lived in Quincy for 40 years.

Wife of the late Patrick

J. Hagerty, she is survived by two sons, Robert A. Hagerty of Quincy and Patrick J. Hagerty Jr. of Whitman; a daughter, Ida Ford of North Quincy; two brothers, Gordon Murdock and Jessie McKenzie, both of Canada; 12 grandchildren, three great-grandchildren and three great-great-grandchildren. She was the mother of Catherine Colantonio.

Burial will be in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Visiting hours were scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. in the funeral home.

Treasured times spent on grandma's knee... hearing more than was spoken. Creating the kind of warm memories you pass along to your own children. Listening enriches your life and your family's heritage.

Listening. One of the most important things we do.

LaRaia Named Assessor, McIntyre Could Fill His Council Seat

unfortunate," he said. "It makes it appear that it was political because (the timing) didn't give others interested in the council at-large seat a chance to run for the office."

"Joe is definitely qualified for the assessor's position. He's as qualified as anyone. He deserves the job as much as Pat Toland deserved the assistant clerk's job."

Sheets said he believes LaRaia is the most qualified of the five people who applied for the job. He cited LaRaia's background in the real estate business, bachelor's degree in business, knowledge of Quincy and knowledge of how city government works as the reason for his decision.

"I thought Joe was exceptionally qualified," said Sheets. "He was the most qualified person for the position. It was my sense he could hit this particular road running."

Asked why he would appoint a man in his early 60s to the position, Sheets said, "I think the age factor is secondary to the experience factor. It's not how old you are, it's whether you can do the job."

Sheets acknowledged that the timing of the appointment might seem politically motivated but noted that it was LaRaia who initially contacted the mayor to express interest in the position, not the other way around. The mayor called the timing "a coincidence."

Bertolon said he decided to retire after talking it over with his family in April.

"I thought it was time for me to get out and make room for a younger person, someone with a lot of energy and who is computer-bright because the work is now much more complex than it used to be."

Bertolon said he made his retirement plans official to Sheets in a letter dated June 4. In that letter, he said he thought the job should go to a younger person.

Bertolon is 69 and LaRaia will be 63 next month.

Bertolon said he had not heard LaRaia's name mentioned for the job until Monday night.

LaRaia, who still works in the real estate business, will have three years to qualify for certification as an assessor.

LaRaia had this to say in a prepared statement:

"The decision to pass up a re-election bid was difficult since I have 23 years in elective office and a natural tendency to involve myself in the decisions affecting our city. My interest in the future of the downtown is still focused, as well as the prospects of developing the shipyard property.

"If I had to make the transition from elective office to an appointed position, I preferred that the decision be made closest to the end of my term."

"Because of the timing of my announcement, I have not had the time to express my thanks to the many supporters who have given me the opportunity to serve the people of Quincy, and I'll certainly convey that appreciation over the next few weeks."

LaRaia added that he will have to stop selling real estate because it would be a conflict of interest with the assessor's post. He said is unsure whether he will have to sell his business, Coddington Realty, but he will do whatever the law requires.

LaRaia, whose political career spans 36 years, and includes one term as mayor in the 1970s, was runner-up in the City Council at-large race in 1991.

When Toland resigned from the council in January, 1993 to become assistant city clerk, the council-following tradition-named LaRaia to fill out her term.

Reduced Parking Fees Need Council Approval

Last week, the city announced the new rates for both parking areas would be: up to two hours, free parking; 2-3 hours, $2 with validation, $5 without; 3-4 hours, $3 with validation, $7.50 without; 4-5 hours, $4 with validation, $10 without; 5-8 hours, $12 (no validation available); 8-12 hours, $15 (no validation); 12-24 hours, $25 (no validation). The amount of $35 was recommended for the monthly passes.

Downtown merchants felt those amounts were too high, considering rates before the takeover were 25¢ an hour and $25 for a monthly pass. QCBPA members said they feared the new rates would scare away potential shoppers, not attract them as Sheets hoped to do by offering the limited free parking, and would place an unfair financial burden on those who work part-time in Quincy Center.

Sheets said he is agreeable to the rates proposed by the business association.

"I don't have a problem with them, because I think they meet the needs of the merchants," he said. "We're just trying to accommodate the real and genuine needs of the downtown."

The mayor added that the idea of the city's takeover of the parking system was never to make money, but rather to make shopping in the downtown an enjoyable experience for both customers and merchants.

"It has never been my philosophy to raise the parking fees just to generate revenue," he said. "It has never been my intention to make money on parking, but to make it user-friendly for shoppers as well as to accommodate those who need longer-term parking (such as downtown employees)."

Sheets noted that even the reduced rates should allow the city to cover the salaries of the attendants who will man the two parking areas. The mayor said last week the city will spend about $135,000 annually for five full-time employees--including a foreman--and around $50,000 to fund "five or six" part-time positions.

The mayor also said last week it cost about $225,000 a year to pay a private company to operate the parking system, and that the takeover was designed to be "a wash" for the city in terms of dollars and cents.

In addition to the fee amounts, QCBPA members have expressed concerns about several other aspects of the new parking plan, including the safety of the Revere Road entrance to the Hancock Lot which will be limited to those with monthly passes and security at the Ross Garage. Gillon and Sheets have said they will do all they can to see that all concerns are met.

Parking at both the Hancock Lot and Ross Garage will remain free until the city can implement its new plan. Sheets said he hopes that will happen within two weeks.

Citizens Bank, Broad Meadows Sign Partnership

Citizens Bank and Broad Meadows Middle School recently signed a business partnership agreement to help promote the relationship between the business and educational communities.

The agreement was signed during a ceremony that included representatives of the bank and students and faculty of the 300-student school. Officials said the main purpose of the agreement is to provide the students with activities which will provide the support necessary for them to develop into adult members of the community.

Bank representatives said Citizens will benefit from the agreement by expanding working adults' awareness of children and the educational process. "Citizens Bank is committed to all levels of community service, and what better way than to help the leaders of tomorrow through this partnership?," said John O'Connor, regional president of the bank. School officials agreed. "I am convinced that through the establishment of this partnership we can make a difference in the quality of education that we are able to deliver to our students," said Broad Meadows Principal Anne Marie Zukauskas.

The agreement was signed by O'Connor and Zukauskas along with Citizens Commercial Leader Tricia Fell and School Supt. Eugene Creedon. It provides that the collaborative efforts of the bank and the school will serve the people in Quincy by providing community-wide support for the positive development of youth and families.

If Expansion Scaled Down Bond Issue Possible For Library

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
and MICHAEL WHALEN

If a revised, scaled-back expansion plan for the Thomas Crane Public Library is a suitable alternative, Mayor James Sheets said he would consider earmarking city funds for the project when library officials seek state money next year.

"I would consider sending a $6 to $7 million bond issue to the City Council," Sheets told The Sun Tuesday if the revised plan is in "everyone's best interests."

"The library is really the heart of a city, and our library is worth expanding and preserving. I will certainly work with (Library Director) Ann McLaughlin and the Board of Trustees on any reasonable recommendation," the mayor said.

McLaughlin said she and trustees will study options for a scaled-down expansion project and will aim to submit an application for a state library grant next year.

The application will be available later this year, she said.

The library's expansion plan was dealt a setback last week when the state Board of Library Commissioners did not award the library a multi-million grant for its then planned $14.5 million expansion project. However, library officials said the state decision will not deter them from going forward with a revised expansion plan.

"The first thing I plan to ask the architect is can we consolidate the expansion on a smaller scale or reconfigure the expansion," McLaughlin told The Sun

Ambulance Firm Audit Completed

An audit of Natick-based Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Company, which provides service to Quincy Hospital, has been completed.

Results of the audit were to be released during a meeting at the hospital late Tuesday afternoon after The Sun went to press. Among those who were to attend the meeting were Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymond, City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, and representatives from the hospital and the audit company. No one from Norfolk-Bristol was to be in attendance.

The audit was called for after the company recently admitted it has mistakenly billed at least 128 Quincy residents for its services. The problem was brought to the city's attention by Raymond, who initially investigated the matter after he discovered two of his clients had been wrongly billed.

According to its contract with the hospital, Norfolk-Bristol cannot charge indigent or uninsured residents for service to any hospital. If a patient has insurance, it must charge no more than the allowable rate and must bill the insurance company directly. Norfolk-Bristol cannot bill the patient for the balance if the insurance company declines to pay the full amount.

The company has established a toll-free hot line for residents who have questions or complaints about their bills. Those interested can call Sheli Hersherson at 1-800-498-0480.

Subject To Dismissal Provisions

Judge: Creedon Had Right To Fire Johnson At QC

A Norfolk Superior Court judge has ruled that School Supt. Eugene Creedon had the right to fire former Quincy College President O. Clayton Johnson when he did so in September 1993.

Johnson, who served as college president for 10 years, was fired by Creedon for various alleged instances of misconduct. After his termination, Johnson filed a grievance, saying Creedon had no right to fire him.

Creedon argued that the state Education Reform Act, passed on June 18, 1993, granted every Massachusetts school superintendent the authority to fire the president of a city-owned college in the same way he or she would terminate a principal or teacher at any of that city's public schools. Prior to 1993, school committees had the sole authority to hire or dismiss principals and teachers.

The main thrust of Johnson's argument was that a college president has a different status than that of a public school principal and therefore cannot be fired by the school superintendent.

Barbara Dortch-Okara,

GENE CREEDON

justice of the Superior Court, disagreed.

"The clause (in Massa-

CLAYTON JOHNSON

chusetts General Laws, Chapter 71, Section 41) 'by whatever title their position may be known,' indicates that the state legislature believed there were other positions equivalent to that of a principal but were not titled as such," she wrote in her recent decision. "The position of president...is equivalent to a principal for purposes of Section 41."

The judge also compared the situation to a similar case in Newton and noted that the job description of the Quincy

No School Committee, Ward 3 Preliminary

There will be no preliminary election runoffs this fall in the races for Ward 3 city councillor or for School Committee.

At press time last week it appeared both would be necessary. However, Timothy Delaney, 35, of 270 Wilson Ave. had to drop out of the Ward 3 race because he was unable to turn in the required 50 certified signatures for his nomination papers to City Hall, while Patricia Linehan, 56, of 93 Verchild St. dropped out of the School Committee race for personal reasons.

Only two preliminary election runoffs--for the council seats in Wards 4 and 5--will now be held Sept. 19. The final election is Nov. 7.

Two candidates will now face other for the Ward 3 seat which is being vacated by Lawrence Chretien: Stephen Doherty, 36, of 206 Beale

St. and Patrick McDermott, 25, of 146 Taylor St. Chretien is running for one of the city's three at-large council seats.

Linehan's action leaves six candidates running for three four-year School Committee seats: incumbents Sean Barry and Linda Stice as well as 1993 candidates Christine Cedrone, 25, of 29 Doble St. and Ronald McCarthy, 34, of 72 Norton Rd.; Sal acquired the former Kent's Carpetland property on Quincy Shore Drive for $128,000.

State Sen. Michael Morrissey and Rep. Michael Bellotti have announced the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) recently

The property was destroyed by fire and subsequently razed after it was determined the building was structurally unsound as a result of the fire. The city and the MDC, as well as hundreds of local neighbors and residents participated in a "Back to the Beaches Celebration" this month when the land taking was announced.

The 13,000-square-foot parcel is located at the corner of Quincy Shore Drive and Davis St.

"This vacant lot offered the MDC a rare opportunity to expand its Wollaston Beach Reservation properties that will enable them to better serve the recreational needs of the public and preserve open space along the beach," said Morrissey.

"The new Deer Island Treatment Facility has improved the water quality tremendously and will make a vast difference in our ability to use this great resource," said Bellotti.

Morrissey and Bellotti pledged to work with local groups and area residents on the future use of the new MDC land. Morrissey praised the efforts of Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan for his support of the land taking.

Morrissey said, "It has been financially unfeasible in the past for the MDC to take or purchase property along the beach and this was the perfect opportunity to do so. The land holds great promise for recreational uses in the future."

The land is located between two existing MDC parks which are at West Elm Ave. and Bromfield St. on Quincy Shore Drive.

Health Officials Clear 3 Beaches For Swimming

Quincy health officials are saying that three city beaches that had warning signs posted last Thursday for high coliform counts are now considered safe after a resampling was taken.

Officials said all Quincy beaches, include Edgewater Drive, Parkhurst and Orchard that had fecal coliform counts of 200 after initial samplings at the beginning of last week were cleared for swimming and bathing after re-sampling results last Friday found the counts to be very low.

Special Meeting Set Parking, Open Council Seat Vote On July 27

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City Council President Michael Cheney has called for a special council meeting Thursday, July 27 at 6 p.m. to address proposed parking rates for Quincy Center and the fate of the council seat being vacated by Joseph LaRaia.

The parking rates were proposed by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) after downtown merchants objected to rates the city came up with after its recent takeover of the municipal parking system that includes the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot. The QCBPA proposed lower rates it felt would be more agreeable to shoppers and to those employed at Quincy Center businesses.

Cheney said he has no problem with the reduced rates.

"The businesses in the downtown area are happy with the new rates, the workers are happy, and the residents are happy," he said. "And if everybody's happy, then I'm happy."

Cheney said he plans to draft a completely new ordinance for the parking situation--to which an emergency preamble will be attached--so that the new rates may go into effect Aug. 1.

In the meantime, he said, the rates that were in effect before the city took over the parking system this month will be applied.

Cheney plans to nominate Charles McIntyre, who finished fourth in the race for the city's three at-large council seats in 1993, to serve out LaRaia's term until this year's municipal election Nov. 7. Mayor James Sheets announced last week he has appointed LaRaia to serve on the Quincy Board of Assessors beginning Aug. 1.

Cheney said he wants to fill the seat for the interim period so that Quincy residents can have as much representation as possible. While Councillor Timothy Cahill has questioned the need of filling the seat for only a couple of months, Cheney said he has polled other councillors who favor doing so.

Cahill said if the council votes on the matter, he will support McIntyre.

McIntyre, an assistant Norfolk County district attorney, told The Sun last week he would accept the interim seat provided that there is no conflict of interest. At press time, he said the state Board of Bar Overseers has confirmed that no conflict exists.

He added that he is excited about the thought of serving out LaRaia's term.

"I am very much looking forward to it," he said. "I consider it an honor and a privilege, and I hope to learn from it."

McIntyre said he may run for a council seat again the future but would not seek re-election this year.

"I made the decision back in February not to run this year, and I like to be a man of my word," he said.

McIntyre said it is his understanding that the

College president indicates that he or she "reports to the superintendent of schools."

The judge has granted the motion of summary judgement of Creedon and the Quincy School Committee. As a result, while it has been determined that Creedon had the right to fire Johnson, the arbitration process to determine whether the termination was proper--in other words, if the allegations about Johnson's misconduct are accurate--will continue.

Neither Johnson nor Creedon could be reached for comment at press time. However, Daniel Raymond, chairman of the Quincy College Board of Governors, said he is happy with the judge's decision.

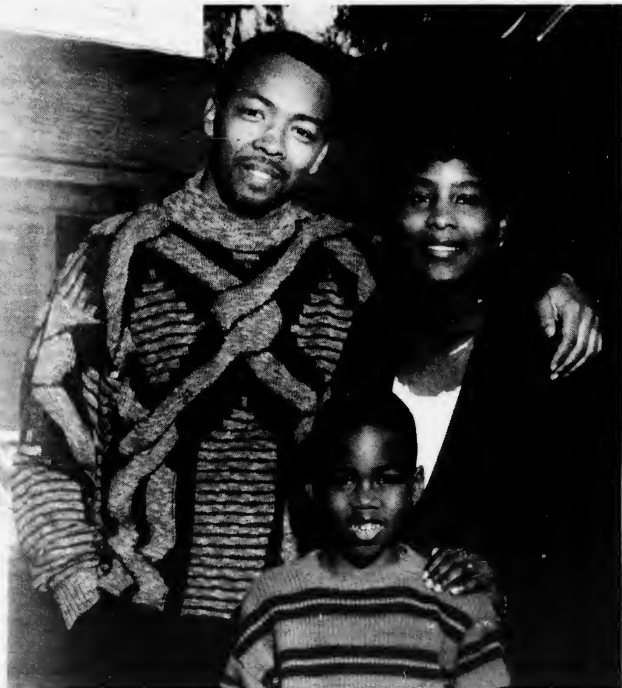

"It's good news," said Raymond.

Johnson, the college's first black president, also has a racial complaint pending before the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination.

City To Receive $100,000 From Hazard Mitigation

Mayor James Sheets and the Department of Planning and Community Development have announced that the city will receive an additional $100,000 from the Section 404 Hazard Mitigation Program (HMGP).

The HMGP funds will supplement Quincy's Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and homeowners' funds for Phase II of the city's program to retrofit, floodproof or elevate residential properties that suffer from repetitive coastal and riverine/wetland flooding. The HMGP is jointly administered by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management (DEM), the Massachusetts Emergency Management Agency (MEMA), and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

The city expects to retrofit another 15 to 20 homes through the additional grant. According to the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development, a total of 29 applications have been received to date.

Eight projects have been completed and another 14 are in different stages of project implementation. Seven applications were either withdrawn or denied.

In addition, FEMA, DEM and MEMA have approved the city's request to increase the grant limit from $5,000 to $10,000 or 50 percent of the project cost, whichever is lower.

City officials felt the increase was necessary to help those with high project costs in excess of $10,000.

The new grant limit will apply retroactively and include those that have started construction and those that were already completed under Phase I of the project.

For more information about the program, call 376-1050 or 376-1055.

SHEDDING LIGHT ON SKIN CANCER

Sorry, sun worshippers, there is no way around it. The sun is bad for your skin, and that golden tan is really a sign of skin damage. Sun exposure has been linked to herpes flare-ups, immune system damage and faster skin aging. Perhaps the most serious consequence of sun exposure, though, is cancer. Repeated exposure over many years increases the risk of developing both basal cell squamous cell carcinomas. These cancers, often characterized by the appearance of patches or lumps on the skin, can cause tissue damage if untreated, although they are typically not fatal. However, the risk of malignant melanoma, the deadliest form of skin cancer, increases dramatically with even one single serious sunburn.

P.S. Most products that "tan" the skin without the sun don't protect against sunburn. They are not substitutes for sunscreen.

Though it may seem like a small precaution, applying sunblock routinely in summer—especially if you spend much time outdoors—is very wise move. At COMPREHENSIVEMEDICALCARE, we take a full family history when considering your symptoms and offer health recommendations as well as treatment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. Convenient parking. We're here to serve you!

D'Aprix Has Opportunity

You might say that Chuck D'Aprix, former executive director of Quincy 2000, has a chance to star in Hollywood. Hollywood, Fla., that is.

D'Aprix, who left Quincy in March to head a similar public-private development partnership in Hollywood, has the opportunity to score big there.

"Things are going well," he says in a letter to this writer. "I am actively involved in some major projects, including attempting to get the vacant Diplomat Hotel designated Indian land in order to allow casino gambling."

The Diplomat, closed seven or so years, became famous as a hangout for Rat Pack members Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis, Jr., etc.

D'Aprix adds: "I have also drafted a proposal to the NHL Panthers to attract them to Hollywood. And we are about to launch a major national marketing effort to attract industrial users to Hollywood."

D'Aprix, doesn't mention it, but he no doubt hopes he has more success with these projects than he had in trying to land Decelle for downtown Quincy. He put a lot of work into that one but it didn't jell.

Incidentally, D'Aprix who concentrated on Quincy's downtown while here, doesn't have to be too concerned about Hollywood's downtown. They already had someone doing that job before he arrived.

And the working hours are better in Hollywood than in Quincy.

"One very positive aspect of my new job is that the City Commission and other city boards meet during the day. I have my nights to myself."

D'Aprix says he and Mayor James Sheets had been together for breakfast recently when the latter was in Miami for the U.S. Conference of Mayors.

"He is very highly regarded by his fellow mayors—I hear nothing but positive comment," D'Aprix says.

D'Aprix sounds quite happy in his new job but seems to miss Quincy a little anyway.

"I hope to have plenty of visitors (from Quincy) this winter," he says. "All Quincy people are invited."

FORMER STATE SENATOR Paul Harold's decision to run for a City Council at-large seat this year left some people thinking it might be, politically speaking, a step down.

Harold may have had that in mind when he spoke at the recent ceremonies at United First Parish Church commemorating the 228th birthday of President John Quincy Adams.

Adams was elected to Congress after serving as this nation's sixth President.

Harold, at the ceremonies which included placing a wreath from President Bill Clinton, noted:

"In 1830 John Quincy Adams was asked by a constituent if serving as Congressman was a step down for a former President. He (Adams) said: 'No person could be downgraded by serving the people as a representative. Nor in my opinion would an ex-President of the United States be degraded by serving as a selectman of his town, if elected thereto by the people.'"

Crosswalk, a contemporary Christian group, will present an outdoor concert Sunday, Aug. 6 at 6:30 p.m. in front of Fort Square.

Save Gas and Money Shop Locally

Incidentally, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson had the emcee honors at Harold's recent campaign kick-off fundraiser at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, causing a few raised eyebrows.

Was Kolson, a few wondered, sort of endorsing Harold in a race in which Councillor Michael Cheney, who lives in Ward 1, and fellow councillors Tim Cahill and Larry Chretien were candidates?

Harold says Kolson wasn't showing political preference but long-time friendship.

"We have been friends since we were in the seventh grade together at Broad Meadows School," says Harold. "Peter has introduced me in my campaigns for the state senate and for Congress. Besides being a good friend, he has a nice booming voice. The kind people pay attention to."

Harold also notes that there is not one—but three seats—involved in the at-large race. He, Cheney, Cahill and Chretien are each running for one of three seats.

GREG RENNIE, candidate for Ward 4 city councillor, will hold a fundraiser tomorrow (Friday) at the Furnace Brook Golf Course, Summit Ave., Wollaston, from 6 to 10 p.m. Donations will be accepted at the door.

AND CHRISTINE CEDRONE kicks off her campaign for one of the four-year School Committee seats at a fundraiser Thursday, July 27, 7 to 9:30 p.m., at Pat Flanagan's, Parkway, Quincy Center.

Tickets are $15 and are available by calling 479-2217 and can be obtained at the door.

EILEEN COHEN, former executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, is back from Laguna Niguel, Calif., where she met her new and first grandson. He's Andrew Melvin, born to Eileen's daughter, Dona and son-in-law Charles Simonson June 25. Weighed in at 4 lbs., 9 ounces.

Eileen, who also has a granddaughter born in May, is now community service director at Dr. Barry Freedman's Family Practice of Chiropractic.

LAST WEEK'S HOT spell, in a way, was even hotter than you thought. At least Steve Farquhar, former regional manager of Continental Cablevision, found it that way.

Farquhar, visiting from Phoenix, Ariz., where he is now with ICS Communications, says the temperature out there this time of year averages 105-106 degrees. But on last Friday when the thermometer hit 100 degrees here in Quincy, he found it harder to deal with because of the humidity. The dew point here Friday was 75. In Phoenix it averages 10-12 percent.

Farquhar's firm furnishes cable TV, telephones, and security to apartment complexes. He and Dave Keefe, who brought cable TV to Quincy, are back together with ICS but the latter is based in California.

Weld 'Power-Grab' Denies Convention Fair Representation

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It has recently been reported that Governor Weld has proposed changing the Republican presidential primary rules in Massachusetts to give the winner all 38 convention delegates.

Apparently, Weld hopes this will help California Governor Wilson whom he supports. Under current rules, delegates are awarded to presidential candidates proportionally according to the vote percentage they receive. The Party's Executive Committee is said to favor the change, and the State Committee will vote on it this summer.

This proposed change will effectively rob Republican voters of their chance to be represented at the convention if their candidate finishes even one point behind the primary winner. I'm sure that only the one or two candidates who expect to finish first would favor this. The others are being excluded from the democratic process. Activists who have worked for a candidate who finishes second or third will have worked for nothing.

Just because Weld is bored with Massachusetts and has hitched his wagon to Wilson hoping for a ride to Washington is no reason for us to cater to his ego and ambition. If you are a Republican angry about this Weld power-grab, find out who your State Committeeman and State Committeewoman are and tell them to vote no. Let's preserve fair representation at the convention.

Asks Corner Lot Owners To Think 'Safety'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Isn't it great, summer is finally here! Well, maybe not!

The trees and bushes are all leaved out but there is a catch. Remember that street corner you had to negotiate to drive across the street? It has suddenly disappeared in a maze of greenery. You cannot see through it so you have to edge out into traffic to see if the coast is clear. Oh boy!

Please, you people who own corner lots think "Safety". On Billings St. in North Quincy there are three corners, two on E. Squantum and one on the boulevard which are worth your life to maneuver in a car. That is just one block! Quincy is full of such corners. Let's stop all this "safety rhetoric" and do something. I am told there is a 25 foot from the corner law, prohibiting view obstructions. Don't you agree it's time to stop this game of "chicken" on our city streets and get out the hedge clippers?

Summertime Critical For Blood Donations

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

With summer upon us, the American Red Cross wishes to remind members of the community that traditionally this is a time of concern about the adequacy of our blood supply. Summer is vacation time for many, and with high school and college donors on break the number of people supporting the blood supply diminishes.

Across the nation, only six percent of those eligible to participate in the volunteer blood donor program do so. At the same time, most of us will require a blood transfusion at some during our lives. Clearly, more people are needed to become blood donors, during the summer and all year long. And those who already participate in the blood donor program are asked to try to give as often as they are eligible (generally six times per year.)

Blood is a life-saving, national resource that must be replenished each and every day. The leading users of blood include patients diagnosed with conditions such as cancer, heart disease, gastrointestinal disease, anemia, fractures, trauma, liver, kidney and lung disease and bone and joint disease.

Please take the time to schedule an appointment to donate blood by calling The Red Cross at 1-800-

GIVE-LIFE. You can give blood as often as every eight weeks, and play a critical party in maintaining a precious, life-saving resource for our community.

Swimming Ban Sought At Dam

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy and Braintree officials were scheduled to meet this week to consider closing the Braintree Dam to swimming, following the second drowning in less than five weeks.

July 20 - 26

34 Years Ago

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa initially met with William Brooks of Braintree, the past president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, to discuss the issue and to plan for a two-town conference on future users at the city-owned property.

Quincy used the water at the dam as its main source of water supply until 1898 when it hooked up with the MDC.

People familiar with conditions at the dam site said that even with lifeguards it's dangerous because of springs, mudholes and quick drop-offs.

REPLACEMENT FOR WARREN AVE. BRIDGE

Mayor Della Chiesa said he would seek funding for the replacement of the Warren Ave. pedestrian bridge over the railroad tracks in Wollaston.

The bridge was closed several weeks ago after Building Inspector Alrick Weidman and DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert condemned the structure. The mayor was advised that it would be cheaper to replace the current iron bridge than repair it. The cost of a pre-cast concrete replacement was estimated at $15,000.

5 PRINCIPALS RE-ASSIGNED

Dr. Paul Gossard, superintendent of schools, re-assigned five principals, effective with the new school year in September. The re-assignments were needed because of the closing of the Coddington School and the upgrading of the position at Furnace Brook to full-time.

Dr. Douglas MacDonald, formerly at Beechwood Knoll and Furnace Brook, would be only at Furnace Brook. Elliot Wilson would leave the Hunting and Great Hill schools for the Quincy School. Isabelle Marentz would stay at the Gridley Bryant School and pick up Beechwood Knoll in place of the John Hancock. Fred Nolan would stay at the Lincoln School and pick up John Hancock in place of Coddington and Joan Parkes would switch assignments with Fred Wilson and give up the Quincy School for Great Hill and Hunting.

QUINCY-ISMS

Mayor Della Chiesa extended birthday greetings on behalf of the citizens of Quincy to the First Lady; it was Jacqueline Kennedy's 32nd birthday... Charles Peterson, assistant treasurer of Norfolk County Trust, was named general chairman of the United Fund campaign. He said the goal for the 1962 drive would be the highest in its history at $400,159. . . "Summer Place" with Troy Donahue and Sandra Dee was at the Wollaston. . . John Bersani, president of Quincy Cement Block Co., was the newest member of the Rotary. . . The city purchasing office was on Depot St. . . Elaine Riley of Wollaston and Mary Kenney of Adams Shore were featured water skiers in the Quincy Recreation's water show at Wollaston Beach. . . Patrolman Joseph Lind rescued a man off the Quincy Yacht Club. . . William Litchfield of Dee Rd. enlisted in the Navy. . . Officers of the Quincy Community Players were Bernard Currie, president; Ashley Westcott, vice president; and Keith Merrill, treasurer. . . The mayor met with auditor Alex Smith to find funds to keep Dr. Leo Amrhein at the Well Baby Clinic. Dr. Amrhein sent his resignation to Health Commissioner Richard Ash because he could not afford to stay at the clinic because he had to pay a doctor $15 to fill in for him at his practice in Wollaston while he was at the clinic, but the city paid him only $10. . . Rep. Frank Finlay was general chairman for Blessed Sacrament's annual Tombola. . . Rep. Joseph Brett sent the mayor a letter, recommending that the new hospital wing be named for Dr. Daniel Reardon, who died this week. . . Al Harvey and his Syncopaters entertained at the QYC lobster dinner. Vice Commodore was Charles Shea; Rear Commodore was Austin Wickens. . . An anniversary Mass was celebrated at Sacred Heart for Peter Chrisom. . . A daughter was born at Quincy City Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. John King of Bird St. . . There was a grass fire behind the White Brothers building on French St. . . Donald Murray was president of the Merrymount Association. . .

Veal/Sausage Pasta Delight

Sometimes when I return home from work I don't know what to prepare for dinner. And if I ask my husband what he would like, he usually answers "anything will be fine." And so it was last week when there was a pound of veal stew defrosting in the refrigerator and three Italian sausages.

I usually make veal stew, but decided to cut the veal and sausages in small pieces and saute them together. After adding a few other ingredients, I had a very different entree. I only used one large frying pan, (the only other pan was the one I boiled the pasta in).

Veal/Sausage Pasta Delight

1 pound of veal stew meat three sausages.
2 tablespoons olive oil
2 cloves of garlic

1/2 pound casserole elbows (they're larger than regular elbows) or a favorite other small pasta

1 small green pepper
1 small red pepper
2 cups tomato sauce
salt and pepper to taste
grated romano or parmesan cheese (to sprinkle on top)

Heat the oil and the garlic and saute the cut up veal and sausages together. Cook until both appear at least half done.

Cut the peppers in small pieces and add to the meat. Cover and cook for a few minutes. Add the tomato sauce and cook on low heat until done. Set aside.

Boil the elbows, drain and then add to the same pan. Mix carefully and heat thoroughly. Serve hot with grated cheese sprinkled on top.

Organist To Perform At Bethany July 26

Organist Peter Krasinski will be the featured artist during the Mid-Week Concert Series at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center, on Wednesday, July 26 at 12:15 p.m. Krasinski, who is currently music director of the United Parish in Brookline and a music educator with the Brookline Public Schools, will perform a variety of works.

The concert series is

OUR Policy ON ENGAGEMENT Photographs And Wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, we will continue to...

Quincy AARP Elects New Officers, Presents Nash Scholarship Award

The fifth annual Barbara I. Nash Scholarship of the Quincy City of Presidents' AARP Chapter was awarded recently at its closing luncheon at the South Shore Country Club, Hingham.

Patricia Gales, Dean of Nursing, spoke to the guests of the exceptional qualifications of the winner and thanked the chapter for their interest in sponsoring a student in the nursing program at the college.

Interim Quincy College President Dr. Linda Wilson also expressed her appreciation for the chapter's involvement in the scholarship program, which has helped struggling students pay for their education.

Mayor James Sheets, who was accompanied by his wife, Joann, gave a brief message to the guests and thanked the chapter for their intergenerational interest in the community of Quincy through their scholarship program.

Also present was Elizabeth Daley, community coordinator for AARP Area 10.

Mary Matook, acting state coordinator for AARP VOTE, installed Normand Goyette as president, Rachel Cyr as 1st vice president, Betty Anastasi as second vice president, Anna Shea as secretary and Carl Johnson as treasurer. Board members installed were Frances David and Viola Rose.

Frances Adams will continue to serve as corresponding secretary and Eleanor Serafini as assistant treasurer.

Goyette thanked outgoing President Eleanor Reidy for the different offices she has held since the beginning of the chapter in 1986 and presented her with a Past President's Pin.

Entertainment was provided by "George and Martha" of Marshfield.

Youth Program Awarded $2,500 For Quincy

The Appalachian Mountain Club (AMC) Youth Opportunities Program was recently awarded a $2,500 grant for work in Quincy through the Department of Environmental Management's 1995 Greenways and Trails Demonstration Program.

The announcement was made by state Rep. Michael Bellotti.

The club's Urban Trails Neponset River Corridor Project is designed to build a lasting neighborhood and regional constituency for the urban waterway. The AMC has organized volunteer work days to create two short trails to access the greenway from local neighborhoods. The grant covers the cost of tools, materials and an after-work barbecue for each of the work days.

"This project will serve as a model for others linking communities and resources across the Commonwealth," said Bellotti.

Quincy Hospital Offers CPR Course

Quincy Hospital is offering a two-part, eight hour course covering both adult and pediatric CPR.

The course will be held on Mondays, Aug. 21 and 28. Class sessions will be held on Mondays, Aug. 21 and 28. Class sessions will be from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m. at the Quincy Hospital.

The course will be led by trained instructors and offer Level B Certification through the American Heart Association. Participants will learn techniques to rescue a victim of cardiac arrest and to dislodge an airway obstruction. They will also learn about cardiac risk factors and ways to reduce the risk of heart disease. CPR will be both demonstrated and practiced.

The cost for the eight hour course is $40. Class size is limited and advanced registration and payment is required. To register, or for further information, call the hospital at 376-4018.

Voting Begins Today At Downtown Sidewalk Sale

45 Contestants In MDA Beautiful Baby Contest

Forty-five babies are contestants in a Beautiful Baby Contest to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Contest voting officially begins today (Thursday) at the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival on Hancock St. Color photographs of all the babies will be displayed during the sidewalk sale which runs through Saturday, kicking off the voting period.

All contestants have been assigned a number to coordinate the voting.

Parents, family, friends and the public can vote for the baby of their choice by donating $1.00 for each vote.

To vote for a particular baby, checks should be made payable to MDA and the contestant number of choice must be written on the check.

After the Sidewalk Festival, the public may vote for their favorite babies at Fine Light Photography, 1386 Hancock St. where the photos will be displayed.

All votes must be received by MDA and Fine Light by Thursday, July 27.

Votes can also be cast by sending a check, with the baby's number indicated, directly to MDA, 275 Turnpike Street, Suite 201, Canton, MA 02021, Attn: Elise Kerrigan.

The child receiving the most votes (donations) will win a 16-by-20 wall portrait ($115 value) from Fine Light Photography and a $50 Savings Bond and a free one-year subscription to The Quincy Sun.

Second place winner will be awarded a 10-by-13 custom portrait and a year subscription to the Sun. Third place will receive an 8-by-10 custom portrait plus a year subscription to the Sun.

The contest winners will be announced in the Aug. 3rd issue of The Quincy Sun.

Money raised from the event will help the MDA continue its research and patient service programs. For more information, contact the MDA office at 617-575-1881.

The contest is co-sponsored by Fine Light Photography, 1386 Hancock St., and The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St.

City Moves To Foreclose On Junkyard For Delinquent Taxes

The city will go ahead with foreclosure plans for Henry Gregoire who operates a business at 175 Intervale St. and owes the city $219,476.25 in back taxes.

City treasurer Dana Childs told the Quincy License Board Tuesday, that since last month's meeting, the tax situation has not been rectified and that he had not heard a word from anyone in the family.

Board chairman Joseph Shea told the board that Gregoire was on vacation and was unable to attend the meeting. Shea said he and board member Matthew Mulvey had visited the junkyard and said although the Gregoires had "come a long way" they still had a "long way to go".

Childs had said the owner Gregoire owns parcels of land. In one parcel, taxes have not been paid since 1977 and on the other parcel not since 1988.

According to Childs, the city's hands were tied because of a technicality in the law, which put the city in the position of cleaning up hazardous waste, if any action was taken. That law has since been amended.

Board Denies License For New Restaurant

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License board by a 4 to 1 vote, Tuesday, denied a request from Paul Lee for permission to open the Thai Palace restaurant at 136 Washington St.

Board member Matthew Mulvey voted against the denial.

Mulvey made motion, to grant the license for a common victualer and beer and wine license as long as food was always served with an alcoholic beverage. Also that proper signage would be installed to direct patrons for parking. The motion failed to get a second.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman then made a motion to grant the request for a restaurant without the beer and wine and to return to the board in six months. However, during a discussion, Atty. Henry Levin representing Lee, told the board that without the beer and wine license even for a short time, Lee did not think his business could survive. That motion failed to get a second.

Chairman Joseph Shea and other board members said the main issue was parking. Shea also noted that the Glad Tidings church as well as abutters had expressed concern over the parking situation.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said he was "not comfortable" with the parking situation and said that particular intersection is one of the most "travelled in the city with incidents of accidents".

The owner of Quincy Pizza an abutter, spoke in opposition of the beer and wine license and the problem of parking also.

Owner of the property Michael DeStasio spoke in support of Lee stating that good tenants were "hard to come by" and that he considered Mr. Lee would be a good tenant.

At the request of Shea, Gorman withdrew his motion. Mulvey made his motion again, but again failed to get a second. Shea finally asked that a motion of denial be made.

Finally, board members who anguished over the fact that they because they couldn't agree on a motion, advised a disappointed Lee to try to find a more suitable location for his restaurant.

Accent On Good Buys, Good Entertainment

Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival Opens Today

The 25th annual Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival, featuring good buys and family entertainment, opens today (Thursday) for a three-day run through Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA), will be held on Hancock St. which will be closed off to vehicular traffic between Granite and School Sts.

Throughout the festival, the city will offer free parking at its two Quincy Center parking areas: the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot.

As in the past, shoppers will be able to stroll down Hancock St. looking over merchandise on the sidewalk in front of participating stores.

Joanne Falco, chairman of the QCBPA Promotions Committee, said a number of special events are planned for the festival's silver anniversary.

"I'm excited," said Falco. "It's going to be totally different than the last 24 years, with totally different entertainment. It's really changed. This year's festival will be the biggest and best ever."

Entertainment and other activities are scheduled for 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and Friday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturday.

Mayor James Sheets has been invited to attend the opening ceremonies which will begin today at 10 a.m.

More than 70 canopied booths will dot Hancock St., giving it a festival appearance for the three days. In all, more than 40 QCBPA member stores and businesses will participate along with other organizations.

A "Center Stage" for entertainers and musical units will be set up in the middle of Hancock St. across from Cottage Ave.

New features this year will include a Big Band Night featuring the 16-piece Frank Shooshan Band on Thursday, a Country-Western Program starring the Bluehill Kickers on Friday, a performance by the Power Rangers on Saturday, and more.

Old favorites such as the Quincy Alumni Band, Alexander, King of Jesters and others will also return to the festival.

WJDA Radio (1300 AM) and Continental Cablevision will also broadcast live from the festival today, Friday and Saturday.

Other three-day events will include a Norfolk County Drug Sniffing Dog Demonstration, a Quincy Fire Department Foam Demonstration, Crime Prevention Booth, children's rides, pony rides, caricature artist, vendor booths, artists and crafters.

Scheduled events:

Hancock St. Closed During Sidewalk Festival

Hancock St., from Granite to School Sts., will be closed to vehicular traffic for a three-day period during the Quincy Center Sidewalk Festival.

That section of Hancock St. is scheduled to be closed from midnight yesterday (Wednesday) through Saturday at 7 p.m.

The area will be a "no parking tow zone" during that time. However, the city will offer free parking at its two downtown parking areas--the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot--throughout the three days.

The festival opens today (Thursday) and will continue Friday and Saturday.

Activities each day will begin at 10 a.m. They will end around 9 p.m. today and Friday and at 5 p.m. on Saturday.

However, during the three-day period, time will be allowed for festival participants to bring in and set up various attractions, a stage and over 70 booths and equipment, as well as time for dismantling them when the festival is over.

ALEXANDER, KING OF JESTERS will perform at the 25th annual Quincy Center Summer Sidewalk Festival Thursday, July 20 at 1 p.m. He has performed at the festival in previous years as well throughout the United States and the world.

'King Of Jesters' To Perform At Downtown Sidewalk Festival

Alexander, King of Jesters, will perform his comedy at the 25th annual Quincy Center Summer Sidewalk Festival Thursday, July 20 at 1 p.m.

The performance will include Renaissance Water-Spitting, Fertility Dances, the Nose Flute Serenade, Pogo Stick "Boinging," Clown Love, Jingle Bell Juggling, Twisted Sticks of the Forest, Three Flutes Played Simultaneously and other routines inspired by the rich tradition of the fool.

During the act, Alexander speaks a gibberish language called "gammelot" that is almost universally understood. It dates back many centuries to a time when each village had its own dialect, and traveling jesters and troubadours needed to find a way to bridge the language gap. The "gammelot" serves Alexander well today, since he often performs abroad.

Called "one of the best one-man acts we've ever seen" by the "Good Day" show, he has performed previously at the Sidewalk Festival and other theater, festivals and community events throughout the East Coast. He also has been featured at international festivals in Australia, Belgium, France, Japan, New Zealand and Quebec.

Bond Issue Seen Possible For Library

this week. "We want to identify the things that are of the upmost priority," she said, noting access for the handicapped, providing meeting room space, parking spaces and room for technology services.

"The architect will then tell us what we can accomplish in a way that is creative and innovative but different from the way we originally proposed. We're going to look at all of our options. Things didn't go as we had hoped last week but the process will still move forward," McLaughlin said.

The director said the smaller expansion plan may call for providing retail space in the library which would generate money for the facility. She also noted Quincy College is interested in leasing room at the library as classroom space.

In its decision not to provide state funding this year, state library commissioners called the expansion a "fundable project, but with some identified weaknesses."

In their written explanation, commissioners stated the Crane Library renovation/addition "is a major undertaking to unify, renovate and expand a library with historic and architectural significance for Quincy and Massachusetts."

Giarratani, 47, of 184 Atlantic St. and Michael Jovanovic, 74, of 62 Town Hill St.

Stice is running for reelection to another four-year term while the other two four-year seats are being vacated by School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi and committee member Stephen Durkin who are running for council seats in Wards 2 and 5 respectively.

Former Mayor Francis McCauley is running unopposed for the lone two-year School Committee seat currently held by Barry.

Candidates who will face another in the Ward 4 preliminary runoff include incumbent Thomas Fabrizio, Michael D'Amico, 20, of 602 Willard St., who challenged him in 1993; Michael Larkin, 51, of 89 Alrick Rd. and Gregg Rennie, 28, of 100 Gridley St.

Candidates running for the Ward 5 seat being vacated by Charles Phelan include Durkin, Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, 64, of

"Over the years," they continued, "minimal building maintenance and water leakage have severely damaged the three sections of the library. The building design is a challenge because of the sprawling layout of the three building phases and the overall point-to-point distances."

"For a complex building, the proposal defines functions, and assigns spaces well, however, the building program, as presented in this proposal, does not adequately reflect the energy and vision of this library. The architect recognizes clarity of organizations and the need for zoning public spaces. The architectural plan attempts to help patrons find their way through the maze of this large facility, but they will still have difficulties because of how the buildings interconnect, the multiple entrances, and the sprawling nature of the complex."

Library commissioners also cited several other factors stemming from the "complexity and sheer size" of the proposed 50,000-square-foot addition. They include staffing problems, unnecessarily long distances for patrons to travel to various service areas, and "unresolved security problems at the parking lot entrance and on the lower level."

"All in all," library commissioners concluded, "this ambitious project is deserving of more time and study by everyone involved in order to achieve a more compact, operationally cost-effective, integrated and secure layout."

Funding remains the library's biggest obstacle for expansion. Not only must revenue be secured for a larger library, money is also needed for approximately $3.5 million in repair and renovation work to the existing buildings as well as funding for site work and acquisition of the adjoining parcel of land.

McLaughlin said a scaled-down expansion project would likely cost 9 to 10 million dollars. The director said once the plan is finalized, an application for state money will be submitted next year.

The state plans to distribute another $20 million in library grants next year. That money would be available in 1997, McLaughlin said.

A state grant, McLaughlin said, would cover at most 30 percent of a project costing 9 to 10 million dollars, or approximately $3 million.

Trustees still plan to embark on an ambitious fundraising campaign of $1 million for the expansion. McLaughlin called the $1 million figure "realistic" and doubts the group could raise significantly more.

"Two million dollars would be very difficult for two simple reasons. One, there are other major capital campaigns underway, like the First Parish Church and the South Shore YMCA. Second, Quincy is mostly a middle-class community," McLaughlin said, adding people's pockets are only so deep.

If McLaughlin's scenario plays out, the city would have to come up with the remaining, and largest, piece of the financial puzzle: approximately 6 or 7 million dollars.

Although the library is designated a National Historical Landmark, there is no federal money available for the project, McLaughlin said.

Sheets said he needs more information on a revised expansion plan before committing city funds for the project. He said he also wants to examine why the city was passed up last week.

Robert Hall Jr., chairman of the state library commissioners, said the grants were awarded based on merit. He said the commission considers a number of factors, including community support.

For instance, Milton received a $2.8 million grant to help fund the construction a new library. Town meeting gave the project the green light but voters there must still approve a Proposition 2 1/2 override to fund the rest of the $9.2 million project.

McLaughlin said

Milton, as well as other recipients of the state grants, deserved the assistance. "I've been in a lot of those libraries and they certainly have a need for money," she said.

Milton also had another factor in their favor: the town had been planning its grant application since 1993. Quincy started in January, Hall said.

McLaughlin said library patrons have signed "hundreds" of postcards showing support for the project. "I think the people of this community support this project," she added.

Trustees planned to meet late Tuesday afternoon and discuss the expansion project.

FOR BETTER HEALTH NATURALLY

At the rate that change in health care and management is taking place now, we see more and more natural health concepts becoming dominant. An example of one of the declines in popularity is sliced white bread. That soft and pasty concoction, lacking in needed fiber, is being eaten less. People are turning more each year to whole grain bread.

There are solid reasons why eating white bread is no good for you. When wheat is made into white flour, the richest and most healthful parts of the grain are removed. The vitamin-rich germ is taken out and most of the fiber is tossed away. The B vitamins and important minerals are reduced drastically. So-called enrichment of white flour only puts back some of the B vitamins. Bleach is added to the wheat to make it white. Do you want bleach as part of your diet??? It is amazing the lack of knowledge people have as to the chemicals, preservatives and additives that are in the food they eat. I have been lecturing for many years on nutrition. Legion

Will Host Playoff Game Friday

Morrisette Wins Two, Tops Zone 6 Standings

Morrisette's two wins last week, coupled with a pair of Weymouth losses, lifted the Quincy team to a first-place finish in the Zone 6 East standings for the fifth time in six years.

They will open the Zone playoffs Friday night at Adams Field at 8 o'clock. As of press time, Foxboro was the likely opponent as the fifth place team in Zone 6 West. The second game will be played Saturday at Foxboro, and, if necessary, a third game will be played Sunday at Adams Field.

Morrisette (15-5) beat second-place Weymouth, 4-2, last week. It was their third win over the season over Weymouth, a big factor in their respective places in the standings.

An outstanding pitching performance by Scott Kelly and clutch hitting by Tim Zaniboni gave Morrisette the win.

Kelly pitched his third complete game of the year to up his record to 3-0. He gave up one earned run on six hits and fanned five.

Zaniboni, who has the knack for playing his best in big games, accounted for every Morrisette run. He drove in three on two singles and a double and scored the fourth run on a delayed steal of home.

With the score tied, 2-2, in the seventh, Jim Sapienza stroked a two-out single. Zaniboni scored Sapienza with a deep double to center. He then took third on a wild pitch. Tom Malvesti walked, and he got caught in a rundown between first and second which allowed Zaniboni to cross the plate with the insurance run.

Paul Marnikovic had a double as Morrisette was held to five hits.

Malvesti improved to 5-2 with a 4-2 win over Milton. He had suffered a loss to Milton the previous week.

Malvesti's fastball had more zip on it than at any other time this year, as he struck out 13 men, allowed five hits and walked one. Both runs were unearned. For the season, he has 56 K's in 38 1/3 innings of work.

The win gave Morrisette a 2 to 1 advantage this season over Milton, for years their nemesis.

Malvesti drove in Sapienza with a single to give the Quincy club a 1-0 lead in the third.

Milton took a 2-1 lead thanks to two infield errors, but Morrisette tied it in the fifth when Zaniboni doubled home Sap.

Malvesti then took charge, mowing down seven batters over the final three innings.

Tom Cunio led off the sixth with a triple and scored the winning run when Andy Joyce singled. Ron McGann singled Joyce to second and Mike Sheffer drove him in with a base hit.

McGann cracked two hits. Sapienza and Chris Cotter added singles.

After clinching the Zone 6 title, Morrisette came out flat in a 3-2 loss to Randolph as they were held to one hit.

The hit did not come until there were two out in the last inning.

Malvesti reached on an error and pinch hitter Brian Beaton drove a sharp single into center field that went between the 8-man's legs. Both men scored on the error.

To that point, only two Morrisette runners had reached base, both on walks.

Jeff Russell, who has pitched well enough to win most ball games, suffered the loss. The first two batters of the first inning reached on errors and scored on a double. The game's only earned run came on a bases-loaded fielder's choice.

Russell allowed only four hits. His record is 4-3 with one save, but he has been victimized by poor support in each of his losses.

SHARON GILMAN, 8, of Quincy, was the first in her age division to cross the finish line of the 400-meter run at the recent Blue Cross Great Bear Run in Needham. The event was held to benefit the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County.

2 Quincy Residents Winners In Race To Benefit Lung Assn.

Sharon Gilman and Jessica Poggi, both of Quincy, were winners in the recent Blue Cross Great Bear Run held in Needham to benefit the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County.

Sharon placed first in the 400-meter race for her age division and Jessica finished first in the 5K run for her group.

Other participants from Quincy included Michelle Gilman, Ellen Poggi, Dan Poggi, John Lynch, Ryan Lynch, Walter Marshall and Kristen Daniels.

The Great Bear Run, sponsored by the Needham Track Club, the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County and Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Massachusetts, was a running and walking event for children and adults. The day consisted of several different races, including a 26.2 Yard Bearathon (ages 0-3), 200 Meter Run (ages 4-6), 400 Meter Run (ages 7-14), a 5K Run (state championship), a 5K Walk, and others.

Proceeds from the day's events will benefit the Lung Association's Healthy Kids Programs. Blue Cross plans to donate an additional $5 to the association for each child at the event who took a "Healthy Kids" pledge to live a healthy, smoke-free lifestyle.

Triple A

Hurley Insurance Claims Triple A Banner, Again

Hurley Insurance stands as the champion of the Quincy Triple A League for the third time in four years.

They captured the title with a 13-10 win over Quincy PAL on Monday.

PAL was trailing 13-6 going into the final inning and scored four runs to add some tense moments to the shootout, but they were unable to plate the necessary runs to tie the contest.

Steve Malone went the distance for Hurley Insurance to earn the W. Bill Clarke suffered the loss for PAL.

The top bats for the winners were swung by Joe Moran (3 for 4), Mike Maloney (2 for 3), Jesse Bigham (2 for 2) and Malone (2 for 2).

PAL's Pat Lahar, Matt Petit, Shawn Jafarzadeh, Mike Tupe and Clarke all stroked hits.

Exceptional defensive efforts by Hurley's Jesse and Eric Bigham, Mike Doherty, George Phipps and catcher Mike Maloney made the difference. Also playing well for the champions were Chris Yonie, David Boncek and Lori Pinkham.

Hurley coach Tom Slowe credited the support of the parents and assistant coaches Steve Doherty, Mike Maloney and Ray Malone as being instrumental in the team's title run.

Quincy Done In By Fog, Canton

By KERRY BYRNE

On a night more fit for football than baseball, the Quincy Legion baseball team dropped its final game of the season, 15-2, to Canton.

The chilly, dreary, fog-filled evening at Adams Field provided a somewhat fitting backdrop as Quincy's 3-19-1 campaign came to a close. The win by Canton (10-8-1) assured them a spot in post-season play.

Quincy had just come off a Sunday split of a double-header against West Roxbury, and had had success against Canton earlier with a win and a tie, but the visitors rose to the occasion in the must-win situation.

"It was just the end of a long season," said Quincy coach Wayne Chambers. "It's hard to go out and win that last game. Canton was sky high; they needed the win. I think a lot of us were relieved to see the season end, unfortunately."

Canton struck for four runs in the first, one in the second, and five in both the third and fifth innings.

Quincy scored its first run in the second. With one out, Chris DeLisle blooped a base hit into right field. Kevin Nichol followed with a walk. They advanced when Steve Barrett grounded out to first. A wild pitch with Ken Hannaford at the plate allowed DeLisle to come home.

Quincy struck again in the third. With two out, Steve Koch and Dan Donahue smacked back-to-back singles. Brendan Ridge drove in Koch when he reached on an error.

The hits by DeLisle,

Koch and Donahue would be all Quincy could muster against Canton ace Mike Calitri.

For 18-year-olds DeLisle, Koch, Donahue, Barrett, Ridge, Jesse Casler and Steve Roberts, this was their last game in a Legion uniform.

Chambers had good things to say about each of his retiring players: "Ridge, Koch and Donahue had solid years. Barrett came on strong at the end and Jesse was consistent. He was our speed and stole a lot of bases. DeLisle and Roberts have been good ball players for us."

For Chambers and his returning players, the focus is on next year and building a more competitive ball club. "Next

Track Club Impresses At Two Meets

The Quincy Track Club dominated the competition in earning its third straight title at the Needham All-Star Meet.

Quincy racked up 891 points to easily outpace second-place Needham Track Club's 778 points.

Quincy had a wealth of first place performers in the four boys and four girls categories in each event. They were:

1,500 meter racewalk: Tim Mullen, Matt Conso, Emily Poles and Kerri Sheehan.

400 meter dash: John Katsarikas.

200 meter dash: Kevin Holleran, Maura Blancy and Joe Watson.

100 meter dash: Joe

Watson and Kellie Johnston.

Hurdles: Matt Haskins and Eileen Price.

Shotput: Norman Yuen and Kyle Piazza.

Javelin: Matt Germain, Julia McGunigle and Maureen Holleran.

Discus: Andrew Picard, Kyle Piazza, Jackie Murphy and Chi Chung.

4x100 relay: Joe Watson, John Katsarikas, Chi Chung and Steve Ryan.

Standing broad jump: Bryan Thornton, Chi Chung and Sarah Price.

Long jump: Erin McFarland, Craig Flanigan and John Katsarikas.

High jump: Kevin Holleran, Katy Mercurio and Jay Grazioso.

Triple jump: Kevin Holleran, John Katsarikas and Kim Huerth.

Softball throw: Stephanie Fiandaca, Kyle Piazza and Pat Mullen.

Quincy's track & field athletes also put on a strong showing at a recent Hershey Track Meet local qualifier at Baintree High School.

All 40 athletes from Quincy who competed qualified for the next competition.

The star of the meet was Erin McFarland who took second in the 100 meters, third in the broad jump, and was lead runner on the winning 4x100 relay team in the 9-10 age group. Her teammates on the relay were Brenna O'Brien, Shannon Desmond and Stephanie Fiandaca.

The boys team of Sean O'Keefe, Andrew Picard, Danny Ngutter and Kevin

Holleran in the 9-10 age group also took first place.

Second-place finishes were turned in by the 11-12-year-old boys team of Chris Wilson, Bryan Thornton, Kyle Piazza and Sean Ginty, and the 11-12-year-old girls team of Kelly Rose O'Brien, Caitlin Golden, Katelyn McDonald and Colleen Lahar.

The 13-14-year-old girls team of Kellie Johnston, Juliann Jones, Kim Huerth and Marianne Weiler also took second.

Among the other Quincy athletes who placed in the top three in their events were:

Andrew Picard and Kellie Johnston (100 meters); Juliann Jones (200 meters); Brenna O'Brien (400 meters); and Sarah Price (standing long jump).

JENNIFER VERLICCO OF Quincy was named the Most Valuable Player for the Suffolk University women's cross country team. Verlicco is a junior majoring in biology. Coach Joe Walsh makes the presentation.

Red Storm Invades Shores Of The Cape

The St. John's Red Storm blew into the Cape for games against Barnstable and Mashpee.

Dave Centrella's efforts on the mound and at the plate lifted the Red Storm to a 10-9 win over Barnstable.

Centrella did not have his best day pitching, but managed the W with five K's in six innings of work. He was a monster at the plate, however, going 2 for 2 with a home run, two RBI and two runs scored.

Tom Callahan was also 2 for 2 with a pair of doubles and three RBI. Others having big days at the plate were Matt Gardner (2 for 3, double, two RBI, run scored), Chris Doherty (2 for 3, two runs scored) and Dan Jones (double, two RBI).

Barnstable was led by the bats of Alex Platt (4 for 4, two doubles, four RBI) and Tom Driscoll (2 for 3, two RBI).

The Red Storm's Ted George made a game-saving play in the bottom of the final inning with a running grab of a liner that was headed for the gap. The tying run was on third.

Against their other Cape opponent, Mashpee (not to be confused with mashed peas, which are a slimy green food product often fed to small babies), St. John's lost, 5-3.

A four-run burst in the second inning led to the loss.

Chris Kamborian made a stellar defensive play in the fifth with a diving snag of a lined shot that was headed for right field. The catch prevented two Mashpee runners from scoring.

Gardner, Callahan, Centrella and Doherty hit the ball well.

Jay Windum was the winning pitcher. Steve Fisna, Dave O'Brien and Mike Scheck played well for Mashpee.

Kelly Memorial Track Meet Aug. 5

The 20th annual Frank Kelly Memorial Track Meet is set to take place Saturday, Aug. 5 at 9:30 a.m. at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. and there is a $3 fee.

Ribbons are awarded to the top five finishers in each event and there is a two-event limit per athlete.

Events are divided along the following age parameters:

Squirts (born 1987-88) -

100 meters.

Bantams (born 1985-86) - 100, 400, long jump.

Midgets (born 1983-84) - 100, 200, 400, long jump.

Youth (born 1981-82) - 100, 200, 400, 800, long jump, high jump, shotput.

There will be a special 50-yard dash for children 6 and under who do not compete in the squirt division.

For more information call Geoff Hennessy at 773-5824.

year? We have a lot of work to do for next year," said Chambers. "Nichol's gonna have to step up. He and Kenny Hannaford, these are a couple of guys who have the potential to carry a team. John Chagnon hopefully will be a good pitcher for us. He had a no-hitter going well into his game against West Roxbury [Sunday]."

The game against Canton was called at the end of six innings because the thick fog, brightened by the lights at Adams Field, made the ball difficult to see.

"If a ball was hit to our center fielder he wouldn't even be able to see it. It was better not to get anybody hurt," said Chambers.

Under 12 Coach Thanks Team, Families

Coach Bill Deshler of the Boys Under 12 B travel soccer team wanted to express his sincere thanks to his players and their families for their support during the season.

His players were: David (Bigg) Benn, Mark Chella. Brandon Deshler,

Greg McGinness, Dan McInnis, Joe O'Connor, Matt Petit, Steve Ramponi, Brandon Sleeth, Dan Spillane and Eric Stanton.

Atty. George Burke won two playoff games after dropping their final regular season game to South Shore Buick.

Justin (Fireball) Hall spun a three-hitter and fanned 12 as he led Burke Club to a 6-2 win over the Elks in the playoff opener. The Elks jumped to a 2-0 lead when Dave Riley's double plated Billy O'Toole and Riley scored on an error.

Burke fought back as Pat Bregoli roped a triple and scored on an overthrow. Hall doubled and Peter Turowski and Ryan Hutchings walked. Danny McCaughin then rifled a double down the right field line to score two and give Burke a 3-2 lead.

In the fourth, Bregoli doubled with the bases loaded to score Chris Wilson and Sean Moriarty. Wilson singled in the final Burke run in the fifth.

Hutchings shut down Rotary with three hits as Burke Club took a 9-1 decision in their second playoff outing.

Hutchings was working on a no-hitter through 3 2/3 innings before Matt Millerick doubled.

Burke's Dan Duggan singled on the game's first pitch. Bregoli reached on an error and Hall and Hutchings cracked consecutive RBI singles. Turowski then doubled in two runs.

In the third Turowski tripled and scored on an overthrow. Billy O'Brien singled and was doubled home by Wilson.

Burke closed the scoring with three runs in the sixth. Craig Royce and Bregoli singled and Hall doubled home one run. Turowski picked up his third hit and fourth RBI as he doubled to the fence. Bregoli also had three hits while Hall had two.

Matt Moriarty turned in the defensive play of the game as he ranged far to his left to take a hit away and throw out a runner.

Burke and Jaehnig Chiropactic, both undefeated in the playoffs, were scheduled to play Wednesday with the winner advancing to the championship game.

A grand slam by Dave Centrella provided the winning margin for South Shore Buick in the 7-4 victory over Burke Club in the final regular season game.

Centrella also had three base hits and walked once to power the SSB attack. Brandon Deshler had a base hit and a walk. Ryan Casey got good wood on the ball all day.

Miah Hasson, Neil Gavin and John Fidalgo made big plays in the field to limit the Burke attack.

Centrella and Matt Holt combined for the win with three innings of work each.

Burke was sparked by Justin Hall who cracked three hits while fanning four batters in two innings on the mound. Matt Turowski and Greg Royce were sharp in the field.

Fidalgo pitched six innings, allowed three hits and fanned six in SSB's 4-0 win over the Elks.

Fidalgo also did the job at the plate, reaching base three times. Centrella had two hits, while Joe Cox hit the ball well. Jason Fidalgo and Kevin and Joe Holleran sparkled on the diamond.

Leading the Elks were Billy O'Toole, Dave Riley and Greg McInnis.

In action from previous weeks:

Billy Croke knocked in six runs to lead Beacon Sports to a convincing 13-2 win over Keohane's.

Tommy Hughes pitched four shutout innings and added to the offense with four hits.

Croke's sacrifice fly in the first opened the scoring and he closed the offense with a three-run double. Matt Joyce and Mike Feetham had three hits each while Mike Feenan stroked a three-run double.

Bruce Maggio, Robbie Kennerson, Keith Austin and Chris Selter chipped in with key hits for the winning club.

Wayne Moynihan sparked Keohane's with three hits. Matt Gregory added two.

Beacon also drove past South Shore Buick, 7-6.

Joyce and Kennerson led the attack as each had a two-run double. Feenan pounded three hits while Croke, Austin and Matt LaCorte had base hits.

Strong pitching was turned in by Beacon's Selter and Hughes.

Danny Cabral pitched a fine game for SSB and clubbed a pair of base hits. John Fidalgo and Matt Holt also had two singles in the losing cause.

Brian O'Hanley, Joe Holleran and Joe Cox played well in the field for Buick.

Jaehnig Chiropactic Club clinched first place for the second consecutive season with three wins last week to improve its record to 18-3.

In a wild affair, Jaehnig staged an improbable last-inning rally to defeat Kiwanis, 13-12.

Keyed by Greg Shields and John Mateo, Kiwanis scored eight runs in the last two innings to take 12-11 lead.

Things looked bleak for Jaehnig Club in the bottom of the last inning as they trailed by a run with two out and nobody on base.

Mark Maher changed things with a single and Chris Doherty followed with a walk. Tommy Buckley knocked both men in with a booming triple that went over the head of the left fielder.

Dan Dorsey smashed four hits and scored four runs to spark the winning attack. Kevin Weeks (two doubles), Freddie Butts (triple, single), Pat Jaehnig (double, single) and Maher collected two hits apiece.

Jeff Butts smacked a key RBI-single.

Jaehnig posted the W with a solid relief effort.

Keith Doherty and Erik Maginnis had three hits each for Kiwanis while Matt Donovan, James Mateo and Walter Berry hit safely twice.

Nine first inning runs gave Jaehnig Club a big lead, but they had to hold on to beat the Lions, 12-8.

Dan (The Fan Man) O'Toole got the win as he struck out 11 in five innings. The Fan Man posted 99 K's in 49 innings of work this year.

He aided his own cause with a three-run roundtripper and a double. Dorsey and Fred Butts had two hits apiece, while Chris Ham, Colin Chesley, Jeff Butts and Buckley smacked one hit each.

Dave Germain blasted a three-run homer for the Lions. Jeff Haslett stroked a double and Chris Walsh pitched well in relief.

Chris Doherty smashed three hits and made an outstanding defensive stand as Jaehnig cruised past Quincy Police, 15-3.

Pat Jaehnig cracked two doubles and a single while Brandon Sleeth clubbed one single and one double. Also nailing hits were Chesley, Dorsey, O'Toole, Patrick O'Brien and Fred Butts.

Fred Butts was the winning pitcher and Derek Keezer posted his first-ever career save, leaving him just about 190 behind Rick Aguilera.

Atty. George Burke, which sports the second best record in the league at 15-6, won two of three games last week.

Craig Royce and Matt Moriarty were Burke's big guns in a 26-0 drubbing of Quincy Police.

Royce had four hits and six RBI, while Moriarty notched three hits and five RBI. Brian Rooney reached base three times and scored three runs. Dan Duggan added three RBI.

Ryan Hutchings picked up the win and allowed three hits. Duggan posted the save.

Aaron Echelle stroked two hits for Police. Burgin Platner took an early 4-1 lead over Burke before bowing, 11-4.

Peter Turowski started for Burke and pitched well, despite suffering from poor support. Justin Hall relieved Turowski for the last three innings and allowed one hit while fanning seven. He was credited with the win.

Chris Wilson had a big hit for Burke in the third inning, knocking in two runs. Burke scored three runs in the fourth as Duggan, Pat Bregoli, Hall and Turowski singled.

In the fifth Turowski crushed a two-run homer off The Beast at McCoy Field. Wilson had led with a triple and was brought in by Joe Sudak's single.

Hall finished with four hits. Turowski had three and Bregoli and Wilson posted two each.

Kiwanis kept its playoff hopes alive with a 10-3 win over Burke.

Greg Shields went the distance for the winners. Big hitters were Joe Duffy, who smashed a grand slam in the third, and James Mateo, who homered and had two RBI. Keith Doherty added two hits, including a triple.

Dan McCaughin led Burke with a single and a triple. Hutchings, who is batting .580, homered and singled.

Matt Millerick did the job on the mound and Frank Currier came up with the decisive hit as Rotary dethroned the Lions, 3-1, in a must-win game.

Millerick fanned 11 while Currier smashed a two-out, two-run double in the fourth inning.

The winning runs were scored by Matt and Danielle Millerick and Steve Pizzi. Jordan Virtue went 2 for 3, Mike Ryan singled and Tom Maloney knocked in the insurance run.

Dave Rochon pitched well for the Lions. Jeff Haslett and Chris Walsh stroked two hits apiece while Dom Papile singled.

A seven-run burst in the fourth lifted Rotary to a 10-6 win over Colonial Federal.

David (Bigg) Benn chimed in with a big stick for the winning club. He had a 3 for 4 effort that included a bases-loaded double and two runs scored. Currier smashed two singles, scored one run and was a force behind the plate. Matt Millerick doubled and scored.

Jackie Liuzzo singled and played a great game at the hot corner.

Virtue, Mike Ryan, Kieran Ryan and Pat Duff also scored for Rotary.

For Colonial Federal, Chris Lockhead singled, doubled and scored two runs. Kyle Piazza, Tom Doucette and Mark Robertson each singled and scored.

Standing firm for the Colonial defense were second baseman Rene Lumaghini and catcher Robertson.

Matt Holt smashed a clutch double in the seventh inning to drive in Ryan Casey as South Shore Buick nipped Kiwanis, 3-2.

SSB's John Fidalgo (three innings, five K's) and Holt (four innings, nine K's) combined to stifle the Kiwanis offense.

Big fielding plays were made by Joe Holleran, Miah Hasson and Eric Stanton.

Dave Centrella reached base four times for the winning club.

Kiwanis' Jim Mateo smashed a home run and Greg Shields had two base hits. Matt Donovan, Dan Kennedy and Dan Sheehan played well in the field while Keith Doherty hurled six innings of 10-strikeout ball.

EXERTING CONTINUOUS PRESSURE

Nearly half of the new automobiles on American roads have antilock brakes. The popularity of this feature is due largely to the public's desire for safer cars. At the same time, the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS) points out that many car owners do not know enough about how antilock brakes work to put them to their best use. Most drivers have been taught to gently pump their brakes on slick roads in order to prevent a skid. However, this is not the foot/pedal action required of antilock brakes, which automatically provide the pumping action for the driver. All that is needed to activate antilock brakes is continuous brake pressure. By pumping their brakes, drivers inadvertently circumvent their antilock braking systems.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO

round knockout. Quincy's Jeff West also won by first round knockout.

Brothers Nick and Mike Morganelli of Whitman both won by decision in their bouts. Nick is 9 years old. Mike is 8.

Jose Ortega, 13, of Dorchester, lost a tough decision in the three-round bout. "It was a good fight he lost to a very strong opponent," said gym director Jim Farrell.

O'Malley's Gym opened a month ago and is owned by Quincy attorney Dan O'Malley, a former professional boxer.

The Quincy-based pugilists will return to Cranston July 22. O'Malley will host his own boxing show July 28 in Somerville.

Farrell encourages anyone interested in boxing to come down to the gym at 1452 Hancock St. or to call at 472-0033.

Youth Softball

Big Bats, Clutch Hits Highlight Playoffs

A ten-run burst in the third inning propelled the Wasialko Whiz Kids to a 24-17 win over Home & Auto in the second round of the Quincy Youth Softball League playoffs.

Marissa Lentini, Kristen Bowes and Jessica Lorman powered the winning attack with a number of booming shots. Bowes' personal arsenal included two home runs.

Meaghan Cosseboom was the winning pitcher and recorded seven strikeouts.

Kelly Flynn, Teresa Travers and Kate McLaughlin hit the ball well in the short effort.

Kristin Nogler sparked Quincy PAL to a 12-3 win over Mansfield Rascals.

Nogler worked the mound well with five strikeouts while nailing a roundtripper to power the offense.

Also hitting the ball well for PAL were Abby Duffy, Marianne Casper, Janet Tatum, Pam Sullivan, Kassi Nogler, Kelli Nogler and Kristen Lavery.

Kristin Nogler and Sullivan played wonderful defensive games.

The Rascals were led by Kristen Lee, Lisa Walsh, Kylie Mansfield, Colleen Lahar and Meredith Power.

Sara Page drove in Melissa Braga with the winning run as Quincy DARE posted a 7-6 victory over South Shore Engine in extra innings.

Braga raced from second to score on Page's clutch base hit.

Lauren Sullivan provided the bulk of the DARE offense with a bases-loaded triple. Michelle Pilalas had a 3 for 3 outing that included two RBI. Kerri McAteer went 2 for 2 and Braga went 2 for 3.

Sullivan and Pilalas worked the mound and combined for 13 strikeouts. Infielders Casey Lorman and Elizabeth Sullivan made a number of outstanding defensive plays.

Staci Andrews and Kristin Ciampa powered South Shore Engine with a home run each. Lisa Ferris went 2 for 3.

Ciampa played a solid defensive game while Andrews was outstanding on the mound.

DARE had an easier time in the third round with a 19-5 win over Club Chretien that set up the championship rematch.

Lauren Sullivan went 4 for 4, hit two home runs, two doubles, and drove in four runs. Pilalas also had four RBI with a 3 for 4 effort that included a pair of three-baggers. Lorman went 3 for 4 with two RBI and a double while Braga went 2 for 2 with a double and two RBI.

Outstanding defensive plays were made by Cristina Conley, Lauren Sullivan, Lorman, McAteer and Pilalas.

Katy Mercurio had a strong day for DARE with a 2 for 3 outing that included a roundtrip blast. Lisa Schifone and Kaitlin Markham went 2 for 2. Bet Goodman and Courtney Riley were sharp on defense.

Babe Ruth

Morrisette Wins Three, Bryan Notches Two

Morrisette ran through the home stretch of the Babe Ruth schedule with three consecutive wins last week.

Josh Smith made a strong showing on the mound in Morrisette's 7-2 victory over Houghs Neck.

Ryan Ploof backed Smith with outstanding defense on the hot corner. Greg Peck powered the offense with a single and double. Rich (Axl) Rose ripped a two-bagger while Mike Centrella stroked two singles.

Matt Gibbons and Brian Walsh played well for Houghs Neck.

Centrella drove in Jesse Winters with the winning run in the seventh as Morrisette edged Golden Print, 6-5.

Winters singled and stole second before Centrella ripped the two-out base hit. It was Centrella's second single. Rose also had a double. Axl Rose clubbed a triple.

Greg Peck, Jason Crossman and Tim Doyle sparked on the diamond for the winners.

Ploof posted the win with a two-hitter.

Jason Lumaghini and Kevin Sullivan led the Golden Print effort.

Crossman came alive at the plate with two singles and a double to lead the Morrisette offense in an 11-6 win over Sons of Italy.

Peck and Ploof stroked a pair of base hits each while Mike Feiner, Billy Miller and Chris Duffy paced the defense.

Adam Goodrich and T.J. Miller had strong outings for Sons of Italy.

Bryan Post topped Local, 9-4, behind the pitching of Mark Kelly.

Kelly fanned seven as he outduelled Local's Brian Ross (10 K's). Both hurlers displayed excellent stamina in the blistering 100-degree heat.

Shawn Manning led the winners with three hits. Steve Wiltshire, Matt Norton and Shawn Boostrom had two hit apiece. Boostrom's three-run triple broke the game open in the third inning.

BP's defense proved to be a key factor. Mike Sullivan, Kevin Cellucci, Matt Graham, Manning, Kelly and Wiltshire turned in defensive gems. Shortstop Brian Gates an another terrific game.

Mike Shaw, Didier Alther, John Cooper and Matt McCann all played well.

Bryan Post also beat Sons of Italy, 9-2.

Kelly had a marvelous outing on the mound with 13 K's. Wiltshire again tore apart a pitching staff with three long extra-base hits.

Kelly and Michael Shaw had a pair of base hits each while Gates, Manning, Norton and Graham each nailed on single.

Cellucci stood out on defense. McCann, Boostrom, Cooper and Alther had solid outings.

Dental Dialogue

TUNE UP YOUR TEETH

Q: I'm fifty-seven years old, and have lost quite a few teeth over the years. Don't you think I'm too old to replace them?

A: Absolutely not. Why take a chance for the next thirty or forty years? Nature intended all your teeth to work together. Each tooth needs to be supportive, in alignment, well-balanced and working smoothly, under clean conditions. Compare your mouth to an automobile. After all, an old 12-cylinder LaSalle can't run forever on 9 cylinders! On the other hand, an older auto restored to full working order can be a much beloved "classic," giving many more years of faithful service. In the case of your mouth, you may get along for a while, but in time your mouth will break down. So see your dentist, not your mechanic, for a dental tune-up, and soon you'll be sporting a classic smile!

This column is presented in the interest of better dental health. From the office of:

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Home Inspections Are Well Worth The Cost

Since buying a home is probably the single largest investment most people will ever make, the $200 to $500 expense of a professional home inspection is well worth the cost, according to James Stamos, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

"It's important to know as much as you can about the home you are about to purchase, and the best way to insure thorough, competent information is to hire the services of a professional home inspector before you sign a sales contract," said Stamos.

The higher cost of homes and financing today has increased the consumers' need to know the expense of necessary major repairs prior to commitment; therefore, professional home inspection services are growing in popularity, Stamos added.

So how do you find a qualified home inspector? Carefully, according to Stamos. Begin by asking the real estate professional who is helping with the sales transaction to provide you with a list of recommended inspectors. Then, ask the following 10 questions before making your final selection:

- Does the inspector belong to a local inspection association, or any other professional inspection association? Most national professional inspection organizations have guidelines, which members must follow.

- How long has the inspector been in business as a home inspector?

- Is the inspector specifically experienced in residential construction? An inspector needs the knowledge and insight gained from actual home inspection experience to be able to spot and interpret signs of age, damage, faulty or unsafe mechanical operation.

- Is the company free of any repair or real estate connections that might cause a conflict of interest? Avoid inspectors who use the inspection to solicit repair work for themselves or any particular contractor, as well as those who receive a portion of the real estate commission on the sale of the house.

- How long will the inspection take? The average time is 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 hours. Anything less is not enough time to do a thorough inspection.

- What will the inspection include? Get specifics. The inspection should include the electrical, heating and central air conditioning systems; interior plumbing, visible insulation, roof, walls, ceilings, floors, windows, doors, foundation, basement, and the visible structure of the house.

- How much will it cost? The average cost is $250, but it can range from $200 to $500.

- Does the inspector supply a written report? He or she should, and the report should not only detail the present condition of the house, but also what condition the house is likely to be in two to five years.

- Does the inspector encourage the client to attend the inspection? The home inspection is an important opportunity for buyers to get an education about their new home and to have their questions answered immediately. The information will help you after you've moved in. Qualified inspectors often offer maintenance tips to extend the life of the house and its major systems.

- Does the inspector participate in continuing education programs to keep his or her expertise up to date? A competent inspector is familiar with the latest materials, building techniques and equipment. He or she should always be learning about the ways in which a home's components and systems affect each other and how they stand the test of time.

The Co-operative Bank To Participate In First-Time Homebuyer Program

The Co-operative Bank has been designated as a lender for Braintree's recently announced First-Time Home Buyer Program.

The two-part program is part of a continuing effort to promote affordable housing in Braintree.

First-time home buyers will receive $1,000 from the town's Devon Wood Affordable Housing Funds to assist with closing costs when they participate in the town's Soft Second Loan Program which is funded through Massachusetts Housing Partnership and Executive Office of Communities and Development. The Soft Second Loan Program has just received a $50,000 infusion of funds from a state grant.

The program was created through the joint cooperation of the Fair Housing Committee and Braintree's Board of Selectmen and Planning Board. Some income limitations are being imposed as well as maximum purchase price restrictions.

For more information, call Akpanoluo Etteh, Fair Housing Director at 848-1870, Ext. 3144.

Applications may be submitted to Jeanne Roche, assistant vice president and manager at The Co-operative Bank's Braintree office at Tedeschi Plaza, 310 Grove St., 848-8090.

SUMMER CAR CARE

A Few Car Care Tips For Older Drivers

"Don't threaten my freedom of mobility," demands an 85-year-old driver who, according to statistics, has 10 times as many accidents as drivers half his age.

Most safety experts agree that easily-renewed licenses, issued to drivers of any age and often with no testing required, contribute to this terrible highway statistic.

The vehicle, per se, can be a major factor in the driver's ability to stay out of trouble. Do streaking windshield wipers blur a senior's already failing eyesight? Has it become uncomfortable for the driver to turn his head beyond 20 degrees? Can his foot reach the brake pedal in time to avoid a crisis?

Perhaps driver condition and vehicle condition go hand in hand, suggests the Car Care Council. A more "forgiving" car, one that's capable of helping a driver avoid trouble, could make a big difference in preventing a potential accident.

Council President Don Midgley urges vehicle owners, especially older drivers, to pay attention to those vehicle functions that affect driving safety. To mention a few:

•Vision: Are all lights, including turn signals, working properly? Do windshield wipers clean the glass to prevent glare from oncoming headlights?

•Handling: Does the car stop straight and true? Is steering responsive?

•Dependability: Will the car start when you want it to? Are the tires OK or will a worn tire let you down where you can't get help? How's the spare?

While a vehicle cannot be expected to compensate for a driver's physical or mental condition, its mechanical condition can make the big difference in a driving emergency.

This point is emphasized in the American Association of Retired Persons' "55 Alive" program, which qualifies some of its 500,000-plus graduates to reduced insurance rates.

Vehicle owners of all ages can benefit from an informative pamphlet entitled "How To Find Your Way Under the Hood and Around the Car." Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Department UH, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452 to receive your free copy of the brochure.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We all live in a changing world. Change is constant. Facts, figures and circumstances can change from one moment to another. At times we feel fearful about the changes occurring to us... The earth and all it contains is in a state of constant growth and change. Perhaps changes are happening to those we know - a loved one dies, another moves away, a friend begins a new job, new acquaintances enter our lives and bring about change.

God gives each of us a lifetime to resist or welcome changes. The lifetime varies, of course. Some grow old, some don't. The question that will be asked eventually is, "What did you do with your lifetime?" Was it spent in good deeds or was it frittered away in foolish non-essentials; deeds to be proud of or ashamed of? Should it not be realized that it is unimportant how long we live but what we did with the time given us - changes in time and customs notwithstanding?...

CITY OF QUINCY
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

INVITATION FOR PROPOSALS

Sealed proposals for household hazardous waste collection and disposal will be received at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 until 10:00 a.m. on Thursday, August 31, 1995, at which time they will be publicly opened and read. Late proposals will be rejected and left unopened.

The successful respondent will be required to furnish a performance bond and a labor and materials or payment bond, each of a Mass. Qualified Surety Company and each sum of the contract price.

A full scope of services and specifications will be available for pick up at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. beginning Friday, July 28, 1995. Respondents requesting specifications to be mailed to them add a separate check for twenty-five ($25.00) dollars, payable to the City of Quincy, to cover mailing and handling.

NOTE: Proposals from sub-contractors for the disposal of specific types of household hazardous waste will also be accepted under the same conditions.

Responses are subject to the provisions of M.G.L., Chapter 30, Section 39M.

The City of Quincy reserves the right to waive any information in or to reject any or all proposals if it is in the City's interest to do so.

Presidents Ladies Hold Weekend Competitions

The Ladies Association of Presidents Golf Course held a stroke play competition on Saturday and a throw out three competition on Sunday.

On Saturday, Gina Mostone had the top score in Div. I with a 65, followed by Susan Martinelli with a 66. Chris Cronin and Roberta McCann tied for the top score in Div. II with 63.

Pat Hagan edged Mary Von Freyman in Div. III, 61-62. Nancy DiCarlo, Sr. topped Div. IV with a 66.

On Sunday, Celeste Maloney, Carol Mather and Suzanne Coleman tied for the Div. I lead with 48. Liz Harrington and Melanie Curtin led Div. II with a 42 each, followed by Pat Hagan with 45.

Elaine Mooney's 38 led the field in Div. III. She was followed by Jean Falcone's 40. A 40 by Barbara Webber topped the board in Div. IV.

The Presidents Golf Course Ladies Association held a four club tournament on Saturday, July 1. With the top gross scores were Marcie Arnold (80), Carol Mather (81), Gina Mostone (83) and Susan Martinelli (86).

The top net scores were turned in by Dolly Barron (60), Pam Corradino (61), Maureen Savage (61), Marilyn Robertson (64), Elizabeth Greene (65), Barbara Robertson (66) and Marilyn Nestor (66).

In the over-40 division, Dorothy Vekos had the top gross with a 113. Leading the list of top net scores were Nancy DiCarlo, Sr. (71), Gertrude Knowles (73), Rita Callahan (76) and Rosemary Cannon (76).

On Sunday, July 2 they took part in the Pro Shop Mixed Tournament. The team of Eddie Boyland and Karen Baptista had the top gross, followed by Steve Drysdale and Margaret Murphy.

The top net teams were Al Landry/Maureen Savage, Paul Ritchie/Pat Hagan, Dave Pmerico/Venonica Bertrand, Bill Degan/Nancy DiCarlo, Jr., Jim Corcoran/Chris Cronin and Joe Lunbhorn/Pam Corradino.

On Friday, July 7, the Ladies Association hosted the Women's Norfolk County Classic pro shop tournament.

In Division I, the winner team was Nancy Murphy and Debe Schwedler. Rounding out the top five teams were Veronica Bertrand/Carol Rapoli, Penny Locke/LauraJean McDonald, Marijke Alsbach/Jane Heggie and Kathy Burgess/Liz McDonough.

Capturing the top spot in Division II was the Carol Maglio/Celeste Maloney team. The teams with the top net scores were Moya Baldwin/Elizabeth Harrington, Pam Corradino/Maureen Savage, Evelyn Cafiano/Charlotte Striebel and Nancy DiCarlo, Jr./Elaine Hanlon.

A member-guest tournament was held on Sunday, July 9.

With the top gross was the Veronica Bertrand/Marijke Alsbach team. They were followed by Suzanne Coleman/Chris Fimmel, Roberta McCann/Carol Rapoli and Margaret Murphy/Liz McDonough.

Two teams tied for the top net, with a score of 59: Barbara Robertson/Pat Roderick (the defending net winners) and Mary Von Freyman/Lynn Place. In third was the Sandra Jordan/Mary Ciccone team.

In an error of Biblical proportions, Carol Maglio was incorrectly credited with hitting a hole-in-one. The ball was actually sunk by Celeste Maloney. Maloney used a 6 iron on the par 3 4th hole.

Realtor Plans No Immediate Changes At Presidents Motel

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The status of the Presidents City Motel in Wollaston and other related property will remain unchanged for the foreseeable future.

Daniel Flynn, a Quincy commercial real estate broker, confirmed this week that he purchased the property at a June 22 foreclosure auction for a price of $1.1 million. He said that for now, the operations at the motel—the city's first, which opened in 1957—and the other property will stay the same.

"My intention is to leave the entire parcel alone for the time being," said Flynn.

The three-acre parcel, previously owned by the Strout family of Quincy, also includes the site of the landmark Winfield House restaurant, which was open from 1937-87 and later became the Winfield Gift Emporium before it closed for good in January; a red barn used for maintenance purposes and the Egg & I restaurant, which has been in operation since 1986 and is leased to another family.

While Flynn admitted that "we are exploring other possibilities for the entire parcel," he would not elaborate. He did note, however, that he plans to "enhance the property with landscaping" in the meantime.

Flynn stressed that employees at the site have nothing to worry about and said anyone familiar with his record in the city knows that.

"I'm into job creation," he said. "I'm into economic growth. I'm not planning on taking anything away at this point."

He added that he was attracted to the property because of its size and location.

"I love the location," said Flynn. "What I like about it is that it's geographically located in the center of the city, and the fact that it's a three-acre parcel."

Flynn said he will pass papers on the property the first week in August.

The property was owned by the Strout family for three generations. Loren Strout, 53, acknowledged that he fell 6 1/2 months behind on his mortgage payments in the early 1990s.

Strout said the motel suffered because of the economic recession the area was experiencing as well as yearly increases in real estate taxes.

Three years ago, the motel began contracting with the state to house homeless families—the only motel in the city to do so—and at times all 25 rooms set aside for the homeless have been filled.

Still, Strout said business had improved in the last few years and that he went to nearly 30 banks trying to find a lender to buy out his mortgage, but he was unable to do so.

Strout added that he also looked into other financial possibilities and traveled extensively throughout the Northeast to find a motel chain interested in moving to the site, but nothing came of that either.

"If there was a way to find money, we would have found it," he said.

Strout said his family became very attached to the property over the years and turned down offers as high as $10 million because they were happy there and did not approve of several of the projects that were proposed for the site.

While he noted that "we're tickled to death a local fellow (Flynn) got it," he admitted he wishes things could have turned out differently.

"In today's market, you should never get too attached to your property," he said. "Because if you do, you'll end up getting hurt."

Director To Be Named In August Family Commission Budget, Home Set

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Quincy Commission on the Family is on-track and moving ahead, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor, while speaking Tuesday with The Sun, confirmed that:

- The commission's FY96 budget, which will be available by September, has been set by the mayor at $41,150.

- The commission's executive director will be appointed by the third week in August.

- The permanent headquarters of the commission will be located at a city-owned residence at 17 Chapman St. in Wollaston. Because the Chapman Street site is currently used by a Hingham-based shelter program which plans to relocate in the next few months, the commission will use the Senior Drop-In Center on High School Avenue in Quincy Center--also owned by the city--as a temporary home beginning in September.

Sheets, who first came up with the idea of the commission in 1993, said he is pleased the program's agenda is beginning to build some momentum.

"We've been working hard on the (commission's) budget, and I'm very pleased," he said.

"It's a very unique program designed to determine the basic needs of families and move to meet those needs."

Sheets said once the program is fully in place, the 17-member commission--which is comprised of city department heads and social service providers--will work hand-in-hand with its advisory board, the Family Council. The 22-member council is representative of a cross-section of families from throughout the city.

The Family Council will begin to review the $41,150 budget at its meeting tonight (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. in the second-floor Conference Room at Quincy City Hall.

The revenue for the program, which will not impact the city's municipal budget, include $22,000 in federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) and Urban Development Block Grant (UDAG) monies, a $10,000 private donation from a benefactor who wishes to remain anonymous, and $9,150 in proceeds from the Quincy City Store.

Sheets' FY96 budget for the commission breaks down as follows:

- The executive director, whose services to the city will be considered part-time, will receive a stipend of $22,000.

- A total of $3,150 will be set aside for the installation of five centrex phone lines. Sheets said once established, the lines will provide instant information to families in the following five areas: education, health, domestic violence (spousal and child abuse), recreation, and drug-related problems. The mayor added that a hot line will also be established to handle family emergencies.

- A total of $5,000 will be used to fund family workshops and seminars. Sheets noted that, upon approval from the School Committee, those events will be held in the auditoriums at North Quincy and Quincy high schools.

- Another $5,000 will fund the printing of a resource manual listing of all federal, state and city resources available to families. The manual will be published annually.

Firm Agrees To $200,000 City Wants $500,000 Put In Escrow For Ambulance Overbilling

Norfolk-Bristol ASA-Ambulance Systems of America, which provides the city's ambulance service through Quincy Hospital, has agreed to establish a special account to reimburse patients who paid bills sent to them in violation of the company's contract.

Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymondi said the company, which makes between 2,000 and 3,000 trips annually in the city, has also agreed to pay for a publicity campaign to inform people about the account and explain who is eligible to be reimbursed.

Raymondi added that as yet, it is undecided how much money will go into the account, which would be controlled by the city.

City and company officials disagree on the extent of the firm's alleged overbilling, Raymondi said. Following an independent audit of the company's records, city officials said $500,000 should be placed in the escrow account but Norfolk-Bristol representatives feel $200,000 is a more appropriate figure.

Preliminary audit findings indicate the company has overbilled Quincy residents by $300,000 to $900,000 in the last two fiscal years. Patients paid between $57,000 and

City Receives 18 Trees Through ReLeaf Program

The city recently received 18 young trees from the Mass ReLeaf Memorial Tree Program.

The trees, donated through the combined efforts of the Keohane Funeral Home and Mass ReLeaf, were planted throughout Merrymount Park.

Mass ReLeaf is a program of the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Management designed to foster partnerships between business, government, and non-profit groups for the planting of trees throughout the Commonwealth. The Memorial Tree Program, in its first year, is set up so that a funeral home can donate $10 in the memory of each person for whom they handle burial arrangements. So far, Keohane's has raised $2,110 for the program.

Quincy Tree Warden Frank McLaughlin and his crew planted six ash, six zelkova, and six oak trees in the Pageant Field, Colletta Field and Veterans Memorial Stadium areas of Merrymount Park. In addition, 12 white pine trees are slated to be planted as part of the Memorial Tree Fund program in the near future.

The trees will be monitored and cared for over the coming months to ensure their successful growth.

"Merrymount Park and the people of Quincy will benefit greatly by the efforts of the Keohane Funeral Home and the Mass ReLeaf Memorial Tree Program," said Thomas Koch, executive director of the Quincy Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department. "Not only do these trees offer valuable shade to our recreation and picnic areas, but they also add to the overall aesthetic value of the park."

- Granted a request to Alyce A. Collins to open a store called My Sister's Closet at 142 Willard St. for a secondhand license.

Vote Set For Sept. 5 McIntyre Is Councillors' Choice For LaRaia Seat

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Seven members of the City Council polled by The Quincy Sun are unanimous in their support of Charles McIntyre as the interim replacement for the at-large council seat being vacated by Joseph LaRaia.

All of the councillors surveyed said they will support McIntyre when Council President Michael Cheney presents his name for nomination at the council's Sept. 5 meeting. Cheney has said he favors filling the seat, rather than simply leaving it empty, to give Quincy residents the most possible representation on the council.

Only Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro could not be reached for comment at press time.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said McIntyre only needs the support of five councillors to be named to the seat.

LaRaia, a longtime Quincy political veteran, announced two weeks ago he will step down from his council seat Aug. 1 to accept an invitation from Mayor James Sheets to serve on the Quincy Board of Assessors.

McIntyre, son of the late Quincy Mayor-Sen. James McIntyre, placed fourth in the 1993 race for the council's three at-large council seats. Traditionally, the council has nominated the first runner-up from the previous election to serve on the council when a seat has been vacated.

McIntyre has said he is eager to serve out LaRaia's term until a permanent replacement is elected in the city's municipal election Nov. 7.

Councillors said naming McIntyre to the seat will be consistent with the council's history in such matters.

"We've kind of set of a precedent by filling the seats in that manner before," said Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio. "I think he's (McIntyre) very capable, and obviously a lot of the voters do, too."

"The tradition has always been to pick the highest runner-up," said Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan.

"I've spoken with him (McIntyre), and I've already told him I will support him," said Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. "I look forward to working with him."

Councillor Timothy Cahill has expressed reservations about filling the seat, saying the move is not necessary. Still, while he noted that "my feelings haven't changed," he added that they have nothing to do with McIntyre personally and that he wants to talk to him "to make sure he understands that."

"I will support him," said Cahill.

Other councillors who said they will support McIntyre are Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien.

Last week, The Sun reported that the council would fill the open seat at a special meeting tonight (Thursday). Cheney, however, said that would be impossible, since LaRaia is not officially stepping down until next week.

Cheney said the council will hold a special meeting tonight to vote on proposed fees for the city's downtown parking system.

28 Candidates Certified, 2 Ineligible For Election

Twenty-eight of 30 candidates who filed nomination papers for this year's city elections have been certified by the Board of Registrars.

Two were found to have insufficient valid signatures and will not be eligible to have their names on the ballot.

City Clerk Joseph Shea, the board chairman, said the board ruled last Friday that two potential candidates--Timothy Delaney, who was seeking the Ward 3 seat and Patricia Linehan, who planned to run for School Committee--will be unable to because neither was able to turn in the required 50 certified signatures for his/her nomination papers before the city's deadline.

Both potential candidates came up two signatures short. Shea said only 48 of the 51 signatures submitted by Delaney were approved by the board, while Linehan turned in 56 signatures, 48 of which were accepted.

Shea said signatures are rejected because they are illegible and/or belong to unregistered voters. He added that Delaney voluntarily withdrew his name from ballot consideration after realizing he did not have enough valid signatures, while Linehan was notified by mail that her nomination papers were rejected by the board for certification.

Shea added that the board also approved all other candidates' nomination papers. Many of the candidates turned in as many as 250 signatures, he noted.

The board's ruling last Friday leaves six candidates to battle for three four-year School Committee seats and two candidates to vie for the Ward 3 seat. Former Mayor Francis McCauley is running unopposed for the lone two-year committee seat.

Only two preliminary election runoffs--for the council seats in Wards 4 and 5--will be necessary this year. The preliminary election will be held Sept. 19 and the final election Nov. 7.

USS Ramage Joins Fleet Newest Destroyer's Commissioning Proud Day For Quincy Family

The commissioning of the USS Ramage--the Navy's newest warship--Saturday was a proud day for a Quincy family.

The 505-foot, 8,315-ton sophisticated guided missile destroyer, is named for the late Vice Admiral Lawson P. (Red) Ramage, a cousin of Mrs. Betty Sweeney of Ames St.

Mrs. Sweeney, her husband, former School Committee member Charles Sweeney and her sister, Mr. Ann Barningham of Harwich were among family members who were guests at the commissioning of the vessel at the Black Falcon Cruise Ship Terminal in South Boston.

They were also guests at a reception aboard the ship the day before.

Helen Ramage, mother of Mrs. Sweeney and Mrs. Barningham, was a first cousin of Admiral Ramage who was awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor for heroic actions as a young submarine commander in the Pacific during World War II.

Ramage was commander of the USS Parche when it took on a Japanese convoy in a fierce surface battle off Taiwan in July, 1944 and sank five of the enemy vessels. He was the first submariner to be awarded the Congressional Medal of Honor.

"Wow", exclaimed

COMMANDER DANIEL THOMPSON, captain of the USS Ramage is flanked by sisters Ann Barningham (left) of Harwich and Betty Sweeney of Quincy. Their mother was a first cousin of Vice Admiral Lawson Ramage for whom the guided missile destroyer is named.

Mrs. Sweeney when she first saw the Ramage. "That's some ship. The commissioning was exciting. It was a wonderful tribute and a proud day for the family."

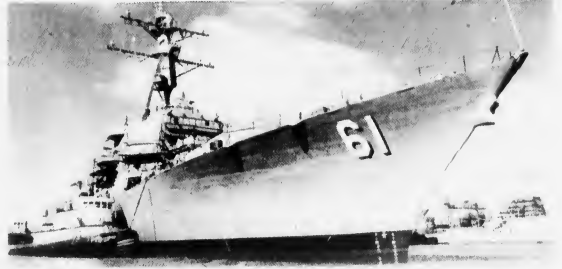

The Sweenys have a son, Allan whose middle name is Ramage. He served in Vietnam with the Air Force and is now a pilot for UPS.

Admiral Ramage's wife, Barbara, the ship's sponsor, had the honor at the commissioning ceremony to give the order to the ship's 330 officers and enlisted men: "Officers and crew of Ramage. Man our ship. Bring her back to life."

Among those attending the commissioning were members of the crew that served on the Parche with Ramage, and residents of Monroe Bridge, a tiny Massachusetts town off the Mowhawk Trail just below the Vermont border where Ramage was born.

Ramage retired from the Navy in 1970. He died in 1990 at his home in Bethesda, Md.

Neighborhood Meeting By Aug. 11 On Auto Repair Shop License

A neighborhood meeting regarding the Woodbine Garage to operate an auto repair shop on 105 Federal Ave., will be held before Aug. 11 according to Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio.

At the Quincy License Board July 18 meeting, the board was ready to vote in favor of a request from Al Cline to operate the shop. But Fabrizio asked the board to wait until a neighborhood meeting could be held.

At the meeting, owner Cline who formerly operated his business at 471-Rear Hancock St. said he was forced to move because of the construction of a new Shaw's supermarket.

Abutters spoke against another business on Federal Ave. because of the noise. According to Fabrizio, several abutters had spoken to him about having an auto repair shop near their homes, and said he did not feel there was "any support for the business."

Roger Lyons, a neighbor, spoke on Cline's behalf, as did all of the board members, stating that Cline was forced to move and hasn't been able to find another location.

Cline tried to appease the abutters by assuring them he does not have a tow truck and that his hours would be from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. He said he has never had any problems in his other place of business.

The board will take a final vote on Aug. 22.

MassPlan Educational Loan Rate Among Lowest Nationwide

The MassPlan fixed educational loan rate is set at 7.95 percent for the 1995-96 academic year, according to state Rep. Michael Bellotti.

The fixed interest rate is among the lowest for educational loans in the country, he added.

The MassPlan program is designed for middle-income families from Quincy and throughout the state who do not receive sufficient financial aid from traditional sources and who are in need of assistance financing collect costs.

"This loan program provides the opportunity for many middle-income families to access our outstanding Massachusetts colleges and universities," said Bellotti.

City To Participate In National Night Out

Mayor James Sheets, in conjunction with Police Chief Francis Mullen announces Quincy's first annual celebration of National Night Out.

On Tuesday, Aug. 1 from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. the City of Quincy, through the mayor's office and Quincy Police Athletic League (PAL), will be the host in welcoming a group of City of Boston dignitaries, including Mayor Thomas Menino and Police Commissioner Paul Evans.

The Boston cavalcade with travel over the Neponset Bridge and arrive in the parking lot of the Adams Inn at about 12:30 p.m. At that time, Sheets and Mullen will greet the visitors and exchange proclamations pledging to work closer with each other in the war against crime.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, a light lunch will be served by the youth of the Quincy PAL.

On the evening of National Night Out, the Quincy Police Department will have a cavalcade of police motorcycles and cruisers travel throughout the city and visit each ward encouraging citizens to become more involved in crime prevention and neighborhood watch.

National Night Out is designed to heighten crime and drug prevention and awareness, generate support for, and participation in, local anti-crime programs; strengthen neighborhood spirit and police-community relations, and send a message to criminals letting them know that neighborhoods are organized and fighting back.

This is the 12th year that National Night Out has been celebrated throughout the country. In 1994, citizens, law enforcement agencies, civic groups, businesses, neighborhood organizations and local officials from 8,750 U.S. communities participated in National Night Out.

ANEURYSM ALERT

The carotid artery is the blood's main pipeline to the brain. It is also a common target of atherosclerosis, resulting in hardening and narrowing of that vital passageway. Unfortunately, researchers have found that almost one-fifth of patients with narrowed carotid arteries also have abdominal aortic aneurysms. An aneurysm is a swelling in a blood vessel caused by stretching in a weak place of its wall; the aorta is the body's largest artery. If an aortic aneurysm is not detected and treated, it can grow and burst, often with fatal results. For this reason, the American Heart Association is now recommending that all patients with narrowed carotid arteries be routinely screened for aortic aneurysms as well. P.S. Aortic aneurysms can balloon out larger than an orange, or be so small as to be imperceptible without ultrasound screening.

Routine heart screening—especially if you have a history of heart disease in your family—is an excellent precaution to take. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself offer complete medical care with a focus on treating heart disease. Chretien Sees Tight Race

The so-called political experts think two of the three city council at-large seats are all wrapped up with the election still more than three months away.

The way they see it, two of the seats already have the names of Tim Cahill and Paul Harold engraved on them.

But Larry Chretien isn't buying any of that.

Chretien who is being cast by some as an underdog in this year's election says:

"I see a tight four-way race. Any one of us can wind up with any one of the four spots and you might be surprised by who gets what spot."

The field is down to four with Chretien, Cahill, Harold and Council President Mike Cheney the candidates now that Joseph LaRaia is out of the picture. LaRaia has been appointed an assessor to succeed Henry Bertolon who is retiring Aug. 1.

Cahill and Harold are being touted for two of the seats off their past strong vote-getting records.

Chretien concedes that the pair would probably take the first and second spots—if the election were held today.

"But," he stresses, "the election isn't until November. Let the voters decide who is going to be one and two."

Chretien who is giving up his Ward 3 Council seat to run at-large acknowledges that the other three candidates "may have more name recognition" having run city-wide.

"That can be overcome," he says. "I don't think I have a recognition problem with knowledgeable voters. By election time, the main thing will be who is the most persuasive."

Chretien is working on that.

CHRETIEN

He says he has been knocking on doors, attending house parties, visiting senior citizen complexes asking for "one of your three votes." He's also been out holding campaign signs at strategic places.

He says he has been "hopping around" in every part of the city.

"I'll tell you one thing, no one is working harder than me or my volunteers."

He feels the hard work will pay off Nov. 7

COUNCILLOR TED DeCRISTOFARO believes in showing your appreciation. In a recent letter to the Quincy Hospital staff published in the hospital newsletter The Monitor, he wrote:

"Over the past few years, I have been rushed to Quincy Hospital several times.

"Every one of my stays has proven to be a positive experience due to the wonderful staff I have met while they were caring for me. I couldn't praise them enough!

"It is never comforting when I learn I have to be admitted, but due to the care givers, it almost becomes a pleasant experience. Many thanks to all."

A FAREWELL RECEPTION will be held tomorrow (Friday) for Henry Bertolon who is retiring as a city assessor after 24 years of service.

The reception will be from 1 to 3 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall.

Bertolon not only knew his job but has been an astute political observer down through the years.

Bertolon carried out his duties in an easy-going style and a let's-be-fair manner. He was a close associate of late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre and served as his aide at the State House.

Happy retirement, H.B.

The mayor said another minor delay was caused when he realized that the vacant Naval Reserve Center on Sea Street would not be available for use as the commission's headquarters because the South Weymouth Naval Air Station would close and begin sending its reservists back to Quincy for training.

Sheets said he has spoken to Quincy Council on Aging Director Brian Buckley about using a room on the main floor at the Senior Drop-In Center as a temporary home for the commission because "I didn't want to make the seniors think we were taking their space."

He added that he plans to make improvements at the center, including the installation of a new heating system, that will leave it in even better condition after the commission has moved to its permanent headquarters.

Sheets said he is unsure if, like the Senior Drop-In Center, the residence at 18 Chapman St. is handicapped accessible. He added, however, that he plans to make sure it is before the commission has moved in.

The mayor said that while it may seem as though it has taken awhile for the commission to begin moving ahead with its plans, the program is more or less on schedule.

"I had given myself two years (in 1993) to get this up and running," he said. "My priority has always been to have this program up and running by time this (Sheets') two-year term ends (in January)."

Family Council Chairman Martin Ervin said he also is glad the program is on the move.

"I'm more than pleased," he said. "We've made a commitment to the people, and I want them to see some results. So I'm very happy."

Sheets said.

A $5,000 sum will be used to fund the printing of a brochure which will set forth information on the centre phone lines, the schedule of yearly seminars and workshops on the family, information on the resource manual, and information on the mission and function of the Commission on the Family. Sheets said the brochure will be provided to all city residents at the beginning of each fiscal year.

The final $1,000 will be used to buy supplies and office needs.

Sheets noted that the commission's budget will be administered, with his approval, through the Quincy Planning Department. Planning Director Richard Meade serves as chairman of the commission.

The mayor added that the budget will follow the regular budgetary process, which includes approval from Quincy's planning director, mayor, auditor and treasurer before the funds can be used.

The commission's budget will always be comprised of federal monies, funds from private donations, and proceeds from the city store although in the future it will be finalized by the beginning of each new fiscal year (July 1) following approval of the city's CDBG budget by the City Council.

Regarding the executive director's position, Sheets said the original field of 50-plus candidates has been narrowed to 12 by a committee comprised of Meade and representatives from the commission and the Family Council.

Originally, Sheets said, there were 13 finalists, but the committee's number one choice opted to take another job, causing a setback of sorts for the

Impressed With Board Of Appeals' Professionalism

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Recently, as well as on several other occasions, I attended a meeting of the Board of Appeals because of my association with Bethany Congregational Church as an abutter to an appellant's property.

Once again, I was highly impressed with the professionalism of the members of the board, who are all unpaid volunteers, and the thoroughness of their knowledge of the situation at hand.

They, as well as the building inspector and the clerk, are all to be congratulated for the fine work that they do and the long, hard hours they put in. The most recent session ended at 1:15 a.m. for me, and there was still further business pending for the board. This is the "norm," not the exception, as far as hours are concerned, I'm afraid.

Once again, I wish to publicly thank them for their courtesy to me and to all who attended. My only suggestion is that, for their own sake as well as the attendees, they should limit each speaker to five minutes and strictly enforce this limit.

Influence Should Be Exerted Through The House Of Representatives

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

There has been tremendous power delegated to the House by the Constitution. Its Article 1, Section 7 reads: "All bills for raising revenues shall originate in the House of Representatives..."

A House majority can defend and effectively abolish any unconstitutional federal agency by simply refusing to originate a bill to fund it. If 218 out of 435 House members refuse to approve a measure to raise funds for foreign aid or the department of this there's nothing the Senate, the president or the courts can do about it. The Founding Fathers placed the power of the purse in the hands of the body closest to the people, the House of Representatives. And they also arranged to have the people choose House members every second year.

I believe the potential in Article 1, Section 7 to stop and reverse the enormous growth of big government has stimulated the recent rash of attempts to alter the Constitution through a constitutional convention or a conference of states.

As has been demonstrated so many times in recent decades, the world government promoters from the Council on Foreign Relations and like-minded groups already have a firm group on the presidential nominating process. But they don't control the elections for House seats. This is where informed Americans should exert their influence. This is where our country can be rescued from those who would seek to destroy it.

Pilgrim Shallop Lands At Squantum

By PAUL HAROLD

The Pilgrim shallop (sloop) from the Mayflower II landed in Squantum this week as part of the recreation of the 1621 visit by Myles Standish.

37 Years Ago

Starting in Provincetown, the 115-mile sail retraced stops of the original shallop. Edward Rowe Snow, maritime author, served as captain, acting the part of Myles Standish. The 10-man crew included descendants of the Pilgrims as well as William Forbes, commodore of the Squantum Yacht Club, and Charles Craig of Quincy.

Fred Begfors, Jr., of Sycamore Rd. hosted a clam bake for the crew following their sail.

PENNY SAVERS CROWD QUINCY POST OFFICE

Frank Anselmo, superintendent of the Quincy Post Office, said that they handled 100,000 more pieces of mail than average in one day, in advance of the increase in postage from three to four cents.

The new first class rate included mail to Canada and Mexico. The new postcard rate was three cents with first class mail costing seven cents.

46 ACRES AT BASE DECLARED SURPLUS

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and representatives of Boston Edison met with officials from the General Services Administration (GSA) concerning the use of 46-acres of land at the old Squantum Naval base. Two 26-acre plots were declared surplus, one on the northeastern side, the other on the southwestern.

Both plots were recently inspected by the mayor and DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert, Planning Director Regis Harrington and Councilor William Ellis. The mayor said that the city had interest in the southwestern land for recreation uses. As for the other plot, he said that the city would give the Edison Company the chance to combine it with other land it had purchased to build a generating plant.

"I would not like to do anything to interfere with the company's plans to develop its property," the mayor said.

OUR Policy On ENGAGEMENT PHOTOGRAPHS And Wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Michael McFarland Rotary Club President

Michael McFarland, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets and owner of Barry's Deli in Wollaston, was recently sworn-in as the 74th president of the Quincy Rotary Club.

Induction Chairman Ken Fallon presided over the event as now-immediate Past President Terry Fancher passed the gavel to McFarland.

Paul Holland of Quincy Minute Car Wash was installed as the club's president-elect. Other officers installed were Lynne Houghton of Hunneman & Company, vice president; Dr. John Pasciucco Jr., secretary and Paul Baharian of 1000 Southern Artery, treasurer.

The board of directors for the new year will be chaired by Fancher. The other directors are Quincy Attys, Lawrence DiNardo and Henry Levin, Robert Curry of Curry Ace Hardware Store, Carol DeMerritt, Quincy Auctioneer

MICHAEL MCFARLAND (right), executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets and owner of Barry's Deli in Wollaston, was recently sworn-in as president of the Quincy Rotary Club. McFarland received the gavel from Terry Fancher, the club's previous president.

Daniel Flynn and finance analyst John Shaddock.

The scholarship trustees will be chaired by Houghton. Quincy Atty. Robert Dolbec Jr., Charles Walker of The Co-operative Bank, Glenn Ferguson of Green Environmental, and Anita Ricciuti of Keyboard Solu-

Concourse Meeting July 27

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy concourse linking Burgin Parkway with downtown Hancock St. will meet Thursday, July 27 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room, City Hall annex.

Since its inception 15 months ago, the CAC has been meeting monthly with various city officials, engineering and traffic specialists, and the public to gather information and data relative to the $5.6 million project.

A primary goal of the roadway is to provide easier access to the downtown business area and to ease some of the traffic congestion which has increased considerably. Traffic experts predict that unless such a link between Burgin Parkway and Hancock St. is constructed, gridlock and environmental pollution will continue to increase.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson said the committee is charged with making recommendations regarding the project to Mayor James Sheets and the Concourse Task Force.

All meetings of the CAC are open to the public and suggestions or comments are invited.

Fabrizio Urges MDC To Begin Renovation Of Shea Skating Rink

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio has requested that the Metropolitan District Commission begin the renovation of Shea Skating Rink on Willard St. in West Quincy as soon as possible.

Fabrizio said he has been working with state

Rep. Michael Bellotti and Sen. Michael Morrissey in an effort to have the state facilitate the renovation of the building.

In a recent letter to MDC Commissioner David Balfour, Fabrizio requested immediate attention be given to roof repairs at the site. He noted that debris is falling from the roof, which not only poses a public safety hazard but also is an eyesore for the community.

Fabrizio told Balfour that putting on a new roof is an important first step toward aesthetic improvements at the rink.

Kettle Hole, Kendall Park To Be Cleaned Up Saturday

A group of volunteers representing the Atlantic Neighborhood Together We Can Prevention Council will help to clean up the Kettle Hole and Kendall Park, Saturday, July 29.

Located at the corner of Atlantic and North Sts., in North Quincy, the Kettle Hole and adjacent park were donated to the city by Dr. Walter G. Kendall, who was known for his world class fruit trees and grapes and was the father of the Boston Terrier.

In recent years, the Kettle Hole has become overgrown with brush allowing anyone who ventures down into the hole to go unnoticed. During a recent trip to the Kettle Hole to survey the area, many beer cans and broken bottles were discovered. The Together We Can volunteers hope that by clearing the brush, they will eliminate that type of problem.

Following the cleanup, there will be a barbecue for the volunteers to help celebrate the accomplishment. For more information, call Steve Ward at Impact, Quincy, 472-6027.

Bellotti To Provide Transportation For Seniors To Summerfest Shows

State Rep. Michael Bellotti has announced that he will provide free bus transportation to and from the Summerfest Concert Series being held at the Ruth Gordon Amphitheater near Adams Field in Merrymount.

Buses will provide transportation for seniors from the Fenno House, Tobin Towers, and Wollaston Manor.

Bellotti, who has provided the service in the past, said he hoped "seniors would be able to take advantage of the wonderful concerts and free transportation. Summerfest provides a very entertaining night out without the hassles and costs usually associated with such a night out."

The bus schedule is as follows:

•Arrive in front of Fenno House at 6:10 p.m. Depart at 6:30 p.m.

•Arrive at 80 Clay St. and 91 Clay St. at 6:30 p.m. Depart around 6:45 p.m.

The buses will also provide transportation home at the end of each concert. For more information, call Bellotti at 722-2210.

Michael Bellotti, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Sarah's mother, Maureen Kane and Quincy Public Schools Health Educator Wendy McKenna.

Sarah Kane Receives Top Honors In Billboard Contest

Sarah Kane, a seventh grade student at Atlantic Middle School in Quincy, recently was awarded top honors in a regional billboard contest sponsored by several health and education agencies.

Her poster, depicting the risks of smoking, presented the message "a cigarette equals slow suicide." The theme of the contest was "The Truth About Tobacco."

Sarah and other regional winners from across the state were honored at a State House reception. Her poster will be shown in a commercial made for MTV.

Rep. Michael Bellotti and Sen. Michael Morrissey presented Sarah with citations from the Massachusetts House of Representatives and Senate. Also present were her parents, Bob and Maureen Kane and Quincy Public Schools Health Educator Wendy McKenna.

Securing Your Home While On Vacation

A few days before you leave:

- Notify your post office to hold your mail OR arrange with a neighbor to pick up and hold your mail.
- Notify newscourier to discontinue delivery.
- Make arrangements to have your grass cut and watered. Have someone check daily to remove throw-away papers and circulars from your doorway or yard.
- Arrange with a neighbor or relative to watch your home and give them a key. Let me know where you will be and how you can be reached in an emergency. Write their telephone number down so you can check with them during your trip. Also give them your car description and license plate number.
- Check possible fire hazards such as oily rags, open containers of combustibles, questionable wiring.
- Make sure any broken windows, door locks, or window locks are repaired.
- Move all ladders, tools, lawn furniture to your garage, basement, or storage shed.
- Remove name sign from your home.
- If you have valuables in the house, take them to your bank for storage in a safe deposit vault. Deposit extra cash in your bank account.
- Make sure important bills are paid.
- Purchase travelers checks, they are safer than carrying large amounts of cash.
- Make a list of things to take and plan how to pack them. Engrave your valuables with your Operation Identification number.
- If driving, have your car thoroughly serviced. Check the spare tire for sufficient air. Take an extra set of keys.

- Ask your neighbors not to inform inquiring strangers that you are away.
- Ask your neighbors to immediately call the police if they see anything or anyone that appears suspicious around your property.

Reilly Asks Sheets To Restore $90,000 Beechwood Budget Cut

Steven Reilly, a candidate for Ward 5 city councillor, has called upon Mayor James Sheets to restore the $90,000 cut from the Beechwood Knoll School budget so that the facility will have the equipment and supplies it needs when it reopens in the fall.

"The city had a balance of $602,000 in the surplus cash account as of June 1," Reilly stated in a letter to the mayor. "Money could be transferred from this account to restore the necessary funding so that all of the children who attend the Beechwood Knoll School this fall will have the same opportunity to learn."

"The children who will be attending Beechwood in the fall deserve nothing less," he added.

Reilly, whose children will be attending the school in the fall, said that because of the budget cut, only the new section of the school will be air conditioned, while the renovated portion will not.

"This is unfair to those teachers and students who will work and learn in the older section of the building, potentially causing morale problems among the staff and the students. The cutting of these funds will have a profound and direct impact on the education of the attending the Beechwood Knoll School.

"In addition to this, the cut has also eliminated many necessary supply purchases and will force the school to do without needed office and related equipment," Reilly said.

McKay Fried Brings 'Madison Avenue' To Quincy

McKay Fried and Partners, Inc., a Quincy-based, full-service advertising, public relations and marketing agency formerly known as Capital Marketing, has grown from a one-man shop to more than $5 million in billings in the first half of 1995.

President/CEO John McKay, who founded the agency, reports that the company has nearly tripled its revenue in one year, employs 12 people and has already outgrown its office space in Quincy's historic Willard Building.

The agency has launched several highly visible advertising and public relations campaigns for such clients as The Bank of Braintree, Good Brothers Ford and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. These successful campaigns have helped the agency land several new, sizable clients.

"It has been a hectic, but rewarding first six months," says McKay, a former Patriot Ledger staff writer who is a product of Quincy schools and Northeastern University. "We've been able to get the results our clients need to grow their businesses, and at the same time generate growth for ourselves. The two work hand-in-hand. If you help your clients, you invariably help your agency."

McKay cites the creative excellence of partner and Chief Creative Officer Marvin Fried as the key to the agency's explosive growth. Fried's career path has included stops at major advertising agencies such as Hill Holliday and Cabot, both in Boston, and New York agencies Young & Rubicam, Ogilvy & Mather, and McCaffrey and McCall.

Fried has done award-winning work for a number of clients. Some of his more notable clients include the U.S. Postal Service, NYNEX, Chase Manhattan Bank, Nissan, Infiniti, Mercedes-Benz, Falcon Jet, Hyatt Hotels, American Express and dozens of Fortune 500 firms.

"Marvin brought tremendous creative experience to a modest-sized agency," says McKay, who lives in Canton with his wife, Michelle. "We complement each other well. I focus more on the strategic, marketing side for clients and handle the finance and business side of the agency. Marvin has made certain our work is top-notch in all aspects of our business, focusing on entertaining and highly effective creative execution."

"We're able to bring Madison Avenue-quality capabilities to medium-sized clients," adds

McKay. "The giant agencies can't afford to work for these clients, and, in turn, the clients can't afford big agencies, either. We've established a nice niche for ourselves."

The agency expects to announce major business wins in July after recently securing work with Sunnyside Ford in Worcester, Topor Ford & Dodge in Chicopee and Gerald T. Reilly, CPAs in Milton. The Co-operative Bank of Concord, which recently acquired the Bank of Braintree--a McKay Fried & Partners client--has assigned the agency an upcoming project. McKay Fried & Partners will continue to handle The Bank of Braintree, which will increase from three to 10 branches on the South Shore once the deal is approved by regulators.

In the past six months, McKay Fried & Partners has launched a major print and outdoor campaign focusing on the Bank of Braintree's commercial lending division. According to the bank's second quarter report, the ads have been a major hit, helping the bank increase its commercial loan volume by an estimated $22 million to date this year.

In addition to the successful Bank of Braintree campaign, McKay Fried & Partners is producing an improved version of "Waves" magazine, the business publication of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. After winning the Chamber account is a seven-agency review, McKay Fried & Partners has improved the editorial content and design of the magazine. The current magazine format is more befitting a business publication, as opposed to the old newsletter format. As a result, "Waves" ad revenue has dramatically increased.

McKay Fried and Partners also recently undertook an image campaign for Good Brothers Ford, which has generated record sales for Gerry Good, Jr., the owner and president of the Randolph dealership.

"I've had agencies in the past," notes Good,

"but McKay Fried and Partners is the best I've worked with. And it's not just the creative. John and Marvin really pay attention to your business and get to know it very well. They think strategically, doing market research and their homework."

"They don't just do a bunch of ads or press releases and wing it," Good adds. "If I ever get a quick thought to do something, they don't just take the order and run with it. They'll stop me and say, 'Gerry, what are your objectives? Do you really want to do this--and why?' They have a different approach."

So, too, does Fried have a different approach. A creative thinker without equal, Fried tackles all projects and problems from all angles, not just straight on. A native New Yorker who now lives in Needham with his wife, Roberta, and daughter, Stefanie, Fried lauds the firm's clients for their willingness to invest in quality advertising to obtain needed results. He singles out the importance of strategic thinking, market research and great creative as the key to the firm's early success.

"Who cares if the ad is creative if it misses the mark and doesn't connect with the target audience," says Fried, a 20-year advertising veteran who has received dozens of major national and regional awards. "Creativity is really the final step of the process. The planning, strategy and research make or break creative. You can do a nice, creative campaign, but it has to be effective and help the client. Lots of agencies do creative ads to win awards. We're in this to do great creative that builds a client's business and if it wins awards, so be it."

The firm recently bolstered its ranks with the addition of Richard Heerde as director of client services and Kimberly Loven as director of public relations. Both bring significant, large-agency experience.

After he helped introduce BayBank's ATM network, Heerde handled other major accounts such as Apple Computer and Rockport Shoes. While at Cone Coughlin Communications, Loven managed the "It's Time We Made Smoking History" campaign for the Massachusetts Department of Health.

Chretien Endorsed By County Labor Council

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, a candidate for councillor at-large, has been endorsed by the Norfolk County Labor Council, AFL-CIO, which represents more than 7,000 members in Quincy.

"I appreciate this strong vote of confidence from the Norfolk County Labor Council," Chretien said. "I've enjoyed working with the locals that make up the council and I will continue to do what's right for the working men and women of Quincy."

Francis Toland, president of the Norfolk County Labor Council, said Chretien was endorsed because of "his current record of support for labor issues and your pledge of support for future issues affecting the men and women of organized labor."

Chretien said he is proud of his strong record on labor issues. He pointed to his insistence that construction projects be built by local unions. He also noted it was through his efforts that workers of Pneumatic Scale were able to negotiate an acceptable severance package related to the company's decision to sell their property on Newport Ave. to Stop and Shop. Approximately half of Pneumatic Scale's workforce is represented by Local 444, a union affiliated with the AFL-CIO.

"This endorsement is another indicator that my candidacy has appeal to people citywide. Along with my efforts on issues such as education, recycling, and the city budget, hopefully the things I've done to help working people will add up to a strong vote total in November," Chretien said.

"Particularly in this race, in which people can vote for up to three candidates, the Norfolk County Labor Council endorsement is likely to be very influential," he added.

Business 'Good' To 'Fantastic' Sidewalk Festival Gives Center Summer Boost

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The 25th annual Quincy center Sidewalk Festival was a "smash" according to most merchants who attributed the lively sales to the good weather coupled with great entertainment boosting the attendance from last year.

An enthusiastic Carol Nelson from Children's Orchard called the sale "fantastic" exclaiming she had 400 customers, a 10 percent increase from last year.

Richard Sweeney from Big Daddy hit the jackpot selling 1,000 hot dogs, almost 500 sausages and 120 hamburgers. Sweeney said he thought there were more booths and credited the great entertainment for bringing in the crowd.

Hancock Tobacco's business was a big success according to Joseph McArdle who sold many soft drinks as well as "tons of slush." He said the good weather was a big factor and recalled last year's oppressive heat in keeping the crowds away.

Presidential Camera's John Black said he had a "great day" talking to customers, a lot of foot traffic with great interest in the store. While acknowledging that business wasn't an above average day in the store itself he nonetheless had "quite a few sales."

Since this is Black's first year he could not compare it with last year only to say "If I had 10 people in the store, I'd say it was wonderful."

Kathy Missell from Infinity Books said she did much better than last year. There was more foot traffic and also attributed it to weather conditions.

Cathleen Ploof of Everlasting Engraving said she did three times the amount of business attributing it to a new sales item, a personalized tee shirt, plus the weather and also cited the great entertainment.

At ERA Central Real Estate Vince Moscardelli said he was "delighted" as this was the first time they had participated in the sale, and said he would "definitely be a part of it next year." He said four or five persons listed their homes while others asked to have them search for a home.

F.W. Woolworth's business was a "little better than last year" according to assistant manager Alex Munn. However, he noted it's "not what it used to be."

Beth Veneto, owner of Ginger Betty's on Tyler St. in North Quincy said by coming in the center business went "very well" especially with a large class of children attending a gingerbread cookie decorating class. A picnic table was set up and for three of the sale days; children had "great fun" decorating cookies.

Veneto bakes custom cakes and received several orders during the three days. A raffle was held where a large gingerbread house was given. She said this was her first year participating in the sale and that she would definitely return next year.

At Father Bill's Place a "constant stream of people walked by" with many of them purchasing tee shirts and pins at the booth according to Linda Carberry, fiscal manager there. She said the logo on the shirt read "homeless are not that far from home".

At Great Cuts, owner Joanne Falco said she sold "tons" from her product line and actually "sold out" the first day of the sidewalk sale. Falco, who is chairman of the QCBPA Promotions Committee said she had to replenish her supply for the remainder of the event.

She said she was unable to estimate the amount of persons who attended her shop as at times the "crowds were so tremendous" up and down the street, it was hard to keep track.

QCBPA Executive Director Maralin Manning said she was "thrilled with the traffic" and commented that the "numbers of people here in Quincy had a pleasant experience."

Manning said she hoped the large attendance would "generate thoughts to come back and visit us again."

Joseph Lind Appointed To U.S. Naval Academy

Joseph Lind of Quincy has been accepted for appointment to the U.S. Naval Academy.

The announcement was made recently by Congressman Gerry Studds. In all, 13 of Studds' 1995 nominees from the South Shore, Cape Cod and the Islands have been accepted for appointment to the U.S. Service Academies.

"These young people and their families should be extremely proud," said Studds. "I am confident they will succeed in the challenging environment of the academies and go on to become exceptional representatives of our nation."

All appointees were interviewed in January by the Congressman's Service Academy Nominee Selection Committee. The names of the students recommended for nomination were forwarded by Studds, without preferential listing, to the academies, which made final appointments on a competitive basis.

Studds said he encourages all interested students to apply for nominations for the 1996-97 academic year. To be eligible, a student must be a resident of the 10th Congressional District who will have graduated from high school by the end of June 1996. Deadline for applications is Nov. 1, 1995.

For more information, call Studds' office at 1-800-794-9911.

Judy Dacey Beechwood 'Volunteer Of The Month'

Judy Dacey was honored as June's "Volunteer of the Month" at Beechwood on the Bay, according to Sharron Beals, executive director of the community center.

Dacey coordinates and leads the All-City Stroke Club at the Center. Her personal and professional experience and abilities equip her to work with stroke survivors and families. She ably helps others cope, persevere and progress through their post-stroke chapter.

In addition to her role at Beechwood, Dacey serves as vice president of the city's Commission on Disability and on the city's Human Rights Committee. She is also an "access monitor" for the State Office of Disabilities.

The Stroke Club in Quincy is sponsored by Beechwood and holds monthly meetings year-round on the first Tuesday of each month at 10 a.m. Inquiries and referrals are welcomed. For more information, call Mary Gougian Centola at 471-5712.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Marina Bay: A Very Healthy Real Estate Market

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

There are not many places like Marina Bay in the Northeast, let alone the South Shore and Massachusetts.

A complete waterfront community made up of residential condominiums and apartments, office buildings, restaurants, a bank, retail and shopping facilities, entertainment clubs, boat slips and a full-service marina catering to every whim of boaters shows that it's not just a marina, it's a veritable city.

Quincy residents are free to enjoy a beautiful walk on the boardwalk on a sunny afternoon, shop or grab a bite to eat in many of the fine establishments. What real estate market in New England can boast the amenities to the likes of Marina Bay?

Prime Location:

As we all know, location is the key to successful real estate. Of all the possible scenarios, waterfront real estate is far and away the most desirable.

Another element adding to Marina Bay's desirability is its geographic location. Just minutes from Boston, the commute is relatively painless and allows the complex to tap into the masses of people who both work and live in the Big City.

100 Percent Occupancy:

What city, which Marina Bay essentially is, can boast a 100 percent occupancy rate for its commercial and residential properties? The corporate park, owned by Peter O'Connell, is currently tenanted by law firms, accounting firms, and many other executive firms, and has limited space available for lease or rent.

Boston Financial Data Services and Thompson & Thompson, located at 500 Victory Rd., are Marina Bay's anchor tenants. The 1001-2001 Marina Bay Drive condominium complex consists of two ninety-story structures featuring 245 units and the Seaport apartment building with 125 units, owned by Lincoln Property Co., again have more takers than units available.

In addition to the high-rise condos and the Seaport building, The Harbourside complex features 101 beautiful townhome condominiums.

"Marina Bay's condos are the most sought-after addresses on the South Shore," says John Wilson of Marina Bay on Boston Harbor. Seaport currently has a long waiting list for people looking for a chance to reside in the elegant Versailles-style structure. According to Wilson, "We have a very healthy market here and values are steadily increasing."

Changing Lifestyles:

One of the reasons Marina Bay is so popular has to do with the changing lifestyles of the public. There was a time not too long ago when marinas were only used to store boats or to embark on a fishing or sailing expedition.

"The weekend would come and boaters would jump on their boat and scoot away," explained George O'Malley of Marina Bay. "Now many boaters never leave their slip. They sit on their boat and relax. It has become their 'summer cottage,' if you will. Others come to the marina to enjoy all that the complex has to offer."

Restaurants have been key to catering to the various lifestyles. While many area towns are lucky to have two restaurants, Marina Bay offers eight, including Siro's, Amelia's, the Ocean Terrace and the Shanty, as well as many other eateries tapping into the recreation and leisure market.

The waterfront location is also prime for Marina Bay's renowned entertainment venue, The Tent. Targeting the younger crowd, The Tent attracts thousands of people from all over Massachusetts during the summer months.

The Marina-'90s Style:

With all the facilities that are at Marina Bay, the main reason people utilize the marina is for the boating services. No longer can a marina be used to just dock boats and gas them up for excursions.

"The competition for the downtown Boston market is very intense," says O'Malley. "There are almost 2,000 slips in the area, and if you are going to survive in the '90s, you must be a full-service organization and offer every possible amenity to your boaters."

Marina Bay, with 684 slips, is the largest marina in the Northeast and offers its customers concierge service such as making various appointments including dental and day care reservations, along with a wide range of mechanical and cleaning services on customers' vessels.

"You are going to see marinas becoming more customers services-oriented," says O'Malley. "Essentially, full service marinas have become a hospitality industry—a combination hotel and resort community."

Plans For Expansion:

As anyone who has ever taken Economics 101 knows, when demand exceeds supply, growth is imminent and expansion is necessary.

"Marina Bay in partnership with the city of Quincy has plans to utilize the vacant land within the complex to build to suit the needs of both the residential and commercial market," says John Wilson of Coastal Partners which recently purchased the marina, its support facilities and over 80 acres of vacant land.

Marina Bay is currently assessing the market and plans to build before the Year 2000. Quincy's healthiest real estate market has the potential to turn into a case study of how to manage 440 acres of waterfront land.

(Daniel J. Flynn III is president of Daniel J. Flynn & Co., Inc., a Quincy-based commercial real estate and real estate auction firm.)

William Geller Receives Realtor Of Year Award

WILLIAM GELLER

William H. Geller III, GRI, CRS, sales associate in the firm of Flavin & Flavin of Quincy, was named 1995 Realtor of the Year of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors at award ceremonies held recently at the Ramada Inn in Rockland.

Geller received the honor for his "outstanding contributions and dedication to the Realtor Association and the real estate bly, Realtors Community Service. Geller has served on RCS for the past four years and for the past two has been chairman. During his chairmanship, he has organized food drives, the Breast Cancer Walk, the Adopt-a-Family project, and personally started the Earthquake Relief Fund for victims of the California earthquake in 1994.

Geller also has coordinated the Habitat for Humanity house building project in both Braintree and Quincy and the Hatherly Road Fund for Victims of a fire in Scituate.

Because of his Realtor spirit, he was awarded the Diane Campbell Award in 1992 for his service as an Ambassador of Good Will for encouraging and supporting others.

Among those present for the ceremonies were his wife, Betty; his brother Rick; his sisters Gretchen, Christina, Jill and Laura along with other family members, friends, and business associates. Over 150 members, guests and friends were in attendance to honor Geller.

As local Board Realtor of the Year, Geller's name will be placed in nomination for receipt of the Massachusetts Realtor of the Year Award to be presented in September at the Massachusetts Association of Realtors Convention to be held in Newport, R.I.

Legion

Bridgewater Next Foe Morrisette Cruises Past Foxboro

By KERRY BYRNK

All the elements needed by a good baseball team came together for the Morrisette American Legion club over the weekend as they easily swept Foxboro in a best-of-three series.

Morrisette (17-6), which placed first in Zone 6 East, is the only team from that group alive following the first round of District playoffs. Weymouth, Canton, Braintree and Milton lost their best-of-three series.

The Quincy club was scheduled to play Zone 10 representative Bridgewater last night (Wednesday) at Adams Field. Game two is today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. at Bridgewater's Legion Field. A coin flip before game one was to determine the site of a third game, if necessary.

Pitcher Tom Malvesti led Morrisette to a 7-1 win over Foxboro (10-16) Friday night. In game two Saturday, the bats came alive with two home runs in a 15-1 win.

In the first game, Malvesti had one of his best controlled outings of the season, effectively mixing the high heat with a curve on his way to striking out 14 men. He gave up three hits and walked two. Malvesti struck out the side in the second and showed absolutely no signs of weakening as the game wore on: in the seventh he used just 11 pitches to K the three batters he faced.

"Tom threw well," said Morrisette coach Dave Perdios in a somewhat understated way. "We expect him to go out there and keep us in the game. Whenever he pitches we know we'll be in the game. Whether he strikes out 14 or five, he won't give up many hits."

Tom Cunio got Morrisette on the board in the first with a bases-loaded single that knocked in Ron McGann. With Cunio and Paul Marnikovic on base in the fourth, Andy Joyce ripped a single that drove in both for what proved to be the decisive runs.

Jim Sapienza's triple knocked in McGann, and Tim Zaniboni reached on an error allowing Sapienza to score, as Morrisette added their fourth and fifth runs in the fifth inning.

In the sixth, Cunio led with a single and Marnikovic closed the scoring, courtesy of two errors which allowed him to turn a base hit into a two-run roundtripper.

Morrisette handed Foxboro their only run in the fifth with a series of unwise throws. Shawn O'Grady reached on an error. Jay Ilenello followed with a base hit to shallow center. Center fielder Sapienza chased down the ball and came up firing to third in an effort to nail O'Grady. The ball got past third baseman Cunio, but Malvesti, covering, caught the ball off a bounce behind the bag.

Malvesti's first instinct was to gun the ball to second as Ilenello attempted to stretch out a double. The ball was overthrown into the outfield, allowing O'Grady to cross the plate.

The game two victory was the type Perdios had hoped for: "We've been a little frustrated at the plate over the last half of the season," he said after the

Club Chretien Wins Division Title

The girls of Club Chretien put it all together to take the first city championship in the inaugural season of the Quincy Youth Softball League junior division.

In a do-or-die game for both clubs in the double-elimination tournament, Club Chretien topped Quincy DARE, 13-7, to take the title.

Courtney Riley came to the rescue for the champs, pitching six strong innings, striking out six and allowing seven hits. She closed the game in dramatic fashion, fanning the last batter she faced after DARE loaded the bases.

Offensively, she got all the support she needed in the first inning as Chretien sent 13 batters to the plate and scored eight runs.

They opened the inning with six consecutive singles off the sticks of Beth Goodrich, Katie Mercurio, Courtney Riley, Lisa Schifone, Meghan Chagnon and Alyssa Hawksley and a double by Katelin Markham.

The champs quickly added their final five runs in the second, courtesy of hits by Goodrich, Mercurio, Riley, Chagnon, Hawksley and Missy Miller.

Goodrich and Mercurio had 3 for 3 outings. Two hits each were clubbed by Riley, Chagnon and Hawksley. Sparking the championship defense were Meghan Lahar, Susan Spring, Erin Linnane, Kristen Gallagher and Marilyn Powers.

DARE attempted a rally in the fourth, but fell short with only four runs. Kerri McAteer, Casey Lorman, Lauren Sullivan and Christina Conley recorded base hits to pace the comeback effort.

In an earlier playoff meeting, Club Chretien bested DARE, 7-1, thanks to the outstanding pitching of Riley.

The young hurler allowed four hits, struck out eight and walked one. Sparkling play by the Chretien defense kept runners off the basepaths. The top fielders were Goodrich, Hawksley, Spring, Lahar, Linnane, Gallagher, Powers and Julie Rackauskas.

Mercurio, Riley and Schifone each went 2 for 2. Also stroking base hits were Chagnon and Miller.

Caitland Callahan, Ashley Fowkes, Melissa Braga and Elizabeth Sullivan got the DARE hits.

Club Chretien was coached by Everett Goodrich and Tom Gallagher. They wanted to thank sponsor Larry Chretien for his support of Quincy Youth Softball.

THE PROPER ROTATION

To get the most wear and value out of a set of tires, car owners are usually advised to rotate their tires every 6,000 to 8,000 miles. On front-wheel-drive cars, this means moving the front tires straight back and crisscrossing the back tires up to the front. On rear-wheel-drive automobiles, move the back tires straight up to the front and move the front tires back to opposite wheels. On four-wheel-drive vehicles that require a shift into 4WD, the tires should be rotated in the same manner as with a rear-wheel drive vehicle. If no shifting is involved (all-wheel-drive), the tires should be rotated as if it were a front-wheel-drive vehicle. At the same time, have the tires checked for balance.

Whether you need to replace one or more tires, or just to rotate your tires for maximum life, LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO is the perfect size to get you back on the road quickly. We have a strong commitment to give you individual, personal treatment. Complete satisfaction begins right here in our service department where ASE Certified technicians and the latest diagnostic equipment assure you that your vehicle will keep you safe. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550 and let's get acquainted. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm.

first win over Foxboro. "But when the bats come around we'll relax. Things will continue to get better."

Zaniboni produced all the offense Morrisette would need in game two with a first inning grand slam. The clean-up hitter came to the plate after the first three batters drew walks.

Kenney closed the game with a longball, as he pinch-hit a two-run shot over the center field fence, knocking in Marnikovic.

Jeff Russell posted the win with five scoreless innings of work. He allowed three hits, walked none and struck out three.

Scott Kelly and Mike Kenney pitched one inning each in relief.

Morrisette scored two runs in the second as Russell tripled and scored on Mike Sheffer's base hit. Sheffer came in on a wild pitch.

Marnikovic scored in the third. In the fifth, five more crossed the plate for Morrisette. Sapienza and Zaniboni drew bases-loaded walks, Malvesti knocked in a run on a fielder's choice, and Cunio ripped a two-run single.

McGann knocked in Russell, aided by an error, in the sixth.

Joyce stroked two base hits for Morrisette.

Zaniboni's was the second grand slam by a Morrisette player this year. Sapienza hit one in a 26-12 win over Quincy Legion.

Bryan Post, Elks On Collision Course

Bryan Post has been hanging on by the skin of their teeth, winning two playoff games in extra innings.

Pitchers Mark Kelly, Shawn Manning, Michael Shaw and Matt McCann and infielder Steve Wiltshire have been outstanding in the nailbiters.

BP edged police, 3-2, in eleven innings.

Kelly scattered four hits over seven innings and Manning worked four innings of hitless relief to seal the win.

Pitcher Pat Dolbeare and Pat Duggan were very effective for the Police squad.

Peter Donnelly's double put Police up, 1-0, in the third.

Bryan Post took a 2-1 lead in the sixth thanks to base hits by Brian Gates and Manning and a double by Kevin Cellucci.

In the last regulation frame, Dolbeare tied the contest with a base hit and nearly scored the winning run on a sacrifice fly: BP right fielder Shaw rifled a perfect throw home to nail Dolbeare for a double play, sending the game into the extra innings.

Cellucci led the 11th with his second double and scored the game-winner on hits by Wiltshire and Manning.

Gates, Cellucci, Wiltshire, Manning and Shawn Boostrom had two hits apiece. Gates and Matt Graham anchored the defense while Wiltshire, Mike Sullivan and Matt Norton made game-saving defensive plays. McCann, John Cooper and Didier Alther played well.

It took only one extra inning for BP to stamp out a 13-8 win over Golden Print.

Shaw pitched into the sixth inning. McCann was immense in relief, fanning five batters over the last three innings.

John Sullivan's base hit staked Golden Print to a 3-0 lead in the first. BP took a 4-3 lead in the fourth on Shaw's base hit and a three-run double by Mike Sullivan.

Print inked a 6-4 lead on hits by Chris Carthas, Jason Chagnon and John Sullivan. The see-saw battle continued as BP took an 8-6 lead in the top of the seventh on hits by Gates, Manning, Kelly and Shaw. In the last of the seventh, Print tied it thanks to Chagnon and Staffier.

Print had the bases loaded and could have ended the game, but McCann skillfully fanned the final two men he faced.

BP erupted for five runs in the eighth on Wiltshire's double and Manning's base hit.

The Elks, defending champions in the Babe Ruth League, won their first two playoff games over Barry's Deli, 8-2, and Quincy Police, 14-12.

Rusty Corner hurled a nifty three-hitter in the win over Barry's Deli, striking out six.

The Elks struck first, as Steve Clarke singled and Chris Bregoli smashed a double to left-center.

In the next frame, Bregoli made the defensive play of the game as he dove for a Jim Cunio smash up the middle and threw him out at first.

The Elks added four in the third. Justin Adams doubled, Bobby Johnston singled and Clarke stroked a base hit and Kevin Shaw singled in a run.

Three more Elks runs came in the third as Corner singled, Clarke reached on an error, Bregoli walked and Jack Daly clubbed an RBI base hit.

Tim Daly and Mike McEvoy hit back-to-back singles to account for the Barry's runs.

The Elks pounded the ball in their wild win over Quincy Police.

After falling behind 1-0, Corner led the Elks' first with a walk. Matt McLoughlin tripled to deep left, Bregoli reached on an error and Daly and Shaw crushed back-to-back triples for a 4-1 lead.

Police tied the game at 4-4 after Peter Donnelly walked and Ray Sartre singled.

The Elks added five runs as Daly, Will Tracy and Johnston had RBI singles.

In the fourth, Police's Pat Duggan singled, Jay Ford walked, Kevin O'Connor walked and Donnelly singled. Daly came in to relieve Bregoli and squashed the threat with a strikeout and groundout.

The Elks scored what proved to be the winning runs as Adams (walk) and Tracy (error) reached base. Johnston moved both runners with a sacrifice and Corner's base hit knocked in two. McLoughlin singled and Bregoli hit a sac fly to center.

Police made a final comeback attempt in the seventh. With two outs, Mike Markham doubled, Duggan and Ford singled, and Frank Alibrandi reached on an error as three runs were scored. For Police, Markham, Donnelly, Duggan and Ford had two hits.

Daly sparked the Elks with a single, double and triple. McLoughlin also had three hits.

Junior League

Hutchings, Royce Big In Title Game

Bolstered by the gutsy pitching of Ryan Hutchings and the clutch hitting of Craig Royce, Atty. George Burke Club swept to the Quincy Youth Baseball Junior League championship with a heart-stopping 4-3 win over Rotary.

Hutchings scattered nine hits in earning his second playoff victory for Burke. Royce delivered a two-out double to the fence in left-center, driving in Chris Wilson and Billy O'Brien. Wilson had singled and O'Brien had walked.

Hutchings was aided by an outstanding defense, in particular by catchers Joe Sudak and Royce. Royce tagged out three runners at the plate while Sudak blocked the plate on two consecutive plays to prevent Rotary from adding to a 3-1 lead.

O'Brien gunned down a runner in the fourth, with a perfect strike from left field to Royce, who applied the tag.

Rotary jumped to a 1-0 lead as Frank Curreri walked and Jordan Virtue delivered the first of his three hits to score Curreri.

Burke's Wilson stole a run off of hard-throwing Matt Millerick. Wilson drew a two-out walk, stole second, then stole third with the throw to the hot corner going into left field.

Rotary took a 3-1 lead in the third. Brian Peyer singled and Millerick doubled to right center. Virtue singled in a run, Joe Thorley walked and David (Bigg) Benn singled in the other run.

It was here that Sudak made his two big defensive plays, with Dan Duggan throwing out one of the runners at the plate.

Hutchings began Burke's rally with a single. He advanced to third on Brian Rooney's ground out and scored when Wilson beat out and infield hit. Royce followed with his heroic two-run double.

Millerick had two hits for Rotary, while Pat Duff and Mike Ryan had singles. Burke got hits from Pat Bregoli, Sean Moriarty, Matt Moriarty and Duggan.

Burke advanced to the finals by knocking off Jaehnnig Chiropractic, 8-3, behind the a stellar five-hit, nine-strikeout performance by Justin Hall. Hall was in command throughout and survived some shaky fielding in the third.

Burke's Hutchings drove in Hall in the first.

They added six in a decisive second inning. Dan McCaughin led with a single and Royce drove him in with a long base hit. Sudak walked and Duggan reached on an error. Bregoli and Hall knocked in runs as they reached on fielder's choices. Hutchings knocked in his second with a sacrifice fly.

Pat Jaehnnig and Chris Ham led the third with singles as Chiropractic closed the gap to 7-3. Dan O'Toole reached on an error and Kevin Weeks ripped a double to score two.

Hall toughened after the third. He retired six of the last nine batters he faced on strikeouts, including the final two outs in the sixth.

Hall finished the season with 116 K's.

Peter Turowski accounted for the final Burke tally with a double that plated Hutchings, who had tripled.

Hutchings had two hits and two RBI while O'Brien had two hits.

The champs went 4-0 in the playoffs after a 15-7 regular season campaign. Hutchings and Hall recorded two playoff wins apiece.

Rotary advanced after topping the National League standings for the third consecutive season.

Final Junior League regular season standings:

American League: Jaehnnig, 18-4; Burke, 15-7; Lions, 14-8; Kiwanis, 12-9-1; Beacon, 8-14; Burgin Platner, 2-20.

National League: Rotary, 13-8-1; Elks, 12-9-1; Police, 10-12; Colonial Federal, 9-12-1; Keohane's, 8-13-1; South Shore Buick, 7-14-1.

By KERRY BYRNE

Yakoo is the much-maligned but recently saved North Quincy High School Red Raiders mascot. A tomahawk-wielding figure dressed in what is supposed to be 'Indian' garb, Yakoo is said by some to be offensive to Native Americans.

Whether or not it is offensive is an individual judgment. But if you find Yakoo (which is a caricature of North Quincy alum Dr. Allan Yacubian) to be so, then why stop there? There's a great big world of nicknames and mascots to be banished. Heck, Red Raiders is not even the most offensive nickname to Native Americans in this city. Follow me:

As an Irishman, I find the Notre Dame Fighting Irish tag particularly rude. Hey, I haven't been in a fight since high school. I know plenty of Irish guys who don't go looking for fights. How many decades has it been since we had an Irish heavyweight champion? Imagine the uproar if they were called the Notre Dame Fighting Shi'ite Muslims.

And what about that little mascot? Arms curled into tight, upraised fists...ruddy complexion...Hey! what's with those cheeks? A mockery of the alleged Irish penchant for indulging in a little drink from time to time? We can't stand for this.

How 'bout the West Virginia Mountaineers? This is an unnecessary attack upon rednecks from across Appalachia.

Have you seen their mascot? A gun-toting, tobacco-spitting hick topped by a furry Daniel Boone cap. If I were a redneck I'd be up in arms. Believe it or not, there are plenty of West Virginians who know how to read and who aren't married to their siblings.

Then there's the Wisconsin Badgers. This, to me, is a blatant attack on mothers and wives. "Wear a sweater, it's cold." "Don't go out without a raincoat." "Where were you all night?" "Why do you smell like stale beer and cheap perfume?" Badger, badger, badger.

The list of inflammatory mascots knows no bounds: Detroit Lions...Christians feel that the glorification of the said beast makes a mockery of the bloodied martyrs of their past.

Syracuse Orangemen...Fruit farmers are in a rage over the caricature of their profession.

Arizona State Sun Devils...Satan worshippers from the Southwest disapprove of this fiendish image.

Tampa Bay Buccaneers, Pittsburgh Pirates, Oakland Raiders...Independent-minded sailors and merchant marines feel they are unfairly portrayed as bloodthirsty, sea-roving vagabonds.

Michigan State Spartans, USC Trojans...Ancient Greeks who remember fondly the Golden Age of Hellenism are rolling over in their graves in protest of the warmongering image.

Do you get the point? Just about anything can be offensive, if you let it. Which brings us back to Yakoo. People from North Quincy take a great deal of pride in Yakoo. Few people say, 'Yakoo is portrayed in a manner that buys into every narrow European stereotype of what Indians were like: a dirty, violent, warlike people bent on fulfilling their hedonistic desires,' or have even heard those thoughts.

The fact that some people feel this way says more about them than it does about Yakoo itself.

Attacking Yakoo is easy. But if Yakoo-bashers really wanted to banish symbols offensive to Native Americans, maybe they should go after North Quincy's rival, the Quincy Presidents.

The American wars against the continent's natives were genocide: Entire nations of people wiped off the face of the planet. And many of these wars were led by American Presidents.

John Quincy Adams was swept from office by Andrew Jackson in 1828. One major reason why was that Jackson had a much clearer policy on how to handle the Indian 'situation': get rid of 'em, fast. In fact, the shining piece of legislation during his tenure was the Indian Removal Act of 1830. Thousands of Native Americans were forcefully removed from their homelands and sent west of the Mississippi. A great many, including women and children, died during the forced march. It was called the Trail of Tears.

If I were a Native American it would offend me to be associated with a symbol which glorified these actions. It would not bother me to be represented by Yakoo anymore than it would bother me as one of Irish descent to be represented by a fighting Leprechaun.

People use symbols and mascots as a source of pride. But if you look hard enough, you can find a negative side to any symbol.

Youth baseball and softball coaches are asked to submit team photos for publication in The Quincy Sun.

Please include names of all players and a telephone number you can be reached at if there are any questions.

St. John's

Red Storm Win Two; Doherty, Centrella Honored

The St. John's Red Storm baseball team struck twice last week with wins over North Marshfield and Hingham.

A five-run first inning keyed a 10-8 win over North Marshfield.

Dave Centrella did not have his best pitching performance for St. John's, but he made up for it at the plate with a 3 for 4 effort that included a double and two RBI.

Matt Gardner and Jim Conostas crushed back-to-back home runs in the fifth to keep St. John's on top. Tom Callahan went 2 for 2 with three RBI.

Marshfield had runners on second and third and was threatening to tie the game in the bottom of the sixth, but Chris Doherty made a diving snag of a screaming line drive to end the threat and the game.

Joe Gibbons (3 for 3, double, three RBI) and Tony DiSilva (2 for 3, two doubles, three RBI) led the Marshfield offense.

The Red Storm were involved in a wild 12-11 comeback win over Hingham.

Hingham scored 10 runs in the first two innings. St. John's stormed back with a four-run rally in the final inning.

Doherty earned the win in relief. He worked four innings, gave up one earned run and one hit, and fanned six.

Centrella smashed a two-run dinger to key the Red Storm rally in the sixth. Bill Page, who struggled early on the mound, redeemed himself by smashing a game-tying double in the sixth and scoring the winning run.

Gardner had a monster day, going 3 for 4 with two RBI and falling one round trip shy of hitting for the cycle. John Lupo was 2 for 2 with a double and two RBI. Facing a full count and with two outs, John Chevalier stroked a clutch pinch-hit single.

Hingham's Rick Zihander went 3 for 5 with two doubles and three ribbies. Pete Childs also batted in three, on a single and a triple.

The Red Storm lost momentum against Westwood, falling 7-1 and dropping out of the Dennis Tournament.

St. John's was awarded two trophies for their play in the tourney. Chris Doherty received the Tony Kent Memorial Sportsmanship Award for his fine display of skill and team play. Doherty went 4 for 8 with two doubles and three RBI in the tournament.

The Joe Sullivan Memorial MVP award went to Dave Centrella for his outstanding efforts. Centrella went 6 for 10, with three doubles, a home run and four RBI.

Hoop Tournament Applications Available

Team applications are available for the 1995 Twilight Hoop Tournament sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department.

All participants on each roster must reside in the same ward of the city.

SUMMER CAR CARE

Car Maintenance Report: A Lesson To Be Learned

One of the easiest parts of a car to check is the most ignored, according to a statistical report from the Car Care Council.

Tires topped the list of neglected components during the 1994 National Car Care Month vehicle check campaign. Thirty-one percent of cars had improperly inflated tires or excessively worn tread.

Overall, 87 percent of cars checked failed the inspection for some kind of maintenance neglect. Nearly one out of five failed the emissions test, an important aspect of the vehicle check campaign.

"Excessive hydrocarbons in the exhaust, a sign of poor combustion due to a dirty air filter or worn spark plugs, causes wasted gas and polluted air," says National Car Care Month Executive Director Donna Wagner.

"We've found an increase in other areas as well," she adds. "Each year, from 1988 through 1994, for example, an average 7 percent of vehicles failed inspection due to faulty windshield wipers. In 1994, that percentage had increased to 14 percent.

"Also, 16.2 percent of vehicles failed due to low or dirty fluids (motor oil, transmission, power steering or brake fluid), up from an average of 15.2 percent over the previous four years. Twenty percent had one or more lights inoperative.

"Ninety-four percent of vehicles 10 years old or older needed maintenance," concludes Wagner. "That's the highest percentage we have seen since the project began."

The voluntary inspection program is part of an annual campaign designed to focus public attention on the benefits of proper car care. Maintenance neglect leads to air pollution, wasted fuel and premature wear, emphasizes the Council. Further, a neglected car is a safety hazard.

The statistical report, produced by Car Care Council in cooperation with the Automotive Market Research Council, is based on inspection of 6,569 vehicles in 31 cities.

OBITUARIES

Henry T. Roche, 71Retired Shawmut Bank Supervisor; Past Morrisette Post Commander

A funeral Mass for Henry T. Roche, 71, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. John the Baptist Church.

Mr. Roche died July 23 at home.

A former supervisor for Shawmut Bank, he worked there for more than 45 years before retiring several years ago. Recently, he worked part-time for the Curtis Farms store on Adams Street.

He was immediate past commander of the Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post in Quincy.

Quincy Veterans Services Director Henry "Hank" Bradley, a member of the Morrisette Post, said Mr. Roche worked diligently in an effort to build a new post home.

An Army veteran of World War II, he was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in Weymouth. He was active in veterans' affairs for a long time.

Mr. Roche was a member of the Weymouth Knights of Columbus and the German Club in Norwood.

Born in Rockland, he was educated in Rockland and Weymouth schools and was a 1942 graduate of Weymouth High School. He lived in Quincy for 35 years.

His wife, Eleanor G. (Hearn) Roche, died May 13.

He is survived by a sister, J. Lucille Taubert of Weymouth; three nieces, a nephew, and six grandchildren and grandnephews.

Burial was in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

Harrold A. Johnson, 68Marina Bay Yacht Broker

A funeral service for Harrold "Hal" Johnson, 68, of Quincy was held July 7 in the Lydon Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St.

Mr. Johnson died July 4 in Weymouth after a brief illness.

For the last several years he was the owner of Marina Yacht Sales at Marina Bay in Squantum. He had lived in California for many years and had previously worked for Filene's in Boston and the Tubular Rivet & Stud Co. in Wollastont.

Mr. Johnson was a Navy veteran of World War II, and a fourth degree member of the Knights of Columbus.

Born in Wollastont at the Whitehouse Maternity Hospital, Mr. Johnson's memorial service was held in his birthing room which is now the Lydon Funeral Home.

He is survived by a son, Timothy J. Johnson; two sisters, Margarite Galvin of Wollastont, and Grayce McNiece of Quincy; his beloved friend, Jacquelyn L. Hill of Sacramento, Calif.; and many nieces and nephews. He was the brother of the late Jack Johnson.

Interment was at sea.

Donations may be made to the Rev. Frances T. McFarland, Boston Catholic News Center, Box 9109, Newtonville, 02158-9109.

SCOTT DEWARE*A Thought For The Week

Napoleon could have ridden in an automobile. Shakespeare could have made "talkies" of his best plays. Caesar could have telephoned the news of his victories to Rome. Cleopatra could have had a steam yacht. Socrates could have recorded his dialogues on phonograph records. The principles on which all modern inventions are based, the materials out of which they are made, and the forces which operate them, have always existed. The world had to wait for a few men to discover and utilize them.

In the years before us, amazing invention and improvements will be made in every line of work. Opportunities for fame and wealth await men and women of intelligence, imagination and ingenuity who can perceive new or better ways to serve mankind, and put them into operation.

Yes, it is true that the greatest achievement of the human spirit is to live up to one's opportunities and make the most of one's resources...

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Massachusetts Highway Department Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges (1988 edition) and Construction Standards (1977 edition), all as last revised, unless specified or directed otherwise.

All work under this contract shall be completed in 75 calendar days.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check is required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall pay an additional non-refundable amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs. All checks shall be made payable to the City of Quincy.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works Engineering Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after July 5, 1995.

A pre-bid conference will be held in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works on Thursday, August 8, 1995 at 2:00 PM. All prospective bidders are urged to attend.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of 5% of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder shall be required to furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond with a surety company acceptable to the City.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised.

No bidder may withdraw the bid within 60 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids.

All prospective bidders must be certified by the Mass. Highway Department.

All Federal, State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to Minimum Wage Rates, Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents must be complied with.

The project goals in these areas shall be as given as below:

1. The Contractor shall maintain on the project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) MBE participation and five percent WBE participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs will be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit completed MBE/WBE forms with the bid.

3. Compliance with the City of Quincy's Ordinance No. 532 requiring Contractors working on City-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy Residents is mandatory.

4. Conformance with the minimum wage rates for all workers, as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries issued in the most current "Wage Decisions" as applicable to the project area shall be enforced. Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted.

The City of Quincy reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

INVITATION TO BID

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for Franklin Avenue Watermain Replacement Contract - Summer 1995 on Friday, August 11, 1995 at 10:00 AM at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this Contract includes, but is not necessarily limited to the removal of existing 12-inch DI pipe and the installation of new 12-inch D.I. watermain along Franklin Avenue, including furnishing all materials, labor, equipment, tools, apparatus and all other incidental work required to complete the removal of existing watermain and installation of new watermain, as specified or as shown on the drawings.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Massachusetts Highway Department Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges and Construction Standards, as last revised, unless specified or directed otherwise.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will be required for each set of contract documents. Bidders requesting contract documents by mail shall also include a separate non-refundable deposit payable to the City of Quincy, in the amount of $15.00 per set to cover the costs of shipping and handling.

The contract documents may be obtained during the business hours of 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works Engineering Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after Wednesday, July 26, 1995.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of 5% of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder must furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Payment Bond with a surety company acceptable to the City.

A pre-bid conference will be held in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on Friday, August 4, 1995 at 10:30 AM. All prospective bidders are urged to attend.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 60 calendar days after the actual date of the bid opening. All work under this contract shall be completed in 90 calendar days.

The bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised. Bidders attention is called to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid, as determined by the Commissioner of Labor and Industries, under the provisions of Mass. General Law, Chapter 149, Sections 26 to 27D, inclusive.

All Federal, State and local regulations in relation to Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Employment of Quincy Residents, as required under City Ordinance No. 532, and Minimum Wage Rates shall be complied with.

Goals for this project are as follows:

1. The Contractor shall maintain on this project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee man hours to total man hours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) participation and five percent (5%) Women's Business Enterprise (WBE) participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs shall be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit complete MBE/WBE forms with his bid, including SOMWBA Certification letters for each MBE/WBE.

3. Compliance with the City of Quincy's ordinance requiring contractors working on City-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy residents is mandatory.

4. All workers on this project shall be paid the "Minimum Wage Rates" as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries for each type of work classification. Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any of these provisions shall be granted.

The City of Quincy reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids when such action is deemed in the best interests of the City. The City does not condone submissions of unbalanced bids. Such bid may be summarily rejected.

City Wants $500,000 Put In Ambulance Escrow

$134,000 to the company, according to the preliminary findings.

The auditors said Norfolk-Bristol sent another $151,000 to $393,700 in bills to collection agencies.

Norfolk-Bristol did not provide auditors with figures on the total amount billed in Quincy during the 1994 and 1995, saying those figures were unavailable.

Raymond said the final audit report could be completed as early as the end of this week.

The audit was called for after the company admitted in May it has mistakenly billed at least 128 Quincy residents for its services. The problem was brought to the city's attention by Raymond, who initially investigated the matter after he discovered two of his clients had been wrongly billed.

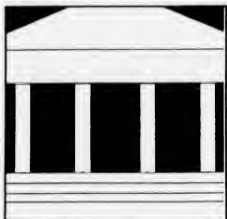

According to its contract with the hospital, the ambulance company cannot charge indigent or uninsured residents for its services. If a patient has insurance, it must charge no more than the allowable rate and must bill the insurance company directly. Norfolk-Bristol cannot bill the patient for the balance if the insurance company declines to pay the full amount.

Norfolk-Bristol spokeswoman Ellen Marlette could not be reached for comment at press time.

The company has established a toll-free number for those who have questions on their bills. The number is 1-800-498-0480.

Former Quincy Man Held In Girl's Murder

A 21-year-old Mashpee resident was arraigned Monday in Quincy District Court in connection with the murder of a Stoughton girl whose body was found in Quincy's Granite Rail Quarry Nov. 20.

Robert Larkin III, formerly of Quincy, pleaded innocent to a charge of first-degree murder in connection with the death of 17-year-old Sonia Leal. He was held without bail and will return to court Aug. 18.

Prosecutor Robert Delahunt told the court Larkin and two other men beat Leal and then hogtied her with yellow nylon rope. The two others, Kevin Lynch, 30, of Quincy and Shawn Kane, 20, of Weymouth, then raped Leal "when she was either unconscious or dead," said Delahunt, citing Larkin's statement to police after he was arrested last Friday.

Larkin told police the incident occurred after a $75 charge for sex. The three men had picked up the girl in Boston's Combat Zone before bringing her back to a house in Quincy where the beating occurred, he said.

Lynch and Kane had not been charged with the murder at press time, although Lynch is wanted for failing to appear before a grand jury investigation in the case, Delahunt said the investigation is continuing.

Leal's body was found in the quarry wrapped in a comforter and weighed down with three cinderblocks. She died of asphyxiation.

Delahunt said a piece of the nylon rope was used to bind her hands and feet and was knotted around her neck, and layers of duct tape were used to seal her mouth.

Larkin confessed to the crime last Friday night, according to Delahunt, after he was confronted with evidence that his fingerprint matched one lifted from the duct tape. He then implicated the two other men, Delahunt said.

Remembering A Slain Friend

BROAD MEADOWS MIDDLE SCHOOL students conduct a meeting to exchange ideas on how to raise money to build a school in Muritke, Pakistan in memory of slain human rights activist Iqbal Masih. Iqbal, 12, who visited Broad Meadows last December, was murdered Easter Sunday in his native country for speaking out against the oppression there. From left, Amy Papile, Amanda Loos and Ken Nickerson listen to one of several fund-raising proposals under consideration for the project.

TELEVISION CREW FROM Nickelodeon, the nationally-known cable television station, tapes Broad Meadows Middle School students Betsy Livingston, Jen Brundige and Mike Gibbons as they check locations on the U.S. map that have responded to their appeal over the Internet for donations to a fund that will help build a school in Pakistan in memory of slain human rights activist Iqbal Masih.

Pine Hill Cemetery Lots Available Aug. 7

The Quincy Cemetery Department announces cemetery lots will be available for purchase beginning Monday, Aug. 7.

Residents of the City of Quincy will be eligible to purchase single or double lots at the Pine Hill Cemetery in West Quincy.

Single lots, which will accommodate two burials, will cost $860. Double lots, with space for four interments, will cost $1,710. Larger lots may be available upon request.

All cemetery lots can be bought on a pre-need basis.

"It is comforting to know that Quincy residents will now be able to buy lots on a pre-need basis," said Richard Sweeney, chairman of the Cemetery Board of Managers.

"This leaves one less step that families have to concern themselves with during a trying time. It is satisfying to know that such a tough process is now easier because of our expansion project," Sweeney said.

The additional space was made available by a recently completed seven-year expansion project overseen by Mayor James Sheets and the Cemetery Board of Managers. Although there is currently significant room available, the city recommends interested parties act soon because the lots are expected to sell quickly.

Park, Forestry and Cemetery Executive Director Thomas Koch credited the cemetery managers and his predecessor, Ray Cattaneo, with providing this service to Quincy residents.

Raymondi-Mariano Plan Would Relieve Overcrowding At Sterling New Elementary School Proposed For Quincy Point

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Two School Committee members have devised a plan to help relieve overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School, a proposal that calls for, among other things, construction of a new elementary school in Quincy Point.

Daniel Raymondi, the committee's vice chairman and committeeman Ronald Mariano said at press time they planned to introduce the proposal at last night's (Wednesday's) School Committee meeting. Their written resolution calls upon School Supt. Eugene Creedon to establish a committee to study the feasibility of the following:

- Reestablishment of the Quincy Point Middle School, which would be housed at the Point-Webster Elementary School.

- Construction of a new elementary school in Quincy Point to house students currently attending Point-Webster.

- Proper utilization of space within both buildings in order to insure efficiency and proper size for both schools.

Raymondi and Mariano said they hope the School Committee will receive a report from the superintendent's committee sometime in October.

Both men said their plan addresses a very serious problem.

"There's no dispute about the overcrowding conditions at Sterling," said Raymondi. "The School Committee has heard about it from parents for many months."

"We're being proactive and attacking the (overcrowding) problem," added Mariano.

Raymondi and Mariano said construction of a new school in Quincy Point is the most sensible solution to the problem because an elementary school is less expensive to build than a middle school, 62 percent of the cost of building a new school is reimbursable by the state, the Webster School previously was used as a junior high and middle school for many years, and the return of a middle school in Quincy Point would be a permanent solution to the overcrowding problems at Sterling, which is located in South Quincy.

Raymondi estimated that between 250 and 350 students currently travel by bus to attend the Sterling School.

He also pointed out that the city traditionally had five middle schools until "the community was devastated by (Proposition 2 1/2) cuts in the 1980s."

Currently, the city has four middle schools: Sterling, Atlantic, Broad Meadows and Central.

Likewise, Quincy Point once had three elementary

$4-8 Million Plans For Adams Historic Site

The Adams National Historic Site has drafted a 20-year management plan with two options for improving the site, which currently draws about 40,000 annual visitors to the city.

The plan was drafted despite threatened cuts by the National Park Service.

The plan's first option calls for $8 million in renovations and improvements to the site, including establishment of a permanent visitors' center, more than doubling the park's staff, and opening the site year-round.

The second option calls for $4 million for improving restrooms and access for visitors with disabilities.

Officials said both options are designed to make the site more appealing to tourists and preserving the Adams family's story and artifacts for future generations.

The Park Service is soliciting public comments on the 55-page draft until Aug. 25. Officials said the plan should be complete by January.

The Adams Site includes the Adams Birth-

Mullen Plans Crossing Guard At Beechwood School

Police Chief Francis Mullen is planning to place a crossing guard at the soon-to-be-reopened Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston.

The chief said this week he is planning to speak to school officials about the matter as soon as possible and plans to provide police coverage at the school.

"Before school begins, we'll talk to the people at the school," he said. "We've never left anything unattended. The safety of the community is our priority."

School Committeeman Stephen Durkin recently urged Mullen and other officials to take steps to ensure the presence of a crossing guard at the school.

Durkin, who planned to make the recommendation at last night's (Wednesday's) School Committee meeting, made his concerns known in a recent letter to Mullen, Mayor James Sheets, and School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

"Numerous parents in the Wollaston area have expressed safety concerns regarding the re-opening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in September," Durkin wrote. "Specifically, parents are under the impression that no plan is in place to provide a crossing guard should be in place beginning the first day of school. It should be considered that:

"Beechwood has been closed for approximately 15 years and, accordingly, motorists are not accustomed to young children crossing Fenno St. in such large numbers.

"Fenno St. is a fairly busy two-lane street where vehicles frequently exceed the speed limit.

"Many of the Beechwood students will be walkers, almost all of whom live on that side of Fenno Street opposite the school.

"And, finally, there are no traffic signals in place.

BLOWING A (HEAD) GASKET

A rough idle and misfiring are sometimes indicative of a blown head gasket. This is the gasket that seals the combustion chamber of each cylinder between the cylinder head and the engine block. In the event that the gasket fails at the narrow area between cylinders, compression will be lost and engine misfire will result. The cause of head gasket failure may be engine overheating or localized cylinder head overheating, which may cause the head to warp. Whatever the cause, it should be located. In the event that localized overheating of the cylinder head is to blame, it may be caused by obstructed coolant passages in the head gasket, the engine block, or the head itself. If so, neither the radiator nor the temperature light will display symptoms that indicate future failure.

HINT: Head gasket failure may also be caused by improperly torqued head bolts.

Former Councillor Sworn-In Tuesday LaRaia Begins New Career As Assessor

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

One day after bidding farewell to elected office, Joseph LaRaia said hello to another public service career Tuesday when he was sworn in as the city's new assessor.

LaRaia was sworn into his position by Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallen, filling in for City Clerk Joseph Shea who is on vacation. The ceremony was attended by members of the LaRaia family and several public officials and department heads. Among them were Mayor James Sheets, Executive Secretary Mike McFarland, City Council Clerk of Committees Jeanne Reardon, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and Tom Koch, executive director of Park, Forestry and Cemetery.

The city's two other assessors, Marion Fantucchio, who is chairman of the board; and James Papile, also joined in the ceremony. The three assessors are no strangers: LaRaia and Fantucchio graduated from Quincy High School together; Papile was appointed assessor by LaRaia when the latter was mayor in 1976.

Sheets appointed LaRaia to the $44,500-a-year position on July 11 to fill the position vacated by Henry Bertolon who retired on Monday after 24 years as an assessor, including 11 in Quincy.

LaRaia's career in elected office spans 36 years, including terms as Ward 2 councillor, councillor at-large and mayor. LaRaia was runner-up in the City Council at-large race in 1991 and was appointed to the council when the late Patricia Toland was appointed assistant city clerk in 1993.

LaRaia was re-elected city councillor at-large in 1993, finishing second in a five-candidate race.

Charles McIntyre, runner-up in the 1993 councillor at-large contest, will be appointed to fill out the remaining portion of LaRaia's term which expires at the end of the year.

LaRaia said he is looking forward to serving as assessor. He said he hasn't had time to think about being out of elected office.

"For me, although I left elected office yesterday (Monday), I haven't had time to dwell on it. I've moved into a new appointed position the next day and the sadness hasn't sunk in yet," LaRaia said.

"This is another career in public service at a different level. I'm looking forward to being able to continue that public service. I'm looking forward to fulfilling my obligation as a city assessor."

LaRaia also expressed his appreciation to Sheets for "the confidence he has shown in appointing me assessor."

Sheet congratulated LaRaia and welcomed him to his "team."

"I want to welcome you to my team. The people who work day after day make this one of the most fiscally sound communities in Massachusetts. It's not easy. It happens because of a lot of hard work."

LaRaia's appointment to assessor may have marked the end to his career as a local elected official. Or does it?

After being introduced by Sheets, LaRaia told those gathered in the second floor conference room of City Hall, "I appreciate this final time at the mike."

"Some might question that," Sheets suggested, drawing a few laughs from the crowd.

JOSEPH LARAIA, second from right, is sworn in as the city's new assessor by Assistant City Clerk Maureen Hallen during a ceremony Tuesday at City Hall. Looking on are LaRaia's wife, Louise; and Mayor James Sheets, who appointed LaRaia to the position.

FAMILY OF Joseph LaRaia was on hand for the swearing-in of the city's new assessor Tuesday. From left, daughter Lisa Stevens with grandson, Justin; son-in-law Mark Stevens; daughter Robyn LaRaia; wife Louise LaRaia; Joseph LaRaia; father Joseph LaRaia Sr.; and brothers Robert LaRaia and William LaRaia. A son, Joseph LaRaia, was unable to attend the City Hall ceremony.

WHAT EVERY WOMAN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT HEART DISEASE

One of the most stubborn medical myths is that heart disease is a manly matter—a condition that plagues large numbers of men, but few women. The truth is, women have the same risk factors for heart disease as men, and nearly half of the 500,000 Americans who die every year from heart disease are women. There are some differences between the sexes in how they experience heart disease, however. For example, the most common symptoms of heart attack in men include crushing pain in the chest that radiates to the left arm. Women, on the other hand, are more likely to report a sensation of pressure without arm pains. Also, post-menopausal women are likely to have heart disease due to reduced

The health concerns of women are not identical to men's, which is why you need a physician who keeps up with the latest in medical advances concerning women. If you are experiencing any persistent symptoms, see your doctor. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Don't Say 'Goodbye, Joe'

Don't say goodbye to Joe LaRaia—not quite yet.

He removed himself from the political scene this week, leaving his City Council seat to begin his new job as a $44,500 per year city assessor.

But he is not closing the door on a colorful, controversial political career that has spanned 36 years and been punctuated by triumphs, defeats and comebacks.

"I have no plans at this time to return to politics," he says. "But I am not ruling it out. I don't believe in backing myself into a corner."

Why would he come back?

"I would if there was a strong motivation for me to do so."

Motivation?

"Yes. Like if I thought I could do something big for the downtown area or something important for the entire city. I would consider coming back for that."

To the City Council?

"No. If I did come back it would not be for the City Council. It would be for the mayor's office."

He held that office once for two stormy years in 1976-77. He has made several bids to win it back and came within just 460 votes in 1987 when he challenged incumbent Mayor Frank McCauley.

The fact that he is even thinking about the possibility of running for mayor one more time should give any mayoral hopeful something to think about, too.

LaRaia was entering the City Council as Jim McIntyre was leaving it in 1959. LaRaia was elected Ward 2 councillor that year and McIntyre was vacating his at-large seat to unsuccessfully oppose Amelio Della Chiesa for mayor.

Little did anyone realize then that LaRaia and McIntyre were destined to become political enemies in a Hatfields-McCoy's like feud that, for some, still lingers today.

No punches were pulled when McIntyre and LaRaia were running against each other or when McIntyre was backing other LaRaia opponents.

In 1965 when Della Chiesa decided to retire, McIntyre swamped LaRaia by over 14,000 votes to succeed Della Chiesa as mayor.

That was the end of LaRaia. Or so they thought. But back he came in 1971 to win a council at-large seat and a return to political prominence.

That same year McIntyre left the mayor's office to become counsel to the Massachusetts senate. But he wasn't gone from the Quincy political scene. With McIntyre's blessing, Walter Hannon succeeded him as mayor, defeating Joseph Brett.

Then came 1975 and LaRaia challenged Hannon in what turned out to be a political brawl.

On election night it appeared that Hannon had fended off LaRaia by a scant 134-vote margin. But a controversial recount gave it to LaRaia by 483 votes.

After a stormy two years, LaRaia was ousted from City Hall by Arthur Tobin, a McIntyre friend and ally, who defeated LaRaia by 5,050 votes in 1977 in another slugfest.

"That's the end of Joe LaRaia," they were saying once again. But he came back again two years later to win a city council at-large seat, edging newcomer Dick Koch, Jr. by 197 votes. Two years after that he topped the at-large field.

That's the way it has been for him: up and down, like and elevator.

His political career ends—if it has ended—with a twist of irony.

He succeeds Henry Bertolon, a long-time McIntyre friend and aide, as assessor.

And McIntyre's son, Charles, will succeed LaRaia in the City Council. McIntyre on Sept. 5 will be the choice of the council to fill out LaRaia's council term.

McIntyre, who was runner-up in the 1993 election, will fill out LaRaia's term which expires at the end of the year. Now an assistant district attorney, he will not be a council candidate this year. But he says he may be, down the road.

LaRaia sees the irony in the son of his long-ago political foe succeeding him in the council.

"But it doesn't bother me," he says. "As the runner-up in the last election, it makes sense that he be given the seat."

Time has mellowed most of those who were involved on one side or the other in the McIntyre-LaRaia feud but there are still a few diehards with strong feelings that won't go away.

But says LaRaia:

"I don't see any value in holding onto the past. That was then. This is now. Let's get on with our lives."

He thinks the lingering hard feelings are due more to his book "A City Under The Influence" published in 1979 than to the actual political warfare.

The book, featuring thinly-disguised characters with ridiculing fictitious names (Jeremiah Tubbs, Lord Turbine, Waldo Recap, etc.) was an obvious attack on LaRaia's political enemies though the setting was the make-believe City of Quarry.

Those who felt ridiculed took offense. Those who didn't just laughed. The book has been forgotten (and there won't be a movie) by most who were around the political scene back then.

Now LaRaia is gone from the political scene—but maybe not for long.

He has left the door ajar. Now 63—and young enough—he might be back.

Maybe in time for one more mayoral campaign.

Concourse Committee Meeting At City Hall

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will hold a meeting Thursday, Aug. 10 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room at City Hall annex, 1305 Hancock St.

The planned 900-foot, $5.6-million concourse would link Hancock St. and Burgin Parkway in the city's downtown.

CAC chairman David Ezickson said the agenda will include a final discussion of the recent traffic control study conducted for the City of Quincy by the engineering firm of Whitman and Howard. The CAC will then make recommendations to Mayor James Sheets and the Quincy Center Project Task Force.

According to the engineering firm's report, the study concluded that constructing Phase I, or the 'west side link' of the project, would relieve traffic congestion and improve access to the downtown business district.

In recent weeks, the CAC has held public meetings, a special public forum speakout, sponsored a booth for three days during the Quincy Sidewalk Festival, contacted several church congregations, and provided guest speakers for senior advocate groups to obtain a public consensus relative to the proposed roadway.

World War II Commemorative Events At Marina Bay Aug. 12-13

Quincy residents are invited to take part in two World War II commemorative events scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 12 and Sunday, Aug. 13.

On Saturday, Aug. 12, a USO-style dance "Swing Under the Stars" will celebrate VJ Day and the military history of the Harbor Islands. The dance will take place from 5 to 10:30 p.m. at Fort Warren on George's Island.

Tickets are $20 per person and includes boat cruise (round trip to George's Island from Marina Bay in Squantum); barbecue chicken dinner, music and dancing; and tours of Fort Warren and displays.

Reservations can be made by calling Bay State Cruise Lines at (617) 723-7800.

For more information, call the MDC Harbor Region Office at (617) 727-5359.

The dance is sponsored by the Metropolitan District Commission, Bay State Cruise Lines and Marina Bay.

On Sunday, Aug. 13, the "Friends of the Lightship Nantucket" and Marina Bay on Boston Harbor will present a World War II 50th Anniversary Department of Defense Commemorative Community Celebration.

The celebration at Marina Bay, site of the former Squantum Naval Air Station in World War II, will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The event will feature military displays, WWII re-enactors, and a memorial service.

The service will take place at the conclusion of a short parade to the Memorial Tower. The parade will begin at 1 p.m.

Robert Noble of Quincy, a World War II veteran and a past state commander of American POWs, will serve as master of ceremonies. He said Quincy veterans groups have been invited to attend, including 15 color guards.

Groups interested in participating in the event should call Noble at 472-5613.

"This event is open to all who took part in the winning of World War II, including those who participated on the homefront. I am particularly interested in having as many American Ex-POW's attend the memorial service as possible," Noble said.

Admission and parking are free.

For more information, call Peg Ryan at (617) 847-1800.

Quarry Fire Out Of Control

By PAUL HAROLD

Five units from the fire department were in a fierce battle most of the week with a fire at Hitchcock's Quarry on Quarry St. The fire was particularly difficult to fight because it involved debris floating on the quarry surface.

Aug. 3 - 9

39 Years Ago

Units from Braintree and Weymouth covered Quincy stations while the city's firefighters ringed the quarter-mile round edge of the quarry. Deputy Chief James Daley, who directed the operations on the east end of the quarry, said they could only fight it on the edges because they couldn't get to the debris itself.

Black smoke from the fire hung over much of West Quincy and could be seen as far away at Boston's Back Bay, whose fire station called to ask if they could help.

BIDS OPEN FOR NEW MYLES STANDISH SCHOOL.

The School Committee met in special session to consider bids for the new Myles Standish School. The lowest bid was $100,000 more than the estimated cost for the seven-room elementary school.

City Manager Edward Lewis noted, however, that labor costs had gone up since the bids were advertised and the recent steel strike had increased steel costs.

POLIO SHOTS SCHEDULED

Health Commissioner Dr. Richard Ash scheduled the second round of Salk vaccine shots at the health center for children under age 15 who already had the first inoculation. The estimated 18,000 young people would be scheduled over a two-week period, in alphabetical order.

A make-up clinic in September would be available for those still away on vacation.

Esther's Spinach Pie

Eating at Esther and Joe's home always results, for me, in a different kind of recipe, as well as a gourmet meal.

Last week, we dined on roast stuffed pork, gourmet rice, butternut squash and this incredible spinach pie. (today's recipe)

Although I have made spinach pie hundreds of times, this one was much more moist as you will note if you try it.

ESTHER'S SPINACH PIE

- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 small carton small curd cottage cheese
- 6 slices American cheese (cut up)
- 1/2 stick margarine (cut up)
- 3 eggs slightly beaten
- 1 package frozen chopped spinach (cooked and drained)

Blend all ingredients well in mixing bowl.

In a 9-inch pie plate or square pan for easier cutting, (and slightly greased), place the mixture and bake in a 350-degree oven for about an hour or until bubbly.

This can be made ahead of time and heated when ready to serve.

When the spinach pie was served, Esther placed the stuffing, which she scooped with an ice cream scoop, all around the cut up spinach pie. A beautiful presentation!

(Here is a cool hint for a summer snack. At a recent pool party at our friend Tony's place, he put a couple of cans of pineapple chunks in the freezer. When opened, the pieces were frozen and delicious and cooled our taste buds up fast!)

Storyteller-Folksinger At Library Aug. 8

New England storyteller and folksinger Jim Douglas will present "Evergreen" Tuesday, Aug. 8 at 7 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

A Tribute To Esther Sanger

REV. ESTHER SANGER, executive director of the Quincy Crisis Center which she founded in 1979, was honored recently during a special tribute at The Ocean Terrace in Marina Bay. Rev. Sanger, who has been called the "Mother Teresa of the South Shore" and who was recently diagnosed with terminal cancer, was recognized for her many years of helping those in need.

REV. MERRITT NIELSON, executive pastor of the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, speaks during the recent tribute to Rev. Esther Sanger at The Ocean Terrace in Marina Bay.

DR. STEPHEN NEASE, former president of Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, was among about 75 family members, friends and colleagues who attended the recent tribute to Rev. Esther Sanger (left), founder and executive director of the Quincy Crisis Center and the Mary-Martha Learning Center in Hingham. Rev. Sanger is an ENC graduate and an ordained minister in the Church of the Nazarene.

THE MORGAN SISTERS provided the music at the recent tribute to Rev. Esther Sanger, who has spent her life helping the homeless, hungry, drug users and alcoholics, battered women and others in need.

Vincent Desantis In Overseas Deployment

Navy Seaman Vincent J. Desantis, son of Vincent J. Desantis of 106 Sachem St., Wollaston, recently departed for a six-month overseas deployment aboard the dock landing ship USS Comstock.

Desantis is one of 917 sailors and marines aboard the ship, which departed San Diego, as part of the USS New Orleans Amphibious Ready Group (ARG), which includes the amphibious assault ship USS New Orleans, the amphibious transport dock USS Juneau and the dock landing ship Mount Vernon.

Desantis and fellow sailors and marines spent the past year training for a variety of situations they might encounter during the deployment. They replaced the USS Essex ARG, which had been operating in the Persian Gulf near Iraq, and conducted the withdrawal of U.N. forces from Somalia.

Desantis will travel approximately 25,000 miles during the six-month voyage and will spend a majority of time at sea. While deployed, Desantis also will work with various foreign military units as they train in combined exercises conducting amphibious landings.

Daniel Raymondi Candidate For Ward 2 City Councillor

Daniel G. Raymondi announces his candidacy for Ward 2 city councillor.

Raymondi, 47, said he is running for the seat he held 14 years ago because the people of Quincy Point and South Quincy deserve to have an active, aggressive and experienced person representing their interests on the City Council.

Raymondi began his political career in 1971 when he was elected to the School Committee. He served as Ward 2 councillor from 1976 to 1981 when he made an unsuccessful bid for mayor. From 1985 to 1991, he served as Norfolk County treasurer and for the past four years he has been an active member of the School Committee, serving the last two as vice chairman.

His return to city government will bring to the City Council "a candidate with a proven public record as a problem solver and decision maker," he said.

If elected, Raymondi said his top priority would be keeping taxes down, being a watchdog of city spending and working with state and federal officials to control water and sewer rates.

Raymondi also pledged to continue his efforts to improve Quincy's schools, to resolve traffic and public works issues in Ward 2 and to be a strong advocate for residents before the Licensing Board, Planning Board, Board of Appeals and other municipal boards.

Raymondi said his experience as a county treasurer will "enable me to begin an immediate process of review of the city budget and spending and to affect reform."

"I am most proud of the significant reforms that I brought to the office of the Norfolk County treasurer in the late 80s," he said. "During the past four years, I have taken a leadership position in all issues affecting the Quincy Public Schools and by city officials working together we have accomplished a great deal."

"As a third-generation resident of the City of Quincy and a long-term resident and homeowner in Ward 2, I know the issues and the problems and now is the time to work together for the betterment of Ward 2 and the City of Quincy."

Raymondi graduated from Quincy High School in 1965, received a bachelor's degree in history from Holy Cross College in 1969, and graduated from Boston College Law School in 1973. He is a practicing attorney with law offices at 88 Elm St., Quincy.

Married to Sharyn Thibodeau Raymondi, he is a member of the Ward 2 Civic Association, Quincy Citizens Association, Knights of Columbus, Quincy Sons of Italy, John Quincy Adams Club and the Quincy and Norfolk County Bar Associations.

'Quit Smoking' Workshop, Video At Beechwood Center

Beechwood Community Life Center will host a one-hour workshop/video session tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. for those who want to quit smoking.

Rachel Weiner of the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans will be the speaker. Admission is free.

If there is interest expressed at the meeting, Beechwood will schedule a six-week 'Stop Smoking' class.

The center is located at 440 East Squantum St. For more information, or to register, call 471-5712.

Fabrizio Endorsed By Labor Council

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, a candidate for re-election, has been endorsed by the Norfolk County Labor Council (AFL-CIO).

In a letter from Frank Toland, president of council, Fabrizio was told the council's Membership-Cope Committee endorses his candidacy based on his record of support for labor issues and his pledge of support for future issues affecting men and women of organized labor.

Fabrizio said he is honored to receive the endorsement and will continue to work to support the various local unions affiliated with the Norfolk County Labor Council.

How To Dress Your House For A Successful Sale

By ART FOLEY

When your home goes up for sale, you could come up with an endless list of things to do to get your house ready.

While this is impractical in most cases, there are some small but significant changes you can do to help insure a successful sale.

When you begin preparing your home, start on the outside and work your way in. Keep in mind that the first impressions like the front stairs and the front door are very important

Stairs in need of repair and a front door that's peeling paint convey a very negative image that can reflect on the rest of your home—if not consciously, then subconsciously.

So often I've seen a water-stained ceiling only to find out the roof has been repaired or replaced. Paint that ceiling before selling. Consider a professional cleaning. This combined with the look and smell of fresh paint can go a long way.

One of the biggest complaints is "too much stuff in a room." Get rid of or store unneeded things and open up the living space. Buyers want to be able to visualize themselves living in each room of the house. If there's too much clutter, they are unable to do this and it makes them feel uncomfortable about the home.

Get rid of gaudy decorations. The more neutral, the easier it is for buyers to envision themselves in the home.

Take care of all the minor repairs and that will minimize what a buyer thinks it will take dollar-wise to get the house in the shape they want.

Finally, put yourself in the shoes of the buyer. Look at your home with a critical eye just as a buyer would.

Bellotti Applauds First-Time Homebuyers Assistance Program

State Rep. Michael Bellotti has announced a MHFA plan will make available $250 million in home mortgage funds over the next 12 months. The figure is the largest amount of mortgage funds the agency has ever provided in a one-year period and will benefit between 2,500 and 3,000 Massachusetts homebuyers statewide.

The funds, at a fixed below market interest rate of 7.25 percent will be loaned through participating lenders throughout the Commonwealth.

Bellotti said, "Purchasing a home is the accomplishment of a goal that is viewed as the epitome of the American dream. This dream can become a nightmare when a family can no longer afford their mortgage because of high rate loans and adjustable rates that have fixed to a high interest rate. I encourage first-time buyers to take advantage of this extremely important program."

The program offers interest rates that are below those of conventional lenders and requires a minimum down payment of just five percent. Other benefits include flexible underwriting requirements and statewide availability.

Anyone interested in the program should contact Bellotti at 722-2210 for an outline of eligibility requirements or information about other MHFA programs.

Fire Safety Tips For Your Home

CNAPS—The more smoke detectors you have installed in your home, the more your chances of surviving a fire increase.

Experts at First Alert, the company that invented residential smoke detectors, offer these fire safety tips:

1. Determine how many smoke detectors you need. Many laws require at least one smoke detector on every floor of your home and in every sleeping area.
2. Always choose a product that is UL listed.

3. Read the package label to select the proper smoke detector for the specific room. First Alert makes a kitchen detector that has a silencing button that will quiet nuisance alarms for up to three minutes. For hallways it's a good idea to install a smoke detector with an Escape Light feature.
4. Test each smoke detector, according to instructions, once a week.

5. Plan and practice an escape route. A home can be consumed in flames in less than five minutes from the start of fire.

ENC Purchases 3-Acre Presidents City Motel Site

Eastern Nazarene College (ENC) has purchased the 3-acre parcel that includes the Presidents City Motel properties in Wollaston.

College officials announced late last week they plan to use the parcel, located at the intersection of Hancock St. and Southern Artery, for future expansion that may include classrooms and/or dormitories.

Officials said they bought the property at a June 22 foreclosure auction for $1.1 million. ENC placed the high bid at the auction through Daniel Flynn, a Quincy commercial real estate broker.

Flynn told The Sun two weeks ago he had been involved in a $1.1 million purchase of the property but did not mention ENC and would not elaborate on future plans for the site.

The site includes the motel, the Egg and I Diner, a barn and the former Winfield House Restaurant/Winfield Gift Emporium. The property previously was owned by the Strout family of Quincy, although the diner is independently operated.

College officials said that property, located about a half-mile from the campus, will fit into the school's long-term plans but there is presently no definite plan for the parcel.

Officials said the 14-acre campus on Elm Street in Wollaston cannot expand because it is wedged in a residential area.

The college's enrollment has increased in the past few years. There are nearly 1,300 students enrolled in both traditional programs and adult education, and about 70 percent live on campus.

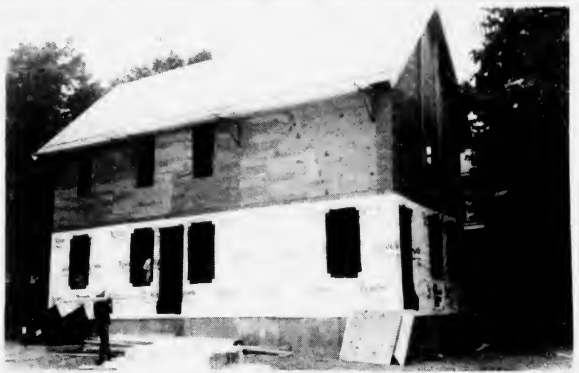

Officials said the school will develop a plan for the site over the next year and they hope to have something built in the next five years. In the interim, they added, college attorneys are negotiating with the owners of the diner and motel to renew leases.

Officials also said the college has been working with city officials on development of the site to mitigate any potential traffic problems or other problems.

The sale was expected to be finalized by the end of this week.

Mayor James Sheets, a graduate of the college, said he thinks the purchase is good for the property. He acknowledged that the city has to weigh the financial impact whenever a piece of property comes off the tax rolls—as is the case for a non-profit college—but added that other, more commercial uses would not work at the site and said the college's buying power, both as an institution and among its students who will patronize local businesses, will be beneficial to the area.

RELIGION

First Presbyterian To Celebrate 110th Anniversary Sunday

First Presbyterian Church, 270 Franklin St., South Quincy will celebrate its 110th anniversary at a special "Heritage Sunday" worship service Sunday at 9:30 a.m.

The service is planned to recreate the spirit and setting of 1885. Those in attendance will wear period dress and the organ will be replaced by an antique reed organ.

Rev. Donald Strong, interim pastor, will preach on "Jesus In The Ship," first preached at Trinity Church in Boston in 1855. Worship leaders will be elder men of the congregation and the choir will sing hymns of the period.

Descendants of charter members will have assigned seats. The Sacrament of Holy Communion will be served.

During its history in Quincy, the church sponsored a citywide Men's Bible Class in the 1920s which had more than 300 members meeting in the Strand Theater.

The church is preparing for the arrival of a new permanent pastor, Rev. Stan Johnson, who will begin his ministry Aug. 27.

Bethany Congregational

Rev. George Hodgkins, interim minister, will preach on "Invitation To Involvement" at the 10 a.m. worship service Sunday at Bethany Congregational Church, Spear and Coddington Sts., Quincy Center.

Scripture reader will be Russell Hodgkins. Music will be by Roslyn Haigh, guest soloist and Gregory Flynn, organist. Assisting in the serving of Holy Communion will be Diaconate members Kenneth and Mildred Rickson and George and Jean Baker. Greeters will be members of the Cosgrove family.

Foods and paper goods will be collected for the Protestant Social Service Bureau's Pantry Shelf.

Child care is available during worship. Following the service, a fellowship hour will be hosted by Clayton and Gladys Simpson.

Outdoor Concert Sunday At Fort Square Presbyterian

Crosswalk, a contemporary Christian group, will perform an outdoor concert Sunday at 6:30 p.m. at Fort Square United Presbyterian Church, 16 Pleasant St., Quincy.

Those who attend are encouraged to bring a chair. Refreshments will be served following the concert.

A free-of offering will be taken.

Houghs Neck Congregational

Rabbi David Jacobs of Temple Beth El in Quincy, will be guest speaker at the 9:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at the Houghs Neck Congregational Church, 310 Manet Ave.

He will be assisted by Deaconess Barbara Curran.

Music will be by Arden Schofield, minister of music, and Gayle MacKay, soprano.

Members of the Deaconate serving will be Miriam Coombs, Waymon Giggey, Chris Carlson and Carol Lee Griffin.

Hospitality Committee greeter will be Joyce Bishop. The Fellowship Hour with coffee and refreshments following the service will be hosted by Barbara Oakes, committee chairman, in the Conference Room.

The Sunday School and the Youth Group, do not meet during the summer. Classes and programs will resume in September. Nursery Care is provided in fellowship hall.

All are welcome. The church is wheelchair accessible.

First Spiritualist

First Spiritualist Church of Quincy, 40 West St., is holding its services Wednesdays at 8 p.m. during the summer.

Lecturer at last night's service was Betsy Adom-kaitas and the message worker was Karen Butler. Both women are from the Quincy church.

A time for coffee and conversation follows each service.

Wollaston Nazarene

Senior high youth will be in charge of the 6 p.m. worship service Sunday at Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, 37 East Elm Ave.

Sixteen members of the group and their youth minister, Bob Keuther, recently returned from Phoenix, Ariz., where they attended a rally of 6,000 teens from around the world.

During the 11 a.m. service, music will be led by the Roberts Family Reunion. Joann Roberts Sheets, wife of Mayor James Sheets, is hosting 50 members of her family this weekend.

Rev. Dr. Russell Metcalfe will preach on "Big Barns, Little Brains" at the morning service.

New Elementary School Proposed For Quincy Point

schools--Daniel Webster, Pollard and Washington--but now has only one, Point-Webster.

Raymondi and Mariano said only two other possibilities exist for relieving the overcrowding problem: building an addition to Sterling, and redistricting.

However, they said there are problems with both scenarios. Building an addition is not feasible because it would require landtaking, the construction costs may not be reimbursable by the state, and Sterling is already a huge middle school. Redistricting, the two men said, splits neighborhoods, is not a permanent solution, and is against the School Committee's current policy of resolving overcrowding within an affected area.

The School Committee has taken several courses of action to relieve overcrowding problems in the past few years. Among the most recent examples are the building of an addition to the Bernazzani Elementary School in West Quincy and construction of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center in South Quincy which was built to ease overcrowding at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School in SouthWest Quincy.

In addition, plans call for the former Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston--which in recent years served as the home of the Beechwood Community Life Center--to reopen for classes in September.

Raymondi and Mariano said they have several possibilities in mind for the site of the new school but would not elaborate.

"But it should be in the heart of Quincy Point, and something the neighborhood can be proud of," said Mariano.

Funding the construction of the school would require passage of a bond issue, while any necessary changes at Point-Webster and Sterling could be paid for through the annual Quincy Public Schools budget, the two men said.

Bonding would require the cooperation of Mayor James Sheets and the City Council. The two proponents of the new school said they hope to receive both following the Crendon committee's report.

"I think the arguments we're raising are very compelling," said Raymondi. "The people of Quincy Point deserve the same kinds of school facilities we have in other parts of the city."

Yvonne Lam of Clay St., Wollaston, received a degree at Clark University's 90th commencement exercises.

places on Franklin St., where Presidents John Adams and Quincy Adams were born; the "Old House" occupied by four generations of the Adams family on Adams St. and United First Parish Church in Quincy Center where the two presidents and their wives are entombed.

Officials said despite current budget slashing by Congress, the draft plan should strengthen the position of the Adams Site when battling for dwindling Park Service funds. The site's current budget is about $1.2 million, according to officials.

Site officials also said the $8 million plan is the preferred option. It proposes several simple measures such as the installation of better signs to direct people to the historic spots. Other, more costly, planned changes include:

- Purchase or construction of a building to serve as a permanent visitors' center with off-street parking, the cost of which would be about $2.9 million.

- Renovation of the Adams Carriage House and restroom which would cost around $1.8 million.

- Rehabilitation of the Beale House for administrative use, which carries a pricetag of around $1.5 million.

The plan would also set up a permanent transportation system at an undetermined cost. The current visitors center at Presidents Place in Quincy Center and the trolley that transports tourists to the site's attractions are temporary, according to officials.

Officials said the scaled-down, $4 million plan would not set up a trolley system or a new location for a visitors center. Like the $8 million plan, however, it would still improve restrooms and disabled access at the sites. It would also set up a visitor orientation center at the Adams Carriage House instead of setting up a separate visitors center. There would be no parking at the sites and no transportation between them.

The $8 million plan calls for about 26 full-time equivalent staff positions to be added to the current 22 positions, while the scaled-back plan calls for about 17 full-time equivalent positions.

City officials have yet to review the plan, but Mayor James Sheets said he hopes it will include ways to link the Adams Site attractions to other tourist sites in the city as recommended last year by a Park Service study.

Sheets added that he sees a permanent visitors center and trolley service as crucial to the future of the site.

"We need a visitors center to direct people and a trolley to connect people," he said.

Legion

Ace 3-0 In Playoffs, 0.62 ERA

Malvesti The Stopper Leads Morrisette Surge

By KERRY BYRNE

Just a few years ago the Boston Red Sox would rely on Roger Clemens to end a losing skid. This season, that role has fallen into the deceptive hands (and knuckles) of Tim Wakefield.

For the Morrisette American Legion baseball team, there is no doubt about who the stopper is: Tom Malvesti.

After posting a 5-2 record during the regular season, Malvesti has gone 3-0 in the playoffs and has twice pulled Morrisette from the brink of elimination in wins over Bridgewater last week and Westwood Monday night.

Malvesti, who will be a sophomore at Stonehill College, has posted a minuscule 0.62 ERA in the three playoff wins, dropping his average for the season to 1.21. His 35 playoff strikeouts in 23 innings have upped his season total to 91.

The ace opened the playoffs for Morrisette with 14 strikeouts in a 7-1 win over Foxboro. The Quincy club won the next game for a sweep of the best-of-three series.

After Morrisette lost the first game of a best-of-three series against Bridgewater, Malvesti went the distance in game two, allowing two earned runs and leading the club to a 9-4 win.

Spurred by Malvesti's performance, Morrisette pulled out game three in dramatic fashion with Tim Zaniboni scoring the game- and series-winning run on a wild pitch in the eighth inning.

Sunday, Morrisette lost game one of their best-of-three series to Westwood, 4-2, only to have Malvesti slam the door in game two in a 14-2 win. He pitched seven scoreless innings, struck out 12 and allowed two hits.

The rubber match was set for Tuesday night at Adams Field with the winner representing the District in the eight-team state playoffs in Lowell. The states are to begin Saturday.

Malvesti got all the offensive support he needed in game two in the second inning as Morrisette scored four runs.

Malvesti led with a walk, Paul Marnikovic reach on an error, Andy Joyce belted a two-run triple and Mike Sheffer singled.

They added two more in the third as Ron McCann, Jim Sapienza and Tom Cunio singled and Malvesti doubled.

Morrisette put the game away with three runs in the fifth and five in the sixth.

McCann, Sapienza and Cunio again singled in the fifth, and Zaniboni and Marnikovic had sacrifice RBI.

Five consecutive walks and Marnikovic's bases-loaded triple plated the sixth-inning runs.

Cunio had one of his best offensive outings of the season, going 3 for 4 with three RBI.

Joe McCarthy pitched well but suffered the loss in the 4-2 defeat to Westwood Sunday. He went seven innings, allowing five hits and two earned runs.

Westwood scored two runs in the second, then plated the winning run in the third on an error, single and sacrifice fly. A walk, stolen base and two wild pitches led to Westwood's final run and hastened McCarthy's exit in the seventh.

Marnikovic pitched two scoreless innings for Morrisette.

Eight Quincy Tracksters Win Gold At Needham

The Quincy Track Club sent 30 athletes to the Needham Youth Classic meet and captured eight gold medals.

The top stars of the meet from Quincy were 5-year-old Tom Conley and 12-year-old Lisa Della Croce.

Conley captured gold medals in two events, the 50-meter hurdles and the softball throw. His heave in the softball throw set a meet record. He rounded out his performance with a second in the 50-meter dash and a third in the 200 meters.

Della Croce won prizes in eight events, including a gold in the discus.

Pat Egan was also impressive, winning gold medals in the 100 meters and high jump in the 15-16 years old boys category. He also placed second in the long jump.

The Quincy Track Club's other gold medals were captured by 5-year-old Maria Della Croce (100 meters), 9-year-old Andrew Picard (discus) and 9-year-old Shannon Paine (discus). Della Croce also made strong showings in the 200, 50-meter hurdles, softball throw and pentathlon. Picard took prizes in the 100 and 200. Paine placed fifth in the 50 and third in the shotput.

Other athletes who won prizes in multiple events were Brendan Paine (50, 50-meter hurdles, broad jump), Ian Campbell (100, softball throw), Dan Poggi (50, 100, long jump), Eric Wilson (1,500, 3,000), Katy Mercurio (100, broad jump, softball, high jump), Nicole Glasheen (800, discus and javelin), Jamie Kettleton (100, javelin), Lynda Wilson (800, 3,000, 80-meter hurdles, heptathlon) and Rachel Picard (100, long jump, javelin).

Several athletes placed in one event. John Costello was sixth in the softball throw, Victoria Golden placed fifth in the 200, Genevieve Humez-Rousseau finished fourth in the 50, Jessica Poggi placed third in the 400, Christina Conley was second in the softball throw, Mike Conley placed second in the discus and Caitlin Golden finished fifth in the 400.

Murphy Wins President's Club Championship

Margaret Murphy was the winner in the President's Golf Course Ladies Association three-day club championship.

Murphy had a gross of 237 to lead Division I. Carol Mather's net of 197 topped the division.

Chris Cronin had a gross of 253 to top Division II. Barbara Robertson had a net of 191.

In Division III, Elizabeth Green led with a gross of 298. Carol Cibotti had a net of 201. Rosemary Cannon's net of 200 led Division IV.

In a stroke play tournament, Barbara Donelin took Division I with a 71.

Melanie Curtin's 64 led Division II. Topping Division III was Karen Deane's 63. Nancy DiCarlo, Sr. had a net of 71 to lead Division IV.

St. John's

Red Storm, White Blow Over Opposition

The St. John's Red Storm baseball team was thunderous at the plate in three consecutive wins last week.

An eight-run second sparked a 15-0 win over West Plymouth.

Todd White nearly won the game single-handedly. He opened on the mound with four-plus perfect innings of work on his way to a complete-game one-hitter. At the plate he went 3 for 3 with a triple, four RBI and two runs scored.

Dave Centrella continued his offensive fireworks, going 2 for 3 and hitting his third home run of the season. He scored twice and knocked in two runs. Kevin Eagen went 2 for 2 with a double and two RBI. John Lupo was 2 for 3.

Plymouth's Dave Thompson ended White's no-hitter with a single in the fifth.

Eagen was the big gun in a 7-3 win over Hanover. He went 3 for 3, knocked in four runs and scored one. Centrella was 2 for 3 with two doubles and an RBI while White was 2 for 3 with one two-bagger.

Four runs in the second put the game away for St. John's and winning pitcher Billy Page. Page relieved Chris Doherty and pitched 3 2/3 innings of three-hit shutout ball.

Page was also involved in the first five putouts after he took over on the mound. He caught one pop fly and four times threw to first to force men out.

Hanover's Dave Riley, Rich Mulligan and Ken Pierce had singles and RBI.

White was again the winning pitcher in a 12-5 win over Norwell.

White pitched three innings, allowing four hits.

Matt Gardner gave an outstanding performance at the plate, going 4 for 4, all doubles, with five RBI. Centrella was 4 for 4 with one double and three RBI.

Right fielder Tom Callahan showed a big gun as he assisted on a putout at second base.

Dave Reardon of Norwell was 3 for 3 with a double and four RBI.

D'Olimpio Sinks Hole-In-One At Presidents Golf Course

It took 15 years of playing, but Quincy's Dom D'Olimpio sunk his first-ever hole-in-one.

Last Tuesday on the par-3 10th hole at President's Golf Course, D'Olimpio used a 7-iron to sink the ball perfectly. According to eyewitnesses, the ball never rolled or touched the ground. It landed smack dab in the hole from 150 yards away.

"The ball just disappeared," said D'Olimpio. "It didn't even hit the flag."

Youth Softball

Pushed To The Brink, Everlasting Wins Title

The Everlasting Engraving senior girls softball team stood nose-to-nose with the evil specter of elimination and coolly laughed in its face.

With one loss in the double-elimination tournament, Everlasting Engraving took back-to-back games from the Wisialko Whiz Kids, a team which had been undefeated in the playoffs to that point.

Led by the pitching of Megan Ginty and Lisa Maconochie, the fielding of Nicole Ferris and Kristen Nelson, and the heavy hitting of Houghs Neck's slugging Nichol sisters, EE won by scores of 16-10 and 26-22 to take the league title.

In the decisive second game, Colleen Nichol sparked the winning offense by hitting for the cycle. Not to be outdone were Maconochie (home run, double), Ginty (double, four singles) and Katie Fernald (four singles). Also getting good aluminum on the ball were Julie Keane (two doubles), Heather Schatzl (three singles) and Lauren Kalil (two singles).

Meredith Langille knocked in the game-winning run with a base hit to right field.

Nelson and Ferris combined for seven stolen bases.

Caitlin Nichol made what could have been a game-saving play in the sixth when she robbed Kristen Bowes of an extra-base hit with the bases loaded. It was one of many plays that helped preserve the win for pitcher Maconochie.

Kristen Bowes had a spectacular outing for the Whiz Kids with three home runs and 10 RBI. Marissa Lentini was also sharp with a double and three singles. Jessica Loud, Jessica Lorman and Megan Cosseboom belted three base hits each. Katie Carten had two singles.

Stellar defense was played by Valerie Ricciardi, Jane Fitzgerald, Jessica Hogan and Kristen Chenette.

In the first battle between the softball titans, Everlasting scored in every inning on its way to the 16-10 victory.

Ginty posted the win on the mound and supported her team offensively with four base hits.

Maconochie fell a roundtrip shy of hitting for the cycle. Colleen Nichol smashed two doubles, while Caitlin Nichol, Fernald and Schatzl stroked three singles each.

Langille and Keane each knocked a pair of base hits.

Nelson and Ferris turned in their typical strong outings in the field.

Whiz Kid Bowes, again a force, had a home, double and single. Lentini and Cosseboom smashed four base hits, Lorman hit three, and Caitlyn Flaherty had a pair of singles. Loud smacked a two-bagger.

Ricciardi successfully stole two bases.

Leading the Whiz Kids defense were Chenette, Carten, Hogan, Fitzgerald and Lauren Enos.

The members of the championship club wanted to thank sponsor Cathy Ploof of Everlasting Engraving for providing uniforms.

The Nichol family planned to celebrate the championship by preparing for the logistical nightmare of transporting a family of seven to no less than 30 football games in one three-month period. But told that pigskin season was a month away, they bought pizza and watched television instead.

Babe Ruth

Clarke's Hit Gives Elks Second Consecutive Title

In the bottom of the seventh with two strikes against him, Elks second baseman Steve Clarke drilled a single to right center to score Matt McLoughlin from second and give the Elks a 7-6 victory of Bryan Post.

The hit gave the Elks their second consecutive Babe Ruth League title and closed a 23-2 campaign.

The hit was also redemption for Clarke, a sure-handed and skilled infielder who had struggled defensively in the early innings.

The Elks Rusty Corner went the distance for the champs, scattering eight hits and fanning 11.

Corner came up big in the seventh as he worked his way out of a jam: BP's Brian Gates reached on an error and advanced to third on a stolen base and a balk. The Elks hurler then fanned the No. 2 and 3 batters in the BP lineup and Bobby Johnston made a game-saving catch for the third out as Mark Kelly blasted a drive deep to right.

Bryan Post jumped to an early 2-0 lead as Gates and Kevin Cellucci singled and Shawn Manning drove in both with a base hit.

The Elks got one back as Chris Bregoli singled in Corner. Mike Keddy's RBI single tied the game at 2-2 in the second.

The Elks went up 5-2 in the third. With two outs, Bregoli singled and Jack Daly was hit by a pitch. Kevin Shaw's grounder was misplayed into a three-base error and all three crossed the plate.

BP got two back as Steve Wiltshire and Manning singled and scored on an overthrow of a Mark Kelly tapper. Two Elks errors following Cellucci's double allowed him to tie the game at 5-5 in the fifth.

Corner's RBI single scored Justin Adams in fifth, giving the Elks a 6-5 advantage.

Corner and Bregoli had two hits apiece for the Elks, while BP's Manning had three and Cellucci had two.

The two played on the previous day and the Elks romped.

Bregoli worked the mound for six innings with nine strikeouts and had the luxury of an 11-run cushion after the first inning. Clarke picked up the save.

The Elks sent 16 batters to the plate in a 45-minute first. McLoughlin had an RBI double, Bregoli nailed a triple and had two RBI, while Daly, Keddy and Will Tracy picked up RBI in the inning.

For the game, McLoughlin hit two doubles, scored five runs and had six RBI. Daly had four RBI and Bregoli had three. Clarke had three hits and scored five runs while Keddy also had three hits.

They Elks also posted a 10-1 playoff win over Golden Print to set up the two-game showdown with Bryan Post.

Corner and Daly combined for the victory and 12 K's, with Corner picking up the W.

McLoughlin went 3 for 4 with three RBI and Bregoli had an RBO triple.

Golden Print's rangy lefty, John Sullivan, smashed the only three hits his team could muster off of Corner and Daly.

Cheerleading Camp Registration Starts

The Quincy Recreation Department is accepting registration for its cheerleading camp which will be held Aug. 7-11.

The camp is for girls ages 8 through high school age. The cost is $30.

Registration will be taken on a first-come, first-serve basis at the Recreation Department, 100 Southern Artery, Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-4

Securing Your Home While On Vacation Part II *

What to do on the day you leave:

- Unplug all major electrical appliances. Don't forget the water to the automatic washer.
- Set your thermostat so that your furnace or air conditioner will maintain a reasonable temperature - 80 degrees in the summer and 55 degrees in the winter.
- Turn off all water faucets completely. Don't forget the faucet to the automatic washer. Close inside valves to outside faucets. In winter drain outside water taps to prevent freezing.
- Close your fireplace flue to prevent birds or animals from entering.
- Remove all highly-perishable foods. Defrost and unplug refrigerator.
- Turn down the volume control on your telephone so it cannot be heard from outside.
- Check all windows and doors for security, including cellar windows and garage door.
- Put all window shades in normal daytime position, and make sure all main floor drapes, shades, and curtains are arranged so that the police and neighbors can see into the home.
- If you are leaving a car or other vehicle in the driveway, make sure it is locked.
- Set your electrical timers to turn some lights on and off during the evening hours.
- Make sure all gas appliances are in good order and that the pilot lights are working.
- Make sure stove is completely turned off.
- Lock your garage door.
- Check all ash trays in house.
- Make sure the last person out locks the door. Take a walk around the house. Check the doors and windows from the outside.
- If you haven't already done so, leave your key with your neighbor or relative. Check to make sure you have their telephone number.

If a burglary has occurred during your absence

- Do NOT enter the house - the burglar might still be there. Use a neighbor's phone and call the police immediately.
 - Do NOT touch anything. Just wait until the police arrive.
 - Do have a record of the serial numbers of the missing items and also your Operation ID numbers.
- Whether or not you are going to be away on a vacation or short trip, it makes good sense to put the principles of Crime Prevention to daily use. Neighborhood Watch works.

Trial Recreation Aug. 13 At Josiah Quincy House

The Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities (SPNEA) will recreate an 18th century trial Sunday, Aug. 13 at the Josiah Quincy House, 20 Muirhead St., Quincy.

The event will show how Josiah Quincy Jr., a distinguished young attorney defended the British soldiers accused of the Boston Massacre 225 years ago. Members of the audience will be asked to act as the jury.

The program will be performed on the lawn and those planning to attend are encouraged to bring blankets, lawn chairs and picnic lunches. The "trial" will be followed by a tour of the house and refreshments.

Admission is $2 for SPNEA members and Quincy residents, $3 for non-members and non-residents. Rain date is Sunday, Aug. 20.

For more information, call 471-4508.

Parking Passes Still Available At Garage

Despite reports that they were sold out, monthly parking passes are still available at the Ross Parking Garage in Quincy Center, according to Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon.

Gillon said at press time downtown merchants who were told the $35 monthly passes were sold out were misinformed.

Confusion resulted when some who sought to purchase a monthly pass for the garage were told there were no more. Gillon said they were accidentally given the wrong information because Jim Kelley, the parking system's foreman had incomplete information about the plan to make more passes available.

Gillon said the city allowed for a certain number of monthly parkers at both Quincy Center parking areas when it decided to take over the municipal parking system last month. He noted there has been a higher demand for monthly passes than expected, but the city will be able to provide as many as needed.

So far, 483 monthly passes have been sold for the Ross Garage and 275 at the Hancock Lot, according to Gillon. He added that there are about 990 total spaces at the garage and around 510 at the lot.

Gillon said he will try to ensure that everyone interested in purchasing a monthly parking pass will be able to do so for one parking area or the other.

Passes for both parking areas are sold at the Ross Garage. There will be unlimited monthly parking at the Hancock Lot but a limited number at the garage, Gillon said.

He added that parking will remain free at both parking areas until the necessary computer equipment is installed. Gillon said expects that to happen sometime this week.

Health Department Survey

6 Businesses Sold Tobacco To Minors

The Quincy Health Department's Tobacco Control Program recently conducted a survey to determine the availability of tobacco products to minors.

Minors ages 14 and 16 visited 15 local businesses. If the clerk questioned the minor's age, a truthful response was given. However, despite the fact that it is illegal to sell tobacco products to those under 18, the minors were able to purchase cigarettes in six out of 15 attempts, according to Robert Helfrich of the Tobacco Control Program.

Helfrich said one business was a second offender and was issued a fine of $100. Five businesses were issued warnings, while those in compliance with the law will receive letters of commendation, he added.

Stephen Potischman Joins CP Auction Committee

Stephen Potischman of The New England Advisory Group has joined the "Committee of One Hundred" business and community leaders organizing the fifth annual auction to benefit the Children's Developmental Disabilities Center in Quincy.

SUMMER CAR CARE

Rotate Tires For Maximum Tread Life

Footwear experts tell us our shoes would last a lot longer if we could switch them from foot to foot periodically.

Because we can't do that, our heels and soles wear down on one side or the other, necessitating more frequent visits to the shoe repair shop.

Similarly, our car's tires tend to wear somewhat unevenly even when the wheels are properly aligned. This is due to idiosyncrasies of the road and, to a lesser extent, of the vehicle.

Tread life can be increased by as much as 50 percent when tires are rotated and balanced regularly, according to the Car Care Council. As an additional preventive measure, even when tread wear looks normal, have the car checked on an alignment track at least once a year, even more often than that if much of the vehicle's miles are on rough roads or if the wheels suffer repeated encounters with curbs.

[Note: Most front-wheel drive and some late model rear-wheel drive cars require four-wheel alignment.]

Beyond the above services, plus a monthly check for proper inflation, periodic inspection of steering and suspension components can prevent trouble. In its pamphlet on this subject, the Council emphasizes the importance of good shock absorbers for proper ride control and maximum tire wear.

For a free copy of their ride control brochure, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Car Care Council, Department RC, One Grande Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

Your Parking Brake: 'Use It Or Lose It'

ANSWER: Parking brake.

QUESTION: What's the least used component of your car?

Supposing you're about to park on a steep hill; you apply the parking brake and nothing happens. The cable or linkage has become rusted from lack of use. Your only option is to put it in Park (or low gear on a standard transmission), which most of us do as a matter of course.

This can be unsafe on a steep grade. The pressure against the parking pawl on the transmission could make it difficult or impossible to move the shift lever to the Park position.

Regular use of the parking brake helps keep it freed up and working properly. Periodic lubrication and adjustment of the system also is recommended.

Because this is a separate mechanical braking system, it can stop the vehicle in the event of brake failure.

A Thought For The Week

What is the greatest asset we have in our town? Industry? Business? Homes? Money? Possessions? Take your choice from this sort of list, or any similar list, and you will have made a wrong selection.

Time and again it has been shown in every town that the greatest asset is friendly people. Friends and neighbors differ in type, of course. Some are solemn, serious. Others are cheerful, entertaining. Some are frivolous. Most are hopeful, sincere. Every town, of course, has some evil people. Spiteful people. They are few, however, compared with the helpful, kindly, neighborly, dependable type. The sympathetic, merciful, considerate people try to keep friendships in constant repair.

Perhaps unaware of it, are not these friendly people of innate goodness deserving an acceptance of God's friendship? Can there possibly be any greater asset anywhere for anyone?

To our friends and neighbors...we welcome any thoughts and comments you might have concerning the thoughts you read here...

New Roof Slated For Shea Rink

The Metropolitan District Commission Engineering and Construction Division is preparing a contract for the removal and replacement of both the barrel roof and the service building roof at the William F. Shea Rink in West Quincy, State Rep. Michael Bellotti announced Tuesday.

Bids will be solicited Aug. 9 and work is scheduled for completion on Nov. 15, Bellotti said. Plans call for an attractive, watertight, maintenance-free roofing system.

Over the past few years, Ward 4 neighbors have voiced their concerns about the deteriorating condition of the MDC rink and surrounding property. Bellotti, along with Michael Morrissey, Ward 4 Councillor 1, Fabrizio, have advocated and continue to push for a complete renovation of Shea Rink.

Bellotti, who suggested the MDC begin work on the roof immediately, said, "Although today's good news does not encompass the full renovation of Shea Rink, it certainly rectifies the most obnoxious aspect of what the neighbors and Quincy residents have had to deal with over the last several years."

Fabrizio, who was worked on improvements the past several years, recently encouraged the MDC to move ahead as soon as possible on the roof replacement. "One of the major concerns with the effect of this ailing structure in my ward has been the scattered broken debris from the decaying roof."

"I will continue to work with the MDC and Representative Bellotti and Senator Morrissey to ensure that this project continues to progress," Fabrizio said.

Morrissey agreed. "This news although overdue is very welcome. The roof improvements will tremendously improve the aesthetics and decrease the safety hazard that the roof debris causes."

Bellotti said he will continue to monitor the actions of the MDC as well as the progress of this project.

D'Amico Suggests Ward 4 Center As 'Cooling Center'

Michael D'Amico, a candidate for Ward 4 city councillor, is urging Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services to open the Ward 4 Community Center as a "cooling station" for the elderly throughout August.

The center, located at 100 Brooks Ave., is an air-conditioned facility and "the ideal refuge from the sweltering heat of the season," D'Amico said. Senior citizens, he added, should be able to count on their local community center for such a basic service.

D'Amico said the community center is under-utilized and he would push for year-round programs, if elected.

The concept of "cooling stations" has been implemented in Boston and Quincy should follow suit, D'Amico said.

NORFOLK COUNTY SHERIFF'S Department and Norfolk County Commission recently donated three vehicles to various city departments in Quincy. From left, Sheriff Clifford Marshall; Park, Forestry and Cemetery Director Tom Koch, Fire Chief Tom Gorman, Norfolk County Commissioners William O'Donnell and John Gillis; and Recreation Director Barry Welch.

Bank Robbery Suspect Arrested In Bar Across The Street

A Revere man robbed the Bank of Boston branch in Quincy Center Monday afternoon and was promptly arrested in a nearby bar, according to police.

Police said John W. Intonti, 48, of 6 Day Rd., Revere, was arrested on an outstanding bank robbery warrant from Boston and charged with Monday's robbery soon after. He was held on $5,000 cash bail or $50,000 surety pending arraignment in Quincy District Court.

A Bank of Boston spokesperson said the robber got away with less than $500, all of which police recovered. The branch, located at 1400 Hancock St., was closed after the robbery, which occurred around 12:41 p.m.

The robbery was the second bank heist in July in Quincy Center, and the third since January at that branch. The others took place on Jan. 18 and June 1.

The Cooperative Bank near City Hall was robbed July 19 and the robber escaped in a cab. However, police made an arrest last week for that heist.

Bank employees told police the robber handed a note to a teller asking for $2,000. The robber put the cash he was given in a black plastic bag and fled on foot. No weapon was shown.

Police searched the neighborhood for the suspect, a 5-foot-7 white male, approximately 50 years old, and wearing a white T-shirt and blue pants. They found Intonti at nearby Sully's Bar soon after that.

Police said they discovered the outstanding warrant after running Intonti's name through a computer, arrested him, and later matched him to the bank's security camera photos.

Teresa Hughes Winner With $1,207 'Votes' Baby Contest Raises $5,001 For MDA

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The votes are in!
The Beautiful Baby Contest, co-sponsored by Fine Light Photography of Quincy and The Quincy Sun, raised $5,001 for the Greater Boston chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Of the 45 contestants, Baby Number 43, 18-month-old Teresa Marie Hughes, the daughter of John and Veronica Hughes of 75 Franklin St., Quincy, was the overall winner. Baby Teresa "topped the ballot" with 1,207 votes.

At one dollar per vote, Teresa raised $1,207 for MDA and is the grand prize winner. She will receive a 16-by-20-inch wall portrait, a $115 value, from Fine Light Photography and a $50 Savings Bond and a free one-year subscription to The Quincy Sun.

The Hughes said they are happy because they helped contribute to a great cause.

"We're very happy about it. Our kids are healthy and we feel it's time to give back," said Teresa's father, John. "We're very happy for our daughter. We take pride in our children."

Besides Teresa, the Hughes have another child, son John Jr. who will be three in September.

John Hughes is the assistant chef at Alfredo's Restaurant in South Quincy. His wife Veronica works at Interstate Distributors in North Quincy.

Mannarino: 'A Good Possibility' Site For Hotel Could Be Ready By Year's End

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The primary site being considered for a Quincy Center hotel could be sold to an interested developer by the end of the year, according to the head of the city's public-private planning corporation.

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said at press time there is a strong chance the property could be sold before January.

"I think it's a good possibility someone will purchase the property by the end of the year," said Mannarino. "But while it's a good possibility, there are no guarantees."

The property in question, located behind Presidents Place at 1250 Hancock St.--where Quincy 2000 is headquartered--is owned by Citizens Bank. Mannarino said the site consists of two lots that total about 65,000 square feet.

According to Mannarino, all of the bank's property negotiations are being handled by Peter Elliot and Co., a Dedham-based brokerage firm. Both the firm and Quincy 2000 have spoken with a number of people interested in being involved with the construction of a hotel in Quincy's downtown, he added.

"I've met with a number of interested hotel chains and potential developers," said Mannarino.

Although Quincy 2000 is not directly involved with the actual sale of the property, Mannarino said the public-planning corporation has been acting as a "facilitator" of sorts during talks between the bank, its brokerage firm and those interested in the property.

"We are working with all of the entities, trying to put the pieces together," he said.

Mannarino added that the reason for his optimism about an upcoming sale of the site is that there is one entity in particular that has shown considerable interest.

City May Spend $400,000 For Concourse Design Work

The city is planning to spend as much as $400,000 for design work related to the proposed Quincy Center Concourse, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said Tuesday he plans to send a request for the money, which he wants appropriated from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account, to the City Council at its Sept. 5 meeting.

Sheets said he is asking the council for the appropriation at the request of Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton. The DPW will be responsible for putting out a request for proposals (R.F.P.) and selecting the firm that will do the design work, he added.

The mayor noted that an exact amount has not been determined but that the figure could be anything "up to $400,000." He added that while the city will initially foot the bill for the design work, he has reason to believe much of the money spent might be reimbursed by the state.

"It may well be reimbursable," he said.

The planned 900-foot, $5.6 million Quincy Center Concourse, which officials have said would be paid for by state and federal monies, would link Hancock St. and Burgin Parkway in the city's downtown shopping district.

City officials have said the concourse would be beneficial to downtown merchants as well as help clear up existing traffic problems in the area.

Former Resident Begins Duties As Boston School Supt. Quincy Pride In Payzant Appointment

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy school officials have expressed great pride in the selection of Thomas W. Payzant as Boston's new school superintendent.

The Boston School Committee named Payzant, 54, who was raised in Quincy and former U.S. assistant education secretary, permanent replacement to Lois Harrison-Jones whose four-year contract was not renewed when it expired June 30.

Quincy School Supt. Eugene Creedon said he was thrilled to hear the news.

"I think all of us here in Quincy should be very proud," he said. "He (Payzant) attended the dedication of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center (in South Quincy last year), of course, and we've gotten to know him quite well. He's eminently qualified, and I think he'll be good for the schools in Boston."

Mary Catherine Iannoni, head guidance counselor at Central Middle School, was Payzant's English teacher at Central Junior High School when he was in Grades 7 and 8 (1951-52 and 1952-53).

"I'm bursting with pride," she said. "Tom's initial education experiences were launched as an outstanding student, teacher and administrator. Perhaps I should have stated, Tom is a magnificent person and all that he does reflects the qualities and background which are his gifts.

"His task in Boston is monumental but I feel he will, with the cooperation of the Boston staff and the community, restore its reputation as top notch, second to none--well, second only to Quincy. All of the students in Quincy are the best in the world."

Iannoni added that although she had many outstanding students, what made Payzant stand out was his humility.

"He had the whole package--brains, looks and personality--yet he never learned to brag," she said. "He couldn't do it to save his life."

Muriel Goudey, retired Quincy High School teacher, has known Payzant since he was a baby. She and Payzant's mother, Ruth (Dennison) Payzant graduated together from Quincy High in the February Class of 1923 and remained close friends.

Ruth Dennison married C. Stuart Payzant and they lived on Buckingham Road where Goudey would often visit.

THOMAS PAYZANT, then U.S. Secretary of Education, returned to Quincy last October to attend the dedication of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center in South Quincy. Here he tries on a childhood center hat presented to him by Principal Dennis Carini. Smiling in background is School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

TWO LONG-TIME friends, Muriel Goudey, retired Quincy High School teacher and Mary Catherine Iannoni, head guidance counselor at Central Middle School were reunited with Thomas Payzant at the dedication of the Amelio Della Chiesa Childhood Center. Flanking them are Quincy School Supt. Eugene Creedon and Childhood Center Principal Dennis Carini.

"I am delighted," Goudey said upon hearing of Payzant's appointment. "He has the experience and the education and background to do an outstanding job."

She added that he is not the "flashy, flamboyant type" some people apparently wanted.

"He is quiet, calm, serene and controlled," she said. "He knows what he is doing and has proven that in San Diego and in Washington. He is hard-working and concerned for the children. They made a good choice."

Born in Boston, Payzant left the Quincy Public Schools after Central and graduated from a high school in western Massachusetts. He went on to receive a bachelor's degree in history from Williams College in Williamstown and a master's degree and doctorate in education from Harvard University.

He served as a teacher in Belmont and in Tacoma, Wash. from 1963-65; superintendent of the School District of Springfield Township, Montgomery, Pa., 1969-73; superintendent of Eugene, Ore., public schools, 1973-78; visiting professor at the University of Oregon, 1977-78; superintendent of Oklahoma City public schools, 1979-82; and superintendent of the San Diego Unified School District, 1982-93.

President Clinton appointed Payzant to his previous position in the U.S. Department of Education two years ago.

Payzant has been married for 33 years to his high school sweetheart, Ellen Watson, a social worker. The couple has three grown children in San Diego: Scott, 31, a lawyer; Gigi, 29, director of a preschool program; and Kristin, 26, a homemaker, as well as three grandchildren.

Petition Signed Into Law By Weld City Inspection Depts. Reorganization Approved

Gov. William Weld has signed into law Mayor James Sheets' home-rule petition to reorganize the city's inspection departments.

The governor signed the petition, previously supported by the City Council and the state Legislature, last Thursday, according to Sheets.

The mayor, who has said he has been interested in streamlining the departments for some time, expressed satisfaction about the passage of the petition.

"I'm pleased that we can finally take some action," said Sheets. "This will bring the departments together under one person and make the permit process user-friendly. It will provide 'one-stop shopping' for those who apply."

The petition replaces the position of building inspector with that of a director of inspections to whom the building, conservation, plumbing and wiring departments would report.

Sheets said Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey is welcome to apply for the position. The mayor noted that he plans to appoint a five-person committee to handle the selection process and recommend a final candidate for the position.

"It will be a very open

Ordinance Calls For Building Review Process

A proposed zoning change that would give more scrutiny to building projects in Quincy faced Planning Board action Wednesday.

The ordinance would set up a review process for apartment or condo projects with 12 or more units, and all new developments larger than 3,000 square-feet. Single-family homes would not be affected.

The board would conduct the review and hold public hearings.

process," said Sheets.

Mulvey declined comment at press time.

Even if Mulvey decides not to apply for the position, the mayor noted, he will hold his current title until at least January. Sheets said Jan. 1 is the earliest date he foresees the new position being filled.

The mayor said it also will not be easy to find space for the new department, since the department of public works headquarters, which houses the building, plumbing and wiring departments, probably lacks the space.

Sheets said he plans for the new department to have a receptionist who will use a computer to guide people through various permit steps and allow people to apply for all the permits they need.

"Whether they want to build a mega-complex or a shed in their backyard, it will all be the same," he said.

The mayor added that he wants Quincy's voice mail system to give basic information to callers about permitting and inspectors' schedules. Sheets said he hopes the new department will hold evening or weekend workshops to help guide homeowners through permitting for expanding a house and similar projects.

Sheets said he also plans to create an inspectional division review board to oversee major projects that require city permits.

Sheets noted that some of the changes may be made by ordinance to allow the City Council and the public to have a voice in the process.

the son of Patricia Roche and Robert Jones of Avon. He will receive a 10-by-13 custom portrait from Fine Light Photography and a year subscription to The Quincy Sun.

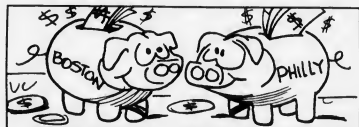

The third place winner was Baby Number 44, eight-month-old Shane Patrick Logan who raised $282 votes for MDA. Shane, the son of Mary Ellen Cameron and Scott Logan of 8 Richfield St., North Quincy, will receive an 8-by-10 custom portrait from Fine Light Photography plus a year subscription to the Sun.

Elise Kerrigan, program coordinator for the Greater Boston Chapter of MDA, thanked all those who helped make the contest a success. She said all the contestants and their families are winners because they helped raise $5,001 for MDA.

"MDA is grateful to all of the people who participated in the Baby Contest. The success of the contest showed a wonderful community commitment in the fight against muscle diseases.

"MDA is looking forward to another successful baby contest next year," Kerrigan added.

RIGHTING WRONG IDEAS ABOUT RADIATION

Two words - radiation deep-seated tumor can be treatment - can strike terror in the hearts of cancer patients and their loved ones the first time they are heard. Fortunately, understanding how radiation is actually used to fight cancer can take some of the fear out of the process. Perhaps the most common, and scariest, misconception about radiation is that it burns up cancerous cells. In fact, radiation works by disrupting the genetic material within the cancerous cells so that they cannot multiply. The treated cells eventually die off on their own, without having produced any "offspring" to continue their deadly course. Today's therapeutic X-rays have also become extremely powerful, so that even a targeted. P.S. Three-dimensional imaging technology helps target radiation precisely at tumors, minimizing damage to surrounding tissue.

While medical treatments can be scary, it can really help when you can place your trust in a caring physician. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I are here to alleviate your fears and treat your medical condition. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. I am a member of the American College of Cardiology and the American Heart Ass'n.

A Woman Mayor?

Quincy has been a city for 107 years and has had 28 men elected mayors.

Twenty-eight men. No women.

Is there a Her Honor somewhere in the future?

Women have tried for the city's highest elective office but have yet to attain it.

The most recent were Grace Saphir who ran twice in 1973 and 1975 and Joanne Condon in 1985.

Saphir polled 10,416 votes against incumbent Walter Hannon's 15,492 in 1973.

CONDON

In 1975, she finished third in a four-candidate preliminary election field with 2,710 votes to Hannon's 10,403 and Joseph LaRaia's 8,492. Michael Jovanovic got 211.

That was the year of the famous recount. Hannon appeared to have turned back LaRaia's challenge by a 134-vote margin in the November final. But a recount in December, gave it to LaRaia by 483 votes.

Condon, who had been Ward 6 city councillor, challenged Mayor Frank McCauley in 1985. McCauley racked up 13,115 votes to Condon's 7,306.

No woman has tried since.

But women have become a powerful political force in Quincy and it would seem that one of these years there will be a woman occupying that third floor City Hall office overlooking Hancock St.

The hand that once rocked the cradle now has a firm grip on the ballot box.

Consider:

A "Qualified Female Voters" list for the town of Quincy issued by the selectmen Feb. 19, 1880 contained only nine names.

In those days women could vote—but for School Committee only.

In 1919 when the 19th amendment to the Constitution was adopted giving nation-wide suffrage to women, Quincy—now a city—had 7,707 male registered voters to 429 female voters.

In 1920 when the 19th amendment actually became effective, women rushed to register. That year, male voters in Quincy numbered 9,290 but women were gaining fast. There were 6,236 women registered.

Women not only caught up to the men a few years ago but passed them.

Latest Quincy Election Department figures show the total number of voters at 47,225; of these, 26,372 are women and 20,853 men.

That gives women the lead by 5,519.

If women voters organized a "female ticket" just about every elective office in the city could be held by a woman.

Fortunately, they vote for the candidate. Most of them do, anyway, which is the way it should be.

But looking ahead to the 21st century which is just around the corner, it would seem there should be a woman mayor in Quincy's future.

Mayors usually come out of the City Council. Right now there is no woman councillor. In fact there have been only three in the city's history: Edna Austin, Patricia Toland and Condon.

So, it may take awhile longer for one to get to the mayor's office via the council. But that day apparently will come. Those registration figures are an indicator that it is going to happen—one of these years.

Her Honor, who will she be?

Whoever she is, it will be interesting to see how a woman would run the city. She would insist, of course, that she be judged not as a woman but for her performance.

But regardless, she would be Quincy's first woman mayor and would go down in history as such.

But, hopefully, also remembered for the kind of mayor she was.

THIS WEEK MARKS a sad anniversary for Quincy. Fifty-three years ago yesterday (Aug. 9, 1942) the Fore River built heavy cruiser USS Quincy (CA-39) was sunk off Guadalcanal in action with the Japanese with a loss of 489 lives.

So Vernon Whitman of Holbrook, formerly of Quincy, reminds us. Whitman served on the second USS Quincy which was scrapped after the war. Too bad Quincy couldn't have saved her back then and brought her home as part of a shipbuilding museum.

Whitman will be the host of a four-day reunion for the first USS Quincy to be held next year, May 1-4, at the Randolph Holiday Inn. Attending will be crew members and officers who served aboard the cruiser between 1936 and 1942 along with wives, children and grandchildren.

Anyone looking for more information may contact Whitman at 767-0247.

A Texas style barbecue fundraiser for City Council President Michael Cheney will be held Thursday, Aug. 24 from 6 to 10 p.m. at the home of his parents, Tom and Barbara Cheney, 12 Sea Ave., Houghs Neck. Donation is $100.

QUINCY'S RON DELLA CHIESA is the "cover boy" on this month's GBH Members' Magazine. Ron, an expert on classical and popular music, is featured on both WGBH radio and WGBH-TV Chs. 2 and 44.

Ron has deep Quincy roots, having grown up here. His father, Aldo, was DELLA CHIESA a Ward 3 City Councillor and his uncle, Amelio, was mayor. His proud mother, Florence, still lives here.

And, if you are wondering: yes, Ron, is as nice a guy in everyday life as the image he projects on radio and television.

□

PAT McDERMOTT who is running for Ward 3 City Council seat, took time out over the weekend to campaign for cancer research.

McDERMOTT

He and his brother, Chris, cycled 192 miles each in the two-day Pan-Massachusetts Challenge from Sturbridge to Provincetown. Pat has been doing this four years and Chris, three.

They do it in memory of their mother, Patricia, who died from cancer in 1989.

Their four-year total this year reached approximately $8,500 for the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute's Jimmy Fund.

AND SPEAKING OF that, The Sun's Bob Bosworth (that name's familiar) raised over $1,000 pedaling 84 miles from Boston to Bourne for the same charity.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1919 POSTCARD view showing the old Washington School in Quincy Point. Designed by a young Quincy architect, this building was erected in 1903 opposite the fire station at 600 Washington Street. This site was one of the original and ongoing sites of a Quincy elementary school from the early 1800's until this building was demolished in the late 1960's and the site is now that of the Costanzo Pagnano Towers Senior Citizens housing complex. Now, because of overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School, the city is considering building another elementary school in the Quincy Point area.

Quincy Center At 'Critical' Point

By PAUL HAROLD

William O'Connell, executive vice president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, said that the downward trends of property valuations in Quincy placed the downtown at a critical point.

He noted that for the first time valuations were going down because of abatements and the lack of new construction.

"We must further strengthen the business area by additional parking, by more and better access, by whatever reasonable means we have at our command to change this downward trend," he said.

HERBERT OPPOSES SEA ST. INCINERATOR SITE
DPW Commissioner Charles Herbert criticized the Planning Board's recommendation that a municipal incinerator be built behind the city garage on Sea St. in a letter to Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

The Planning Board rejected the Quarry St. re-zoning for an incinerator that was sought by the mayor and city council.

Herbert said that the operating costs, proximity to residential areas and traffic at the Sea St. location should rule it out for any incinerator plan. He noted that the Quarry St. site also provided for the dumping of an estimated 75 tons of residue a week that would be generated by the incinerator operation. Land at Broad Meadows was not available for dumping since it was recently purchased by Mass. Electric.

It was anticipated that the plan for a Quarry St. incinerator would go forward despite the Planning Board's vote because the mayor and a majority of the council favored it.

GEAR WORKS STRIKE CONTINUES

The 800 workers of Local 4335 of the United Steel Workers union continued their strike against Boston Gear Works for the entire week.

Peaceful pickets continued at the North Quincy plant after the local rejected a new contract that was recommended by their international representative.

The point of contention was the local's support for an additional holiday on Oct. 12 and the desire for a one-year contract as opposed to the two-year contract offered by the company.

Farmers' Market Continues In New Area At Hancock Parking Lot

Because of new management arrangements at the John Hancock parking lot, the Quincy Farmers' Market will now be on the Chestnut St. entrance side of the lot, across from the Court House.

The hours are on Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. until the end of October.

The area the farmers had been setting up for the past 13 years, (a shady area), is now being designated for the patrons of monthly passes.

There will be customer parking spaces alongside of the farmers' trucks in the same area. Customer parking, under the new rules will be free, as the first two hours entering the parking lot are free.

The market features a full array of locally grown produce including corn, tomatoes, string beans, potatoes, cabbage, cucumbers, blueberries, apples, peaches, melons, herbs, eggplant, peppers, summer squash and zucchini.

Food stamps and Farmers' Market Coupons are accepted.

There is still room for additional growers. For application, call 479-1601.

South Shore Day Care Celebration

South Shore Day Care Services (SSDCS) will celebrate the renovation of East Squantum St. Building, Tuesday, Aug. 22, from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at 150 East Squantum St.

SSDCS has provided day care at the site for 20 years. The agency has received subsidized financing from the Bank of Braintree, and through the Federal Home Loan Bank of Boston, which funded significant interior renovation and will enable the preschool program to add seven additional children.

SSDCS provides year-round child care to over 500 children, ages two months to 12 years, in centers and family day care homes throughout the South Shore. The preschool centers are accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood Program. Two programs are located in the East Squantum St. site.

The Quincy Preschool Center will now provide care for 38 children ages 2-9 to six years, and an all day kindergarten class is part of the program. Thirty youngsters in Grades 1-6 attend the Atlantic After School Program.

Among those to be commended at the celebration include, Mayor

James Sheets, Sen. Michael Morrissey, Rep. Michael B Bellotti and Donna Gorman, senior vice president, Bank of Braintree.

FAMILY OF JOHN CHAISSON gather at Beechwood on the Bay Life Center on East Squantum St. for dedication of a mosaic in memory of him who helped with the renovation of the former Elks Hall. Chaisson, who died last November, led the Norfolk County Alternative Program, a community service initiative utilizing prisoners. From left, Susan Chaisson, Margaret Cullen, Pat and Agnes Chaisson, Louise and Sheriff Clifford Marshall, John Chaisson Jr., Barbara and Bill Chaisson.

A MOSAIC PIECE is installed on the front of the Beechwood on the Bay Community Life Center by artists Marvin and Lilli Ann Rosenberg as Bill Chaisson (second from right) and Josh Sarantitis assist. Chaisson is the son of the late John Chaisson, community service director of Norfolk County Sheriff's Office who led a prisoner-release program to renovate the center. The mosaic was dedicated in his memory.

Beechwood On The Bay Brings Community To Art

A 14-foot by 9-foot concrete-based mosaic, depicting the marsh and sea shore areas of the surrounding environment, was recently installed for permanent display on the front wall of Beechwood on the Bay Life Center.

The community art celebration was attended by Mayor James Sheets, Sheriff Clifford Marshall, Beechwood senior citizens and children, families, board members, city officials, local artists, residents and business people.

The mosaic is the culmination of a three-month, intergenerational participatory project, guided and designed by renowned artist Lillia Ann Rosenberg of Art for Public Spaces. Rosenberg also produced the murals in Boston's Park Street Subway Station, and Lynn Heritage State Park, the Judge Baker Clinic of Children's Hospital and the Turtle in Whitney Houston's child's playground.

Sponsored through grants from the Massachusetts Arts Council and the Quincy Arts Council, the project entitled "Reaching Youth through Art, Reaching Art through Youth," was dedicated to the memory of John Chaisson of the Norfolk County Alternative, a longtime friend and helper of Beechwood on the Bay.

"This multi-purpose project has allowed us to beautify the environment, celebrate the rich historical site of Beechwood on the Bay and bring cultural enrichment to the community which is the goal of Beechwood," said Executive Director Sharron Beals, who organized the project.

Throughout the spring, exploration and collection walks were conducted by Clara Yeomans of the Conservation Commission, Susan Haberstroh, a Quincy educator and Sarah Terrill, director of Beechwood's All-City After School Program. Children and elders combed the sea shore and marshes surrounding Beechwood, collecting shells, sea glass and pebbles, learning about the tides, shore pollution and shore life while picking up trash and debris.

In May the children, elders, area business people and residents worked with the artists in an all day workshop at Beechwood forming clay replicas of their collections.

Bruce MacKilligan, president of Bank of Boston, South Shore, who participated in the workshop, said, "This is one of the most interesting projects I've been involved with. And the community spirit through which it was conducted made it extremely enjoyable."

Later the design work was completed and the collections were glazed, and embedded into a concrete base and sculpted into four mosaic pieces by the artist in her Wellfleet, MA studio. The finished medium is virtually indestructible and allows viewers to experience its tactile nature.

MURAL MOSAIC is admired by, from left, Sharron Beals, executive director of Beechwood on the Bay, artist Marvin Rosenberg, who put mural together; Marybeth Bent, Kathryn Sullivan, Tommy McDonough and artist Lilli Ann Rosenberg who created the pieces. The mosaic, on front of the building, was dedicated in memory of the late John Chaisson, who led the center's renovation project last year.

OUR Policy On ENGAGEMENT PHOTOGRAPHS And Wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Sterling Student Council Completes Active Year

The Sterling Middle School Student Council recently completed an active school year.

The Council was comprised of 47 students sponsored many activities for the school and community. The council planned five different theme dances for the student body including a "dress-up" dance. The representatives ran several food drives which benefits the Southwest Quincy Community Action Center as well as the Quincy Teen Mothers program. The members participated in Operation Overcoat collecting hats, gloves and winter coats for the homeless.

During Candy Cane and Valentine's Day, members delivered candy canes and carnations to students all over the school. Pictures with Santa, the Annual Lip Sync Contest, and a multimedia, Camfel Productions show promoting diversity were all sponsored by the Student Council.

During Clean-up Week, students served breakfast to the Sterling staff and presented each staff member with a small token of appreciation matching a banner that was hung in the teacher's room.

Spirit Week was a great success with a Clean-up Day, Dress-up Day, Twin Day, Blue and Silver Day and a Tie Day with contests and prizes for participation. Seventh and Eight grade student council members were Red Cross CPR certified with the sixth grade representatives expected to finish their training next fall.

For Teacher Appreciation the Council helped sponsor field trips, contests, awards, and the 1995 Yearbook. Members were involved in the World War II whole school celebration, the DARE program, the Spring Musical, the Honors Banquet, and the Grade 8 promotions ceremony. The end of the year trip was to New York City where students visited the Statue of Liberty, Ellis Island, where many looked up relatives on the Wall, and the Empire State Building. The Council stayed active right to the end of the school year when Teddy Bear Day was held where the proceeds went to the children of Oklahoma city.

Student Council members were:

Co-presidents, Christina Cici and Anna Lee Nurmenniemi, Secretary, Vera Schepis, treasurer, Crystal Kelley, Arvin Irrache-Vellve, Louis Ng, Louis Ochoa, Goretti Ochoa, Jeff Stevens, Laura McEvoy, Kim DiBona, Kristen Jakaitis, Connie Wong, Kristen Perry, Mike Roberts, Nick Pizziferri.

Jack McDonald just cooked up a great business loan.

"At the Common Market Restaurant, we were with a big Boston bank for many years, but their service became too impersonal. So we switched to The Bank of Braintree. What a difference! They've come through with a personal touch in everything they do — from providing the restaurant mortgage to handling deposits. They really know our business."

Balinese Storyteller At Library Aug. 15

I Nyoman Catra will perform Tuesday, Aug. 15 at 7 p.m. at the final show of this year's Summer Storytellers Series at the Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The program is sponsored by the Quincy Arts Council. It is appropriate for families with children age 5 and older.

For younger children, an evening storytime will be offered in the Art Gallery adjacent to the Children's Room.

I Nyoman Catra and his wife will present a performance of Balinese dance theater entitled "Kings and Clowns of Bali." During the show, they will dress as kings, queens, servants, clowns and magicians and present stories from that island.

Sabina Stenberg Candidate For Ward 5 City Councillor

Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, 80 Clay St., a candidate for Ward 5 city councillor, recently held a cookout for senior citizens at which she addressed issues concerning Social Security and Medicare for young and old.

Stenberg has held the position of chairperson of the Quincy Council on Aging and served several years on that board.

"Being a senior myself, I know their concerns and would be in close contact with issues concerning the elderly," she said.

Stenberg said she is concerned about other issues. Among her biggest priorities, she said, are to work toward slashing Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) water and sewer rates and removing rocks from Wollaston Beach so children, seniors and families can swim there.

Stenberg was enrolled as an educator and teacher for more than 25 years in her two beauty schools. She said she tried to encourage a cosmetology course at Quincy Vocational-Technical School (now the Center for Technical Education), especially since women and men are being taken off welfare.

"They have a cosmetology course in Weymouth Vocational and also at Blue Hills Vocational in Canton," she said. "Quincy is due for one."

The former president of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, Stenberg served on that board for 20 years. She is also former president of the Tobin Towers Tenants Association.

Stenberg said she is familiar with issues concerning children with disabilities as well as alcohol and drugs, the latter because she graduated from the University of Massachusetts, Boston, as an alcohol and drug counselor. She has worked as a counselor at Father Bill's Place and the Andrew House Detox.

"As a real estate broker, I am also familiar with commercial property as I owned Sabina's Realty for many years," she said. "I know how important it is to bring more commercial business to downtown Quincy as I built up Wollaston-I formerly owned the building at the corner of Hancock and Beale Sts. and brought the first Papa Gino's to Quincy."

Stenberg is minister of the Holy Eucharist at Our Lady of Good Voyage Church in Boston and at the Quincy Hospital. Her education at the University of Massachusetts included courses in psychology and human services.

She has two grown children, Peter and Margaret, and four grandchildren.

Bellotti Pushes For Passage Of Childbirth, Post Care Bill

State Representative Michael Bellotti is pushing for passage of a bill that would require insurance companies to cover women's hospital stays for a minimum of 48 hours for a natural child birth and 96 hours for Caesarean sections.

The bill recently won approval from the Legislature's Insurance Committee and is currently in the Ways and Means Committee. Bellotti has urged a favorable report and asked that it be sent to the full House.

The typical stay in hospitals for childbirth is 24 to 36 hours in the United States. Post-delivery stays have decreased dramatically since 1970, when the average stay for natural birth was 3.9 days. In 1992, the average stay was 2.1 days. Caesarean section birth stays decreased by almost half from 7.8 days in 1970, to four days in 1992.

"Abbreviated afterbirth stays can cause health problems for newborns," said Bellotti. "Conditions such as jaundice, dehydration and heart murmurs frequently cannot be detected within six hours of birth."

He added that, with insurance providers pushing for even shorter stays, "I feel there is a real need for this type of legislation to insure the health and well-being of both the newborn and its mother."

Similar legislation has recently passed in Maryland and New Jersey.

Change In Aug. 15 And Aug. 22 Arts In Park Performances

City Council President Michael Cheney who also serves as chairman for First Night Quincy, announces a change in the Arts in the Park performance for Aug. 15 and Aug. 22.

The Aug. 15 performance will be at the Wendall Moses Playground in Squantum behind the Squantum Elementary School. The performance will begin at 6 p.m. with the Dixieland Band, Made In The Shade.

Also performing will be Sara Melton Keller, a country folk singer who uses a variety of string instruments and creates a distinct blend of old and new songs from children's sing-a-longs to folk music. The final performance of the night will be by the Riverside Theatre Works, a 15 members ensemble of teenagers who perform Broadway show tunes. Their performance has received rave reviews from everyone attending the Arts in the Parks events, and their performance is sure to dazzle all ages.

The Tuesday, Aug. 15 performance will be sponsored by Impact Quincy. The Tuesday, Aug. 22 performance will be held at the Granite Workers Memorial Park and sponsored by Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and Council President Michael Cheney.

The same performance will take place Aug. 22. Cheney said this is family oriented music and all are invited to attend free of charge. Anyone attending may bring their own chairs or blanket as seating cannot be provided.

"The purpose of the Arts in the Park program is to have family and friends get together with their neighbors at their local park and enjoy a two and one half hour performance that will be talked about all year long."

Cheney also said that after listening to six performances so far held this year that many have encouraged him to continue the program for next summer.

For further information, the First Night Office may be contacted at 376-1071.

Durkin Endorsed By Labor Council

Stephen Durkin, candidate for Ward 5 city councillor, has been endorsed by the Norfolk County Labor Council, AFL-CIO.

In a recent letter, Labor Council President Frank Toland told Durkin the council had "enthusiastically" endorsed his candidacy based on Durkin's record of support for the men and women of organized labor.

Toland also wrote that the Labor Council would urge members of Union Locals to support Durkin's candidacy as well.

Safety and Effectiveness of Chiropractic CARE (Study by Harvard Medical School)

On March 10, 1995, Dr. Freedman had the opportunity to attend a 3 day seminar sponsored by Harvard Medical School, Department of Continuing Education and the Department of Medicine of the Beth Israel Hospital. The seminar focused on "Alternative or Complementary Medicine."

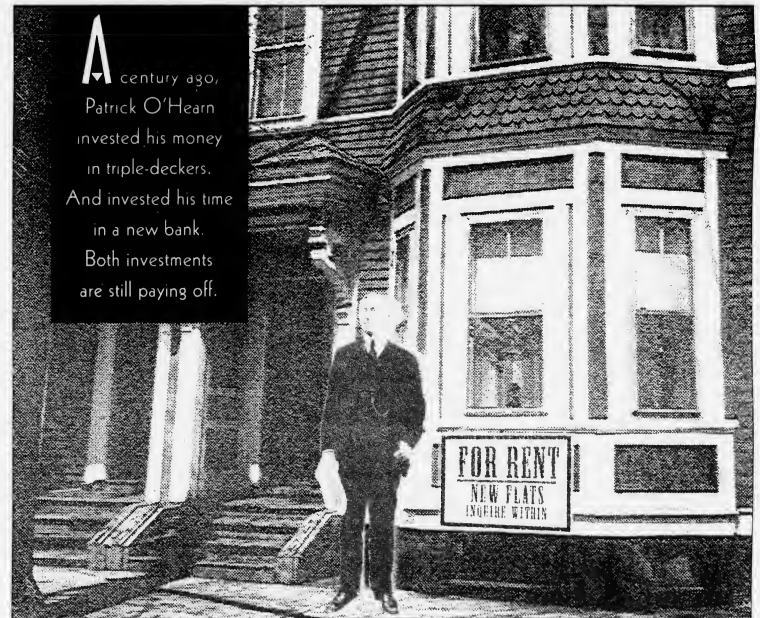

AMONG THE MAJOR POINTS PRESENTED WERE:
Of all types of "Alternative Therapy," the one with the best research evidence using controlled clinical trials is chiropractic manipulation. Many of the published studies for spinal manipulation show positive results.

IN THE TREATMENT OF LOW BACK AND NECK
A) Chiropractic Adjustment and Manipulation had one (1) negative outcome out of one hundred million (100,000,000) visits for low back and had one negative outcome out of one million (1,000,000) for neck.

B) Anti Inflammatory Drugs (Advil, Motrin, Naprin, etc.) caused serious stomach bleeding in one out of every one thousand (1,000) patients for both low back and neck. Surgery caused neurological problems 16 times every one thousand (1,000) surgeries.

In terms of safety and effectiveness as demonstrated by clinical trials and controlled studies, Chiropractic is the obvious choice. Add to this the fact that chiropractic health care is conservative and generally less expensive than conventional treatment, then the clear choice for treatment of spine-related health problems is Chiropractic.

CHIROPRACTIC WORKS-NO DRUGS-NO SURGERY. Dr. Barry Freedman has been the Director of FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC for the past 16 years, with offices at 112 McGrath Highway, Quincy Center. He is President of the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society, teaches nutrition at Massachusetts Community College and lectures extensively at many organizations and schools, including Harvard University School of Medicine and Boston University School of Nursing. If you have any questions about chiropractic or need information about lectures for your organization please call Dr. Freedman's office at 472-4220.

Around the turn of the century, Patrick O'Hearn, a real estate investor, and one of the founders of The Hibernia Savings Bank, built "three-flatters" all over Dorchester. And he built them well. Most are still standing, providing comfortable family housing. In 1914, O'Hearn became the bank's second president. And, like his triple-deckers, the tradition of service O'Hearn established at his bank has endured to this day. If you need mortgage financing for commercial property, call us today. Standard TV Celebrates 45th Anniversary Dream Comes True For Appliance Store Owner

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

In 1950, Bernie Hoffman opened a small appliance store with a few dollars and a dream.

"I was an entrepreneur with $200 when I started this business," Hoffman, 77, recalled.

Now, 45 years later, he has seen his dream come true. As Standard TV and Appliance, 1554 Hancock St., it has blossomed into a competitive business.

In the high-tech age of stressing sales, very often customer service takes a back seat to sales tactics. That, however, is not the case at Standard TV.

"We compete with service," Hoffman explained.

According to Hoffman, it is this emphasis on customer service which has kept Standard TV competitive.

"We offer customers better service such as free delivery and personalized service," he said.

While many well-known appliance and electronics chain stores offer a lot of merchandise with high prices and marginal customer service, Hoffman and the staff at Standard TV and Appliance offer first-rate customer service and competitive prices.

Standard TV also offers a low-price guarantee which states the business will do whatever it can to price merchandise lower than its competitors.

Hoffman said another important difference between Standard TV and their competitors is that Standard TV does not have as much overhead.

"We have less overhead than the bigger competitors, which allows us to charge the customer less," he said.

Hoffman is also affiliated with a nationwide buying group which allows him to purchase merchandise at competitive prices and in return sell the merchandise at a better savings for the customer.

In addition to offering

STANDARD TV AND APPLIANCE owner Bernie Hoffman (right) and manager Lee Moss. The business, located at 1554 Hancock St., is celebrating its 45th anniversary this year.

competitive prices, Standard TV also has a free same-day delivery service.

In his four decades of service at Standard TV, Hoffman has witnessed many changes in the appliance and television business.

"More people are buying appliances than televisions. Also, credit cards have made it a lot easier for people to purchase merchandise," he said.

Lee Moss, general manager of Standard TV, does not think the competition from bigger electronic and appliance stores hurts the business.

"We turn our competitors' disadvantages into our advantages," he said.

"For example, we can make same-day deliveries while our competitors can't," he said.

Since they have been in business for such a long period of time, Hoffman and his staff have seen second- and third-generation customers shop at their store.

"We also have many second- and third-generation customers and that makes us feel good," he said.

Located across from Woolworth's in Quincy Center, Standard TV and Appliance is open Monday through Wednesday 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., Thursday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday from 12 to 4 p.m.

Homebuyers Seminar Leads To Couple's Dream

Earlier this year, Peter and Debra Locke attended a homebuyers seminar that was held for residents of public housing to learn about the prospect of becoming homeowners.

Today, with the help of several local government agencies and a well-known bank, the Lockes have realized their dream of owning their own home.

The joint home ownership seminar venture combined the resources of The Quincy Housing Authority, Quincy Community Action and The Co-operative Bank.

Regional Lending Manager Judy Farmer of The Co-operative Bank, outlined the procedure and programs available to first-time homebuyers like the Lockes. Peter and Debra then met with Michael Doherty from the City of Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development.

The Lockes discovered they met the income and credit guidelines for the Soft Second Program which enabled them to pursue their dream of home ownership. Last month, Peter and Debra and their two small children, Jimmy and Amy, moved into their new home.

When asked about the program, Debra Locke cannot hide her enthusiasm.

"Attending the seminar was the best thing we've ever done, and we couldn't have asked for a more knowledgeable and determined group of people to assist us every step of the way. Without the help of Judy Farmer of The Co-operative Bank; Kaye Wagner, Debbie Kidd and Rosemary Wahlberg from QCAP; and Nancy Callanan of Century 21 Annex-Quincy to name just a few, I am sure that we wouldn't be in this house today," Debra Locke said.

"Although public housing met our needs for seven years, we are delighted to own our own three bedroom home. Our children have really settled in comfortably, too," Debra said, noting Jimmy and Amy will continue to attend the same neighborhood school.

Others involved also expressed their enthusiasm for the program.

"By The Co-operative Bank's participation with the Soft Second Program and working with the city's Planning Department, Quincy Community Action and local real estate brokers, we all achieve our common goal--promoting home ownership to low and moderate income families," Farmer said.

Funding assistance is available through the Home/Community Development Block Grant Program, Massachusetts Housing Partnership and the state Executive Office of Community Development's Soft Second Program. Due to the city's success in administering the program, Quincy was recently awarded an additional $100,000 to continue the make Soft Second Mortgages available.

Atlantic 'Together We Can' Group Cleans Up 'Kettle Hole'

A group of more than 40 volunteers from the Atlantic Neighborhood "Together We Can" Prevention Council recently helped clean up the "Kettle Hole" at Kendall Park in North Quincy.

The group works to create awareness about the risks area children face around alcohol, tobacco and other drugs. The event was sponsored by Impact Quincy and received additional support from McDonald's in North Quincy and Frank Miller of the Wollaston Market.

Officials said the Kettle Hole was picked because it is a place where young people have been known to drink and hang around. The group hopes to discourage that type of behavior by cleaning up the surrounding brush.

Many of those who participated in the cleanup were youths from the Atlantic neighborhood.

Among those who participated were Cheryl, Jenn and Paul Skarzenski; Shannon and Bob McCauley, Kathy and Kelly McVeigh, Mary Margaret and Lynette Alessi, Chandra Leister, Alexis Miranda, Nnamdi Azuonye,

David Buttiner, Joanna and John Timbone, and others. The group plans to do more at the Kettle Hole as well as other neighborhood sites.

For more information about volunteering or starting a "Together We Can" group, call Steve Ward at Impact Quincy, 472-6027.

Knocks Milford Out Of State Playoffs Morrisette Flirts With Elimination Once Again

By KERRY BYRNE

If there's something to be said for experience, then there's a lot to say about the Morrisette American Legion baseball team.

Morrisette (22-9, 7-3 playoffs) has had more playoff experience in the last six years than any team in the state. They were scheduled to play Sandwich Tuesday night (Aug. 8) in what would be their 52nd playoff game in the past six years.

This wealth of playoff experience has translated to a cool and collected team demeanor which has allowed the club to overcome first-game losses in each of their last three playoff series.

Morrisette was shutout in their opening game of the American Legion state playoffs in Lowell, only to come back in their second outing with an impressive 11-2 win Sunday which knocked Milford from the double-elimination tournament.

Two weeks ago, Morrisette lost Bridgewater, only to win the next two in the best-of-three District series. In the District finals against Westwood, they suffered a first-game loss but swept the next two.

In the opening game of the state tournament Saturday, Morrisette was blanked 7-0 by Reading and star pitcher Stephen Langone. Langone, a senior-to-be at Reading High School, used an outstanding repertoire to hold scoreless what had been a streaking Morrisette lineup.

"He was the best pitcher I've seen in three or four years," said Morrisette coach Dave Perdios, who has seen many of the best. "He had a fastball with good velocity, a curve, slider, change-up and knuckleball. He threw overhand, three-quarters and sidearm. We don't hit well against great pitching anyway, and he's probably the best we've faced."

Morrisette returned with a bang in the 11-2 win over Milford. Perdios credited the win to his team's vast experience: "We have a lot of 18-year-olds with a lot of experience; they know how to come back after a loss. Milford (which also lost its first game) just wasn't in it mentally like we were. They were making a lot of noise before the game, but weren't really ready to come back after the loss. That's something our kids have learned to overcome."

The mental advantage certainly helped, but having a pitcher like Scott Kelly on the mound, and in the lineup, proved a big factor as well. The Boston College High School graduate allowed just four base hits in seven innings of work while going 4 for 5 at the plate with a pair of RBIs. Kelly hit safely twice in the sixth inning alone, as Morrisette put the game away with eight runs. He led with a single and poked an RBI shot to shallow center with one out.

"Kelly was incredible, he just came alive for us," said Perdios. "He hit the ball well and he's the type of kid who's always in the game."

Ten Morrisette players came to bat in the sixth and nine reached base. The number of different batters was ten because Brian Beaton replaced Chris Cotter in what would have been Cotter's second at-bat of the inning. Cotter was hit by a pitch, while an error in left field allowed Beaton to reach second and drive in two. Only clean-up man Tim Zaniboni failed to reach, but his sacrifice fly to center field drove in a run.

Adding to the offense were Jim Sapienza, who smashed an RBI triple to deep right center, walked twice and had two RBIs; and Tom Malvesti, who had two singles and two RBIs.

The winner of the Morrisette-Sandwich game Tuesday night would play the winner of the Needham-Swampscott game. The loser would be eliminated. Both Needham and Swampscott were 2-0 going into their contest.

Morrisette In Playoffs Sixth Straight Year

Morrisette's game Tuesday night against Sandwich was to be their 52nd playoff game in the past six years.

In 1990 the Quincy team played in six playoff games. They followed with six in 1991, 14 in 1992, five in 1993 and 10 last year. The Sandwich game was their 11th of the 1995 playoffs.

Three of those years included trips to the eight-team state finals tournament: this season and last, and in 1992 when Morrisette won the Massachusetts state American Legion title.

Included in the six-year playoff run are five Zone 6 titles. The only year Morrisette did not win was 1994, when they placed third. They lost to New Bedford in the second round of the District playoffs, but got an automatic bid to the state playoffs as the tournament's host team. Once there, they eliminated three teams from the tourney, and lost only to champion Walpole and runner-up New Bedford.

Mannix, Panagos Lead AL In All-Star Game

Chris Mannix and Jamie Panagos led the American League to an 11-8 win over the National League in the International League All-Star Game.

Mannix, of Everlasting Engraving, was named Most Valuable Player and Panagos, of Recuperio & Davis, was the winning pitcher.

SSGA's Brian Bownell was named National League MVP.

Representing the winning league were Recuperio & Davis' Steve Maffeo, Joe Barkhouse and Jamie MacIsaac; Super Chef's Mike Raciot, Mike Lencki and Corey Awed; Everlasting Engraving's Johnny McCue, Jarrod DeCelle and Johnny Ly; Noll Electric's Eugene DeLisle and Matt Terlaje; and Feenan Financial's Mike Keenan, Matt McDonough, Matt Nelson and Tom Mann.

Representing the National League were ATSS's Shawn Walsh, Mike Cosseboom and Jay Newhall, North Quincy K of C's Dan (Night Train) Kane, Sean Carter, Chris Haidul, Pat Pezzulo and Owen Nestor; SSGA's Claire Quilty and Jason Smith; Osco Drug's Peter Godfrey, Kevin Joyce, John Keeley and Chris Wilkie.

Celebrates In Style

Quincy Tennis Club Marks 108th Year

It was just like old times Saturday at the Quincy Tennis Club's Vintage Cup tournament.

Two dozen participants were decked in tennis garb from the 1920s through 40s (long pants, bow ties, suspenders, etc.) as the club celebrated the sport's lengthy traditions. Not content on looks alone, participants in the tournament played with wooden racquets as they took part in a mixed doubles competition.

Period music, cream and strawberries (a Wimbledon tradition) and wooden-basket lunches were also part of the festivities and lent an authentic aura to the day.

"Tennis has a long tradition," said Quincy Tennis Club's Ken Rickson. "It's interesting for tennis players to go back to the roots of the game and see how it was played many years ago."

Rickson added that the QTC had a particular interest in the history of the game: founded in 1887, it is the oldest tennis-only club in North America. During the period celebrated, the club was already almost 50 years old.

The tournament involved four eight-game pro sets for each of the 12 men and 12 women who took part. The mixed doubles changed partners for each match and the winner was the person who totaled the most combined points from each match.

Joe Ryan of Quincy was the eventual winner, but he was forced into a tie breaker as he and three members, club president Bob Yee, Pam Trafton and Joan Torracco, ended regulation with 32 points each. A win over Trafton in a singles match gave Ryan the tournament victory.

Though losing in the playoff, Torracco redeemed herself with an award for the best lunch of the day. The lunches were packed by the women and an auction was held with only the men placing bids. Though sexist by today's standards, it was indicative of old-time practices.

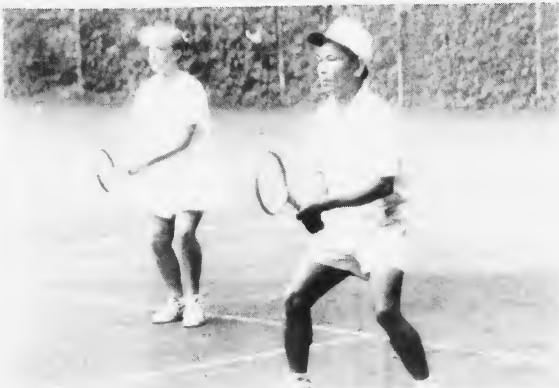

In deference to the role of tradition, awards were given for the best period tennis outfits. Louise Durante and Rickson were the respective women's and men's winners.

The event organizers were Andy Bisconte and Dick Mount. According to many involved, they did a wonderful job setting the stage for a delightful afternoon of tennis and tradition.

Softball League Closes 20th Season, Playoffs Begin

By CLAIRE OLIVERIO

In the summer of 1976, Patty Molloy Gauthier wanted to get together with friends each week and play softball in an organized league.

However, the city of Quincy offered no such program for women over age 18. Gauthier took it upon herself to start one on her own. Little did she know that 20 years later the Quincy Women's Softball League would still be going strong.

Gauthier passed away in 1981 at age 29 after a long battle with cancer. In her honor, the QWSL sponsors a tournament in her name at the beginning of each season (this was the 14th annual tourney) which attracts teams from all over the East Coast.

"Even though Patty isn't with us anymore, her memory lives on through this tournament and its participants," said league director Ginny Trainor. "I know she would be proud."

The tournament enables the QWSL to raise money for a college scholarship which goes to a deserving league member at the end of the year.

Over the past 20 years, the QWSL has grown from eight to 18 teams and now boasts over 300 women. The league is divided into three divisions. Home fields are Mitchell/McCoy on Southern Artery. Thanks to a federal grant which helped upgrade fields throughout the city, Mitchell/McCoy underwent an overhaul this past spring.

"It took a long time for these fields to be up to par, but it was a great way to kickoff our 20th season," said assistant director Terry Greenleaf.

The season recently came to a close with the playoffs set to begin this week. The final regular season standings were:

A Division: Liberty Lounge, 15-2; Trainor's 12-6; GNC Printing, 11-7; MacDougall's, 9-9; Fowler House, 9-9; Cagney's 4-12; Scituate Chiropractic, 2-15.

B Division: Mane Connection, 12-4; Louie's, 11-5; Rascals, 7-9; Fowler House B, 5-11; Peter B's, 5-11.

C Division: Alumni Cafe, 12-3; Washington Tap, 10-5; Malachy's, 8-7; High Rise, 7-8; Pat Flanagan's 7-8; Shooter's, 1-14.

Each division plays within itself and the top four teams from each are eligible for the playoffs. Semifinals are best-of-three and the finals are a best-of-five series. Playoffs were scheduled to run this week, Monday (Aug. 7) through Friday (Aug. 11) at 8:15 and 9:30 p.m.

The QWSL held its 18th annual all-star game July 15. Two players voted on by teammates were selected by each team.

The National League won, 19-8. The big bang came of the stick of Gerilyn Riley of GNC Printing, who blasted a two-out grand slam into the parking lot.

While the game may have been lopsided, it drew a crowd of 300 or more; a crowd which attempted to do the 'wave' in the small bleacher section.

Anyone wishing to join, or enter a team, is more than welcome, said league secretary Laurie Hansen. The season starts in May and there are always teams looking for players. For information on joining call 843-6251 or 328-0620.

The league is gearing up for its post-season awards banquet, to be held Sept. 22 at Florian Hall in Dorchester. League organizers are hoping to get former players to attend in honor of its 20th anniversary. Any interested can call Ginny Trainor at 328-0620.

Red Storm With Win, Tie

The St. John's Red Storm thundered past Hingham, 14-5, last week.

Pitchers John Lupo and Chris Doherty and right fielder Tom Callahan helped stifle the Hingham offense. Lupo, in his first start, allowed just two earned runs in 3 2/3 innings of work. Doherty gave up one earned run in earning his fourth save.

Callahan had a gun for an arm as he assisted twice on the rare 9-3 putout at first.

Matt Gardner sparked the offense as he went 3 for 3 with a double, four RBI and four runs scored. He also fired to Kevin Eagan from behind the plate to nail a runner attempting to steal third.

Chris Lynch (3 for 3, double, three runs scored) and Dave Vails (2 for 3, three RBI) led Hingham. Clutch hitting and base running by Bill Page helped the Red Storm play to a 6-6 tie with South Marshfield.

With his team trailing 5-3 in the sixth, Page singled to drive in Callahan and Gardner and then stole home for his team's final run.

Jim Conostas pitched 5 1/3 innings, allowing just two hits and no earned runs for St. John's. Dave Centrella came on in relief with the bases loaded in the final inning and fanned the last two batters to preserve the tie. Conostas was victimized by a St. John's defense that did not play as well as it has in other games.

Gardner went 2 for 3 with a double, triple, RBI and stole home. John Chevalier had an RBI single in the first inning.

Bill McGinn and Chris Bergman stroked the only South Marshfield hits.

Bregoli In AAU Baseball Tournament IN Florida

Fresh off his second consecutive Quincy Babe Ruth League title as a member of the Elks, Chris Bregoli will head for Cocoa Beach, Fla., as a member of the New England Mariners 14-year-old AAU baseball team.

The AAU tournament runs from Aug. 3-12.

Bregoli, an infielder and pitcher for the Elks, is playing left field for the Mariners.

Last Saturday the Mariners beat the defending national champions Connecticut (Hartford) Baseball Academy, 3-2, in a game played at the University of New Hampshire.

Bregoli has been an anchor on three consecutive baseball champions.

In his final year of Junior League ball, his Continental Cablevision club won that league's title.

He has also quarter-backed the North Quincy Apaches to back-to-back Quincy Youth Football League championships.

Bregoli will be a freshman at North Quincy High School in the fall.

Kids Karate Class Begins In September

A Kids Karate Class will begin in September at the St. Boniface Church Hall in Germantown, the Atlantic Neighborhood Center in North Quincy, and the Fore River Club House in Quincy Point.

FUSE CHECK

A blown fuse is one of the few repairs that car owners can do themselves on the spot. First, it pays to know the location of the fuse box before the need arises. Not only will the owner's manual give the box's location, but it will likely provide a diagram detailing the function of each fuse, as well as its amperage. In the event that an electrical feature fails to work, consult the diagram and identify the fuse that corresponds to the failed system or accessory. Be sure to have a flashlight on hand to cope with dim lighting. If the fuse in question appears broken or blackish, replace it with a fuse of the same amperage. Prepare for this eventuality by having plenty of spare fuses on hand. If the fuse proceeds to blow again, have the problem checked out. Hint: If a spare fuse is not on hand to fix a blown fuse, "borrow" a fuse of the same amperage from a nonessential circuit, such as the radio.

Watching your warning lights and maintaining your car is important so that it will give you better service and last longer. At today's prices it is not wise to do anything else. To help you properly care for your car, come into the service department at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, where you will be offered the best service available, even for a simple fuse change, by technicians who are very knowledgeable about today's cars. You'll find us conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, 843-1550.

Wollaston Golf Course Celebrating Centennial

Wollaston Golf Club will continue its Centennial Celebration Aug. 12 with an Octogenarian Open.

The club will also celebrate its 100-year history in September with the Heritage Weekend Championship visit to President's Golf Course, Wollaston's original site.

The Octogenarian Open will be held at 1 p.m. and 16 players of at least 80 years of age are expected to play nine holes. Each player will have his own cart with a member dressed in knickers and tuxedo serving as caddy. A champagne reception will follow. "Many of these people have been members for 25 to 50 years, or more," said Centennial Celebration co-chairman Steve Sager.

On Sunday, Aug. 13 a special mixed event for fivesomes will be held.

The purpose of the Heritage Weekend Championship is to celebrate 100 years of golf at Wollaston's two homes. It will be a 36 hole event with the first 18 being played Sept. 8 at President's Golf Course and the second 18 being played Sept. 9 at Wollaston Golf Course.

"We're one of the few clubs in the country that moved from its original site and a course still exists there," said Sager. "We felt the Heritage would be a great opportunity for many of our older members to return to our old course for the first time since moving, and for many of our newer members to see the old course for possibly the first time."

The club kicked off its centennial celebration with a New Year's ball and continued it with a special St. Patrick's Day party. Other activities will include a gala centennial ball, preparation of a three-volume club history, a time capsule, a centennial cookbook and an auction.

Astros Flying Through Quincy Tournament

The Quincy Astros, a group of 11-year-old baseball players, have rocketed to a 4-0 start in the Quincy Baseball Tournament.

The Astros opened the tourney with an 11-6 victory over Milton.

Phil (The Thrill) McGillicuddy and Peter Turowski hit first-inning home runs to provide liftoff for the Astros offense.

Justin (Fireball) Hall, Tommy (Gun) Hughes, Matt Donovan, Tom (The Bomb) Buckley and Richie Howe each contributed with clutch hits.

McGillicuddy pitched five innings and struck out 10 to record the win.

The Astros followed by chopping down Cedar Grove, 13-5.

Hall paced the attack with four hits, including a pair of roundtrippers. Multiple hit games were turned in by Billy Croke, Pat (Holy!) Bregoli, Mike Conley, Hughes and Howe.

Casey (At The Bat) Hillis and Buckley also had hits. Jack Liuzzo, Mike Ryan and Brian Kenney had strong games in the field.

In their next game, the Astros bombed Hanover, 13-4.

Hughes went the distance in recording the win. Howe, Ryan, Hall and Hughes had multiple hit games while Mike Feetham, Croke, Conley, McGillicuddy and Hillis each had a hit.

They continued their domination of the tourney as they swamped Marshfield, 7-3.

Phil The Thrill carried a no-hitter into the fifth and finished by throwing a complete game, two-hitter with 10 K's.

Hughes and McGillicuddy had two hits apiece while Liuzzo, Donovan, Turowski and Hall each had one. Ryan laid down a perfect bunt to jump start the attack.

The Astros record stands at 8-3 (7-1 versus teams their own age). They are 1-1 in the prestigious Parkway Tournament after slicing Dedham, 11-3, and losing a nine-inning 2-1 affair to Ashland.

In the Dedham win, Hall and Bregoli combined for a five-hitter to record the win. Howe, Hughes, Hall, Bregoli and Turowski had two hits apiece while Croke and Feetham cracked one each.

The 2-1 loss to Ashland was considered among the best in Parkway Tournament history.

The Astros took a 1-0 lead in the sixth before Ashland tied it with an infield hit. They went on to win with two outs in the ninth.

Fireball Hall and Phil The Thrill combined to pitch a great game. Hall struck out 13 in 5 2/3 innings.

Croke had a 4 for 4 outing while Feetham, Donovan and Howe smacked two hits each. Single base hits were recorded by Hughes, McGillicuddy, Hall and Ryan.

Liuzzo and Croke made outstanding plays in the field to keep the game going in the seventh and eighth innings.

The Astros will continue to fire up the engines in both the Quincy and Parkway tourneys and will later touch down in the Weymouth Invitational.

ment, 100 Southern Artery, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. as long as openings exist.

Rev. Esther R. Sanger, 71

Founder Of The Quincy Crisis Center; "Mother Teresa Of The South Shore"

A funeral service for Rev. Esther R. (Hicks) Sanger, 71, of Quincy, was held Aug. 5 in the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

Rev. Sanger died Aug. 1 after a brief battle with cancer.

Known as "the Mother Teresa of the South Shore," she was a minister, social worker, registered nurse and founder and executive director of the Quincy Crisis Center. She traveled the streets of Quincy to counsel, feed and shelter the hungry.

Rev. Sanger was a counselor, advocate and court worker for DOVE Inc., a shelter for battered women and their children, and founder of the Mary-Martha Learning Center in Hingham, a shelter and training center for mothers and children.

Mayor James Sheets, who knew her for more than 30 years, had strong words of praise for Rev. Sanger.

"She basically saw all the needs that developed in the community—people who were hungry, young people in crisis, families in crisis—and she put all her beliefs into practice," said Sheets. "She impacted, and made contributions to, the lives of literally hundreds and hundreds of people."

"She was a shining light in people's worlds of darkness. Our city is a stronger city because of Esther Sanger."

In May, she was told she had cancer throughout her body and could expect to live three months. Two months later, she was still taking phone calls about food deliveries and making luncheon dates to raise money for the crisis center.

About 75 officials, clergy, social service workers, friends and family members honored her at a tribute in mid-July.

Her two daughters, Donita Rardin and Heather Rideout, who run the Mary-Martha Learning Center, spoke at the tribute of their mother's wealth of friends, her care and skill as a grandmother, and her unrelenting faith in God.

REV. ESTHER SANGER

In 1978, she was director of family services for The Salvation Army. A year later, she decided to take her counseling skills on the road and with her own money and donations set up a crisis hotline and bought a van to answer calls in person.

She soon discovered she and her associates could not successfully counsel hungry people so she started serving meals and soon would provide sleeping space as well. Eventually, the crisis center began offering the 24-hour-a-day hotline, drop-in services, food and shelter.

Born in Lowell, she was a 1949 graduate of St. Vincent's School of Nursing. After her three children were grown, she returned to school to receive a bachelor's degree in social work and a master's degree in family counseling at Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston. Her longtime ambition to become an ordained Nazarene minister was realized last year.

Rev. Sanger's career included work as a group leader and trainer at Hyde Park House, coordinator for the South Shore Mental Health Center, vice president of Christian Weight Control, and a nurse at a number of hospitals and through private nursing.

She was recognized for her work by President George Bush and Gov. Michael Dukakis.

Rev. Sanger was a member of the National Association of Social Workers, the Eastern Nazarene College Alumni Association, the board of trustees of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra and the board of directors of The Open Door.

Wife of the late H. Leland Sanger, she is also survived by a son, David H. Sanger of Quincy; and three grandchildren.

Cremation followed the funeral service.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to Mary-Martha Learning Center, 1045 Main St., Hingham, MA 02043.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

When you think about it, there is nothing mysterious or complex about "human nature." Human nature is nothing other than human habits. Human nature is therefore changeable the same as human habits are changeable.

Surprisingly human nature is often mentioned to excuse personal offenses and misbehavior. It is equally surprising that the inherent goodness in man is seldom mentioned as human nature. The human habits of love, tolerance and respect are certainly as much of human nature as the faults of greed, distrust and other offensive vices. Actually, when you look around, you see far more love, trust and selflessness than hate, distrust and selfishness. In these troublesome times in human relation, it is still true that goodness exceeds the bad. And more importantly, it is good to stress that bad habits can be changed to good habits if a will to do so exists. In short, "human nature" can be changed. Just change "human habits."

School Committee Boosts Creedon's Salary To $85,000

School Supt. Eugene Creedon has received a four-year contract from the School Committee that raises his salary by $15,000 over the next two years.

The contract runs through June 30, 1999. Effective July 1 of this year, he will be paid an $85,000 salary, $10,000 more than last year.

From July 1996 to June 1998, his salary will be $90,000. Compensation for the final year of his contract will be negotiated.

Creedon, 60, a Quincy native, has had a long career in the Quincy Public Schools as a teacher and principal. He was named to the superintendent's post in May 1992 while serving as acting superintendent for outgoing Supt. Robert Ricci.

The School Committee signed Creedon to the contract at its meeting last week.

2 Councillors Support Plan For Quincy Point School

Two city councillors have voiced support of a proposal to build a new elementary school in Quincy Point.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio both said they favor the idea at last week's School Committee meeting. The city would have to take out a bond to pay for the project, an action that would require City Council support.

The proposal, introduced last week by School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi and committee member Ronald Mariano, is intended as a solution to overcrowding at the Sterling Middle School in South Quincy. Currently, a number of Quincy Point students travel by bus to attend Sterling.

The proposal calls for turning the Daniel Webster Elementary School into the Quincy Point Middle School and building a new elementary school for the Daniel Webster students.

Other School Committee members voiced general support of the idea at their meeting last week. Fabrizio, who serves as vice chairman of the Sterling Middle School Task Force, and Chretien said they feel the same way.

"It has become increasingly clear that adding on to Sterling is not the most feasible long-term solution to the overcrowding," said Fabrizio. "Creating a megaschool at Sterling was not going to be the answer as it is not in keeping with the neighborhood school concept that most parents and educators feel is important."

Chretien said he supports taking out a bond to pay for the construction of the school. He said the city's debt level will drop dramatically in the next two years, making now a good time to bond, and that he doubts the city would have to raise taxes to pay for the new building.

"I've been doing some research, and I've talked to (School Supt.) Gene Creedon a couple of times about it," he said. "Any other option would be compromising educational quality, and I'm convinced we can afford this."

"So it's affordable, and it's the right thing to do educationally."

The proposal calls for Creedon to form a committee to look into the matter, and for that committee to report back to the School Committee in October.

Salem Passes 5,000-Visitor Mark

The USS Salem has had more than 5,000 visitors since opening to the public in June and continues to grow in popularity, according to the executive director of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

William MacMullen said Tuesday the 718-foot heavy cruiser, the centerpiece of the museum at the Fore River shipyard in Quincy Point, is beginning to draw a steady stream of visitors from the area and from all over the country.

"I'm encouraged by the numbers," he said. "They're right on the money and within expectations."

MacMullen said the ship, which is open to the public seven days a week, routinely pulls in between 150 and 160 visitors on weekends and visitation on weekdays has been steadily increasing. For instance, on two weekdays last week, 45 and 60 visitors respectively boarded the ship, while this week, 84 people visited the Salem Monday and 114 on Tuesday.

"That's probably the first time we've ever topped 100 people on a weekday," he said. "We're picking up more and more all the time."

MacMullen said he thinks regular advertising and positive press coverage in news organizations such as The Quincy Sun and The Boston Globe have helped the weekday numbers increase. The museum will receive an additional boost when a segment about the ship appears on Channel 5's (WCVB-TV) "Chronicle" program Aug. 18, he added.

Visitors have come from local communities such as Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree and as far away as New Jersey and Wisconsin, MacMullen said. He added that there have also been repeat visitors, noting that one area resident has brought her son on the ship four times.

MacMullen also said sales at the ship store have been steady and bookings for special events such as weddings, birthday parties and other social functions "are picking up."

"I'm very pleased with what we've done so far," he said.

Site For Hotel Could Be Ready By Year's End

rest in the site.

"There's been one developer that has been more interested in the others," he confirmed.

Mannarino would not identify the developer. At press time, Peter Brown of Peter Eliot and Co. could not be reached for comment.

Last month, Quincy 2000 sent out a survey to businesses throughout the city as well as other organizations affiliated with the public-private planning corporation to determine what kinds of services and attributes they find desirable in a hotel. Mannarino said he has not received results from the survey yet but he expects them within the next two weeks.

However, he noted that among the ideas under consideration for the hotel building are a restaurant, function room, and two floors of office space.

Mannarino said a "tremendous amount" of the preliminary financial and design work for the hotel has already been done.

Mayor James Sheets said in January bringing a hotel to Quincy Center is essential to the city's tourism drive and the future of the downtown shopping district. He called the project his "primary goal for 1995," and said he hoped to have the planning and financing for the project completed by the end of this year.

Sheets also said at the time he would like to see construction of the hotel completed within two to two-and-a-half years.

Nearly 1,000 Attend Chamber's 70th Outing

Approximately 1,000 members and guests attended the recent 70th annual outing of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at Ridder Country Club in Whitman.

The Stoughton firm Dunbar Wolfe, a producer of business forms and printing supplies, won the Ridder golf tournament while Quincy's Leone, Morrissey and Henriksen, an accounting firm, won the South Shore Country Club tournament.

At Ridder, Dick Straczynski of Hibernia Savings Bank in Quincy and John

E. McKay of McKay Fried & Partners of Quincy finished 1-2 in the longest drive competition.

John Santos of Bay-Bank in Dedham earned the top spot in the same competition at South Shore Country Club, followed by Michelle Smith.

SUMMER CAR CARE

New Cars Sound Warnings, But Is Anybody Listening?

Recent commercials advertise new cars that appear virtually maintenance free. Many have message centers that warn drivers about everything from an inoperable brake light to low oil level.

With these impressive advancements, is the need for regular checks a thing of the past?

"Hardly," says Don Midgley, president of the Car Care Council. "Computerized message centers should help owners maintain safer, more efficient cars. But these warnings are worthless if the motorist ignores them."

Whether or not your vehicle is equipped with all of the bells and whistles that technology has to offer, it is wise to check, or have checked, the following items:

Cooling System--Flush, drain and replace antifreeze. Test, inspect and replace needed parts.

Engine--Diagnostic and tune-up services needed. Oil and filter change (check all fluids).

Tires, Wheels and Brakes--Rotate, inspect and balance tires. Check alignment and suspension components. Inspect braking system.

Vision--Replace/aim headlights. Replace worn windshield wiper blades.

"With over 15,000 parts in a vehicle and eight out of 10 cars needing some type of maintenance, it's amazing that more motorists don't have problems," says Midgley.

Over 2,000 traffic fatalities a year are directly attributed to mechanical failure due to neglect. It only takes one defective tire or faulty wiper blade to put your car, your billfold, and possibly your safety on the line. It may be tough to rush to an automotive technician every time a warning light is to play Russian roulette blinks, but to do otherwise with your car.

How Many Fluids?

How many fluids can be checked on a typical car? Four? Six? Ten?

If you guessed 10, you're right. They're found in the:

- Engine
- Transmission
- Braking System
- Battery
- Windshield Washers
- Power Steering
- Cooling System (Antifreeze)
- CV Joints/Rear Axle
- Gas Tank
- Air Conditioner

All of the above except the CV joints (which should be checked for leakage) and some batteries required periodic checking and "topping off."

Which ones require changing? The engine oil, antifreeze, transmission fluid and the brake fluid.

How many require filter replacement? Generally, three: the engine oil, transmission fluid and fuel.

Late-model cars are more susceptible to trouble due to contaminated fuel and brake fluid, says the Car Care Council. The tiny orifices in fuel injection and braking systems re-

Studds: Commerce Dept. To Provide $25M For Vessel Buy-Back

Congressman Gerry Studds, Sen. John Kerry and Commerce Secretary Ron Brown have announced the Commerce Department will provide $25 million to New England for a vessel buy-back program to reduce the number of fishing boats in the region.

"This is a critical tool in our efforts to rebuild New England groundfish stocks. In and of itself, it obviously will not solve the crisis, but it is one way to help reduce fishing effort," said Studds. "We will still need to develop a tough, restrictive management plan to help the stocks recover, which means we also need job retraining and unemployment compensation to help ease the burdens on our fishermen."

Studds said he is pleased the Commerce Department will go ahead with the larger-buy-back program once the $2 million pilot program is completed. The department began accepting applications for the pilot six weeks ago and will continue to receive them until Sept. 5.

The congressman also said he hoped the $25 million could be leveraged with other funding sources, from the states and perhaps even the industry itself, to create an even larger buy-back program.

Studds has secured legislative authorization for a buy-back program as part of the reauthorization of the Magnuson Act, the primary law governing fisheries, which was passed by the Resources Committee in May. The bill is expected to come before the full House this fall.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF SALE MORTGAGEES SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the POWER OF SALE contained in a certain Mortgage given by Karen R. Hull to Mellen Bray Corporation, dated January 8, 1991, and duly recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds at Book 8827, Page 54, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing, the same will be sold at Public Auction at 10:00 a.m. on Thursday, the 7th day of September, A.D., 1995, at the mortgaged premises located at Unit #128, 32 Linden Street (10 Weston Avenue), Quincy (Wollaston), Norfolk County, Massachusetts, all and singular portions of the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

Unit No. 128 in Mellen Bray Condominium in said Quincy, created by Master Deed dated January 6, 1989, and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Book 8209 Page 477.

Said Unit is conveyed together with an undivided .781% interest in the common areas and facilities of said Condominium, subject to and with the benefit of the provisions of said Master Deed Hereinafter referred to, to be used for residential purposes as more specifically provided in said Master Deed and together with the exclusive right and easement to use parking space no. 87, all as shown upon the plans filed with the Master Deed, together with the exclusive right and easement in gross to use storage space no. 5.

Said unit is laid out as shown on the unit plan annexed to the first Unit Deed, recorded at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Book 8827, Page 50, which is a copy of a portion of the plans filed with the Master Deed as amended from time to time, and to which is affixed a verified statement in the form provided in M.G.L. Chapter 183A, Section 9, and said Unit contains the areas shown on said plan.

Said Unit is conveyed with the benefit of and subject to (a.) the provisions of M.G.L. Chapter 183A as the same may now or hereafter be amended, (b.) said Master Deed of Mellen Bray Condominium and amendments thereto, (c.) the By-laws of Mellen Bray House Condominium Association, Inc., any amendments to same, and any rules and regulations adopted from time to time pursuant thereto, and (d.) all matters of record stated or referred to in the Master Deed, as completely as if each were fully set forth herein including but not limited to reservations, rights and easements. For the current title see Deed recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds at Book 8827, Page 50.

Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to and/or with the benefit of any and all restrictions, easements, improvements, covenants, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record created prior to the mortgage, if any, there be.

Said premises to be sold and conveyed will also be subject to any and all leases and tenancies, if any there may be, having priority over said mortgage, to tenancies or occupation by persons on the premises now or at the time of said auction which tenancies or occupation are subject to said mortgage, to rights or claims in personal property installed by tenants or former tenants now located on the premises, and also to all laws and ordinances, including, but not limited to, all building, zoning, and environmental laws and ordinances.

TERMS OF SALE

The highest bidder shall be required to deposit Five Thousand Dollars and 00/100 ($5,000.00) in cash or by certified or bank cashier's check at the time and place of said sale of the entire premises. The balance is to be paid in cash or by certified, or bank cashier's check at the office of Michael Magerer, Michael Magerer & Associates, 825 Beacon Street, Newton Centre, Massachusetts, 02159-1834 (Mortgagee's attorneys), within thirty (30) days from the date of the sale. The successful bidder shall be required to sign a Memorandum of Sale containing the above terms and conditions and others announced at the sale.

In the event that the successful bidder at the foreclosure sale shall default in purchasing the within described property according to the terms of this Notice of Sale and/or terms of the Memorandum of Sale executed at the time of the foreclosure, the Mortgagee reserves the right to sell the property by Foreclosure Deed to the second highest bidder that shall deposit with the above named Mortgagee's attorneys the amount of the required deposit as set forth herein within three (3) business days after written notice of default of the previous highest bidder, the balance to be paid in or within twenty one (21) days of said written notice, as hereinbefore outlined.

The deposit paid at the time of the sale shall be forfeited if the purchaser does not comply strictly with the terms of the sale. The purchaser will be responsible for all closing costs, state documentary stamps, and recording fees. For authority for said sale, see Judgement of the Land Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in Case No. 216470.

This Mortgagee reserves the right to postpone the sale to a later time and/or date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the sale and to further postpone at any adjourned sale date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the adjourned sale date.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the time and place of sale.

Events On George's Island, Marina Bay USO Dance, Parade To Celebrate WWII Victory This Weekend

The Allies victory in World War II 50 years ago will be celebrated locally with two commemorative events at Marina Bay this weekend.

The Metropolitan District Commission, Bay State Cruise Lines and "Friends of the Lightship Nantucket" will sponsor a USO Dinner-Dance on George's Island Saturday evening, Aug. 12. The vessel "Bay State" will depart Marina Bay at 5 p.m. and return from George's Island at 10:30 p.m.

The dance will feature sounds of the "Big Band" era including Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey. Tickets are $20 per person and include round trip boat fare and a barbecue dinner.

Parking at Marina Bay is free. For information and reservations, call 723-7800.

The weekend's victory celebration will continue on Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with displays of WWII memorabilia and WWII re-enactors set up on the grounds of Marina Bay as well as on the boardwalk.

A parade to the Veterans Clocktower will step off at 1 p.m. from the boardwalk where a special service honoring WWII veterans will take place. Parade participants include more than 20 veterans organizations as well as numerous military vehicles, floats, invited guests and local dignitaries.

The parade will culminate with a fly-over by a vintage World War II plane.

Admission and parking are free.

Quincy's Robert Noble, former American POW and past department commander of the state Am EX-POW, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Speakers include Mayor James Sheets, John "Jake" Comer, past national commander of The American Legion; Veterans Affairs Commission Thomas Hudner, Ward 2 Councillor and World War II Veteran Ted DeCristofaro, Charles MacGillvary, a Congressional Medal of Honor recipient; Pearl Harbor survivor Charles Toohey; and John O'Connor, Long Term Club, Fore River Shipyard.

Other parade participants are:

Quincy Veterans Organization, Army Research and Development Labs of Natick, 101st Veterans (Yankee Division), National Order of the Purple Heart, VFW Ladies Auxiliary, State Disabled American Veterans, DAV Cavanaugh Post Chapter #79, Second Division Marines, Gold Star Mothers, Ukrainian Veterans Post #31, Vietnam Combat Veterans, Korean War Veterans, Metropolitan District Commission Band, Quincy Fire Department, Quincy Police Department, Boston Fire Department, Caddy Marine Corps Detachment, Bryan VFW Post, Nickerson American Legion Post, Morrisette American Legion Post, Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray, and 94th ARCOM.

In addition, parade officials expect several members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Co. of Massachusetts and Color Guard from the Weymouth Naval Air Station to take part.

A Pearl Harbor slide show will be presented. Times will be posted.

In addition, the Lightship Nantucket will be open to the public at hours to coincide with event.

Event officials are also trying to contact men and women who served at the former Squantum Naval Air station as well as those who worked at the Fore River shipyard to join the festivities. Anyone who falls into those two categories should call Event Coordinator Peg Ryan at 847-1800.

"We would like as many vets of the 'homefront' to participate in our celebration," Ryan said.

Sheets To Submit $400,000 Appropriation To Start Design Work Specific 'West Link' Route For Concourse Seen By Next Month

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A decision on the exact route of the first phase of the proposed Quincy Center Concourse is expected next month when the city plans to start design work on the $5.6 million Quincy Center roadway, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

"In mid-September this whole issue will be dealt with. I will ask the City Council to appropriate money for the design work and a decision will be made where the concourse is going to go," Sheets told The Sun.

If the design work, engineering specifications and environmental impact review all go according to plan, the mayor said construction on the roadway should begin in less than three years.

"Construction would be finished in three to four years, probably by the early part of 1998," Sheets added.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton is presently evaluating the proposed roadway which calls for linking the Burgin Parkway with Hancock Street in the downtown business district.

The leading proposal calls for an east-west, four-lane roadway beginning on Burgin Parkway at the Granite St. connector near Star Market. The road would continue through a portion of the Paperama parking lot and the former Kincaide building site where the proposed 1500-foot "west link" would connect to Hancock St.

Officials have said the first phase or "west link" would cause minimal disruption to area businesses and may require some land taking by eminent domain.

The second phase of the project focuses on linking Hancock St. with McGrath Highway by perhaps widening Revere Re.

Local officials maintain the route is necessary to help revitalize the downtown area. Sheets, a staunch supporter of the project, said the roadway is vital to the development of the Hancock parking lot.

Despite some skepticism from concourse opponents and others who have witnessed the rise and fall of similar plans, the mayor is confident the roadway will be a reality by the end of the century.

"There is going to be a roadway. You're not going to develop the Hancock parking lot and revitalize the downtown without the roadway. I haven't met one developer who has looked at the Hancock lot who hasn't referred to the connector as a critical piece."

"It will happen," Sheets said, noting Gov. Weld has committed state funding for the multi-million dollar project.

Sheets said he will ask the City Council to appropriate approximately $400,000 next month to start the design stage. "When 25 percent of the design work is completed, the environmental impact review begins," he noted, adding design work should be completed a year after it begins.

The mayor said money for the design work may be reimbursed by the state.

The Citizens Advisory Committee, which has been meeting on the project since April, 1994, will conduct a walking tour in the vicinity of the proposed concourse on Thursday, Aug. 24. CAC members will meet in front of Ryder's Curtain Store, 1489 Hancock St., at 10 a.m. and proceed along Cliveden St. to traverse possible sites for the concourse which the committee has under consideration.

Following the tour the CAC will hold a special open public meeting in the second floor conference room of City Hall annex. The public is invited to participate in the walking tour and attend the meeting.

Chairman David Ezickson has reportedly said the committee, which has obtained input from city officials, traffic control experts, engineering consultants and the public regarding the concourse, believes the "east-west" link downtown is a necessity. However, a recommendation regarding a specific route has not yet been forwarded to the mayor, Sheets said Tuesday.

An alternative plan to phase one has been submitted to Sheets from Dr. Carl Goodman, a potential abutter to the second phase of the project. Goodman, who lives on Revere Rd., has proposed that the "east-west" link begin at the foot of Whitwell St..

Cheney Study Indicates City-Run Recycling Would Save $616,000

Councillor Michael Cheney announces he has completed a three-month study which indicates the city can save more than $616,000 in the recycling program by purchasing and operating its own collection equipment.

Cheney said the findings were made after Bill Repoff of Quincy, a transportation consultant, provided over 300 hours of study at no charge to the city. Repoff visited several vendors and communities and provided Cheney with data from the sources.

Contained within the report, which was submitted to Mayor James Sheets on Tuesday morning, were four major recommendations which deal directly with Quincy's recycling program. Cheney cited the last time a report was submitted to the mayor was 1992.

As a result of working with Commissioner David Colton and Sheets, the city saved $1,300,000 in trash disposal costs.

Cheney said Repoff, which discussing options with the state Division of Solid Waste Management, learned the city is eligible for $250,000 of free equipment under the state's Communities Grant Recycling Program.

Cheney and Repoff requested the state forward an application immediately to the mayor in order to apply for funds under this program.

During their study, Cheney and Repoff discussed a specific proposal with North Shore Recycled Fibers Corp. of Weymouth. NSRF has submitted a proposal to Cheney that would guarantee a minimum payment of $432,000 to the City of Quincy per year just to receive Quincy's recycled paper.

Under the existing contract, B.F.I. has paid the City of Quincy $210,000 for all recycled material over the past four years.

Also contained in the report is a recommendation that the city hire a full-time person whose only responsibility would be to oversee the solid waste disposal and recycling program.

"The solid waste and recycling industries are rapidly changing. The city spends $400,200, in collection and disposal of solid waste. It makes sense to have at least one person oversee this major contract for the City of Quincy," said Cheney.

Sheets said Cheney's recommendations have been forwarded to Executive Secretary Michael McFarland and DPW Commissioner Colton. For the present time, the mayor said he does not see any reason to make changes with the current solid waste collection and curb-side recycling program.

"I'm satisfied with B.F.I.'s rubbish pickup and recycling. Any new ideas that Councillor Cheney or anyone else has we'll look at and if they work well we'll do something with it."

Sheets noted B.F.I. recently presented Quincy with a check for $87,000 as the city's share for the recyclables collected over the last year. He said the savings factor is driven by the market.

"The $87,000 is higher than any year before because a ton of paper is higher. It's really the market that dictates the savings," he said.

As far as personnel, Sheets said Michael Wheelwright of the DPW has done a "good job" overseeing the recycling program.

MAYOR'S COMMISSION ON the Status of Women recently donated $10,000 to Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE). The money was raised from a walk-a-thon sponsored by the commission. On hand for the check presentation were, from left, Nancy Callanan, 1996 chairperson of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women; Marylou Melghan, 1995 chairperson of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women; Sue Ramey, DOVE member; Mayor James Sheets; Linda Connolly, 1995 vice chairperson of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women; and Norfolk County District Atty. William Delahunt.

'Walk Of Names' Second Phase Nearing Completion

Quincy's "Walk of Names" project at Constitution Common next to City Hall will have another 1,000 personalized bricks next month.

The second phase of the project, which began last month, is scheduled for completion by the end of September, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The first phase, finished last summer, contains a pattern of about 3,000 bricks, each engraved with the names of people from Quincy's past and present.

The bricks line Constitution Common, the plaza in front of the City Hall annex on Hancock St. The second phase includes an additional 1,000 bricks on two walkways at McIntyre Mall, the small park next to the common.

The sold the bricks for $50 each.

Sheets has also raised money from private donors to buy more than a dozen antique-style lamps for the area.

But he is still looking for sponsors for granite benches, at $1,000 each.

The project's third phase will focus on landscaping in the area north of McIntyre Mall on Hancock St.

For more information about sponsoring a bench, call the mayor's office at 376-1990.

Man Injured By Hit-Run Car

William F. Allen of Quincy was treated at Quincy Hospital for minor injuries Friday after he said he was struck by a hit-and-run car in Wollaston.

Police said he told them he was struck by a car at Beale and Farrington Sts. at about 9 p.m.

He said a woman driving a cream-colored four-door sedan stopped but then after looking at him, drove off.

Firefighters were called to the scene when someone pulled a fire alarm box and found Allen lying in the street.

Red Cross Issues Preparedness Tips Are You Ready For A Hurricane?

August marks the half-way point of the hurricane season. The South Shore area office of the American Red Cross of Mass Bay encourages all residents to be prepared because a hurricane can happen at any time and offers these tips:

PREPARE A HOME EVACUATION PLAN

- Identify ahead of time where you could go if you are told to evacuate. Choose several places, such as a friend's home, shelter or motel.
- Keep on hand the telephone numbers of these places as well as a road map.
- Listen to local radio and TV for evacuation instructions and locations.

WHEN A HURRICANE IS APPROACHING:

- Listen to your local radio and TV stations for updated storm information.
- Bring in garbage cans, lawn furniture, bicycles... anything that could fly around and cause damage or blow away.
- Fill your car's tank and prepare to evacuate if told to do so.
- If you are told, evacuate as soon as possible. If you are not advised to evacuate, prepare to stay inside, away from windows.

AFTER THE HURRICANE PASSES:

- Watch out for fallen power lines.
 - Listen to the radio for information and instructions.
 - Use a flashlight to inspect your home for damage.
- The American Red Cross of Massachusetts Bay acts immediately in times of serious need, especially disaster. For over 100 years, the Red Cross has helped individuals prepare for, respond to, and cope with emergencies. Preparing yourself and your family can save lives and property.

For a free copy of "Are You Ready for a Hurricane" brochure, contact the Red Cross at (617) 770-2600.

USS Salem Featured On Ch. 5 Friday

The U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum will be featured on Friday's Chronicle television on Channel 5 at 7:30 p.m.

The story will include interviews and video footage shot in July aboard the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Salem, the museum's centerpiece.

Hosting the segment is Chronicle reporter and Boston Globe columnist Mike Barnicle.

"When it comes to locally produced television, or any news personality that reflects New England, few compare to Chronicle and Mike Barnicle," said William MacMullen, executive director of the military/historical non-profit corporation that oversees the 717-foot, 21,000-ton Salem.

"The history of this ship alone is fascinating. Add a crew of dedicated volunteers, some of which actually helped build or served on the USS Salem, and you've got a great story. We'll all very excited about this broadcast," MacMullen added.

The USNSM possesses an impressive collection of military/historical artifacts, the centerpiece being the ship which is berthed at the Fore River shipyard.

The final concert in the Quincy Arts In The Parks Series will be held Tuesday, Aug. 22 at the Granite Workers Memorial at Shea Park on Copeland St., West Quincy.

The concert starts at 6 p.m. and is free and open to the public.

Musicians performing at the concert will include: Sara Melton Keller, original compositions, children's music, folk standards, and sing-alongs; Made In The Shade, named in this year's Best of Boston in Boston Magazine; and Riverside Theatre Works, Mixed Emotions, the energetic teenage ensemble performing a Broadway musical review.

Audience members are encouraged to bring lawn chairs and blankets for seating. Refreshments will be served. The rain date will be Thursday, Aug. 24, in the event of inclement weather.

The Quincy Arts In The Parks Series is part of the First Night Quincy organization, directed by City Council President, Mike Cheney.

Cheney said he has been "very encouraged" by the response to this year's debut of the program and feels that next year will bring even more performances. "With the success we've seen this year and the genuine outpouring of community support for the concerts from all sections of the city, we will definitely continue and expand next year.

For more information, call the First Night Office, 376-1071.

Ballot Position Important?

Does the top spot on the ballot mean a lot in an election?

That's debatable.

But if it does, Ward 4 incumbent Tom Fabrizio and Ward 5 candidate Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg have a plus going for them in the city preliminary election Sept. 19.

FABRIZIO

STENBERG

Fabrizio and Stenberg drew the top spots in the traditional preliminary election lottery conducted by City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Second position on the Ward 4 ballot went to Gregg Rennie, third to Michael D'Amico and fourth to Michael Larkin.

In Ward 5, Steven Reilly won second position, Dennis Dockham, third, and Stephen Durkin, fourth.

Some think if you can't get the top position, the last spot is next best. But that's debatable, too.

If last is second best, then Larkin and Durkin have a plus.

But whether position really means much won't be known until the votes have been counted Sept. 19.

And even then the answer may not be obvious.

In the long run it's the candidates and not the ballot positions that make the final decision.

□

WITH ONLY TWO preliminary run-offs on tap, Election Year '95 has been a little on the ho-hum side so far. But the pace should pick up from Labor Day to Sept. 19 and then on to Nov. 7, the final election day.

The Nov. 7th ballot will have contests for eight City Council seats—five ward and three at-large—and two four-year term School Committee posts.

Mayor James Sheets, seeking a fourth term, has his first challenge in three elections in Roger Lyons who will have to pull off the local upset of the century.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and former Mayor Frank McCauley have free rides. No one is challenging Ayers and McCauley is the only candidate for the two-year term on the School Committee.

PERSONAL: I couldn't let Dr. Gerald Rosenblatt step into retirement without a little personal comment.

If doctors were rated on a scale of 1 to 10, I would give him a 100. And, I am sure there are many, many of his patients out there who would second that wholeheartedly.

He is a doctor that you always had complete faith and trust in. And it was comforting to know that he would be there for you whenever you needed him.

The Quincy medical scene just isn't going to be the same without him.

Thank you, Jerry, for being my good doctor and my good friend. Best wishes in your retirement.

GOOD TO SEE Fr. William McCarthy, Quincy's Father Bill and good friend, fully recovered from that illness that had plagued him for over a year. He's his old self again, performing his duties as a priest and renewing his work with those in need in the community.

And to give you an idea of how well he is feeling and doing, he was a member of the winning team in the recent St. John's golf tourney.

Beware Of 'Veterans' Telephone Solicitation

Area residents should be aware that a telephone solicitation for financial donations to AMVETS or The American Veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam does not have the permission of AMVETS Department of Massachusetts or its local posts.

The information was furnished to the Office of Quincy Veterans Services and forwarded to the Quincy Sun for publication by Director Henry Bradley. The text of the warning reads:

"Some persons or persons are calling homeowners, especially the elderly in this area, asking for financial donations of $25 to $65 for the AMVETS or The American Veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam.

"The AMVETS ask, that if you receive a call, please DO NOT MAKE a donation."

Korean War Memorial Benefactors Have Chance To Win New Car

Those who contribute $100 toward the funding of a Quincy Korean War Memorial have the chance of winning a 1995 Mercury Mystique, according to Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets, who serves as honorary chairman of the Quincy Korean War Memorial Committee, said 400 tickets will be sold at $100 apiece in an attempt to raise $40,000 for the $60,000 memorial.

The mayor added, however, that even if all the tickets are sold, probably only about $25,000 will benefit the memorial since "we have to pay somebody for the car."

Sheets said the balance of the funding will be derived from other fundraising activities and private donations. Officials are planning to put the me-memorial at the intersection of Hancock St. and Southern Artery next to Veterans Memorial Stadium.

"The Korean War is often considered a forgotten war," said the mayor. "But over 50,000 Americans died during the war and hundreds of thousands were injured. I think it's important that we remember those who served in the Korean War."

Sheets said those who send $100 checks to benefit the memorial will subsequently receive their tickets in the mail. A public drawing will be held at a later date, he added.

Checks should be made out to the Korean War Memorial Fund and mailed to P.O. Box 0161, Quincy, MA 02169.

Quincy Hospital Pain Center Accepting New Patients

The Quincy Comprehensive Pain Center is a multi-disciplinary program established by the Quincy Hospital Anesthesia Department to help treat patients with acute or chronic pain.

The Pain Center provides a holistic approach to patient care by utilizing both traditional medical techniques and alternative medicine, such as chiropractic services and acupuncture. After a thorough physical examination, an individualized treatment program is developed for each patient.

The professional staff at the Pain Center includes: Bradley Whitman, MD, a neurologist specializing in headache management and certified in acupuncture; Andrew Koropey, MD, an anesthesiologist; Barry Freedman, MS, DC, a chiropractor; Lee Chartock, MD, a psychiatrist; and, the Quincy Hospital Rehabilitation Department.

The Pain Center is based at Quincy Hospital, 114 Whitwell St., and is accepting new patients with a variety of acute and chronic disorders. For more information, call (617) 376-5557, Monday through Friday, from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Patients are seen by appointment only.

Quincy's Yesterdays

McIntyre Postpones Development Vote

By PAUL HAROLD

City Council President James McIntyre came under fire this week for postponing the council's consideration of preliminary legislation needed for the proposal west-of-the-tracks shopping area adjacent to Quincy Center.

Councillor Thomas Burgin, an ally of Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, called McIntyre's action "an affront to the mayor and other councillors." He could only excuse the action as a reflection of McIntyre's "inexperience in such matters and possibly immature judgement."

McIntyre noted that he merely exercised his prerogative as council president by not including the item on the agenda of what was supposed to be a special meeting of the council to consider only matters needing immediate action, such as the drawing of jurors.

Councillor Carl Anderson, as one of the senior councillors, said it was his experience that matters of such magnitude are never the subject of a special meeting. Councillor Joseph Brett, who was neutral in the mayoral contest, said he saw no need for unnecessary haste on the matter.

News reports on the council meeting referred to it as a "shirt-sleeve" session because the sweltering heat forced all but Councillor Brett to remove his coat.

FINNEGAN REPLACES McLEAN AS COACH

The School Committee named Martin Finnegan as coach of the Quincy High School basketball team, replacing Munroe McLean who was named director of physical education.

POLIO CLINIC CANCELLED

Dr. Joseph Leone, director of Quincy City Hospital, announced the regular polio vaccine clinic at the outpatient service would be cancelled because of lack of vaccine. The hospital tried to get a supply from other hospitals, drug companies and drug stores without success.

Dr. Leone said that the shortage throughout New England was due to an epidemic in New Haven where most supplies were being concentrated.

Sue's Hard Tack Bread

Our daughter Sue has been teaching a summer class in nutrition, and one of the recipes was for a bread called "hard tack," which contains no yeast as most breads do.

Sue said years ago on long trips and voyages, people would take this kind of bread because it wouldn't go bad. They used to eat it with beans and soup. Bread made with yeast would get moldy.

SUE'S HARD TACK BREAD

Step 1: Mix 1/8 teaspoon baking soda with 3 tablespoons of buttermilk.

Step 2: Mix 1 cup flour, 4 teaspoons maple syrup, 1/4 teaspoon salt plus 1/8 teaspoon salt.

Step 3: Cut in 1 1/2 tablespoons shortening, add buttermilk with the soda.

Roll out on a floured surface very thin, score in rectangles, and prick with a fork. Bake in a 425-degree oven for 5 to 10 minutes. It comes out like a cracker.

Our Policy On ENGAGEMENT PHOTOGRAPHS And Wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

5,000 Attend Solemn Tribute, Parade

City Observes VJ-Day 50th Anniversary

Civilian workers, sailors and soldiers who helped make victory possible for the Allies 50 years ago were remembered during a solemn tribute and parade Sunday at Marina Bay commemorating the 50th anniversary of VJ-Day.

Approximately 5,000 spectators and participants attended the observance, part of a nationwide tribute with the theme "A Grateful Nation Remembers."

The three-hour commemoration began with a parade by veterans groups, dignitaries and color guards, from the Marina Bay Boardwalk to the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Clocktower.

Two Medal of Honor recipients, Thomas Hudner of Concord, commission for Veterans Affairs, and Charles MacGillivray of Braintree, spoke in tribute to those men and women who served in the military during World War II.

A memorial wreath was placed at the clocktower, which bears names of Quincy residents who perished during the Vietnam War.

Robert Noble of Quincy, past state commander of the American Prisoners of War, was the master of ceremonies.

"Between 1939 and 1945, World War II consumed the hear total resources of the most powerful nations on earth," Noble said in his opening remarks. "Over 4 trillion dollars in property destroyed! 30 to 40 million people homeless; 50 to 60 million people dead."

"In just six years World War II burned a mark that shapes society to this day. It changed the world, it changed America, it changed everyone who lived through it."

Noble then noted the historical significance of the setting.

"We are gathered here at Marina Bay, the site of the Squantum Naval Air Station, where naval aviators received their initial training and went on to play a substantial part in the defeat of Japan which occurred 50 years ago tomorrow (Monday)."

"It seems such a short while ago, over 12 million men and women served in the military forces of our country. Almost 300,000 died, 700,000 were wounded. Many still suffer the results of their wounds both mental and physical and must not be forgotten or neglected."

Noble said the work of civilians toward the war effort should never be overlooked.

"President Roosevelt called our country the 'arsenal of democracy.' We veterans must never forget the work of the homefront which supplied us with the thousands of ships, planes, vehicles and other supplies which resulted in our victory. We are here today to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the World War II era when men and women worked side by side more than ever before in American history," he said.

About a dozen other speakers participated in the celebration.

Cheryl Jost of Quincy sang the National Anthem and Rep. Mary Jeannette Murray, a veteran of World War II, led the Pledge of Allegiance.

The invocation was given by Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church.

Mayor James Sheets delivered greetings from the City and Hudner expressed greetings from Gov. Weld.

A poem, "Freedom It Isn't Free," written by C. Randall Carrier, was recited by Charles Toohey, a World War II veteran and Pearl Harbor survivor.

Other featured speakers included MacGillivray, who received the Medal of Honor for his fighting spirit, initiative and disregard of personal safety in France during World War II; Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, veteran of the homefront as a worker at Fore River shipyard and a U.S. Navy veteran during World War II; John O'Connor, secretary of Fore River Long Service Club and an electrician at Quincy shipyard during World War II; and John "Jake" Comer, Air Force veteran of the Korean War and past national commander of The American Legion.

The memorial wreath was decorated with small individual American flags in memory of all who died in service to our country.

Flags were placed by: Frank Anselmo, World War I, U.S. Army veteran, World War I and II; Vernon Whitman, World War II, U.S. Navy veteran of Normandy invasion and crewman of USS Quincy; Henry Bradley, Korean War, U.S. Army veteran and director of Veterans Services in Quincy; Dee Lawson, Vietnam, Cpl. USMC; Nick Anaso, subsequent conflicts, master gunnery sergeant, USMC; Christine Devlin, Gold Star Mothers, president of Mass. American Gold Star Mothers; John O'Connor, homefront, secretary of Fore River Long Service Club.

Music also provided a fitting tribute.

A bagpiper from the Boston Fire Dept. Gaelic Band played "Amazing Grace." A trumpeter from the MDC band played "Taps." The band also played a medley of songs while Sheets and Bradley distributed commemorative pins to all World War II veterans in attendance.

A volley was fired by a party of Quincy veterans.

The benediction was said by the Rev. Donald Strong, First Presbyterian Church.

The assembly held hands during the singing of "God Bless America" which was led by Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson.

Sox Fans Can Hit A Homerun For The USS Salem

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Local Red Sox fans have a chance to "go to bat" for the USS Salem while watching their favorite team chase down this year's pennant.

The U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum, whose centerpiece in the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Salem, will hold an "Evening with the Red Sox" on Tuesday, Sept. 19 at Fenway Park.

The public is invited to purchase tickets to the fundraising event, which will feature a reception hosted by Red Sox Executive Vice President Lou Gorman. Several Red Sox may make an appearance.

Tickets are $75 per person and include admission to the reception and grandstand tickets to the Red Sox game against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Seating is in sections 12 and 13 between the Red Sox dugout and the rightfield pole.

The reception and buffet dinner of hamburgers, cheeseburgers, hot dogs, beans and refreshments will be held in the Fenmore Room located inside Fenway Park.

The reception starts at 6 p.m. First pitch is 7:05 p.m.

Sheets said it is hoped the event raises $10,000 for the museum which opened earlier this year at the Fore River shipyard.

The mayor said it was Gorman's idea to have the Fenway fundraiser. Gorman served on the Salem for two years and is a member of the museum's Board of Directors.

The mayor said the event should be a sell out, considering the Sox are closing in on the American League Eastern Division title.

"We're very fortunate. When we first started talking about it, they (Red Sox) were four games ahead in first place. Now they're 10 games up and people are beginning to think they're for real."

"Let's hope so," said Sheets.

The 260 tickets for the event are available on a first-come, first-serve basis.

To charge tickets on Visa or Mastercard, call the museum at 479-7900. Mail orders will also be accepted. Make checks payable to USNSM and mail to "Red Sox Night, P.O. Box 223, Quincy, MA 02269. Checks must be received by Tuesday, Sept. 12.

Those ordering tickets will be sent a letter confirming their reservation. Patrons should bring the letter to the ballpark Sept. 19. Attendees will be listed at the door at the Fenmore Room and given admission. They will also receive their game tickets at the reception.

Transportation is not included.

Sheets said the fundraising is unique and should be fun.

"I think people will want to see the Red Sox and people from Quincy will like to have an opportunity to meet Lou Gorman and some of the players."

"I think it's a really neat idea. We're fortunate the Red Sox are doing well."

Proceeds from the event will go toward the museum's general operating budget.

Sheets grew up a Pittsburgh Pirates fan during his childhood years in Pennsylvania. One of his favorite players is the late great Roberto Clemente.

Now living in Red Sox nation, he considers himself a Red Sox fan, too.

"I'm a Pirates fan but I'm also a Red Sox fan. I'm intrigued with their ability to hit. I plan to go to the game but I may have to leave early because that's preliminary election night. I think my wife (Joann) will go, too. She likes all sports," the mayor said.

Sheets said Gorman has already begun to help the Salem using his Red Sox connection.

"The Red Sox are advertising the Salem and the museum on their big centerfield scoreboard in between innings. By the end of the season, the message will have appeared approximately 75 times," he said.

ADVANCE WARNING OF STROKE

A stroke is one of the scariest human events: oxygen is blocked from getting to the brain, often resulting in impaired senses, changes in behavior, disruption of thought processes, paralysis, coma and even death. Some people, however, get advance warnings that a stroke is coming and if these warnings are heeded, the stroke may be stopped. A transient ischemic attack (TIA) is a ministroke that typically lasts no longer than five minutes. Symptoms are the same as for a full-blown stroke: sudden weakness, trouble talking or understanding speech, dimness or loss of vision, dizziness and sudden severe headache. Emergency treatment following a TIA may stop a disabling or fatal stroke from occurring.

P.S. The single greatest risk factor for stroke is high blood pressure. Have yours checked regularly!

If you have any of these symptoms, don't minimize them—consult your doctor so he or she can provide you with the preventative measures you need. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself offer complete medical care with a focus on treating heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Continental Cablevision Winner In NECTA Awards Competition

Continental Cablevision recently won first-place honors in the New England Cable Television Association (NECTA) 1995 Public Service Awards competition.

Continental was honored for its efforts to raise awareness and funds for new technology for Massachusetts libraries.

Using its advanced fiberoptic network, Continental recently held a live telecast, a five-hour library television special, "Plug In To Literacy", simultaneously on cable systems reaching 250,000 viewers in 31 eastern Massachusetts communities.

The special was designed to raise awareness of libraries; need for new electronic information tools and their critical role in building media literacy. Through call-ins, the show also raised funds for libraries to acquire new resources such as computers, CD-ROM systems, on-line services and internet access.

The "Plug In To Literacy" special was part of Continental's larger ongoing effort to help create a new "media literate" generation through such initiatives as critical viewing workshops for parents, media literacy curriculum materials for teachers, an educational video for children and its "Better Viewing" family magazine.

The library TV special was telecast by Continental cable systems serving Quincy and 30 other Massachusetts communities.

As part of "Plug In To Literacy", taped segments on the achievements and electronic information needs of libraries in the 31 communities reached by the TV special were shown. Also appearing to appeal for support of libraries were Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci, Massachusetts Cable Television commissioner John Patrone and 16 state senators and representatives.

The TV special was endorsed by the Massachusetts and New England Library Association, and Continental worked closely with local library directors and Friends of Library organizations to promote the awareness/fund-raising effort.

"Plug In To Literacy" was the result of six months of planning by an employee task force, the Commonwealth Collaborative Network. More than 100 members of continental's staff from cable systems throughout eastern Massachusetts worked on the production.

Continental's New England/New York region also won first-place honors in the NECTA Public Service Awards for Connections, its regional newsletter mailed quarterly to community and state leaders to keep them up to date on developments in the cable TV industry and at Continental.

QCAP Head Start Program Gives Working Parents Lift

By LYNNE CELANDER

Jeannie knows firsthand the challenges of finding childcare as a low-income single working parent living in a Quincy housing project.

Thanks to Quincy Community Action (QCAP) Head Start's Community Partnerships for Children program, funded by the Massachusetts Department of Education, Jeannie's four-year-old son Thomas can attend a high-quality, full-day preschool program while she works full-time. The program "relieves our stress," says Jeannie who was concerned about finding affordable childcare with which both she and Thomas would feel comfortable.

Thomas and 22 other three- and four-year old child participants in QCAP Head Start's Quincy CPC program recently celebrated their graduation.

The CPC program, which serves 20 Quincy children in the Snug Harbor School and three in the Germantown Daycare Center, meets parents' scheduling needs by operating for 11 hours daily, five days a week, from September to June.

QCAP Head Start's comprehensive CPC program offers much more than a traditional daycare program. In addition to a center-based preschool setting geared to meet the children's individual educational needs, the program provides each child with a full breakfast, lunch, and nutritious snack daily. A nutritionist is on staff to provide nutrition education to parents and children.

Additionally, a registered nurse is on staff to supervise basic health screening for each child, to serve as a contact with local physicians' offices for follow-up treatment, and to help families to access other needed health care services. The overall mission of the program is to heighten children's self-esteem and to encourage the development of critical social skills.

According to Jeannie, the program "helps (children) to grow in personal ways, not only academically. The staff are very nurturing (and) loving . . . like part of (Thomas') family."

Michelle, whose son Sean attended the CPC program this year, offers that aspects of the program such as the provision of "all healthy food" add immeasurably to the positive impact of the program on her son's development.

Additionally, she underscores that Community Partnerships is not just for children, "they are very welcoming to parents," emphasizes Michelle.

Kevin, Michelle's younger son, will be entering the program in the fall. "I am very confident about placing my younger son in CPC," says Michelle.

Unlike some programs that allow for only superficial parent involvement, through representation on the Head Start Policy Council, the governing body of Head Start, CPC parents are active decision-makers in critical aspects of program management, such as the review and approval of program budgets and grants; staff hiring; and the design of program services.

Michelle, who attended Quincy College this school year and will be returning in the fall, has been an active volunteer on the Policy Council. According to Michelle, the Policy Council, which is comprised of 51 percent parents and 49 percent community representatives, strives to make its parents members comfortable in sharing their views.

QCAP's Head Start's CPC program offers low-income, working families a real alternative to the welfare system. Jeannie emphasizes that "without this program I wouldn't be able to afford childcare." With the aid of QCAP Head Start's CPC program, Jeannie is now beginning to climb out of debt and plan for a brighter future.

Another Quincy CPC parent, Valerie, whose daughter Kelly has attended CPC classes this year and will return in the fall, echoes Jeannie's praises of the program. "I have always been independent," says Valerie, who works full-time as a registered nurse's aide. "Child care would take almost all my check." The average daycare cost for full-day care is $135 per week.

CPC parents Marc and Sandra also are thankful that CPC is a full-day program. According to Marc, who was recently handicapped, the CPC program provided high quality care for his son, Marc, Jr., while his wife Sandra worked full-time as a financial researcher. Says Marc, Sr., "This was a first for us. We really needed help. The school (CPC) was fantastic . . . on a scale of 1 to 10, (definitely) a 10."

The Quincy CPC program, which operates from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., strives to accommodate the scheduling needs of working parents to the best extent possible. CPC parent Valerie indicated that because the parent meetings were always held in the evening, she was able to attend.

Also funded through the Community Partnerships for Children program in Quincy are the Quincy Public Schools, the Djerf Christian Preschool, and South Shore Day Care Services, Inc.

In addition to the CPC program, QCAP Head Start offers several other program options with a mixture of state and federal funding to meet the diverse needs of the children and families in the city of Quincy (as well as Braintree, Weymouth and Hull). During the past school year, QCAP Head Start was funded to serve a total of 282 children, of which 119 were Quincy residents. This summer, the maximum number served is 80, of which 39 live in Quincy.

AMY PARSONS, a 1995 graduate of Quincy High School, accepts a scholarship from Michael Stuart, assistant treasurer/branch manager of the Co-operative Bank.

LAURA ANN WALTY, a 1995 graduate of North Quincy High School, is presented a scholarship from Annette Spring, assistant treasurer/branch manager of the Co-operative Bank.

MOLLY MCCORMACK, a 1995 graduate of The Woodward School, accepts a scholarship from Doris Baker, assistant vice president/branch manager of the Co-operative Bank.

Co-operative Bank Awards Scholarships To Three Students

The Co-operative Bank has awarded scholarships to three local graduating seniors on the basis of academic excellence and outstanding citizenship.

The recipients are:
Amy Parsons from Quincy High School; Laura Ann Walty from North Quincy High School; and Molly McCormack from the Woodward School.

Parsons' high school accomplishments include academic excellence, leadership abilities, extracurricular activities and her concern with the positive image of the school. She served as senior class president, representative to the school committee, and captain of the swim team.

Parsons' academic awards span a wide-range of accomplishments from the Academy of the Company Theater Creative Writing Award to the prestigious State Science Olympics Award. She plans to attend St. Michael's College in Vermont to major in political science and journalism.

Walty, musically talented, plays the flute, piccolo, piano, saxophone and clarinet. She is a member of the Quincy Symphony as well as the Hingham Flute Symphony. She is also involved in the Drama Club, Earth Club, Renaissance Program, band, science fair, and Who's Who among high school students.

Walty plans to attend either The American University in Washington, D.C., or West Georgis College in Georgia to study music.

McCormack is well respected by her peers and faculty administration for her academic and social accomplishments. She has been a leader throughout her years at Woodward and served as president of the student government.

A member of the National Honor Society, McCormack plans to attend Boston University or New York University to study liberal arts.

The scholarship awards were presented at a reception held at the Bank's corporate headquarters. The recipients, their parents, school officials and Bank officers attended the reception.

The Co-operative Bank, with assets in excess of $783 million, is a state-chartered FDIC issued co-operative bank with headquarters in Action, and 16 retail banking offices in Middlesex, Norfolk and Plymouth counties.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

By ART FOLEY

The real estate market in Quincy is really made up of many sub-markets.

These sub-markets don't always act the same way or follow the same trends. This is why it's misleading sometimes to give statistics of a large market which really doesn't represent what's going on in the different sub-markets.

The following is a chart of single-family home sales. The number and the average price are broken down by price groups and year.

There are some interesting trends to note from the chart (right). Sales and average prices of homes under $100,000 have reacted much differently than homes in the $100,000 to $150,000 range.

In the under $100,000 market, the number of sales has steadily climbed 163 percent from 1990-94 and the average price has increased 40 percent over the same period.

In contrast, the average price in the $100,000 to $150,000 range has stayed stable, decreasing 2.3 percent for the same period. The number of sales in this group has increased 96 percent.

The group of $150,000 to $200,000 has remained stable in both price and number of sales.

The over $200,000 market shows wide fluctuations for both number of sales and average price. This is partly due to the small sample size. If we look at the total number of sales for each year, the period 1990-94 shows an increase in activity of 59 percent for that period.

Yet, the $150,000 to $200,000 group shows a decline in activity for the same period. This again points out the whole market doesn't necessarily represent the sub-markets that make it up.

There are many reasons for these differences between markets: supply/demand, available inventory and more demand on lower-priced housing due to the slow, uncertain economy. In this article, we've touched only on single-family homes; there are also condos, multi-families and business properties. These groups are each markets in themselves.

So, when we see a number showing "Average Price Sales of The Northeast," what does it mean? Not much!

$4M Contract Awarded For MWRA Staging Project

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority has announced the award of a $4 million contract to Westcott Construction Corporation of Attleboro to begin Phase 2 of renovation for the Fore River Staging Area (FRSA) in Quincy.

The contract is the second of a two phase renovation program for Building Nos. 1 and 4 that have been developed for the Fore River Staging Area. Work done previously to the buildings in Phase 1 of renovation included asbestos removal and building rehabilitation sufficient to provide interim storage and office space for the Boston Harbor Project.

The MWRA is aiming to consolidate our activities to particular MWRA "zones" in the northern portion of the former shipyard thus freeing the balance of the site for other uses," said MWRA Executive Director Douglas MacDonald. "The rehabilitation of these buildings will provide ample storage space to accommodate the Boston Harbor Project and allow for further development of other areas recommended in the FRSA Development Plan."

Under the rehabilitation plan, Building 1 will be used as a temporary shipping/receiving points for stock that is destined for Deer Island. Major rehabilitation elements include: bringing the building up to code, providing additional storage racks, providing a heating system and providing office space to replace existing trailers currently being used by warehouse personnel. The rehabilitation of Building 1 will reduce MWRA's long-term Deer Island warehouse needs, MacDonald said.

Building 4 rehabilitation will provide 16,000 square feet for records storage, 13,000 square feet for core boring and soil samples, office space for FRSA and records management staff and 13,000 square feet of unreserved storage space. Building 4 will allow the authority to vacate Building 10 and to centralize its functions in the northern portion of the yard, MacDonald said.

Maureen Rogers Chamber Government Affairs Manager

Maureen A. Rogers has been named the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's new government affairs manager and chief lobbyist.

Rogers, an Abington resident, has served as the Chamber's community development manager for the past decade. She acted as the primary liaison between business and local government officials.

During her tenure as community development manager, Rogers created three new business councils and strengthened five established councils for the South Shore Chamber, the second largest Chamber in the state.

"We're excited to have placed Maureen in a position where her considerable talents can make an even greater impact for South Shore businesses," said Chamber President Ronald Zoolack. "In Maureen, we have a person who has great knowledge of the Chamber's workings, has an outstanding track record and has great organizational management skills. And, perhaps most importantly, she brings great enthusiasm to the position."

Rogers' portfolio also includes extensive work with the Save the Base Committee--which dealt with issues surrounding the Weymouth Naval Air Station--in 1991, 1993 and 1995. She fought alongside U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds and Sens. John Kerry and Ted Kennedy to keep the base open.

"I'm truly looking forward to the challenges of maintaining the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's status as the pre-eminent business organization in southeastern Massachusetts," Rogers said. "In the past 10 years, I've established a good rapport with our federal, state and local political leaders, a rapport I believe will only help the Chamber in the future."

Kathleen Kelly New Merrymount Head First-Time Principal Looks Forward To The Challenge

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Kathleen Kelly says she is looking forward to the challenge of her first principal's job in the Quincy Public Schools.

Kelly, 51, a lifelong Quincy resident who has worked in the school system for 27 years, will take over as head of the Merrymount Elementary School next month. She replaces Kathleen Morris, who will now serve as principal of the soon-to-be-reopened Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston.

Since 1968, Kelly has served as a teacher and/or assistant principal at Central Junior High School, Quantum Elementary School, Central Middle School, Merrymount Elementary School, Point-Webster Elementary School and, most recently, Montclair Elementary School. But never before has she served as the everyday head of a school.

"It is exciting," she said. "But the assistant principal assumes responsibility when the principal is out, and I have done that. So I have had a taste of what it's like to be principal."

MERRYMOUNT SCHOOL PRINCIPAL Kathleen Kelly says she's looking forward to her first assignment as a school principal in Quincy.

Kelly admitted that she can't help but feel a little "homesick" when she leaves a school behind for a new position, but added that she is not afraid to accept a new challenge.

"I will miss the children at Montclair (where Kelly worked the past two years)," she said. "But I find it easy to become acclimated to a new situation. I don't view change with any trepidation."

Kelly comes from what one might call "an educational family." Her mother, uncle, and aunt worked as a nurse, principal, and teacher and principal respectively in the Quincy Public Schools.

She also has a sister, brother-in-law, and niece who are teachers.

"I grew up with education, and I love children," she said. "And I'm excited to be back here (Merrymount). It's a different school than it was when I left (in 1989), and hopefully, I'm a different person, too."

Asked about her goals for the 300-pupil school she will now head, Kelly said she plans to continue to emphasize an ambitious computer/technology program that was begun at the school about five years ago.

She will also stress the importance of the annual staff development programs attended by teachers, which include, among others, the Conflict Resolution Program through which teachers learn to impress upon students the concept of "Peaceable Classroom"... that people don't have to solve problems with their fists. Such programs have been very successful in recent years, according to Kelly.

"If an entire staff is involved, it becomes part of the atmosphere of the school," she said.

But while Kelly noted that Merrymount has made great strides in areas such as technology and the arts in recent years, she wants to make improvements to the entire school curriculum. The attitude she brings to the school, she

Making Your Own Fossils

By SANDY KIEFER

Have you ever wondered what it was like to live a long time ago, when dinosaurs roamed the planet?

We know about prehistoric times because of some of the fossils scientists have found.

A fossil is like a photograph of something that happened thousands of years ago. Imagine a leaf falling on some mud. Bit by bit the leaf gets covered by other mud and silt. Thousands of years pass. The dirt gets heavier and heavier and presses the leaf shape. The dirt around the leaf turns so hard it becomes a rock.

Then you come along and pick up a rock. You turn it over and see the outline of a leaf! You found a fossil.

You can make a fossil print of your hand or foot with plaster. Buy plaster or spackle in a hardware store. It is easier to use the pre-mixed kind. You only need a quarter of plaster to make prints. Or use plaster powder. Follow the directions on the box exactly otherwise your plaster will crack when it is dry.

Use a spatula and spread some plaster in a styrofoam meat tray. Make sure that it is flat and even and fills the whole tray. Put some vaseline on your hands. This will prevent the plaster from sticking to you and helps to leave a clearer impression in the plaster.

Press your palm into the plaster. Lift off your hand. Is the print clear? If you think you can do better, smooth the print over and erase the first print. Try it again. You can make a footprint the same way you make a hand print.

Put the tray overnight in a safe place where it won't be jiggled. Let it dry overnight. The next morning you will have a fossil print!

Be gentle when you pick up the tray. Plaster cracks really easily when handled roughly.

noted, is best exemplified in a quote by the late U.S. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy: "Some people see things as they are and ask why. I dream things that never were, and ask why not."

"I think one of the most important things we can do is teach a child," said Kelly. "And I'm looking

Mark Bracken Teaches

Early Diversity Ed. Program

Mark Bracken of Quincy, a student at Boston College High School, was among the 30 Greater Boston teens who presented "Into the Circle: Teens Teaching Inclusion" program to local second and third graders during the 1994-95 school year.

The program--run by the National Conference, Greater Boston Region--trains high school youth leaders to present Green Circle, an early diversity education program to elementary school students, through a series of three presentations, the students gain an understanding of how to make decisions that include people in their circle of "caring, sharing and respect."

"'Into the Circle' gives high school teens an opportunity to teach prejudice reduction skills to young students in their communities," said Susan Musinsky, National Conference executive director. "It is a wonderful learning experience in tolerance and understanding for both the teens and the young children involved."

The National Conference is a nonprofit human relations organization providing diversity education and community leadership development programs to youth and adults throughout Greater Boston.

Presentations of Green Circle have been sponsored in part through a federal grant from "Learn and Serve America" awarded to the Massachusetts National and Community Service Commission and the Massachusetts Department of Education to help young leaders participate in community service learning programs.

Bracken presented Green Circle to the Paul A. Dever Elementary School in Dorchester.

Spotlight On Business

At Tony's Clam Shop:

Three Decades Of Quality Service And Affordable Prices

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

For more than 3 decades the Kandalraft family, owners of Tony's Clam Shop, 861 Quincy Shore Drive, have been serving the South Shore and beyond with quality service at affordable prices.

Gary Kandalraft, co-owner of Tony's Clam Shop, describes the business' humble beginnings and their commitment to superior customer service.

Tony's Clam Shop, he noted, was established in 1964 by Tony Kandalraft after migrating from the Middle East and working various jobs just to make ends meet.

"My father worked at Boston Gear and Roxies among other places before opening this business. He started this business with almost nothing," said Kandalraft.

Kandalraft has watched his customers grow as the business grew.

He also said the patrons of Tony's Clam Shop are more than just customers; they are considered family.

"We are close with many of our customers and over the years we've watched them grow from children to adults," he said.

During the early years of the business, Tony's Clam Shop acted not only as a restaurant but also as a home for the Kandalrafts.

Due to the high volume of business and lack of available help, the business would often consume much of the family's time.

"My mother would watch a movie every night at 9 p.m. But, because my father would buzz whenever it got busy in the restaurant, she never got to finish a movie," Kandalraft said.

But, despite all the hard work, Kandalraft enjoys the restaurant business.

"I love this job. I love the people and I love the work. It's a lot of fun," he said.

Kandalraft, 37, has been working at Tony's Clam Shop since the age of six and his brother Roy has been working there since he was seven.

"Roy is the kitchen master. If you come in more than twice, he will know your name, what you are going to eat and how you like it cooked. He's very friendly and efficient," Kandalraft said.

During a recent Phantom Gourmet episode on New England Cable News, Tony's Clam Shop was rated a "hidden jewel" for its superior service.

Due to their long history of serving the South Shore, Kandalraft said that the customers have been their best source of advertising.

"Word of mouth is the best advertising," he said. "Everyone in Quincy knows Tony's Clam Shop."

As a result of their reputation for good service and fine dining, Tony's Clam Shop has become a landmark of sorts for tourists as well as those who live in the area.

"We are the first stop from Logan Airport for many people coming here from out of town," Kandalraft said.

Although he enjoys his work, Kandalraft admits it is not easy maintaining the restaurant's high standards.

"You have to give to get. We work hard for our high quality food and service. It is especially hard working with the grills which can reach up to 110 degrees," he said.

In addition to serving quality seafood, Tony's Clam Shop also has a diverse menu which includes broiled dinners, hot dogs and hamburgers, salads and even Middle Eastern specialties such as hummus.

The staff at Tony's Clam Shop is also dedicated to serving their customers to a healthy menu with cholesterol free cooking oil, Kandalraft said.

Tony's Clam Shop also sponsored an annual sand castle contest this summer which raised more than $200 and gifts for the contestants. They also sponsored a clam scam, a summer event which raised money to benefit the cleanup of Wollaston Beach.

Tony's Clam Shop (773-5090) is open daily from 10:30 a.m. to midnight during the summer months and is located across from Wollaston Beach.

QCTV Workshops Begin Aug. 24

The Quincy Community Television Council and the local programming department of Continental Cablevision will begin a comprehensive workshop schedule Thursday, Aug. 24.

The orientation and workshops will be given at the studio located at 81 School St.

Classes teach basics of television production to the community. Those who are eligible to join the class include adult residents of the city and people who work at or are members of Quincy organizations. Class size is limited.

The first component of the workshop series is a three-week basic studio production course. The class will introduce the student to the equipment and the basics of producing a program. Class members will work together on a show for QCTV.

Directing, editing, portable camera and news production workshops will follow.

For more information, call Bette Campbell, community outreach coordinator at 471-3200, ext. 5.

Louis Grossman Receives Red Cross Volunteer Award

Louis Grossman has received a special citation for exceptional volunteer service from the American Red Cross (ARC) of Massachusetts Bay.

Grossman, president of The Grossman Companies, Inc., a Quincy-based real estate development and management firm, has served as chair of the ARC's facilities committee for four years.

The award "honors a volunteer whose performance over a period of years has substantially exceeded the volunteer's original commitment...and is a tangible expression of the deep appreciation we have for his work and our deep admiration of his dedication and commitment to furthering the mission of the American Red Cross of Mass. Bay."

Grossman was instrumental in helping to relocate the Red Cross's South Area offices to a prime location with excellent financial arrangements, negotiating a lease for temporary ARC headquarters, and leasing out the chapter's surplus space in Boston.

Robert Hanna On High Honor Roll At Choir School

Robert Hanna of Quincy has achieved high honors for the final term at the Boston Archdiocesan Choir School.

Robert, a seventh grader, also received a Certificate of Merit in the National French Teachers' Test. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hanna of Sims Rd.

Here's Something Cold To Get You To Convert To Gas Heat.

Get A Gas Conversion Burner Now For Just $795 And Receive A $200 Credit.

If you are a Boston Gas customer and do not use natural gas to heat your home, there's never been a better time to convert to clean, efficient gas heat. And we're putting up the cold, hard cash to prove it.

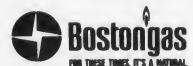

Now through September 30, 1995, you can have a gas conversion burner installed for just $795 - a substantial savings on the usual cost. And financing is available.

You'll also get a $200 credit on your gas bill. Plus, a three-year Boston Gas Home Heating Service Plan that covers most repair costs on your new system. You'll even get a free chimney inspection and sweep.

To qualify, all you need is a gas line currently in use in your home and your heating system must pass inspection.

To take advantage of this offer, call to make an appointment for a free evaluation of your heating system. And soon you could be enjoying all of the benefits of natural gas heat. And remember, unlike other fossil fuels, natural gas is cleaner for the environment and piped directly to your home. Call today. This deal is too hot to miss.

Legion

Morrisette Aided By Tradition, Leadership

By KERRY BYRNE

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team season came to an abrupt end last week, but not before they solidified their position as one of the premier teams, if not the premier team, in Massachusetts.

A 3-1 loss to Swampscott in the Legion state tournament in Lowell, coupled with an earlier 7-0 loss to Reading, knocked the Quincy-based club from the double-elimination tournament. Wins over Sandwich and Milford in between gave them a 2-2 record in the tourney, an 8-4 record in the playoffs, and a 23-10 finish overall.

Morrisette placed third in the state for the second consecutive season, losing out to champion Swampscott and runner-up Needham. Swampscott edged Needham, 6-5, in the title game. Last year, they lost in the tourney only to champion Walpole and runner-up New Bedford. Morrisette was the only team to make an appearance in both the 1994 and 1995 state tournaments.

"This was a very successful season, I'm very pleased with how we finished," said coach Dave Perdios. "I'm happy for the kids especially. There were a lot of questions, a lot of things happened and there were a lot of doubters. They felt they had something to prove and they went out and did it."

Though he refused to call it a mystique, Perdios acknowledged that donning a Morrisette uniform does bring with it a certain set of intangible qualities that make a difference on the ball field; qualities that have led Morrisette to an amazing 53 playoff games, three state final appearances and one state title (1992) over the past six seasons.

"There is a tradition, there are expectations when you put the Morrisette uniform on," said Perdios, who was a hard-hitting outfielder with Morrisette when they won the 1975 New England title (a ball he hit for a home run in the national tournament in South Dakota that year is today in the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown, N.Y.). "It's a pride factor. It's expected the kids put out, it's expected that they hustle. It's something we've been able to maintain for some time, though I don't know how much longer it will go on."

The coach felt his six departing players represented that tradition with their skills and with their commitment to the game and the team.

Jim Sapienza, who led the team with a .389 batting average, will be sophomore at Merrimack College and a second-year forward on the school's hockey team. "Jim is one of the most talented all-around players I've ever had," said Perdios. "He's a tremendous competitor, a tremendous leader, very vocal, and he never gave less than 110 percent."

Tom Malvesti, a four-year player and ace of the pitching staff with a 6-2 record and 1.70 ERA in the regular season, will be a sophomore at Stonehill College. "Tom was involved with most of those playoff victories over four years and was part of the state title team when he was a 15-year-old. It hurt him that we didn't go further this year. He had a great career with us and he'll continue to play ball."

Second baseman Ron McGann played just this year with Morrisette after spending the previous two seasons with Wollaston Legion. Perdios said his lead-off hitter was "absolutely fantastic defensively - probably the best second baseman I've had in 10 years of coaching." Morrisette scorekeeper Berger Ryan said McGann "played as good a second base in the state playoffs as I've ever seen in any tournament. He handled 25 plays flawlessly, many in a spectacular way. He started two double plays and was the pivot man on two others."

Andy Joyce began the season as the second string backstop, but "by the end of the year he was without question the best catcher in the league," said Perdios. "He did a tremendous job. He had a great arm and was a clutch hitter; he was always in the game."

Scott Kelly was projected at the beginning of the season as the club's No. 3 pitcher, but by tournament time had established himself as the No. 2 man in the rotation. He also improved considerably his once-limited batting skills. Kelly pitched in the 11-2 tourney win over Milford, and single-handedly equalled the offensive production of his opposition, going 4 for 5 with two RBI. Milford managed only four hits.

CONTINENTAL CABLEVISION General Manager Joseph Hayes, center, presents a check to Mayor James Sheets, as the company's sponsorship of the 25th annual Quincy Recreation Tennis Tournament. Looking on is tournament director John Franceschini.

City Tennis Tournament Gets Underway Sept. 7

Applications are now available for the 25th annual City of Quincy tennis championships, which begin Sept. 7.

The tournament is conducted by the Quincy Recreation Department and for the fourth year will be sponsored by Continental Cablevision of Quincy. The tournament is open to Quincy residents.

As part of the 25th-year celebration, a "past champions' barbecue will be held. Past champions are asked to contact the Recreation Department for more information.

Played on public courts, the tournament may be the longest running and largest of its kind in New England.

The sponsorship of Continental Cablevision is an important ingredient for the success of the event.

"This event would not be possible without the support of Continental Cablevision," said Recreation director Barry Welch. "I wish to thank general manager Joe Hayes for recognizing the value of this activity and for his support of the Quincy Recreation Department."

Applications are available by calling 376-1394, or at the Recreation Department, Continental Cablevision and City Hall. Deadline for applications is Friday, Sept. 1.

The tournament has 10 events: men 50 and over, men 35 and over, men's singles, men's doubles, mixed doubles, women 35 and over, women's singles, women's doubles, boys 16 and under, girls 16 and under.

Red Storm Playing For League Title

The St. John's Red Storm rolled past East Marshfield, 9-1, to finish atop the North Division of the North River League with a 9-1 record.

The Red Storm will play South Division champion Plymouth (9-1) in a best-of-three series for the league championship.

Dave Centrella went the distance, struck out six and allowed three hits as his ball club locked up the Division championship. He also hit a home run, his fifth of the season.

Matt Gardner went 2 for 3 with a double and triple, Chris Doherty hit an RBI double, Bill Page doubled and scored two runs, and Todd White singled and scored two to lead the winning attack.

Tom Callahan made another outstanding series of plays in right field as he robbed one batter of a home run and assisted on his fourth 9-3 putout of the season. Both gems came in the first inning. He then led the bottom of the opening frame with a triple to kick start a three-run attack that put the game away.

Rounding out the North Division standings were: East Marshfield, 8-2; Norwell, 6-4; South Marshfield, 5-5; West Marshfield, 5-5; Hanover, 4-6; West Plymouth, 3-7; and Hingham, 1-9.

Ponkapoag 'Odd Holes'

The Ladies Division of the Ponkapoag Golf Course held an 'Odd Holes Only' tournament on Tuesday, Aug. 8.

Capturing first place with net 19 were Mary Michaels, Nancy Carlton, Mary Carchedi and Ann Connor.

In second with net 21 were Pat Mahoney and Edna Fenney.

Third place was held by Pat O'Brien and Hilda Appel with net 22.

Liberty, Trainors Meet Again For Division Title

Liberty Lounge and Trainors will square off in the finals of the Quincy Women's Softball League A Division for the eighth consecutive season.

Trainors is the defending champion and placed second in the regular season. They advanced to the title series with a sweep of GNC Printing in the best-of-three semifinal.

In game one, Rita Nevulis and Cindy Hill slammed home runs to pace Trainors to a 10-7 win.

GNC Printing's Gerilyn Riley and Lisa Jillian led their offense.

Trainors took game two, 12-5, behind the performances of Hillary Bradshaw, Kathy Marple and Nevulis.

Liberty swept MacDougalls in their semifinal series. Maryann Quinn, Dara Johnson and Joanne Damiano hit well in a 7-0 game one victory.

They had their way offensively in game two, winning 19-12.

Mane Connection and Loui's will meet for the B Division title for the fifth consecutive year. Mane Connection won last year's championship.

The defenders had little trouble with Fowler House in the semifinal round. Good defense and powerful hitting led to a 11-6 win in game one. Lisa Gallagher's triple and Theresa Rand's high-arc pitching were unable to carry Fowler House to victory.

In an 18-4 win in game two, Mane Connection's Sue Grunning hit three-run homers in the second and seventh innings.

Loui's scored seven runs in the sixth inning to earn a 14-12 victory over Rascals in game one of their semifinal contest. Nicole Pierce, Chickie Mormile and Emily Maderios combined for 12 hits in the comeback effort.

Christine Barrett and Robin Blackley led Loui's to a 16-2 win in game two. Barrett was a perfect 5 for 5, while Blackley went 4 for 5.

In the C Division finals, Washington Tap will take on High Rise. It is Tap's second straight trip to the championship series. High Rise has never before made it to the finals.

High Rise beat Alumni Cafe in the only QWSL semifinal series to go to three games.

Mia Jennings smashed an extra-inning three-run roundtripper in game one to give High Rise a 12-10 victory.

High Rise had taken an early lead, but home runs by Alumni's Janice McDonough and Laurie Marom made it a 9-9 score after seven innings.

The McDonough sisters carried Alumni to a convincing 17-4 win in game two. Janice and Karen McDonough one home run each, while youngest sister Chrissie smashed a grand slam to cement the victory.

A seven-run first led High Rise to a 13-7 win in the rubber match and a spot in the title series.

Washington Tap squeaked by Malachys, 9-8, in game one.

Two walks in the bottom of the seventh set up Donna Kerble's game-winning hit.

Malachy's Ellie Ritchie was the game's top batter with a 4 for 5 effort that included a home run.

Paula Maloof and Noreen Carson combined for six RBIs to pace Tap to a 12-9 win in game two.

In the losing effort, Ritchie again hit a home run, while Sheila O'Neil went 3 for 4.

Fr. McCarthy, Teammates St. John's Golf Winners

Parishioners and friends of St. John's the Baptist Church recently took part in its third annual golf outing at Presidents Golf Course.

The winning mixed team was made up of Fr. Bill McCarthy, Bill Manning, Jim Hubbard and Yolanda Romanelli.

Mike Gilcoine's team won the men's division.

The winning women's team was comprised of Sheila McIntyre, Helen Duffy, Joan Matthews and Patricia Marella.

Guido (Budsy) Pettinelli won closest-to-the-pin on the 18th hole and Jack Flaherty won closest-to-the-line on the 12th.

A steak bake and awards banquet followed at St. John's Church.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

Much like those of the demise of Samuel Langhorne Clemens (no relation to Roger), rumors of Quincy High School moving to a new athletic league have been greatly exaggerated.

Or so I've been told.

In the past couple of weeks I have heard from no fewer than four second- and third-hand sources that QHS would be moving to a new sports league. The Atlantic Coast League in particular has been named as a possible new roost. The rumorers have included my neighbor, a guy with a big belly from another town, a Gypsy soothsayer, and some scruffy former Harvard professor leery of the narrow constraints of the world of academia.

Meanwhile, city officials are doing their best Millard Fillmore imitations: They know nothing.

I have searched for verification of the said rumors, hoping to stumble across some sort of deep-seated illegal cover-up that would topple, if not a presidency, at least an athletic director or two. An unnamed source (we could call him something that looks good in headlines, like Bottomless Larynx), tape recorded messages and a break-in at the never-to-be-built downtown Quincy hotel would certainly help my case. In honor of the scenic shores of Wollaston Beach, we could call such an elaborate ruse something like "What The Hell Is That Smelly Brown Stuff Floating In The Water"-Gate.

With such a breakthrough I could change my name to Byrnestein, win a Pulitzer Prize, and break away from this two-horse, dusty old whistle-stop of a town.

However, verification is yet to be found. Compounding the problem is the fact that 'breaking' news in certain circles in this city is treated with the same level of secrecy usually found blanketing government/mafia relations, U.S. funding of Third World dictatorships, and senators' interpersonal relations. In other words, nobody knows a damn thing.

So, until we're told differently, we have to assume the rumors are false. More news later.

The Red Sox have all of New England giddy, like school girls. They can do no wrong; they are pounding opponents into submission; their pitching has been flawless. Red Sox mania has reached a feverish pitch.

Loyal Red Soxians know this can mean only one thing: the pain will be that much worse when they blow it in October.

In an effort to lessen the impact of the inevitable heart-crushing defeat that will end the season, I have prepared the following top 10 list of ways the Red Sox can lose the World Series:

10. A discredited Harvard professor reveals that Tim Wakefield, whose pitching has been out of this world, is an alien visitor.

9. The Curse of the Mick (Sox booze heavily on eve of game 7, unable to play next day).

8. In ALCS, Yankees beat Sox in game 7 as Wade Boggs hits a slow roller up the first base line that gets between Mo Vaughn's legs allowing DARRYL... DARRYL...DARRYL Strawberry to score.

7. Bases loaded, bottom of the ninth, score tied and Mo Vaughn sends a high fly ball, way back...WAY BACK! as meteor smashes into Earth, ending life as we know it.

6. In an effort to finance upcoming musical production, Sox CEO John Harrington sells Vaughn and Wakefield to Yankees for $125,000.

5. Team members mangled by large, angry alligator that Mike Greenwell said would make a "neat-o" team mascot.

4. Sox take 3-0 Series lead before Players' Union leaders call for strike as negotiation over still unresolved collective bargaining agreement ends in fistfight.

3. Red Sox run over by Jose Canseco's wife following domestic dispute.

2. Fed up with inadequate facilities, parking, seating, etc., team makes late-season move to Chicago, winning World Series and ending decades of frustration for Cubs fans.

And the No. 1 reason why the Red Sox will blow the World Series...

1. The Curse of the Bambino.
(Note: I wish for none of the above to happen. If the Red Sox prove me wrong and overcome these potential disasters, I will eat a copy of this column at halftime of the Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game.)

The Quincy Youth Soccer League is searching for travel coaches for the spring 1996 season.

Coaches are needed for boys' and girls' teams and for many different age groups. The application deadline is Aug. 28.

For more information call Dick Shea at 471-0573.

Over 2,000 Runners Expected In Degan Race

The third annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race will take place Sunday, Sept. 17 in Quincy.

The event includes 10K and 5K road races and a 5K fun walk. It is in honor of the Quincy native who was killed in the line of duty while serving with the United States Federal Marshal Service in August, 1992.

The races begin and end at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The starting time is 10 a.m.

Race chairman Dan Stock expects over 2,000 participants, doubling the number for the second consecutive year. Many of the participants come from law enforcement agencies from across the country. Degan's family will also take part.

Free refreshments and raffles will be included for all participants and their families. Awards and T-shirts will be presented and family post-race activities will include, among others, clowns, face painting and McGruff the Crime Dog.

Quincy mayor James Sheets will start the race. Gov. Bill Weld and Lt.

Gov. Paul Cellucci expressed a desire to participate again this year.

"Bill Degan felt strongly about drug abuse, education, sports and the community," said Stock. "We hope, through annual scholarships and grants to different youth organizations, Bill Degan will be remembered for the hero he was and some good will come of a terrible tragedy."

Proceeds will go to Quincy DARE and USMC Charities. Degan was a member of the United States Marine Corps before joining the Marshal Service.

The 1994 race raised over $10,000.

Registration and number pick-up is from 8-9:30 a.m. at the Stadium on the day of the race. An entry fee of $10 must be received by Sept. 1. The day-of-race fee is $12.

Each race will include eight divisions based on age and sex. There will also be a wheelchair division.

For more information call Dan Stock at 472-6159 or 848-9284; Bill Grancy at 472-8220; or Steve DesRoche at 472-4867.

Quincy Relay Teams Win Hershey State Titles

Eight of 38 Quincy qualifiers captured state titles in the 1995 Hershey Track Massachusetts State Finals.

In the 4x100-meter relay, the team of Shannon Desmond, Stephanie Fianadaca, Erin McFarland and Brenna O'Brien won the girls ages 9-10 state title. Their boys counterparts, Kevin Holleran, Andrew Picard, Danny Ngutter and Sean O'Keefe, also took the ages 9-10 state title.

The Massachusetts winners are compared to winners from meets held in six other northeast states and the top qualifiers receive and all-expense paid trip to the National Championships in Hershey, Penn. later this month.

Local meet winners from Quincy have advanced to the nationals 10 of the last 11 years.

Quincy qualifiers placed in the top three in 10 other events: In the 100 meters, Erin McFarland placed second while Andrew Picard and Kellie Johnston finished third in their respective divisions. Juliann Jones was third in the 200, while Brenna O'Brien captured second in the 400.

Both boys and girls 4x100 relay teams in the 11 and 12-year-old age groups finished second in the state. Running for the boys were Sean Ginty, Kyle Piazza, Bryan Thornton and Chris Wilson. Carrying the baton for the girls were Caitlin Golden, Colleen Lahar, Katelyn McDonald and Kelly Rose O'Brien.

The 13 and 14-year-old relay team of Kim Hueth, Kellie Johnston, Juliann Jones and Marianne Weiler also placed second.

McFarland snatched her third winning spot with a third-place finish in the long jump, while Sarah Price grabbed a second in the 13 and 14-year-old long jump.

Others who qualified for the state meet were:

Girls, 9-10: Julia McGunigle (50 meters, softball throw), McFarland (100), Erin Croke (200).

Boys, 9-10: Sean O'Keefe (50, standing long jump), Ryan Tobin (200), Stephen Summering (softball throw).

Girls, 11-12: Jessica Courtney (100, standing long jump), Siobhan Hart-Kelly (200), Jennifer Conley (400, softball throw).

Boys, 11-12: Chris Wilson (100), Bryan Thornton (200, standing long jump), Richard Flanigan (400), Sean Golden (800), Kyle Piazza (softball throw).

Girls, 13-14: Genevieve O'Brien (800), Lynda Wilson (1600), Maureen Holleran (softball throw).

Boys, 13-14: Chris McNaught (100, standing long jump), Joseph Watson (200, 4x100 relay, softball throw), David Kusy (800), Paul Desmond (4x100), John Grazioso (4x100), Chi Chung (4x100).

Recreation Director Barry Welch praised the Hershey Youth Program and the Quincy Track Club for their commitment to the health and welfare of the young participants in the community. "The Hershey Program is accessible to all and provides positive benefits for all who take part. The Quincy Recreation Department is pleased to sponsor such a quality event," he said.

Rounding out the graduating contingent is Chris Cotter who was hampered by injuries which forced him to miss three-quarters of the season. "Chris never complained and always did his job when we asked him. He was a true team player, I just wish things went better for him," said Perdios.

The coach felt such leadership made for an easy season for himself and the staff of manager Ray Cattanéo, pitching coach Tom Malvesti, assistant coach Larry Taglieri and assistant Chris Dolan. "It was satisfying to sit back and not have to drum up motivation. The kids expected it and brought it on themselves," said Perdios.

Morrisette will hold their season-ending banquet Wednesday, Aug. 23 at 7 p.m. at the Sons of Italy hall.

Recreation Pool Show Aug. 18 At L-H School

The Quincy Recreation Department will present its 20th annual pool show at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School pool on Friday, Aug. 18 at 1 p.m.

This year's show is called "Friends" and will feature participants from the summer-long instructional program supervised by the Recreation Department. Over 700 swimmers, from beginner to advanced levels, are enrolled in the program. The show marks its completion.

The synchronized swim team will present a special number.

The show is free and open to the public. Preparation is being done by water safety instructors

Bank of Braintree Offers Financial Advice On WJDA

John F. Coyne Jr., assistant vice president of The Bank of Braintree Investment Services Department, has witnessed the booming economic climate of the 1980s, the stock market crash of 1987 and the economic doldrums of the early 1990s.

Coyne, in his 10th year with the bank, has been sharing his financial insights with listeners of WJDA Radio in Quincy every Thursday from 10 to 11 a.m. for the past several months. He discusses a variety of topics, from mutual funds to IRAs, and gives advice in addition to updating the public on The Bank of Braintree's activities.

During a recent show, Coyne noted that robust first-quarter returns in mutual funds are an encouraging sign, especially in light of the tumble that those investments experienced last year.

"The first quarter, in general, was much better than 1994, especially the last quarter of 1994, which was horrendous," said Coyne, a certified financial planner who oversees the bank's clients' investments, primarily in funds offered by the Federated, Fidelity and Dreyfus mutual fund families. "This year looks a lot better. We suspect this 1995 upward trend is going to hold for the near future."

Coyne said among the four principal investment areas (taxable bonds, tax-free municipal bonds, stocks, and asset-allocation programs), stock funds showed the most promise in early 1995. Many of the stock funds used by the bank showed a quarterly return of 3 to 6 percent in the first quarter, he noted.

If the current quarterly return rate is projected over the course of 1995, it spells a possible 12 to 24 percent annual total return, Coyne said. He added that over the past five years, many of those funds have posted an average annual total return of 15 percent.

Despite the stock funds' strong showing, investing in them has some risk in the current market. The stock market has set new records recently, providing returns for those individuals who invested when it was weaker.

"The stock market is doing well, but caution is the key word," said Coyne.

"We always try to find out what the investor's goals are, and what their current situation is, and then we try to structure an investment program to meet those needs," he

At Abigail's Crossing Mayors To Sign Quincy Village Collectibles Saturday

"People can create their own Quincy village" said Joanne Dondoro, owner of Abigail's Crossing in Quincy Center, "as well as the signature of four living former Quincy mayors."

Dondoro was referring to the "Cat's Meow Village", a popular collectible line of miniature handcrafted wooden buildings.

Saturday morning from 10 a.m. to 12 noon, Mayor James Sheets, former mayors Arthur Tobin and Joseph LaRaia will be on hand to personally sign each custom Quincy collectible.

The pieces include, Quincy City Hall, the United First Parish church, John Adams Birthplace, the Adams National Historic Site, the Thomas Crane Library, and the Adams Academy.

Accessory pieces include lamp posts, the American flag, maple trees, and various plants and shrubs.

In the future, Dondoro said, many Quincy landmark pieces will be added to the collection including the Quincy Hospital, the Abigail Adams Cairn, Quincy High and North Quincy high Schools.

Dondoro said the idea of having the mayors sign the collectibles was actually started by customers who told her they would like to have the City Hall piece signed by Mayor Sheets.

She later approached Sheets about the signing and the idea of having other former mayors sign and said he was "more than willing" to contact them.

Former Mayor Walter Hannon had a previous commitment prohibiting him from attending. However, Dondoro said Hannon did pre-sign a limited number of collectibles which will be sold on a "first come first serve basis".

Part of the funds of the First Parish Church and the Thomas Crane Public Library, will go toward their renovation funds.

IT'S IN THE BAG

Over the past eight model years, over 33 million cars have been sold with driver-side air bags. Another 15 million automobiles have been purchased with passenger-side air bags as well. Has this increased emphasis on safety been effective? According to researchers from the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, the answer is "yes." They reviewed four years of data to compare the incidence of driver fatalities in front-angle crashes involving cars equipped with air bags versus cars equipped only with seat belts. Their latest research shows that there were 23% fewer deaths than expected in front and front-angle crashes of air bag-equipped automobiles. These numbers certainly spell the effectiveness of air bag safety.

HINT: Air bags should not be used in place of seat belts and are intended to be used in tandem with them.

Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we understand that auto technology has actually become very advanced and sophisticated today. For example, all new cars have air bags, many for both the driver and front passenger. Whether you just have a question about your car or need to have major or minor work done, trust it to our professional technicians who keep up to date with all the latest industry developments. SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We have all heard the saying: "Today is the first day of the rest of your life." As long as we have life, each and every one of us must live within the confines of time - day-by-day. It is a precious possession. We can use it or we can waste it. At this very minute a life is being changed somewhere by someone or something, for better or for worse. A hope is being born, a dream being shattered. Please are being heard, accepted and rejected. Things happen everyday.

This very minute, a part of today, will soon be gone. It can never be replaced. It can be used to advantage to bring happiness or it can be shunned aside to cause regret and faded hopes in the tomorrows to come. Yesterday is gone. There may or may not be a tomorrow. But we do have TODAY. A decision to write a letter, make a phone call, pay a visit, or whatever - can mean a lot to you and others on this - The first day of the rest of your life...

2. A minimum of ten (10) percent MBE participation and five (5) percent WBE participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs. The Bidder shall submit completed MBE/WBE forms with the bid.

Failure to comply with the requirements of this paragraph may be deemed to render a proposal nonresponsive.

All prospective bidders must obtain pre-bid qualifications from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Highway Department, Contract Regulations Division, 10 Park Plaza, Room 7552, Boston, Massachusetts 02116. A copy of the bidder's pre-bid qualification certificate must be submitted to Owner prior to obtaining contract documents and plans.

All bids for this project are subject to applicable bidding laws of Massachusetts, including General Laws Chapter 30, Section 39M as amended.

Attention of bidders is particularly call to the requirements as to conditions of employment to be observed and minimum wage rates to be paid under the contract as determined by the Department of Labor and Industries under the provisions of the Massachusetts General Laws Chapter 149, Section 26-27D, inclusive, as amended.

The Bidder agrees that this bid shall be good and may not be withdrawn for a period of 60 working days, Saturdays, Sundays and legal holidays excluded after the opening of bids.

Compliance with the city of Quincy's Ordinance requiring contractors working on city-supported construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy residents is mandatory.

The Owner reserves the right to waive any informalities or to reject any or all bids.

NOTICE OF SALE
MORTGAGEES SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the POWER OF SALE contained in a certain Mortgage given by Karen R. Hull to Mellen Bray Corporation, dated January 8, 1991, and duly recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds at Book 8827, Page 54, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing, the same will be sold at Public Auction at 10:00 a.m. on Thursday, the 7th day of September, A.D., 1995, at the mortgaged premises located at Unit #128, 32 Linden Street (10 Weston Avenue), Quincy (Wollaston), Norfolk County, Massachusetts, all and singular portions of the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

Unit No. 128 in Mellen Bray Condominium in said Quincy, created by Master Deed dated January 6, 1989, and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Book 8209 Page 477.

Said Unit is conveyed together with an undivided .781% interest in the common areas and facilities of said Condominium, subject to and with the benefit of the provisions of said Master Deed Hereinafter referred to, to be used for residential purposes as more specifically provided in said Master Deed and together with the exclusive right and easement to use parking space no. 87, all as shown upon the plans filed with the Master Deed, together with the exclusive right and easement in gross to use storage space no. 5.

Said unit is laid out as shown on the unit plan annexed to the first Unit Deed, recorded at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Book 8827, Page 50, which is a copy of a portion of the plans filed with the Master Deed as amended from time to time, and to which is affixed a verified statement in the form provided in M.G.L. Chapter 183A, Section 9, and said Unit contains the areas shown on said plan.

Said unit is conveyed with the benefit of and subject to: (a.) the provisions of M.G.L. Chapter 183A as the same may now or hereafter be amended, (b.) said Master Deed of Mellen Bray Condominium and amendments thereto, (c.) the By-laws of Mellen Bray House Condominium Association, Inc., any amendments to same, and any rules and regulations adopted from time to time pursuant thereto, and (d.) all matters of record stated or referred to in the Master Deed, as completely as if each were fully set forth herein including but not limited to reservations, rights and easements. For the current title see Deed recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds at Book 8827, Page 50.

Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to and/or with the benefit of any and all restrictions, easements, improvements, covenants, outstanding tax titles, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record created prior to the mortgage, if any, there be.

subject to any and all leases and tenancies, if any there may be, having priority over said mortgage, to tenancies or occupation by persons on the premises now or at the time of said auction which tenancies or occupation are subject to said mortgage, to rights or claims in personal property installed by tenants or former tenants now located on the premises, and also to all laws and ordinances, including, but not limited to, all building, zoning, and environmental laws and ordinances.

TERMS OF SALE

The highest bidder shall be required to deposit Five Thousand Dollars and 00/100 ($5,000.00) in cash or by certified or bank cashier's check at the time and place of sale of the entire premises. The balance is to be paid in cash or by certified, or bank cashier's check at the office of Michael Magerer, Michael Magerer & Associates, 825 Beacon Street, Newton Centre, Massachusetts, 02159-1834 (Mortgagee's attorneys), within thirty (30) days from the date of the sale. The successful bidder shall be required to sign a Memorandum of Sale containing the above terms and conditions and others announced at the sale.

In the event that the successful bidder at the foreclosure sale shall default in purchasing the within described property according to the terms of this Notice of Sale and/or terms of the Memorandum of Sale executed at the time of the foreclosure, the Mortgagee reserves the right to sell the property by Foreclosure Deed to the second highest bidder that shall deposit with the above named Mortgagee's attorneys the amount of the required deposit as set forth herein within three (3) business days after written notice of default of the previous highest bidder, the balance to be paid in or within twenty one (21) days of said written notice, as hereinbefore outlined.

The deposit paid at the time of the sale shall be forfeited if the purchaser does not comply strictly with the terms of the sale. The purchaser will be responsible for all closing costs, state documentary stamps, and recording fees. For authority for said sale, see Judgement of the Land Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in Case No. 216470.

This Mortgagee reserves the right to postpone the sale to a later time and/or date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the sale and to further postpone at any adjourned sale date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the adjourned sale date.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the time and place of sale.

Citizens Group Receives $150,000 From Massport For Airport Study Review

A citizens advisory group representing Quincy and 18 other communities has been granted $150,000 to hire technical experts to review a new study from the Massport Authority that calls for a new runway and other changes at Logan Airport in Boston.

Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets and chairperson of the Community Advisory Committee (CAC) to Massport, said the money granted by the Massport Board of Directors was a direct result of her group's reaction to the Logan Airside Improvement Feasibility Study, which came from Massport's senior planning staff.

Mader, who has chaired the CAC since it was formed in 1978 to combat airplane noise, said the new study pertains to the following:

- Construction of a new runway, which will be used only by commercial aircraft.

- Construction of a new centerfield taxiway.

- Extension of four other taxiways.

- A study of "peak hour pricing," a policy to raise the fees of planes that land during peak air traffic hours.

- Reducing the minimums for vertical distance (a plane's vertical distance from the ground), and horizontal visibility.

Mader said CAC members were upset the study was put together without their knowledge. She added that they also questioned whether the plans it concerns are technically feasible and how they will impact local communities.

"We want people to know that we are vigilant about air traffic," she said. "We want to know what the implications of a new runway are, and how it will affect the communities in question."

Mader said upon hearing the CAC's concerns, the Massport Board of Directors voted to form two Airside Review Committees: one composed of officials from seven business organizations, and one with representatives from Quincy and the other 18 CAC communities. She added that she will act as chairperson for both committees.

Mader said the board also agreed to give $150,000 to the citizens' Airside Review Committee to hire experts in aviation, noise, air traffic, and air quality to review the components of the Logan Airside Improvement Feasibility Study.

"I think that's the most money we've ever been given," she said. "I have to give the board of directors credit. Giving us the money was a sign of good faith."

Mader said the review of the study will probably take between 18 and 24 months.

Licenses Revoked At Salvage Yard For Back Taxes

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License board voted Tuesday to revoke all licenses to Henry Gregoire, who operates a salvage business at 175 Intervale St., South Quincy, for failure to pay the city back taxes totaling more than $220,000 and for not complying with the board's request to clean up the premises.

The board gave him until the end of the business day Tuesday (Aug. 22) to negotiate with City Treasurer Dana Childs.

At press time Tuesday, however, a senior clerk in Childs' office said Gregoire had not paid the taxes or been to City Hall.

During the License Board meeting, Gregoire's son David was asked by City Clerk Joseph Shea, the board chairman if the "big yellow trailer" parked on city property was removed, noting that David had promised it would be moved by Aug. 1. Gregoire said it had not been moved.

Mosquito Control Sprayings Start

The Norfolk County Mosquito Control began spraying various sections of Quincy late Wednesday night and early Thursday morning, Council President and Acting Mayor Michael Cheney announced.

Cheney said he has received numerous complaints regarding the unusually high numbers of mosquitos throughout the city during the past few days.

"I have discussed this issue with Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue and have been informed Norfolk Mosquito Control will begin at the earliest possible time which will be late Wednesday night, early Thursday morning this week."

Is Recycling Program Working?

Cheney, Chretien At Odds

LARRY CHRETIEN

•Chretien: 'We Are Getting Our Money's Worth'

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, chairman of the city's Recycling Committee, has responded to a report issued last week by Councillor Michael Cheney calling for the city to privatize its recycling program.

Chretien issued his response to Cheney's report, which called on the mayor to end its contract with Browning-Ferris Industries and to collect recyclable materials with city employees and equipment, after meeting with DPW Commissioner David Colton, Executive Secretary Mike McFarland and City Auditor Robert Foy.

"I wanted to make sure my facts and numbers are right," Chretien said

Is Quincy's recycling program working successfully and to the benefit of the city?

Ward 3 Councillor and Recycling Committee Chairman Larry Chretien says "yes!"

Council President Michael Cheney says "no" and wants an audit of the revenue figures.

Here is how the pair, who are among four candidates seeking three council-at-large seats, stand on the recycling issue.

MICHAEL CHENEY

•Cheney: 'We Could Be Getting More'

City Council President Michael Cheney has requested the city conduct an audit of the recycling program.

Quincy is currently under contract with Browning-Ferris Industries (B.F.I.) to collect and market the city's recyclables.

The audit request has been prompted by information gathered by Cheney and Bill Repoff, a transportation consultant, after a three-month long study of the city's recycling program. Last week, Cheney and Repoff contacted the Town of Marshfield and learned that Marshfield officials found B.F.I. returning less money to the town than what recycled materials marketed for.

Cheney said Marshfield officials believe they are owed over $77,000 in back payments after they audited the B.F.I. account. Other South Shore towns have recently changed contractors, Cheney said, after they learned the B.F.I. bid was higher than other disposal contractors. The towns are Braintree, Taunton, Falmouth and Marshfield.

Cheney has sent a letter to Mayor James Sheets, who is out of town this week, requesting an $8,000 appropriation to hire a local CPA firm to conduct an audit.

According to the contract,

(Cont'd on page 12)

Tuesday.

According to Chretien, there is nothing in Cheney's report to substantiate his finding that Quincy would save $95,906.70 by having the city collect and transport recyclable materials, ending its relationship with B.F.I.

Chretien also said Cheney's claim that the city's could receive a minimum payment of $432,000 per year in return for Quincy's recycled paper is actually worth less than $200,000.

Third, according to Chretien, the report erroneously stated the city recycling program "operated at a loss of $231,614."

Debate Aug. 29 At Community Center

Ward 4 Candidates Gear Up

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Candidates for the Ward 4 city councillor's seat are gearing up for a debate to be held Tuesday, Aug. 29 at 7 p.m. at the Ward 4 Community Center in the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy.

The event is being sponsored by the Ward 4 Democratic Committee. Two of the four candidates will be eliminated in a primary election Sept. 19, while the others will square off in the final election Nov. 7.

Candidates include:
•Incumbent Thomas Fabrizio, 40, of 36 Reardon St., who is employed as a social worker for the Massachusetts Department of Social Services in Weymouth. He is seeking a fourth term.

•Michael D'Amico, 20, of 602 Willard St., a sales representative for The Boston Globe and a third-year political science major at Stonehill College. D'Amico ran for the Ward 4 seat two years ago and debated with Fabrizio at that time.

•Michael Larkin, 51, of 89 Alrick Rd., a juvenile parole case worker for the Massachusetts Department of Youth Services who is running for political office for the first time.

•Gregg Rennie, 29, of 100 Gridley St., a financial advisor for American Express in Quincy who is also a first-time candidate.

Fabrizio said he is undaunted by the reality of having to face three challengers this year.

"I have a track record of proven, effective leadership that sets me apart from my opponents," he said. "I'm looking forward to the opportunity to talk about what I perceive to be an outstanding record with a number of important accomplishments."

Fabrizio cited several of his achievements in the ward, including work that led to the construction of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center which opened last year in South Quincy, the special permit he authored for the Home Depot store in West Quincy in 1991, and the establishment of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Watch.

He also noted that he has been actively involved in a number of citywide issues, including an effort to hold the line on property tax increases as well as improvements to the city's schools, streets, traffic conditions and public safety.

"I think the single characteristic I possess that I'm most proud of is my ability and willingness to evaluate a particular project and to get actively involved in it," said Fabrizio.

D'Amico said he is confident going into the debate.

Rite Aid Store Up For Sale

The Rite Aid drugstore in Quincy Center, which has been open for 20 years, is up for sale as part of the discount chain's decision to pull out of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. Rite Aid Corp., which is based in Harrisburg, Pa., recently completed the sale of 24 other stores in Massachusetts and six in Rhode Island to Brooks Pharmacy. According to a company spokesperson, the chain also plans to sell its remaining 17 Massachusetts stores and one Rhode Island store.

The downtown Quincy store, located at 1445 Hancock St., is Rite Aid's only South Shore location. Rite Aid closed another Quincy pharmacy in Pilgrim Plaza in April, according to the spokesperson.

Rite Aid opened the Hancock Street store in September 1975. The chain bought the location from the S.S. Kresge chain, which had operated a store since 1923.

Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, has been trying for some time to attract new businesses to Quincy Center. However, the corporation's plans regarding the Rite Aid store remain unknown as Executive Director Joseph Mannarino was unavailable for comment at press time.

'Drive Friendly' Signs Proposed By Kolson To Help Cut Accidents

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson is planning to introduce a proposal for a new kind of road sign that would be placed around the city in an effort to cut down on pedestrian/motor vehicle accidents.

Kolson said at press time he will bring the matter up at the council's Sept. 18 meeting.

The councillor said he is working on the plan with City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon. The proposal calls for signs that will read either "Quincy Asks You To Drive Friendly" or simply, "Drive Friendly" to be placed at strategic points throughout the city.

While Kolson admitted he realizes signs sometimes do not have the impact they should, he said he hopes the "Drive Friendly" message will have "some sort of a psychological impact" on those driving through the city, which has seen a number of pedestrians injured or killed by motorists in recent months.

"We hope to encourage drivers to take it upon themselves to think about what they're doing," he said. "Just a simple reminder on a daily basis for people to drive friendly. We have to try and lessen the number of accidents however we can."

Kolson said he hopes Mayor James Sheets and the council will be supportive of his plan and that the signs can be installed by October. Sheets was on vacation and unavailable for comment at press time.

Kolson estimated that it will probably cost around

$2,500 for the city to install approximately 24 "Drive Friendly" signs throughout the city. The funds could probably be appropriated from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account or the traffic engineer's budget, but that decision must be left up to the mayor, he noted.

As far as design is concerned, Kolson said he originally thought "some sort of a diamond shape" would be appropriate for the new signs "so they would stand out." He added, however, that Gillon is working on the design and may come up with something different if he feels it is necessary.

Gillon could not be reached for comment at press time.

Council To Decide On Proposed Land Rezoning

The City Council will soon make a final decision regarding a proposal to rezone land across from the site of a planned Shaw's Supermarket at the old Boston Gear Works on the North Quincy-Wollaston line.

The Quincy Planning Board recently made a recommendation against the proposal, which calls for the rezoning of the land from business to residential.

Neighbors voiced strong support for the rezoning at a council hearing in June, saying they want a buffer between their homes and the business district. They said they fear the land in question, which has houses on it and runs along Albion Road and Hancock Street, would become attractive to small businesses because of the traffic Shaw's will bring to the area.

The proposed rezoning also has the support of Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers.

However, no one attended a Planning Board hearing on the rezoning last month. And at their meeting two weeks ago, board members said they see no reason for the change, despite receiving letters from Ayers and Phelan.

The board's vote is a recommendation to the council, which can still approve the rezoning if it so chooses.

City To Take Court Action On Mural

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The owner of the building at 291 Water St., South Quincy who was asked to remove a controversial mural that depicts gun-wielding men and women chasing each other in a game of paintball says he did not authorize it, according to Building Inspector Matt Mulvey.

Owner Chris Solimini, who told Mulvey he wanted his tenant Edward Hennebury to immediately repaint the building, has to appear before the Quincy License Board at its Sept. 12 meeting, according to Mulvey.

Mulvey said Hennebury, owner of War Games Co. which sells the equipment used in paintball games, has also been summoned for a court hearing on Sept. 13.

Mulvey said a permit would have had to be issued because it comes under the signage law, and no permit was issued to Hennebury. Hennebury said he didn't know he needed a permit.

Hennebury said people have told him they like the mural for which he says he paid approximately $1,000 to have painted.

Mulvey said a picture or signage must not exceed 25 percent of the front of the building. He added that the mural takes up 100 percent of the area and is illegal under the signage ordinance.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio agreed with Mulvey and said City Solicitor Stephen McGrath also has ruled the mural to be in violation of the ordinance.

Fabrizio called the mural "absolutely offensive" to women, saying part of it depicts a man hitting a woman on the back of the head.

MURAL PAINTED ON the side of the War Games Co. store at 291 Water St. has been criticized by city officials for violating the city's sign ordinance and depicting violence against women. From left are artist Paul Jacob of Abington and War Games Co. owner Ed Hennebury of Braintree.

Quincy, Carney Hospitals Considering Collaboration

Carney and Quincy Hospitals have signed a memorandum of intent establishing the terms and conditions regarding opportunities for the two institutions to work together.

A 120-day negotiation period is set to expire at the end of November. During this period, both institutions have agreed to concentrate on the potential collaboration of these two institutions.

A joint steering committee, consisting of an equal number of representatives from each hospital, has been formed to serve as the formal mechanism to conduct discussions.

Quincy Hospital's representatives are Bernice Mader, Mayor James Sheets' administrative assistant; Robert Griffin, chairman of Quincy Hospital Board of Managers; Ralph DiPisa, Quincy Hospital CEO; and Michael Bakerman, M.D., president of Quincy Hospital's medical staff.

Carney Hospital's representatives are Gary DeLisle, for the Daughters of Charity; Sr. DeChantal LaRow, the chairwoman of Carney Hospital's Board of Directors; Matthias Maguire, Carney Hospital CEO; and Edward Reardon, M.D., president of Carney's medical staff.

Volunteers Invited To Join Crew Of USS Salem

The Volunteer Association of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum announces it is looking for new crew members to help restore and operate the USS Salem.

The 717-foot, 21,000-ton retired warship, centerpiece of the Quincy-based military/historical museum, has attracted a substantial volunteer force comprised of individuals with and without related military and shipbuilding experience.

"The crew is made up of an extremely diverse group of people who share a strong common thread... a passion for his ship," said Mark Brodie, chairman of the USNSM Volunteer Association and a commercial photographer.

"Young recruits with no related background work alongside retired shipbuilders and Navy personnel, some of which were involved in the actual construction and sailing of the USS Salem. There's a great deal of camaraderie and learning going on here, and at the end of the day, everyone walks away with a special feeling," Brodie said.

Built at the Quincy shipyard and commissioned in 1949, the USS Salem became the flagship of the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean. The heavy cruiser sailed the waters throughout the 1950's during the early Cold War.

Those interested in joining the volunteer association may do so by contacting the USNSM at 617-479-7900. Retired sailors and shipbuilders are particularly needed to fulfill decent duties, as well as for the leading of restoration activities.

GRAVE'S DISEASE: TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING

The thyroid is one of those things that doesn't get much attention unless something goes wrong.

When the thyroid goes into overdrive, producing too much thyroid hormone, that "something" is known as Graves' disease. Graves' speeds up metabolism, increasing, for example, heart rate and digestion. Former First Lady Barbara Bush brought Graves' disease to the attention of millions of Americans when, while still in the White House, she let it be known that she had been diagnosed with the condition. Unchecked, Graves' can cause such symptoms as weakness, weight loss and various eye problems. Treatment may range from antithyroid medication to destroying the defective thyroid tissue and using thyroid-replacement drugs.

P.S. Some 90 percent of the 11 million Americans with thyroid disorders are women.

Getting the right medical care can often depend on finding the right match between doctor and patient. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, we take a full family history when considering your symptoms and offer health recommendations as well as treatment. Always Something Doing

There's always something doing in politics even when there isn't something doing. That something is called "looking ahead." Who's going to be running for what and when in elections to come.

Though this year's city elections are yet to be held, the Speculation Corps is already looking beyond them to state elections still two to four years away.

And trying to figure out or guess whose names will be on those ballots. Like:

Who will run for Norfolk County district attorney in 1998 when William Delahunt completes his present term which he says will be his last.

There are potential candidates by the bushel. Among them: former state Senator Paul Harold, Rep. Steve Tobin and Dan Raymondi of Quincy; Rep. Paul Haley of Weymouth, Norfolk County Commissioner Peter Collins of Milton, Senator William Keating of Sharon, and present Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert Delahunt, a cousin of the district attorney.

Robert Delahunt says he will challenge Senator Robert Hedlund of Weymouth next year but that doesn't necessarily take him out of the district attorney derby.

William Delahunt has already announced he plans to look to greener political pastures. He's interested in Congress, as he said, a few months ago.

When he said it, he meant the seat held by Cong. Gerry Studds. But now the one occupied by Joseph Moakley could be a possibility.

If Moakley, who recently underwent a liver transplant, decided not to seek re-election, Delahunt could run for that seat even though he lives in Quincy, which is not in the district. Most of Norfolk County is Moakley's district where Delahunt would be a strong candidate.

However, if Studds decides not to seek re-election, Delahunt would probably run for that seat.

Delahunt is also interested in a bid for attorney general if Scott Harshbarger runs for governor as he apparently will.

And what if Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall, whose present term expires in 1998, decides to call it a career?

Two names being mentioned as potential candidates are Rep. and School Committeeman Ron Mariano and Senator Michael Morrissey.

If Delahunt and Marshall both leave office, it would trigger a game of political musical chairs.

If Tobin runs for district attorney, would Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Councillor Mike Cheney run for Tobin's state representative seat?

If Morrissey runs for sheriff, state Rep. Michael Bellotti is seen as a logical candidate for Morrissey's senate seat.

And if Mariano runs for sheriff, would Raymondi be interested in his state representative seat?

If Bellotti runs for the senate would Larry Chretien, Bruce Ayers, Steve Doherty, Pat McDermott or Steve Reilly run for his state representative seat?

The musical chairs could go on and on. Ah, politics. There's always something doing.

REASON FOR THAT big smile Atty. George Burke is wearing: his team, The Burke Club, won the Little League championship and the team presented him with a special t-shirt. On the front, "Burke Club, 1995 Little League Champs" and on the back, "Burke, No. 32." That number, of course, is the one he wore as a basketball star at UMass in the 1950s and as a Celtic rookie.

BURKE

And that's the number that Julius Erving inherited at UMass. It now hangs retired in honor of both Erving and Burke in the Mullins Center at UMass-Amherst.

SPEAKING OF George Burke, he has been quietly making generous donations to worthy causes for some time now.

He's not broadcasting this, but we understand he has recently donated something like $130,000 to St. Ann's Church to repair and put back into operation the parish swimming pool. The pool has been inoperable and shut down for some years now.

□

AND STILL THINKING OF George Burke, he flew out to Las Vegas to see what turned out to be the Tyson-McNeeley 89-second farce.

Tickets ranged in price from $200 to $1,500 and Burke was settled in one of the latter choice seats.

There were celebrities all around him, including Donald Trump, Maria Maples, Kelsey Grammer, James Carrey and Pamela Anderson.

George said he turned to look at The Donald and almost missed the fight. Someone else said he almost missed the fight when he turned to look at Pam Anderson almost wearing a clinging yellow dress.

MILESTONE: She doesn't look it and she certainly doesn't act it, but Muriel Goudey, one of Quincy High School's all-time popular—and top—teachers will celebrate her 90th birthday Sunday.

She's still full of the zestful enthusiasm (she just had her driver's license renewed for another four years) as she was back in the 1940's when I was lucky enough to be one of her students. I'm sure anyone who had her as a teacher before then or after would consider themselves lucky, too. She was the kind of teacher you wished all your children would have when they went to school.

She was always there to help you, guide you, encourage you and steer you in the right direction. She was a peach back then and still is today.

Happy birthday and many, many more.

□

IF YOU'RE A cigarette smoker, an item in the Quincy Hospital newsletter Monitor, should make you stop and think.

It cites this little tidbit from the American Lung Association: If you smoke a pack of cigarettes a day, you inhale smoke about 60,000 times in one year.

That's a lot of pollution for one body and two lungs.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS OLD POSTCARD shows some of the old narrow gauge Quincy Quarries Railroad which served the quarry industry on top of the hills of West Quincy. Not to be confused with the famed Granite Railway which operated from 1826 to 1870, this railroad was started in the 1890's with some five miles of track and sidings. It helped to carry Quincy granite across America via a connection to the mainline Old Colony railroad which traversed a branch route along what is now the Southeast Expressway in West Quincy.

HEARING ON SCOTCH POND PLACE

John Grossman, representing the L. Grossman and Sons Co. petitioned the Planning Board to abandon a portion of Scotch Pond Place.

The proposal met with strong opposition led by Councilor Francis McCauley who said he had received many calls against the plan. Ten residents spoke against it, with another 25 recorded in opposition.

The petition would have allowed for the closing of that portion of the road at the Granite St. end that cut through two parcels of Grossman land, though that portion only appeared on planning maps.

Quincy Delegation Joins House In Honoring State Firefighters

State Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin and their fellow members of the House have adopted a series of resolutions honoring the 50th anniversary of the organization of professional firefighters in Massachusetts.

"Acutely aware of the precarious nature of a firefighter's job, it is only proper that we pay homage to these intrepid men and women. I feel compelled to assure them that their on-going efforts to protect our communities are not unnoticed or unappreciated," said Mariano.

Founded in the fall of 1945, the Professional Firefighters of Massachusetts is comprised of 170 local unions which represent approximately 11,000 paid professional firefighters. Primarily concerned with public safety, the organization works to educate the public and to provide their expertise in the public policy debate of the Commonwealth.

Tobin said that "we are proud to work with the Professional Firefighters to score victories such as the $100,000 death benefit for the family of personnel killed in the line of duty, statutory protection for those exposed to carcinogens and significant increases in local aid which is a major funding source for municipal fire departments."

Bellotti added, "the Legislature is currently examining the capital needs of fire departments across the state with an eye for establishing a grant program to help cover the costs of replacing equip-

Legislature Enacts Final FY95 Budget of $46.5 Million

Sen. Michael W. Morrissey announces the enactment of the fiscal year 1995 final budget recommendation, which totals $46.5 million in direct appropriations.

The final deficiency budget is an opportunity for the Commonwealth to provide funds for expenses remaining from the just ended fiscal year. The Legislature's recommendation also includes appropriations for fiscal year 1996 or which the need and expense were determined subsequent to the passage of the General Appropriations Act.

In addition, the bill includes a provision that directs surplus funds, remaining after these expenditures be used to alleviate the pressures placed on communities and individuals by burgeoning sewer rates, onerous Title V requirements and astronomical MWRA bills.

The enacted legislation maintains the conventional role of the final deficiency by including appropriations for operating budget deficiencies during the fiscal year 1995. Funding for these deficiencies includes appropriations for the Committee for Public Counsel Services, collective bargaining payments, Medicaid rate settlements and other obligations of the Commonwealth.

In addition to providing funds for unavoidable expenses incurred over the course of fiscal year 1995, the Legislature's recommendation for the final deficiency budget includes appropriations for anticipated fiscal year 1996 expenses. The inclusion of funds for these inevitable expenses was made possible by tax collections that exceeded the governor's revised estimate and reversions of unspent funds at state agencies that were higher than expected.

The enacted bill is on Gov. Weld's desk and awaiting his signature to become law.

LaBrequé Top Winner In Recreation Dept. Arts And Crafts Display

LaBrequé playground's 3-D model of the old Boston Garden was the winning entry in the Quincy Recreation Department's annual arts & crafts display.

The best-of-show award was made after the public voted on projects from each of the city's 20 playgrounds which were on display for two days at McIntyre Mall.

The winning project was made by Jill Leth,

Mark Dunn, Billy McKeeon, Matt Lavery, Mike Conley, Bryan Dunn and recreation leaders Laura Marsden, Steve Barrett and Jason Fennelly.

In second place was a model of an alligator made by participants from the Perkins' Field playground. Russell Park's model of a castle placed third.

The Perkins' crew included Dave Keddy, Jonathon Mendez, Alex Mendez, Laura Murray, Stephanie Tetreault, Matt Graham, Mark Miller, Mike Keddy, Terrence O'Connell, Ryan Farnham, Frankie Feeley, Jon Caliri, Chuck Feeley, Geoffrey Karasic and recreation leaders Tricia Vacca and Tom Hawes.

Russell Park's project was created by Jesse Winter, Casey Winter, Steven O'Brien, Steffanie Roche and Breanna Roche and recreation leaders Kerry Evans and Scott Pyer.

Our Policy On ENGAGEMENT PHOTOGRAPHS And Wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Rev. Dr. Eugene Langevin

Trying To Show Troubled Teens 'The Way Up'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Q. Let's begin by talking about the origin of The Way Up.

A. Well, it began in 1964 when I was a divinity student at Harvard Divinity School. I was assigned to do field work in the Cambridgeport section of Cambridge, and I helped a group of street-corner kids to form this kind of an agency, which is now known as The Way Up. Almost as soon as the program was founded, The Way Up moved to Quincy at the request of the Honorable Kenneth J. Nash, then presiding judge at the Quincy (District) Court where I had been hired as a probation officer for juveniles in 1966.

Q. Why did the judge want the program moved to Quincy?

A. I think that he thought there were some very positive advantages for the kids of Quincy if we could get this program here.

Q. Since the move to Quincy, has it always been at the First Baptist Church?

A. No, it's been at a number of different locations. It's been in a storefront; it's been in several different churches.

Q. Why did you decide to call the program The Way Up?

A. Well, the original group of kids who organized it called it The Way, which was drawn from a passage in the Book of Acts which they were reading at the time. Over time, we were confused with another group, and we decided to change our name to avoid any confusion. So in 1981, we officially became The Way Up.

Q. Tell me about the actual operation of the program—when it meets, and some of its activities.

A. The Way Up is an unusual youth program that is designed to work with court-referred teenagers and their friends. We work primarily with boys ages 12-18, although girls are welcome to attend any of our programs. We work with about 40 teenagers at a time, and the number of kids in any particular group would range from six to 35.

Our goal is turning delinquent teenagers around, and that includes processes of attitude adjustment, behavior change, and helping kids to find a law-abiding future that makes them happy. Our programs meet in the afternoons and evenings during the week, and on Saturday as well.

Q. And generally, what time is that?

A. The afternoons are right after school and the evenings are usually 7 to 9 (o'clock).

Q. Again, what are some of the activities?

A. Well, in order to understand what the activities are, you have to understand the process by which kids come here. The kids who come to this program are referred by the Quincy Juvenile Court. When they get here, they've been assigned to do a certain number of hours of community service. So their program in The Way Up begins by having to do very hard work. That might include raking leaves, moving tables and chairs, or scrubbing floors. That work is done on Saturdays.

The next step, for most kids, is to discover that they can mitigate the amount of time they have to spend doing very hard work by choosing to do some positive activities instead. Now those activities they can choose to do include a Monday night youth group, a Wednesday night activities program, and a Thursday night counseling group. The Wednesday night activities program includes such activities as learning to play the guitar, sitting in on a videotape and discussion about the history of rock 'n' roll, volleyball, drawing, making puppets and putting on a puppet play, writing for our teenage newspaper The Flypaper, being in a writers' group, free time—which includes pool, ping-pong, basketball, wrestling and other games—doing homework or having someone help them with homework, and finally, cooking.

Q. It sounds like a pretty complete agenda.

A. Yes, these are activities that the kids like to do, and if they come up with something else they'd like to do, we consider adding that to the program. Of course, The Way Up is not just a program; it's a program and a method.

REV. DR. EUGENE LANGEVIN outlines for teens the four main values that are stressed at The Way Up program in the First Baptist Church of Wollaston: self-esteem, compassion for other people, concern for animals and care for other people's property. Rev. Dr. Langevin has been director of the program, which is designed to meet the challenge of juvenile delinquency, since 1964.

FULL NAME: Rev. Dr. Eugene Albert Langevin

AGE: 55

ADDRESS: Merrymount

EDUCATION: graduated from high school in Ferndale, Mich. in 1957; received bachelor of arts degree in government from Harvard College, 1961; master of divinity degree from Harvard Divinity School, 1967; doctor of ministry degree in clinical psychology and counseling, 1977; master of theology degree from Harvard Divinity School, 1978; has received additional education in New York City, Oxford, England and elsewhere

OCCUPATION: director of The Way Up, a youth program designed to meet the challenge of juvenile delinquency (currently located at First Baptist Church of Wollaston) since 1964; has also served as pastor of South Baptist Church of South Boston since March. Served as pastor of First Church of Squantum, 1978-93

FAMILY: includes his sister, Patti Langevin; two nieces, Mindi and Marci Langevin

Q. What do you mean by that?

A. Well, the method really has to do with the fact that our purpose here is to teach kids to obey the law and to "learn how to fly." What I mean by that is to come upon a set of goals, or future, for themselves that they're happy with. So as I say, we begin with hard work, and they can then begin to mitigate some of that time they have to spend doing hard work by joining in some of our positive activities.

We also have a special counseling group here which really functions, in a way, like a family. Kids bring to me, each week, a written report from their parents; they write a report themselves about how they've been doing that week; on occasion, they bring progress reports from the school; and then all of the kids in the group will discuss what's been going on with them.

The idea is, The Way Up represents a new way of working with delinquent kids. Instead of virtually passing over what they've done with very little reprimand on the one hand, or sending them away on the other, here is an alternative in our own community. You could say that The Way Up is an example of "community corrections." Young people come here, have to do hard work to begin with, and learn quickly that they can make their lives better by making more positive choices.

What we are talking about is motivation. If you have ever seen a kid who has no ambition, who is satisfied just to hang around all week with no motivation to do something, then you know the problem with which we are dealing. This way, we provide the young person with a reason, a motivation, to participate in worthwhile pursuits. The four values stressed in all of the activities of The Way Up are self-esteem for the young person himself, compassion for others, concern for animals and care for other people's property. And if, in the process, we help the kid to find himself—that is, to discover his more responsible, better side—then we have succeeded.

Incidentally, those who participate in the program may do so for as long as they want—they can even bring friends with them—and many of them really stay for a very long time. In fact, many of these kids who come here become my lifelong friends.

Q. What about sponsorship for the program? Where do you get your funding?

A. We are supported by churches from throughout the state, churchwomen's organizations, and individuals who are concerned about the issue of delinquency.

Q. Are you supported solely by Baptist churches, or do other churches also contribute?

A. This is an ecumenical program; we work with kids of all religions and no religion. Most of our programs do not have religious content, and the ones that do are optional.

Q. What is the annual budget for The Way Up?

A. I would say about $10,500.

Q. And what about staff and/or volunteers for the program?

A. We have eight adults who help me on a part-time basis. Several are mothers; others are people who have been participants in the program in years past, sometimes decades ago; others are people I have gone out and invited simply because they had something special to bring to the kids.

The actual staff of the program is a teenage staff, and those are different people. They are five teenagers who have made a commitment to be responsible to see that this program works.

Q. How well does the program work? Can you give a couple of examples of success stories that have resulted from The Way Up?

A. Well, to begin with, just recently I had a phone call from a mother who said she wanted to tell me that her son has made a complete about-face in the last three months, and that she attributed it entirely to this program—those were her words. I was delighted to hear that, and I know what she's talking about. That young man has really changed in the course of being here. He's become more sensitive, more responsible, a happier kid.

But our track record goes back many, many years. For example, one young man came to us at the age of 13 back in the 1960s. He was a very difficult kid; he was the sort of kid that if he went to court for stealing a car, he would go home with his parents and be sent up to his room, and then he'd climb out the window and steal another car. He came to our program for a year, and he is now the director of a very large Roman Catholic complex of institutions that works with troubled kids. He obtained his doctorate in education, and dedicated his dissertation to his parents and to me.

Another example of someone we worked with is a 13-year-old who came to me in the 1970s. He had been thrown out of school at that age because of his misbehavior—his mother was having trouble with him, and the court asked me to do some work with him. We made him the first editor of The Flypaper, and now, 20 years later, he's married, has three kids of his own and lives in Florida, where he is the founder and publisher of a respectable monthly magazine for young adults. And that magazine is sold in five different English-speaking countries, including every state in the union. So that's a pretty good achievement for a kid who initially couldn't make it through his English class.

There are other stories I could tell you. The success rate of the program is pretty high.

Q. If someone wants to learn more about The Way Up, what can he or she do?

A. Call me at 328-7675.

Repair Shop License Granted Despite Opposition

In spite of Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio's opposition, and a neighborhood petition with more than 25 names, the Quincy License Board voted 3 to 1 for an automotive repair shop license on 105 Federal Ave., South Quincy.

The motion was made by Building inspector Matt Mulvey and seconded by Fire Chief Thomas Gorman at Tuesday's board meeting.

Voting against the motion was License Board Chairman Joseph Shea and Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue. Voting in favor was Police Chief Francis Mullen, Gorman and Mulvey.

Albert Cline, owner of Woodbine Garage, formerly located at 471 Hancock St., was given a notice to move from that site because of the construction of a new Shaw's supermarket.

Cline has appeared before the license board since June fighting opposition from neighbors.

One opponent was Beth Davis, wife of Mike Davis who only three months ago applied for the same license, but was turned down by neighbors and was forced to withdraw his application.

Neighbors spoke of Federal Ave. being a small congested neighborhood, and feared the shop would emit more noise and pollution.

Roger Lyons, Cline's former landlord said the site is zoned for business, and the City of Quincy needs the taxes from commercial sites.

Fabrizio made his final appeal before the board took their vote by stating that the board should exercise discretion even though the site is zoned for business, and vote against the request.

The board made the following stipulations with a 90 day trial. They are as follows:

- Exhaust to be vented in rear of the building.
- No outside repairs.
- Landscaped properly.
- No parking on Federal Ave.

•Hours be from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and on Saturdays only for emergencies.

- Instruct the traffic engineer to conduct a traffic study of the area.
- Light repair work, with no trucks over one ton.

- No towing
- No storage of cars.

FOUR QUINCY MAYORS were on hand at Abigail's Crossing, Hancock St., Quincy Center, to sign Quincy Village Collectibles, including miniature city halls, handcrafted of wood. Owner Joanne Dondoro joins three former mayors, from left, Joseph LaRaia, Francis McCauley, Arthur Tobin and Mayor James Sheets at the signing. Former Mayor Walter Hannon, who could not attend the signing because of a prior commitment, pre-signed a limited number of collectibles which are sold on a first-come, first serve basis. Besides small city halls, the village collection pieces include tiny versions of United First Parish Church, John Adams Birthplace, the Adams National Historic Site, the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Adams Academy. Other pieces will be added to the collection, Dondoro said, such as Quincy Hospital, Abigail Adams Cairn, Quincy High and North Quincy High Schools. (Quincy Sun photo/Tom Gorman)

Regarding Cheney's savings claim, Chretien said, "The report speculates that Quincy would save $95,906.70 by having the city collect and transport recyclable materials, ending its relationship with B.F.I. There is nothing in the report that substantiates that figure. Furthermore, whether that is true or not can only be answered through a formal process of putting the contract out to bid.

"Because the contract with B.F.I. is due to expire on June 30, 1996, Public Works Commissioner David Colton will be preparing the request for bids at the approximate time. The Recycling Committee believes that the DPW should carefully estimate all the costs associated with having the city do the collection and compare that to what B.F.I. proposes, as well as other private companies."

Concerning the guarantee minimum payment for the city's recyclables, Chretien said, "The report claims that a company called North Shore Recycled Fibers would 'guarantee the city of Quincy a minimum payment of $432,000 per year' in return for our recycled paper, based upon an assumption that North Shore Recycled Fibers would pay us $90 per ton for 4,800 tons per year of paper."

"However, according to the company's proposal that was included in the report, North Shore Recycled Fibers' offers a floor price (minimum price guarantee) of $50 per ton. Multiply that by 4,800 tons and you get just $240,000. Furthermore, the proposal also states that the city would have to pay for transportation. Because hauling paper to Haverhill is relatively costly, the actual 'guarantee' is worth less than $200,000," Chretien said.

About three months ago, Chretien said he asked B.F.I. to provide city officials with a detailed report on what they have paid Quincy for the value of recycled materials. "Although I do not suspect that B.F.I. is underpaying Quincy, I asked Commissioner Colton to pay an accounting firm or solid waste consulting firm to conduct an audit of the program."

"As taxpayers, we should be secure in the knowledge that we are getting our money's worth," he said.

Chretien also claims Cheney's report "erroneously stated that the city recycling program 'operated at a loss of $231,614' and 'by not operating and managing its own recycling program, the city will continue to lose $616,138.30.'"

"Those statements," Chretien said, "neglect an enormously important, and widely known, piece of information. Because Quincy pays B.F.I. $47.50 per ton to dispose of our trash, every ton we recycle or compost saves the city $47.50. I estimate that we are recycling over 8,000 tons per year and composting about 3,500 tons per year."

"Therefore, we are avoiding approximately $546,250 in landfill costs. In order to properly determine whether we are saving or losing any money on recycling, avoided disposal costs have to be factored in."

"Furthermore," Chretien continued, "the figure of $616,138.30 referenced above is somehow based upon the statement, 'the City of Quincy would realize a minimum profit of $384,542 after all expenses,' if it operated the recycling program without B.F.I. The report does not include any substantiation on how the figure of $384,524 was calculated."

Chretien said the recycling committee deserves credit for designing and promoting the recycling and leaf composting programs.

"Mayor Sheets and Commissioner David Colton deserve credit for negotiating a contract with B.F.I. that meets all of the city's waste management needs. In fiscal year 1992, the city expended $5.5 million on solid waste. In fiscal year 1995, the city expended $3.8 million."

"Quincy is on the right track when it comes to managing solid waste," Chretien said.

Cheney Requests City Conduct Recycling Audit

B.F.I. is responsible for keeping the records of all sales of recyclables. The contract states however, that revenue from the sales of recyclables is the property of the City and therefore the mayor has the right to immediately take advantage of another outlet for city recycling materials.

"This is simple math," Cheney said. "According to the Department of Public Works, the City of Quincy gathers 5,400 tons per year of paper. Right now, we could be collecting $432,000 for paper alone."

"The city also collects 960 tons of plastic. The market rate for clear plastic is $350 per ton. Something is wrong when the city is only receiving $149,000 while we should be receiving $500,000," Cheney said.

While acknowledging market changes, Cheney also stated "we have a written guarantee for three years from one firm that will lock the floor price in at $50 per ton." Cheney and Repoff believe that if the city were to enter into negotiations with other contractors, the city could do much better than the $50 per ton guarantee. The city could also negotiate guarantees entered into with other recyclables such as plastic, glass and metals.

Cheney said he and Repoff agree as an incentive for people to recycle, the city should look into the possibility of sharing the revenue with taxpayers who recycle. Cheney said this could made possible by the use of bar scanners such as those used by inventory companies.

"Each resident's recycling bin would have a bar code on their bin. The collector could scan the bar code of each household recycling. At the end of the quarter year each resident could receive a reduction from their tax bill for participating in recycling."

"If the city were to share the savings with each individual taxpayer," Cheney said, "I would anticipate recycling to increase dramatically."

Cheney noted in his letter to Sheets that he supports recycling. "It is not only sound environmentally but is a fiscal tool by which we can reduce our disposal costs. There is no reason to wait till the end of the contract. We can exercise this tomorrow," Cheney said.

Ward 4 Candidates Gear Up For Debate

"I'm looking forward to it," he said. "The people will hear four views, and I'm confident mine is the one that will restore accountability to the seat and allow the residents' voices to be heard."

"We held our own two years ago in all the debates, and at this time, we're working harder than ever."

D'Amico added that while there are "quite a few" issues in the ward he feels need to be addressed, including commercial development and zoning, "it's the small issues that make a big difference."

"The people need someone who will be accessible and accountable," he said. "Someone who will answer all the phone calls and will be able to be reached at all times."

Rennie said he feels the debate will be a good opportunity for area residents to see the differences among the candidates.

"I think it will be great for all the candidates," he said. "And I think it's good for the ward to see those who are running."

Rennie said among his biggest concerns are needed improvements to Shea Rink in West Quincy and the overcrowded Sterling Middle School in South Quincy, keeping down municipal property taxes and skyrocketing Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) water and sewer rates, and other issues.

"Ward 4 is in the worst condition of all the city's wards, and I think it's time for a change," said Rennie.

Larkin said he thinks the debate will be helpful to his campaign because it will bring him greater recognition.

"I have to get my name out there, since I'm kind of the new kid on the block, along with Gregg Rennie," he said.

Larkin said other than "opening up the lines of communication from City Hall," he sees the two most important issues in the race as being the MWRA rates and elderly services.

Larkin said if elected, he would work to expand the Meals on Wheels program and other services for senior citizens. Regarding the MWRA rates, which have been imposed upon taxpayers to help fund the Boston Harbor Cleanup, he said enough is enough.

"My (MWRA) bill this past quarter was $240," he said. "People are outraged about the rates. They just can't afford it anymore."

"This is something I've really jumped on and plan to pursue by turning over every rock. I would like nothing better than to have cleaner harbors, but not on the backs of the taxpayers."

The only other preliminary election on Sept. 19 will be in Ward 5, where four candidates are vying for the council seat being vacated by Charles Phelan. Ward 5 Democratic Committee Chairman Stephen McGrath said at press time it is "highly unlikely" a debate will be held before the preliminary election, although it is possible one will be held before the Nov. 7 final.

(Cont'd from page 1)

Seemingly losing patience with Gregoire's failure to keep his promise,

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman told him emphatically, "Today is the day you get it out."

Shea noted that complaints have been coming into the City Hall for months about the "unsightly mess" and an "eyesore" for area residents.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey told Gregoire "if taxes aren't paid by the closing of business today (Tuesday), you must come back to the board with the city treasurer."

Mulvey said the law states that anyone in business who does not pay their taxes are subject to the revocation of their license.

Mulvey said no new materials can be brought onto the site and that Gregoire has to remove all materials on city-owned property.

COLD ENOUGH FOR YOU?

There is a relatively simple test that car owners can conduct to see if their automobiles' air-conditioning systems require servicing. With a cool engine, they should set their air conditioners to either "max" or "recirculate" and set out for the highway for a drive at speeds above forty miles per hour. Next, they should shut all the air vents, with the exception of the center vent. By placing a small thermometer in front of the open vent and giving the system time to stabilize, they should take a temperature reading from the vent. If the temperature is below 50 degrees Fahrenheit, they should have the system serviced. Bear in mind that the cessation of production of the older refrigerant R-12 at the end of this year makes AC servicing a matter of timely importance.

HINT: The new CFC-free refrigerant R-134a is now in use in the AC systems of new automobiles.

People generally put a great deal of money into their cars. With the initial purchase price, insurance, tune-ups and repairs, you can make sure you have your car serviced and repaired by the best technicians around, this of course includes such "comfort" systems as your AC. You and your car deserve the very best and here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO you'll get it.

A GRATEFUL CITY REMEMBERS--A memorial wreath, decorated with small American flags, was displayed outside City Hall recently commemorating the 50th anniversary of the Allies victory in World War II. The flags symbolized all who died serving our country, from World War I to "the homefront." The wreath was originally placed at the Vietnam War Memorial Clocktower at Marina Bay during an anniversary service there. The local service was among similar services held throughout the country on the theme, "A Grateful Nation Remembers."

Giarratani Praises SJC Expulsion Decision

Sal J. Giarratani, candidate for Quincy School Committee praised the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court upholding the right of local school officials to expel students from school without paying for alternative education.

"As a law enforcement officer for the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health since 1985, I believe schools should be in the business of providing a safe learning environment for all its students who want to learn. School officials must draw a line in the sand showing zero tolerance for drugs and violence," said Giarratani.

According to the state supreme court, students do not have a constitutional right to an education. Giarratani said, "I believe the court made the right decision. Any student involved in drugs or violence that threatens the learning environment should be expelled promptly and the taxpayers ought not be mandated to pick up the tab to provide alternative education or tutors."

I believe however, we cannot simply wash our hands of communal responsibility toward students expelled because all these young people are also tomorrow's adults. I would like to see Quincy, for example working along with Milton, Braintree and Weymouth in developing a regional alternative school to house these disruptive students," added Giarratani.

"Our schools must be both drug-free and violence-free. I support the 1993 education reform law as a beginning in our efforts to provide our children with all the educational tools to survive in the next century. If local communities would work with each other on common issues such as public education, we can ensure that all the children attending public schools will receive a quality education. Alternative schools for expelled students understand that they too need an education or tomorrow we could be demanding more and more prison beds. After all, today's public education questions go unanswered at our own peril."

Carney and Quincy have initiated a compatibility study and upon completion of the study will examine specific areas that would benefit from a closer and more structured affiliation between them. The hospitals will be guided by specific goals and objectives, including enhancing the scope and quality of locally available health and medical care services; retaining individuals identities and maintaining their unique traditions; enabling the hospitals to compete more effectively in the changing market; increasing efficiencies, thus decreasing health care costs to patients; and enhancing the vibrancy and productivity of their medical staffs.

'Opportunity Of A Lifetime' Says Principal Kathleen Morris School Bells To Ring Again At Beechwood

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

For veteran educator and Principal Kathleen Morris, the reopening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School is the opportunity of a lifetime.

"I don't think there are too many principals who have the opportunity to open a new school, to be on the ground floor and to have it come to fruition. It's almost like we're creating the ideal school."

"I'm really fortunate to have this appointment and the parents are so happy to have their neighborhood school back on line."

Sept. 6 will usher in a new chapter in the history of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School. First opened in 1951, the school closed its doors in June, 1981, a victim of Proposition 2 and a half.

The facility didn't sit idle the past 14 years. The Beechwood Community Center called the school home for many years. Although there was activity at the site, many in this part of Wollaston held out hope that the building would reopen someday as a school again.

Then, as the elementary student population increased during the early 1990s, school officials targeted Beechwood as a school again. High enrollments at the Parker and Wollaston Schools finally made the reopening a necessity.

That necessity has turned into delight for many people, especially Morris who is making the move from principal at Merrymount School to Beechwood. School officials, teachers, parents and students are also embracing the school's reopening.

"We're extremely excited," said School Supt. Eugene Crendon, noting the Beechwood reopening is part of the school system's "rebirth."

Besides Beechwood, the Parker Elementary School has a new gymnasium and a remodeled basement for quality educational space. Quincy High School, for the first time in many years, has a new auditorium which will seat over 500 people. The new auditorium has up-to-date lighting and a new theatre-like sound system.

The superintendent also noted that the city's other schools continue to undergo maintenance and other updating to enhance learning atmospheres.

"We're doing the best we can to provide quality education for all of the children in the city of Quincy. There is a great deal of excitement as we await the first school bell and there is tremendous pride in the fact that the Quincy Public Schools are on the move and the future before us is very bright," Crendon added.

The $3.3 million Beechwood project will double the size of the building by renovating and remodeling the original building while adding a brand new wing.

The new addition adds eight rooms to the school: six regular classrooms, one kindergarten and one media and technology center.

The renovated wing, which houses nine classrooms, gymnasium, the staff lounge and administrative office, has been completely remodeled. Features include new floors, new lighting fixtures, new sinks and bathrooms, fresh paint, new windows, refurbished lockers, resurfaced gym floor, and a new drop ceiling.

Crendon noted the school's old library, located inside the gym, is now a stage.

The school has a new ventilation and heating system, improving air quality. The new wing will be air-conditioned.

"To me, it's a brand new school," Morris said. "Every single thing has been replaced and I can't think of anything that hasn't."

The number of students enrolled at the school is projected to be approximately 275 to 300. The school will have one morning and afternoon kindergarten, at least two first grades, three second grades, two third grades, two fourth grades and one fifth grade.

The student-to-teacher ratio will range from 19:1 for second to 23:1 for fifth. "Ideally, we'd like to have no more than 20 students in each classroom. That would be utopia," Morris said.

The uniqueness of Beechwood, nestled within walking distance of Wollaston Beach and Black's Creek, lies in its location and technology, Morris said.

"Our backyard is like a scientific lab. We have estuaries, a marsh and the ocean nearby. It's a scientist's delight."

Looking ahead to the first day of school, Morris said her primary goal is a

QHS To Welcome Freshmen On Sept. 1

The Quincy High School Student Council will hold a day of orientation for all incoming freshmen Friday, Sept. 1. The new students will be welcomed at 9 a.m. in the new QHS Auditorium and will end the day at noon with a cookout and activity fair.

Each student will meet his or her upperclassman "Freshman Buddy." The older students will bring the freshmen on a tour of the building and familiarize themselves with their classrooms.

All freshmen are encouraged to attend. For more information, call the school's main office at 984-8754.

New Program Offers Training For Dropouts

Quincy Public Schools have been awarded a $65,000 grant to provide technical training and GED preparation for 15 dropout students, announces Dr. Angela Avery, director of Occupational Education in Quincy.

The Allied Health Career Connections Program will operate at the Center for Technical Education with support from Quincy College, the Department of Employment and Training, and Braintree Rehabilitation Hospital. The program's goal is to provide a year-long academic and technical training program to prepare students to become physical therapy aides. Internships will offer unpaid work experience.

Students between ages 17-21 who have been out of school for a year are eligible if they meet income guidelines and are interested in a health career.

For applications and information about the program, call Dr. Avery at the Center for Technical Education, 984-8731.

Construction Industry Scholarships Available

Construction industry grants of up to $6,000 are available for college freshmen, sophomores and juniors who are planning to enroll in four-year accredited degree programs related to construction.

Graduate level scholarships of $7,500 are offered for college seniors pursuing a full-time advanced degree in construction or civil engineering. The annual competition is sponsored by the Associated General Contractors (AGC) of America, the oldest and largest construction trade association in the nation.

Candidates are judged by industry professionals according to their demonstrated interest in a construction career, academic performance, financial need and extracurricular activities. Massachusetts students may obtain applications by writing to the Associated General Contractors (AGC) of Massachusetts, 888 Worcester

St., Suite 40, Wellesley, MA 02181.

All completed applications and attachments must be received in the AGC of America office in Washington, D.C. by Nov. 1.

The AGC of Massachusetts is a full service chapter of the AGC of America, representing union and open shop firms performing the majority of corporate, institutional and public building in the Commonwealth.

smooth opening.

"We want to make sure the teachers have all their supplies. We want to make sure all the nuts and bolts are in place first. It's like moving into a house--you make sure all the essentials are there and then you add to it."

Down the road, an open house is planned in September or October. Other events and special activities are also on the horizon, Morris said.

Creedon praised Morris with taking an active role in the school's reopening. Morris has served in the local school system for 25 years as a teacher, assistant principal and principal. She was the Merrymount School principal for the last five years.

"Kathleen was a very good principal at the Merrymount school before moving over to Beechwood. She has tried very hard over the last four to five months to keep people informed of what is happening.

"She has had community meetings. Before school ended in the spring, she went over to the Wollaston and Parker Schools to meet all of the children who will be attending the Beechwood School," Creedon said, adding Morris has spent a lot of time on school grounds during the project.

Morris's approach to the new school year emphasizes a team concept among administrators and teachers.

"I'd like it to be a collaborative effort. It's important that we all work as a team. When you have a team, you will have cohesiveness as a staff."

By "bonding together" Morris said she hopes that staff "will want to create a school culture that fosters open communication among its members, values tolerance and diversity, allows for expression of feelings, uses conflict resolution skills and promotes cooperation.

"Staff development, I believe, is key to improving the educational product we provide children.

My responsibility as an administrator is to ensure teachers are provided the best staff development I can provide."

The school's staff will number approximately 35. The full-time staff will number about 20, including teachers, office help and custodians. Part-timers include six specialists: art, music, physical education, speech, psychological services and guidance.

In addition, there will be seven or eight lunch attendants and cafeteria managers.

Morris also wants to establish a safe, secure learning environment at Beechwood, beyond the inherent feeling of safety of a neighborhood school.

"There's a sense of security when a school is in a neighborhood. So many parents are pleased to be able to have their child walk to school," Morris said, adding the school staff will use innovative measures to help make students more comfortable with their new surroundings.

TAKING A CLOSE look at a new desk inside a classroom at the soon-to-reopen Beechwood Community Knoll School are School Supt. Eugene Creedon and Principal Kathleen Morris.

For example, teachers and students will wear color-coded badges the first few school days. "If the youngster loses his or her way, we'll be able to look at the badge color and know exactly where he or she should be. We want the children to feel very safe with us," she said.

Besides their regular classwork, students can expect some other "assignments" when school opens. They include choosing school colors and a mascot and nickname.

Morris and Assistant Principal Thomas Natola, who is also a second grade teacher at Beechwood, are reaching out to parents and businesses to form a community partnership.

Morris and Natola are forming "parent teams" which are working on differing aspects of school needs. One need is sprucing up file cabinets donated by GTE as well as collecting gift certificates from local businesses in an effort to raise money for the school. The parent teams will be the seeds of a PTA, Morris said.

It's that community spirit which Morris says is necessary to educate children today.

"It takes a community to educate a child. I want to make sure the Beechwood Knoll community is part of that process. It encourages parent and community involvement in the schooling.

"The days of schools going at-it alone are gone. We need to encourage our parents and others in the community to get involved in providing the best education possible."

Chretien Supports Sheets' Proposal On Improving Delivery Of Elderly Services

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien announces he strongly supports Mayor James Sheets' proposed study on improving the delivery of services to elderly people through the city's Council on Aging.

Sheets, Council on Aging Chairman John Noonan and Executive Director Brian Buckley recently visited Cranston, R.I. to observe the city's method of serving its elderly population. After observing what appeared to be a very successful program, the three agreed to study whether it makes sense to modify Quincy's present system of service delivery.

Based upon figures provided by Cranston, it appears that their centralized method of delivery reaches a much higher percentage of its seniors than Quincy's current system. In contrast to Cranston, Quincy currently serves elderly people through the combined efforts of its Council on Aging, several neighborhood centers scattered throughout the city, as well as many other agencies within and outside city government.

Chretien, a candidate for councillor-at-large, said, "I applaud the mayor, Mr. Noonan, and Mr. Buckley for taking the time to travel to Cranston. I think they're on the right track."

"Given what the Council on Aging has to work with now, they're doing as well as can be expected. But I think we have something to learn from Cranston, as well as other cities. We need to reach more seniors and we need to do so in meaningful ways. Cranston seems to be doing that," Chretien said.

"When you consider the number of seniors in Quincy and the fact that the number is growing every day, we are not spending much on the elderly. We could provide a big increase to their budget for direct services just by making our bureaucracy more efficient."

"Furthermore, if we do go to a model similar to Cranston's, I think that we have could a great senior center in the downtown. We should think about using federal Community Development Block Grant funds to build the center, perhaps in conjunction with the project proposed for the Hancock Parking area."

Chretien also requested that Sheets take further steps to improve services to all residents by establishing a city Department of Human Services.

"The purpose would be to improve the coordination of various human services in a way that would be better for citizens who need help and that would cost less to administer. The head of the department would serve as the staff person to the Council on Aging, the Family Commission, and other functions of city government involved in human services. The department head would also oversee the neighborhood centers."

"By establishing a Department of Human Services," Chretien said, "I am convinced that we could provide existing services less expensively or provide better service at the same cost."

EDY'S GRAND ICE CREAM recently presented a check for $1,000 to the city for the repaving of East Elm Avenue in Wollaston which was deemed the "Rockiest Road in Quincy" following a call-in contest conducted by the company in conjunction with the 65th anniversary of Rocky Road ice cream. The check was presented at a "The Only Rocky Road Should Be Ice Cream" party at the Quincy Department of Public Works. Flat Tax Proposals Harmful To Home Values And Sales

"I must tell you the ugly truth about the flat tax many policy makers are talking about today," says James N. Stamos, president of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors. "A flat tax that does away with mortgage interest and property tax deductions would have dire consequences for housing and the rest of the economy."

Flatness and simplicity in the tax structure are appealing, however. Findings of a recent study by the noted research firm, DRI-McGraw Hill, reveal a scenario to costly, too dangerous and too devastating to homeowners and the entire economy to justify a simple postcard return.

The first year of a flat tax that does away with mortgage interest and property tax deductions would cost American home owners nearly $1.7 trillion. That's "trillion" with a T.

Put another way, the average homeowner would instantly lose 15 percent of his home's value within the first two years. Expensive homes would be even more harshly affected, especially since owners of many less costly homes do not itemize deductions. Thus, homeowners would experience an immediate, massive and permanent loss of equity.

Nationally, the average price of an existing single-family home would decline 9 percent, existing-home sales would fall 19 percent and housing starts would drop 22 percent in relation to what they would have been under the current tax structure, according to the study.

The benefits of lower interest rates brought about by a flat tax would be offset by the higher taxes most Americans—especially the middle class—would pay.

Many of the flat tax proposals being considered today ignore the positive impact of real property ownership on the U.S. economy and on our society.

The mortgage interest deduction has been an important part of the U.S. tax policy since the federal income tax code was adopted in 1913. This provision has survived world wars, economic de-pressions and baby booms. By providing for the deduction of home mortgage interest and real estate taxes, Congress recognized the important social and economic value of encouraging home ownership.

Removal of the home mortgage interest deduction could send the economy into a depression worse than even the 1988-92 financial crisis. As home values fell below many outstanding mortgage amounts, pushing many borrowers into default, bank failures and a credit crunch not only become possibilities, but probabilities.

"The simplicity of a flat tax just isn't attractive enough to outweigh those kinds of consequences," says Stamos.

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate community.

Some Cable Customers To Receive Credit On September Bills

Cable television customers in neighborhoods along Hancock St. north of Quincy Square will receive a credit on their next monthly bill as a result of a recent longer-than-expected service interruption related to the city's beautification project.

Telephone poles are to be removed and utility lines placed underground as part of the project. Continental Cablevision needed to shut off and reroute its cable trunk and feeder lines serving the neighborhood to prepare for the pole removal.

Continental expected to interrupt service during daytime hours Aug. 9 while it switched service to the new network in the area. Continental ran into complications in making the multiple switch-overs, however, and some customers were without cable service until after midnight.

"The project took far longer than we anticipated, and we apologize to all our customers who were inconvenienced by the lengthy interruption of their cable service," said Joe Hayes, Continental's Quincy-area general manager.

Hayes said all affected customers will automatically be issued a credit on their September billing statement. They do not have to notify Continental to receive the credit, he added.

Peg O'Connor Honored As QCA Citizen Of Year

QUINCY CITIZENS ASSOCIATION recently honored its "Citizen of the Year" at the association's annual dinner at Raffael's in North Quincy. Recipient Peg O'Connor is presented the Laurence J. Quincy College To Offer Courses In Cohasset

Quincy College will begin offering credit and non-credit courses at a Main St. location in Cohasset this fall.

The Quincy-based two-year college and the South Shore Community Center recently agreed to allow Quincy College to offer a variety of courses at the center's 3 North Main St. site, according to Quincy College Interim President Linda Wilson.

"It's a collaboration, an experiment we hope will continue and flourish," Wilson said.

Under the agreement, residents of Cohasset and neighboring communities can take two-credit courses such as child development and English composition I as well as non-credit courses. The latter range from a course on Title 5, the state's septic system regulations to building self-esteem in children.

Because the community center serves a large senior population, non-credit courses geared to them will also be available.

Registration for the fall classes, which begin Sept. 5, is underway. Two-credit courses will be held once a week, during the evening. Non-credit courses will probably be taught during the day.

New Head Coach Takes Reins Chella To Put College Accent On QHS Football

By KERRY BYRNE

Rookie head football coach Peter Chella hopes to parlay 11 years of college experience and contacts into an improved program at Quincy High School.

The QHS alumnus (Class of 1964) replaces Jack Raymer who retired from the head coaching position after an 11-year stint at the end of last season.

Chella spent the past 11 years as the offensive line coach at Curry College, where he developed a number of "fairly good contacts at the 1-AA level." He is hoping that his knowledge of the game at more advanced levels will help him in this, his first-ever head coaching position.

"The practice schedule will be different and the approach to teaching will be different," said Chella, who teaches social studies at QHS. "We will rely heavily with preview and review before and after practice."

"We will concentrate more on college techniques than they have in the past. I know the stuff we teach will be along the lines of the things taught in the Yankee Conference."

When asked what concrete ways these new methods would manifest themselves, Chella said: "It's difficult for me to say because I don't know exactly what concrete things were taught at Quincy High School in the past."

Chella's attitude will be another bonus. He is well-liked and respected, though with presence enough to demand, and command, respect and discipline.

According to many players, Chella has already built the foundation for solid coach/player relationships.

The coach, on the other hand, credits the players with handling the change well. "The kids have responded wonderfully," he said. "We had 66 kids at camp - that's not me, that's them. The kids at Quincy High want to play football, and they always have wanted to."

Chella's football philosophy is one of flexibility and preparation. If one looks at the great coaches at the pro level, flexibility seems a sound method. Don Shula has won with punishing fullback Larry Csonka and dazzling quarterback Dan Marino. With the New York Giants, Bill Parcells had a grind-it-out playbook straight out of the Stone Age. Last year with the New England Patriots he had a high-flying playbook out of the Space Age.

Chella feels that type of adaptability is essential in coaching: "There isn't a coach who doesn't want to

Quincy, North Begin Football Practice Today

Over the weekend the temperature dropped, the winds picked up and the restless leaves rustled and hissed - sure signs that football season is upon us.

Hard to believe, but true.

The football teams at both Quincy high schools begin practice today (Thursday). Single conditioning sessions will continue tomorrow and Saturday.

The North Quincy Red Raiders, under 13th-year head coach Ken McPhee, will hold double sessions Monday through Friday of next week. The Quincy Presidents, under first-year head coach Peter Chella, will hold triple sessions over the same week-long stretch.

Both schools return to single sessions Monday, Sept. 4, just in time for the start of the new school year.

The Red Raiders have a scrimmage against Needham scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 30 at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

Their first game is Friday, Sept. 15 against non-league opponent Stoughton. They beat the Black Knights, 22-8, in the opening battle of last year's 6-4 campaign.

The North Quincy schedule is the same as last year. They will again have a non-conference outing against Don Bosco.

The Red Raiders must deal this year with the departure of defensive coordinator Earl Metzler. Metzler has taken an assistant principal position at Sterling Middle School and administrative duties will keep him off the sidelines.

McPhee will handle the defensive coordinator duties.

The list of Old Colony League opponents for both Quincy and North Quincy consists of Weymouth, Taunton, Bridgewater-Raynham, Silver Lake, Plymouth South, Falmouth and Barnstable.

The Presidents have a scrimmage scheduled for Wednesday, Aug. 30 at Newton North and a jamboree on Friday, Sept. 1 with Stoughton, Hingham and Braintree at Veterans' Memorial Stadium.

They will host a scrimmage against Randolph Wednesday, Sept. 6 and will play a game-situation scrimmage against Watertown Saturday, Sept. 9.

Quincy hosts Div. 4 power East Bridgewater on Saturday, Sept. 16 in the first encounter of the 1995 season for both clubs. The game was originally scheduled for Friday, Sept. 15. East Bridgewater boasts a very strong program and last year played in the Div. 4 Super Bowl. The two have never met in football. The EB game fills a schedule spot held last year by Div. 1 Super Bowl champion New Bedford.

Quincy's other non-league game is against Marshfield. They beat the Rams last season, 13-0.

The Presidents 6-4 record last season included a 21-14 win over North Quincy on Thanksgiving Day, which broke a three-year holiday skid.

Lupo, St. John's Storm To Title

John Lupo was the biggest of many of heroes as the St. John's Red Storm baseball team won a drama-filled 4-3 extra-inning game against Plymouth to capture the North River League championship.

The win gave St. John's a 2-0 sweep of the best-of-three series. Both clubs entered the title showdown with 9-1 records.

In the bottom of the ninth inning of a scheduled six-inning affair, Lupo belted a two-out single into center field, driving in Jim Conostas and Chris Kamborian with the tying and game-winning runs.

The pressure-loaded hit set off a frenzied celebration in the Mitchell-McCoy Field bandbox.

The Red Storm fell behind, 3-2, in the top of the ninth when Plymouth's Steve Robillard drew a bases-loaded walk.

Until Lupo's hit, the Quincy-based club had been held scoreless since the first inning, when they managed two runs. A single by Conostas with the bases loaded plated Chris Doherty and Matt Gardner.

Plymouth fought back to tie it with two runs in the fourth inning. An errant throw to first allowed Plymouth's Jimmy Keogh and Seth Bosani to cross the plate and set up the extra-inning clash.

A number of stellar defensive plays kept the visitors from scoring more runs. After Plymouth scored in the fourth, Doherty made a leaping snag of a line drive to prevent a man from scoring from third.

In the seventh inning, with runners on first and third and one out, Red Storm shortstop Todd White stopped a sharply hit grounder, stepped on second for the force and threw to first to complete a double play and end the scoring threat.

Doherty posted the win as he came on in the ninth to relieve Dave Centrella. Centrella was impressive, allowing just three hits and no earned runs in his lengthy stint on the mound. He struck out seven. Doherty fanned one batter.

Lupo's game-winner was his only hit of the contest. Conostas went 3 for 4 with a double and two RBI. Doherty was 2 for 2 and walked twice. Gardner went 2 for 3 with a double and was intentionally walked.

In game one of the series, St. John's had their way, 16-6. The game was in doubt until the sixth when eight Red Storm men crossed the plate.

White posted the win with five K's.

Pacing the attack were three-run homers by Centrella (third inning), Gardner (fifth) and White (sixth).

Chris Kamborian helped break the game open with a bases-loaded double in the final inning. Doherty clubbed two doubles and scored two runs. Kevin Eagen went 2 for 3 and scored twice.

The champion Quincy squad was coached by Pat McMahon.

Yawkey League

Quincy's Remarkable Season Ends In Playoffs

By KERRY BYRNE

Quincy's remarkable first season in the Yawkey Baseball League came to a close with a 3-1 best-of-five series loss to South Boston.

Quincy began the season with a dismal 0-10 record, only to go 16-3 in their next 10 games. The 16-13 final record led their division and put them in the first-round series with South Boston.

The change from hapless to hopeful came when coach Dan Duncan implemented a number of personnel changes.

"We brought in new players and practiced more than any other team," said Duncan. "The team came together nicely after that." Though disappointed that his streaking team was dismissed quickly by South Boston, Duncan vowed: "We'll be better next year. We'll have a deeper team and will go farther in the playoffs."

It is the goal of Duncan and team founder Al Julian to put on the field a lineup consisting entirely of Quincy residents. Many of the personnel changes have been to that end.

Adding to the team's disappointment with the series loss to South Boston is the fact that they beat each of the remaining teams in the playoffs.

A number of outstanding pitching performances sparked the turnaround. Former Morrisette star Mark Cahill pitched a perfect game in a 9-0 win over the Boston Padres.

Dan Duncan, Jr., a sophomore-to-be at Assumption College, lifted Quincy to their first win as he spun a four-hitter in 22-4 pounding of Charlestown. Duncan was unable to stay in the line-up however; a fresh scar on his elbow is a visible reminder of the reconstructive surgery he underwent soon after the Charlestown outing.

Also patrolling the mound effectively were Chris Rawdon, Chris Higgins and Tony Anderlonis. Rawdon posted a 5-2 record despite facing the iron of Yawkey League on numerous occasions. Higgins went 3-0 and yielded just five runs in four games. Anderlonis' record of 2-0 included a one-hitter against Brannelly's of Roslindale.

The relief staff of Steve Manning, Dave Gamsby and Pat Oliverio was outstanding as it preserved numerous leads throughout Quincy's second-half surge.

The pitching jobs were made by easy by a lineup that included a bevy of booming batsmen. Cahill hit a whopping .569 while anchoring the attack from the No. 3 position. George Wirtz hit .500. Lead-off man Rob Kane, a former three-sport standout at Quincy High, hit .448. Also putting up impressive averages were clean-up man Chris MacDonald (.333), Brian Hayes (.414), Rawdon (.371), Duane (Dewey) Holmes (.350) and Eric Buckley (.342).

Holmes began the season with a number of impressive home run shots, though he cooled as the team got hot.

Helping to anchor the defense were Jim Glynn, Marc Swirbalus and Tim Messing.

Back-up catcher Gary Cannon and outfielder Mike Yocco did great jobs when called upon.

Duncan and Julian wanted to thank Tom Koch for the use of Adams Field.

Owens Tournament Begins Thursday

Quincy will have a chance to redeem itself in the T.A. Owens Baseball Tournament which begins Thursday, Aug. 24 at Adams Field. Teams from the Yawkey, Cranberry and Inter City leagues will take part in the double-elimination tourney.

All games are at Adams Field at 6 and 8:30 p.m.

The event will run every night through Labor Day weekend.

Money raised from the tourney will go towards one scholarship each for an athlete graduating from Quincy High School and North Quincy High School.

Cash prizes will be given to the first- and second-place teams and awards will be given to the tournament MVP, pitching MVP and fielding MVP.

The tournament was founded by Quincy's Al Julian and Tom Owens as the Quincy Semipro Invitational Tournament in 1982. Owens died after a bout with cancer in 1988 and the event was renamed in his honor in 1989.

Matt Messing Memorial Golf Tournament Oct. 2

The Matt Messing Memorial Golf Tournament will be held Monday, Oct. 2.

Messing was the Quincy High School sophomore who died in a hockey game against North Quincy last winter. Proceeds from the golf tournament will go the Matt Messing Memorial Scholarship Fund to benefit a Quincy High School athlete.

The tournament begins at 7:45 a.m. at the Pembroke Country Club, West Elm St., Pembroke.

A $100 donation per players includes cart, greens fee, surprises and dinner. A trip for two to London will be offered as a grand prize drawing for registered golfers at the post-tournament dinner at 1 p.m.

Dinner only costs $30.

Prizes will be awarded to the men's and women's first, second and third place winners and for the man or woman with the longest drive or closest to the pin.

The tournament can accommodate up to 38 foursomes, or 152 individual golfers.

For more information call 472-9365.

Lugay, Lambkin Sparkle For Quincy Track Club

Roddy Lugay and Alan Lambkin were the big winners from the Quincy Track Club at the Frank Kelly Memorial meet.

Lugay and Lambkin each finished first in two events. Lugay led the Bantam Boys (9-10) in the 100 meters with a time of 16.0 seconds and in the long jump with a leap of 11 feet, 4 1/2 inches.

Lambkin led the Midget Boys (11-12) in the 100 with a time of 14.5 seconds and the 400 with a time of 1:06.7.

Also chalking up first place finishes for the Quincy Track Club were Erin McFarland (Bantam Girls) in the 100 (16.1 seconds); Brenna O'Brien (Bantam Girls) in 400 (1:15.0); and Lisa Della Croce (Youth Girls, 13-14) in the shotput (25 feet, 7 inches).

run the ball and control the clock," he said. "You have a little more control when you run the ball. Coaches by nature are conservative and I'm conservative, but you have to be able to adjust to the talent you have."

This should help him this year in particular. With the loss of the main weapons that powered Quincy's smashmouth attack last season, the Presidents will rely more on speed and finesse.

As for preparation, Chella said he "likes to really look at scouting reports and films as much as possible."

"I'm really into the 'Bill Walsh' thing of scripting plays. I like to have something down pat and know what I'm going to expect. I think it's important that the kids know what they are going to see. I want to get as much information as possible on our opponents and want to figure out what's going to work best against them."

He did say he was pleasantly surprised with what he considered the already advanced nature of the Quincy High offensive scheme. With that in mind, he plans on giving offensive coordinator Bob Noble a large role in planning and creating the offensive system. Look for advanced multiple formations in what will likely be a one-back attack.

Under Chella and Noble's plans, the Presidents will attempt to keep opposing defenses off balance by running the same plays from many formations, while using a lot of traps and stunts, and will rely on their skill positions people to carry them.

This is the third time Chella has been involved with the Quincy High program, and his third capacity in that program. He was a standout lineman for the Presidents before going to the University of New Hampshire where he played three years at offensive guard.

Chella returned to his high school alma mater and served as an assistant football coach from 1975 to 1983. It was in 1984 that he became an assistant at Curry College.

Though the season is still several weeks away (opening day: Sept. 16 versus Div. 4 power East Bridgewater) Chella has already run into more work than he had expected, though he welcomes the challenge.

"I'm enjoying myself," he said. "But it's a heck of a lot more work than I encountered at Curry. There's a lot more personal contact and the paperwork is incredible. But it's a great new challenge and I like that aspect."

Babe Ruth

Late-Inning Heroics Carry Quincy All Stars To Title

The Quincy 15-year-old Babe Ruth all-star baseball team wowed the crowd at Adams Field this weekend.

They twice used late-inning rallies to overcome previously undefeated Hingham and captured the championship of the third annual Ray Cattaneo Tournament.

The Quincy 15-year-old all-stars entered the showdown with Hingham with a 3-1 record. Hingham sported a 3-0 mark in the double-elimination tournament and had handed the Richie Bryan-coached Quincy club their only loss, 6-3, earlier in the week.

Quincy overcame the favorites, 10-9, in their second meeting after trailing 6-0 early in the contest. Matt McLoughlin smashed the game-winning hit. Jim Cunio also hit well in the clutch.

The win set up a dramatic final showdown for the tournament title. Things again looked bleak for Quincy as they trailed, 8-5, with two outs in the bottom of the seventh and final inning of regulation.

McLoughlin managed a walk, Rusty Corner singled and Ray Sartre reached on an error to load the bases. Cunio took advantage for Sartre's good fortune by walloping a three-bag shot to the left-center gap that bounced to the 387 feet sign and tied the contest.

In the ninth inning, Mike Centrella walked and was driven in with the game- and tournament-winning run courtesy of McLoughlin's double.

Sartre saved the game in the ninth as he caught a deep fly ball off the stick Hingham star Pat Sullivan against the fence of the big-league sized Adams Field.

Mark Kelly pitched six tough innings and John Sullivan went the final three in relief in the decisive game.

Quincy opened the tournament with a 15-6 win over Great Bay, N.H.

Kelly went the distance and got great offensive support from Sartre, McLoughlin and Steve Maze, each of whom had three hits.

Corner hurled a two-hitter as Quincy blanked Pembroke, 6-0, in their second game.

They followed with the loss to Hingham before recovering with a well-played 2-1 win over South Boston.

Pitchers John Sullivan and Sartre held the Southie attack to two hits and were aided by outstanding defensive play.

Quincy hosted teams from Weymouth, Canton, Bridgewater, South Boston, Hingham, Pembroke and Great Bay, N.H.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

If you're a guy, you do it. We all do it.

You do it in groups, not alone. Actually, you could do it alone, but it wouldn't be as much fun. Women do it too, but apparently not as often. We are told it's nothing to be ashamed of, but it is down right bizarre when you think about it.

I'm talking about sitting around watching the Patriots, Bruins, Red Sox, Peter (Punching Bag) McNeeley, whoever.

After a big run (goal, hit, disqualification), we jump up, yell, make Viking noises and, of course, like all blue-blooded American male sports fans, hi-five each other from the cozy confines of Cronin's Publix House or wherever it is we may be watching the game.

It doesn't matter if the game's being played 2,000 miles away. We're there. We're part of the action. WE pat each other on the back. WE take credit. WE DID IT!

Realizing the appeal, not to mention the prevalence of this phenomenon, cameramen scan the crowd following big plays. What do they show? Fat, balding, middle-age guys, shirtless guys, hi-fiving, thumping chests and congratulating each other for whatever great gift of God may have transpired on the field before them.

(This brings up another phenomenon which I will mention here and discuss in detail at a later date: The Inverse Relationship Between Temperature and Shirtless Men phenomenon. It says, basically, that the number of Shirtless Men at football games will increase as temperature decreases. For example, if a game is being played in late December on the Frozen Tundra Of Lambeau Field, many Shirtless Men will be seen. If the game is being played say, in Miami, there are usually numerous scantily-clad young women in the crowd and the blue-blooded American male sports fan will not take notice of the number of Shirtless Men present. Some argue, superficially, that alcohol consumption has an effect on this relationship.

(An additional corollary states that the hairier a man is, the more likely he is to become a Shirtless Man at some point during a game.)

Realizing the stupidity of taking credit for something in which we had absolutely no role, my friends and I have made a joke of it. "Good job!" "Nice play!" "Way to go!" We make the rounds congratulating each other.

But we usually do this after the emotion of the moment has lessened; after we have completed our cathartic, reflexive Wa-Hoos!, Yip, Yip, Yippees!, and so forth.

You, me, I, us...we all do it. But most of you have jobs (careers, families, lives), unlike me, and you don't have the ability (concern, patience, time behind bars) to look into why. So I've done it for you.

I called Dr. Harvey Dulberg, a sports psychologist with a practice in Brookline and a part-time faculty member at Boston College, to ask him why this happens.

"There's a strong sense of identity with athletes," he said. "When men gather around there's usually a lot of talk about what great athletes they were when they were younger." Though he didn't say, this is known clinically as Al Bundy Washed-Up High School Football Player Syndrome. You probably know someone who suffers from it.

He continued: "If you listen to guys talk about their favorite sports teams, they usually say stuff like 'Boy were we great. We were tough on defense. We played well last night.'"

"When a great play is made, you see a lot of hi-fiving, hugging, guys kissing girls, as if we really participated in it. In many ways it becomes ritualistic for fans as well as for players. What do you do at the seventh inning of a baseball game? You stretch. We have rally caps, we don't get out of a particular chair if things are going well. We find ourselves doing some sort of action as if it affects the outcome of the game."

Is it a problem, Doc? Is something wrong with us? Will we go blind?

Probably not, is the answer to all three. Dulberg did acknowledge that there is a dark side to fan identification with sports teams (a poor team performance, when combined with booze and a bad relationship, has been known to lead to physical abuse, he said), but for the most part it is perfectly normal.

"We just have to look at the fact that we have no control over what happens on the field of play," said Dulberg. "If the Sox lose the World Series we don't want to go out and jump off the Tobin Bridge."

So take heart, all you hairy-backed Shirtless Men sports fans of the world. Though we may act immature, foolish and juvenile for no logical reason, it's OK. We're normal.

Now, if you'll excuse me, I have to find my lucky boxer shorts before I leave for the Boston College-Olio State game this weekend. If I don't find them the Eagles are gonna lose.

ROD GALLAGHER, of North Quincy, got the chance of a lifetime as he stepped to the plate at Fenway Park during the fourth annual John Hancock Fantasy Day to benefit the Jimmy Fund.

Gallagher Aims At Green Monster For Charity

North Quincy's Rod Gallagher took a shot at Fenway Park's Green Monster on July 30 during the fourth annual John Hancock Fantasy Day to benefit the Jimmy Fund.

More than 100 participants stepped to the plate at the event which raised $185,000 for the Jimmy Fund, the main fund raising arm of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

John Hancock Financial Services underwrote the event with the Boston Red Sox so that all the money raised went to the Jimmy Fund and the battle against cancer. Hancock donated $1,000 for each ball hit off the left field wall and $2,000 for each home run.

The event has raised more than $700,000 in four years.

NQ Athletes Hone Skills at Track Camp

Ten North Quincy High School athletes took part in the Foss Mountain Cross Country Camps in South Barnstead, N.H. last week.

Included were Kelly Duggan, Diane Jordan, Diane McGunigle, Carrie Jarvie, Ashley Crawford, Julian Jones, Nancy

Gardner, Kevin McCue, Brian O'Donnell and Mike Devin.

Crawford was chosen 'camper of the week.'

Over 100 athletes from across New England were taught by a variety of high school and college coaches and were exposed to videotape analysis.

ENC To Host Soccer Scrimmage, Clinic

Eastern Nazarene College will host a pre-season scrimmage between ENC, Clark University and defending New England champion Massasoit Community College on Aug. 26 at 11 a.m. at the Wollaston campus.

The time was reported last week as 10 a.m.

The three teams will play each other in a round-robin format which will be immediately followed by a free youth clinic for boys and girls ages 8-14.

ENC coach John Pachini and Massasoit coach John Murphy will run the clinic with the help of some of their players.

Touch Football League Seeking New Teams

The Eastern Massachusetts Touch Football League (EMTFL) is looking for new teams for the 1995 fall season.

The one-hand tag league has been in existence since 1978 and includes teams from Boston and suburban towns. The teams are talented, competitive and very organized. Teams play for the EMTFL Cup, which the winning team keeps for one year.

The league is well organized and includes a league photographer, an awards banquet and an all-star game. A rules committee enforces clean play.

For more information call league commissioner John Anderson at (617) 769-6443.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Tie the arm to the side and it withers; cease exercising the mind for a prolonged period and thinking can be recovered no more than spoiled fruit can regain freshness.

What great energy there is in thought! It can be good or it can be bad! New ideas and powerful thoughts have affected the destiny of mankind.

Thoughts become a part of us and are reflected in our lives. If our thoughts are so filled with faith, cheerfulness, gratitude, encouragement, happiness, love and friendship, there can be no room for such destructive thoughts as greed, despair, fear and vulgarity.

Our thoughts of today will be creating a new tomorrow, adding purpose to life. Life without a purpose is like a train without a track - all power but no place to go.

Purpose in thought adds depth to life - a depth of faith; it adds dimension-the dimension of hope; it adds a discipline of patience-an ingredient of a happy life...

Incidentally, we welcome any thoughts you may have about this column...

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF SALE MORTGAGEES SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue and in execution of the POWER OF SALE contained in a certain Mortgage given by Karen R. Hull to Mellen Bray Corporation, dated January 8, 1991, and duly recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds at Book 8827, Page 54, of which mortgage the undersigned is the present holder, for breach of the conditions contained in said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosure, the same will be sold at Public Auction at 10:00 a.m. on Thursday, the 7th day of September, A.D., 1995, at the mortgaged premises located at Unit #128, 32 Linden Street (10 Weston Avenue), Quincy (Wollaston), Norfolk County, Massachusetts, all and singular portions of the premises described in said mortgage, to wit:

Unit No. 128 in Mellen Bray Condominium in said Quincy, created by Master Deed dated January 6, 1989, and recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds, Book 8209 Page 477.

Said Unit is conveyed together with an undivided .781% interest in the common areas and facilities of said Condominium, subject to and with the benefit of the provisions of said Master Deed Hereinafter referred to, to be used for residential purposes as more specifically provided in said Master Deed and together with the exclusive right and easement to use parking space No. 87, all as shown upon the plans filed with the Master Deed, together with the exclusive right and easement in gross to use storage space No. 5.

Said unit is laid out as shown on the unit plan annexed to the first Unit Deed, recorded at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds, Book 8827, Page 50, which is a copy of a portion of the plans filed with the Master Deed as amended from time to time, and to which is affixed a verified statement in the form provided in M.G.L. Chapter 183A, Section 9, and said Unit contains the areas shown on said plan.

Said unit is conveyed with the benefit of and subject to: (a.) the provisions of M.G.L. Chapter 183A as the same may now or hereafter be amended, (b.) said Master Deed of Mellen Bray Condominium and amendments thereto, (c.) the By-laws of Mellen Bray House Condominium Association, Inc., any amendments to same, and any rules and regulations adopted from time to time pursuant thereto, and (d.) all matters of record stated or referred to in the Master Deed, as completely as if each were fully set forth herein including but not limited to reservations, rights and easements. For the current title see Deed recorded with Norfolk Registry of Deeds at Book 8827, Page 50.

Said premises will be sold and conveyed subject to and/or with the benefit of any and all restrictions, easements, improvements, covenants, outstanding tax liens, municipal or other public taxes, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens, and existing encumbrances of record created prior to the mortgage, if any, there be.

subject to any and all leases and tenancies, if any there may be, having priority over said mortgage, to tenancies or occupation by persons on the premises now or at the time of said auction which tenancies or occupation are subject to said mortgage, to rights or claims in personal property installed by tenants or former tenants now located on the premises, and also to all laws and ordinances, including, but not limited to, all building, zoning, and environmental laws and ordinances.

TERMS OF SALE

The highest bidder shall be required to deposit Five Thousand Dollars and 00/100 ($5,000.00) in cash or by certified or bank cashier's check at the time and place of said sale of the entire premises. The balance is to be paid in cash or by certified, or bank cashier's check at the office of Michael Magerer, Michael Magerer & Associates, 825 Beacon Street, Newton Centre, Massachusetts, 02159-1834 (Mortgagee's attorneys), within thirty (30) days from the date of the sale. The successful bidder shall be required to sign a Memorandum of Sale containing the above terms and conditions and others announced at the sale.

In the event that the successful bidder at the foreclosure sale shall default in purchasing the within described property according to the terms of this Notice of Sale and/or terms of the Memorandum of Sale executed at the time of the foreclosure, the Mortgagee reserves the right to sell the property by Foreclosure Deed to the second highest bidder that shall deposit with the above named Mortgagee's attorneys the amount of the required deposit as set forth herein within three (3) business days after written notice of default of the previous highest bidder, the balance to be paid in or within twenty one (21) days of said written notice, as hereinbefore outlined.

The deposit paid at the time of the sale shall be forfeited if the purchaser does not comply strictly with the terms of the sale. The purchaser will be responsible for all closing costs, state documentary stamps, and recording fees. For authority for said sale, see Judgement of the Land Court of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in Case No. 216470.

This Mortgagee reserves the right to postpone the sale to a later time and/or date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the sale and to further postpone at any adjourned sale date by public proclamation at the time and date appointed for the adjourned sale date.

Other terms, if any, to be announced at the time and place of sale.

City-Run Parking Finally Operational

After a nearly two-month delay, Quincy's municipal parking system is finally operational, according to City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon.

The city assumed the management of the system—which includes the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot, both in Quincy Center—on July 1, the beginning of Quincy's new fiscal year. Previously, the parking system was managed by a private company.

However, several factors have caused a delay in the city-run system becoming fully operational. Initially, members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) expressed concerns about the increased rates originally proposed by the city. Gillon and QCBPA members subsequently worked out new, lower rates as a compromise.

Problems with the arrival of the computerized equipment necessary for the new system then resulted in delayed installation of that equipment. Gillon said the Ross Garage was operational last week, but parkers were not able to use their monthly $35 passes at Hancock Lot (which are purchased at the Ross Garage) until this week.

"Everything is operating as it's supposed to, and the schedule has been straightened out," he said.

Told he must be relieved the system is finally working, Gillon said with a laugh, "truer words were never spoken."

Susan Freeman Commerce Chamber Community Development Manager

Susan C. Freeman has been named community development manager at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in Quincy.

She replaces Maureen A. Rogers, who was promoted to the Chamber's government affairs manager and chief lobbyist post. Freeman was named to her new position by Chamber President/CEO Ronald Zoolek.

Prior to her Chamber appointment, Freeman worked for a Greater Boston public relations firm and contributed to The Scituate Mariner on a freelance basis. Born in New Orleans, La. and raised in nearby Baton Rouge, she acted as a marketing representative for a chain of rehabilitation hospitals in northern Louisiana before moving to Scituate.

Freeman, who earned a bachelor of arts degree in political science at Louisiana State University, has extensive experience in government affairs.

Cheney, Colton Clash Over Recycling

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The city's public works commissioner defended Quincy's recycling contract Tuesday after a city councillor claimed the contract has cost Quincy thousands of dollars.

Councillor Michael Cheney submitted on Tuesday a letter to Mayor James Sheets with data which Cheney says "proves conclusively that the City of Quincy can save money by owning and operating its own equipment and that the City of Quincy has lost substantial revenue from sales of recyclable products."

DPW Commissioner David Colton disagreed. He said Quincy has not lost any money with Browning-Ferris Industries as the city's recycling and rubbish collector. He said he would "seriously consider" a city-operated recycling program only after Request for Proposals for next year's recycling contract go out to bid in the fall.

The true bottom line of the city's recycling effort should be known later this year after an audit is conducted. Cheney is one of two city councillors to call for the audit this year.

According to Cheney's analysis, North Shore Recycled Fibers of Weymouth would have paid Quincy $459,000 for recycled paper from July, 1994 to June, 1995. If the city had received the same price per ton as the City of New Bedford, a city of comparable size, Cheney said the net profit would have been $279,000 "versus B.F.I. paying us $149,786 for all recyclables."

Cheney's analysis is based on 450 tons of paper collected per month, or 5,400 tons in one year. The New Bedford figures show that city received between $45 per ton to $170 per ton per month. The North Shore Recycled Fibers figures show a payout of $80 to $120 per ton, or $36,000 to $54,000 per month.

Cheney said he based his tonnage analysis on 450 tons per month because he said that is the figure DPW Project Manager Michael Wheelwright gave him as Quincy's average

62 More Hourly Spaces To Be Added At Hancock

The city is planning to add 62 more hourly spaces for customer parking at the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center in response to concerns voiced by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA).

City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon said this week the new customer spaces will be added at the lot as soon as a crew from the Department of Public Works can move the Jersey barriers which separate customer parking from spaces set aside for downtown employees and other everyday parkers who pay $35 for monthly passes.

The city officially assumed management of its municipal parking system—which also includes the Ross Parking Garage in Quincy Center—in July, although some minor problems have caused implementation of the program to be delayed until this month. Previously, the parking system was managed by an independent company.

QCBPA members said at a meeting last Friday they have heard from customers who claimed the Hancock Lot seemingly had a number of empty spaces set aside for everyday parkers, but a shortage

Projected Enrollment 8,700 Students

School Bells To Ring Sept. 6

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

School will open Wednesday, Sept. 6 for all Quincy public school students in grades 1-12, announces School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

Creedon projected the total school enrollment, including early childhood, preschool and special needs students, will be approximately 8,700 students. That figure is up slightly, 160 students or 1.8 percent, over last year's enrollment of 8,540, Creedon said.

The superintendent said the exact enrollment will be determined by Oct. 1 when the figures are sent to the state.

Public School Bus Routes Pages 16-17

Unlike previous school years, all high school students will report for classes on Wednesdays. In the past, ninth grade students would report on the Wednesday following Labor Day to help them become oriented with their respective high schools. Students in 10th, 11th and 12th grade were allowed to begin school on Thursday or Friday.

However, Creedon said the school system decided to have all high school students report on the same day as mandated by the state. Creedon explained students in grades kindergarten through eight must be in school 900 hours. Students in grades nine through 12 must be in class 990 hours.

The hourly requirement is based on 180 school days.

"If one high school class began school later than another, it could create problems with the 990-hour requirements.

Early News Deadline For Next Week's Sun

Because of the Labor Day holiday Monday, there is an early news deadline for next week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

News, sports, social and church releases should be in the Sun office, 1372 Hancock St., Quincy Center, by 5 p.m. tomorrow (Friday) to ensure publication in the Sept. 7th edition.

The office will be closed Monday, Sept. 4 and reopen Tuesday, Sept. 5 at 9 a.m.

New Patrolman Joins Police Dept.

The Quincy Police Department bolstered its strength last Friday with the swearing-in of a new patrol officer.

Michael O'Shea, 25, of Quincy, officially joined the department during a ceremony at City Hall. Shea, who transferred to Quincy from the Sharon Police Department where he served two years, was sworn-in by City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Also on hand for the event were O'Shea's parents, Michael and Eileen O'Shea; sister, Kellie O'Shea; girlfriend, Laurie Gambale; Lt. Normand Goyette of the Quincy Police Department, Acting Mayor Michael Cheney and Michael McFarland, executive secretary to Mayor James Sheets who was on vacation.

O'Shea will make the starting patrol officer's salary of $26,324, according to a spokeswoman for the Quincy Personnel Department.

A police department spokeswoman said with the addition of O'Shea, there are now 145 patrol officers and 191 total employees in the department.

Search To Start For New QC President

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The first step toward the search for a permanent president at Quincy College will be taken Friday, Sept. 8 when the school's Board of Governors meets for a special workshop that will help determine the search process.

The workshop, which is open to the public, will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the college.

The Board of Governors needs to find a replacement for Interim College President Linda Wilson, who recently announced she will not seek the renewal of her one-year contract with the college which expires Jan. 1, 1996.

Board Chairman Daniel Raymondi said the Sept. 8 workshop will be led by George Vaughan, a professor at North Carolina State University who is affiliated with the Washington, D.C.-based Association of Governing Boards of Colleges and Universities.

The association assists schools that are searching for a president on an individual basis, according to Raymondi, to determine what each school needs in filling its vacancy.

"Basically, he'll [Vaughan] help us come up with a search model," Raymondi said, "and let us know about some of the pitfalls we can avoid and what we want to be looking for."

Raymondi said the Board of Governors will discuss the findings of the workshop, and possibly choose a search process, at its regularly-scheduled meeting Sept. 11 at the college. After a process is selected, the position will be advertised, he added.

A screening committee will then be appointed to select a small list of finalists from the pool of interested candidates, Raymondi said. The board will interview the finalists and make the final selection.

Raymondi said he is unsure when the new president will be selected, but he is hopeful someone could be in place by the first of the year.

Among the qualities Raymondi said he will be looking for in a permanent president are management and community college experience, knowledge of educational issues, budgeting and finance skills, creativity and the willingness and ability to work with the board and the entire Quincy community.

"We need someone who can provide some continuity and stability at the college," he said.

Wilson, who took a one-year leave of absence from the Quincy Public Schools where she has served as head of the Drop-Out Prevention Program in order to become the interim college president, wrote a letter to Raymondi dated Aug. 17 stating that she would not be seeking renewal of her contract. In the letter, she said she misses teaching and plans to return to her position with the school system and to continue her affiliation with the college as an evening adjunct professor.

Wilson elaborated on her feelings in a statement she sent to The Quincy Sun this week. She wrote, in part:

"I have always tried to do what I think is best, and I truly think that this decision is the best for everyone concerned. Was it what I expected to happen? No. Am I disappointed? Yes. But I wish only good things for the board and the college community. They deserve no less.

"The college is a wonderful place with a really dedicated staff and terrific students. Although change can be unsettling and the college has seen a lot of change, I still feel the future holds many good things for Quincy College."

Raymondi said the board would probably be searching for a permanent college head around this time, anyway, so the end of her tenure as interim president does not really come as any shock.

"The only real surprise is that she won't be one of the candidates [for permanent president]," he said.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon would not comment on Wilson's decision to step down as interim Quincy College president but said he looks forward to her rejoining the school system.

"We'll be very happy to (Cont'd on page 11)

President Wilson: 'Decision Is Best For Everyone'

Quincy College Interim President Linda Wilson, who recently announced that she will not seek renewal of her one-year contract which expires Jan. 1, 1996, issued the following statement to The Quincy Sun this week:

"A few comments in no particular order:

"The college is a wonderful place with a really dedicated staff and terrific students. Although change can be unsettling and the college has seen a lot of change, I still feel that the future holds many good things for Quincy College. There's a lot of creative energy here and there are things in the works that will only enhance the college in the months and years ahead.

"I notified the board members of my decision not to renew my contract when I did in order to allow them time to begin a search for my successor. Once the decision was made,

LINDA WILSON, interim president of Quincy College will be stepping down in January and returning to teaching.

the sooner I could inform them, the more lead time they could have to formulate their plans.

"This past year was a learning curve for the board as well as for me. I think we should all look at it as a time of growth to make us better and stronger for what lies ahead. We must learn from life's lessons and sometimes we learn the most from the difficult situations. They're only failures if we fail to learn from them.

"I have always tried to do what I think is best, and I truly think (Cont'd on page 11)

Legion Asks Supreme Court To Hear Agent Orange Case

The American Legion has asked the Supreme Court to hear its lawsuit challenging the federal government's cancellation of a study on the long-term health effects of Vietnam veterans exposed to Agent Orange.

The lawsuit, which was filed in 1990 but lost at the appellate level earlier this year, says the federal government had no proper legal authority to refuse to do the study. Congress mandated the study in 1979.

"The government's conclusion that it could not conduct any scientifically valid study is unfounded," said American Legion National Commander William Detweiler, an Army veteran of the Vietnam era. "A 1993 report by the National Academy of Sciences says it is possible to conduct such a major epidemiological study."

Agent Orange and other herbicides were used widely in Vietnam between 1962 and 1971. It's estimated that more than 12 million gallons of herbicides were used in defoliation operations, particularly in "Operation Ranch Hand."

A significant number of Vietnam veterans exposed to Agent Orange have since developed cancer, neurological disorders, liver dysfunction and other life-threatening diseases.

"Our Vietnam veterans who have suffered because of their exposure to Agent Orange deserve better treatment from the government they swore to defend and protect," Detweiler said. "When this issue first came to light, The American Legion pledged it would take this case all the way to Supreme Court if necessary. Unfortunately, it has become necessary."

In 1983, the Legion commissioned an independent study on the health effects of veterans exposed to Agent Orange. After five years of intensive investigation by researchers from Columbia University, the study concluded that there was a link between exposure and conditions such as benign fatty tumors and various skin problems.

Medically Speaking

A PUZZLING BLADDER DISEASE

Here is an easy diagnosis: The symptoms are frequent urination, burning urethral pain, and achiness in the lower abdomen - a classic case of bladder or urinary tract infection, right? Wrong, at least in the cases of some half-million Americans every year. For them, the problem is a baffling disorder called interstitial cystitis. No single test can identify the condition, although it may raise suspicions when a urine test, ordered to confirm an apparent bladder infection, comes up negative for bacteria. Diagnosis often becomes an elimination game, ruling out other possible causes, such as kidney problems, sexually transmitted disease, or cancer. Treatment must be tailored to each individual. HINT: Interstitial cystitis is much more common among women than men.

Relief from this painful condition can be sometimes helped with reducing the stress in your life as well as receiving appropriate medical care. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy, or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. I am also board certified in cardiology and internal medicine.

Future AL National Commander?

Quincy may have another National Commander of The American Legion in its future.

Hank Bradley could be taking the first step in that direction at the National Convention which convenes this weekend in Indianapolis, Ind.

Bradley, who is Quincy's Veterans Services Director and immediate past State Commander of the Legion, will become alternate National Executive Committeeman.

It is the first rung on the ladder to the coveted national commander's post.

But it can be a long climb. Over a number of years. You have to earn your way up, 'rung by rung.'

John (Jake) Comer was Massachusetts state commander in 1975 but didn't get to be national commander until 1987.

COMER

Comer was the first Quincy resident to attain the honor.

But Bradley, who is also a Quincy resident, would be the first from a Quincy post if he goes all the way. Comer was a member of the Roberts Post in West Roxbury when he became national commander. The post is now the Fogg-Roberts Post of Hyde Park.

Bradley is a member and a past commander of the Morrisette Legion Post in Quincy.

It would take Bradley into the 21st century to make it all the way.

He's only 55 now so he has time to do it. And the 21st century is just around the corner.

FORMER MAYOR Frank McCauley is getting back into the swing of things for his return to the School Committee where he formerly served.

On a vacant day off from his duties as Executive Director of the State Retirement Department, McCauley toured three schools with Asst. Supt. Rick DeCristofaro to get a little reacquainted.

The schools were the Beechwood which is re-opening this fall, the Bernazzani which has a new addition and the Parker which has a new gymnasium. He had already visited the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center.

McCauley is guaranteed a return to the School Committee because he is the only candidate for the two-year term in this city's city election.

He served 14 years on the board—six as an elected member and eight as chairman during his four terms as mayor.

He says he's looking forward to getting back into Quincy public service as a school committeeman once again.

And, no, he has no thoughts about returning to City Hall as mayor.

When he takes his seat in January it means there will be two mayors sitting on that board at the same time:

BRADLEY

one present, one former.

Wonder if that's a first?

IN LOOKING AHEAD last week to potential candidates in future state and county elections, we might have overlooked a strong possibility.

City Council President Michael Cheney wouldn't surprise many if he ran for Norfolk County sheriff if Clifford Marshall doesn't seek reelection in 1998.

CHENEY

Two other potential sheriff candidates mentioned here last week were Senator Michael Morrissey and Rep. Ron Mariano.

Three strong vote getters running out of Quincy would make that an interesting race.

If Marshall decides to seek another term, all three of them would put a run on the back burner.

WAS THERE A fifth mayor there? Four Quincy mayors were at Abigail's Crossing in Quincy Center the other day to autograph Quincy Village Collectibles being offered as mementos by owner Joanne Dondoro.

The four, present Mayor James Sheets and former Mayors Joseph LaRaia, Arthur Tobin and Frank McCauley, spent a couple of hours affixing their signatures to miniature handcrafted replicas of historic Quincy buildings.

Among the items was a City Hall being autographed by the four mayors when former Senator Paul Harold dropped by.

HAROLD

Dondoro noted that the item was being autographed by a present mayor, three former mayors and then nodding toward Harold said they should leave some room on the memento for a future mayor to sign.

Sandra McCauley, secretary of the Thomas Crane Public Library Board of Trustees, purchased a replica of the library which the mayors also signed.

And smiling, she told Sheets that what she really would like to get his signature on is the bond issue authorization to finance the proposed addition to the library.

S. McCAULEY

SOME MONTHLY PARKERS at the Hancock lot are fearful they could get trapped in there if the Revere Rd. exit arm-gate mechanism malfunctions. The booth is unmanned and with the placement of jersey barriers, it is the only exit for them.

No reason to worry assures City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon. He says the mechanism has a failsafe feature and the exit arm will go up on its own if the mechanism conks out. Even, he says, if there is a power outage.

Well, that should come as a relief to anyone worrying about having to spend some night in the Hancock parking lot.

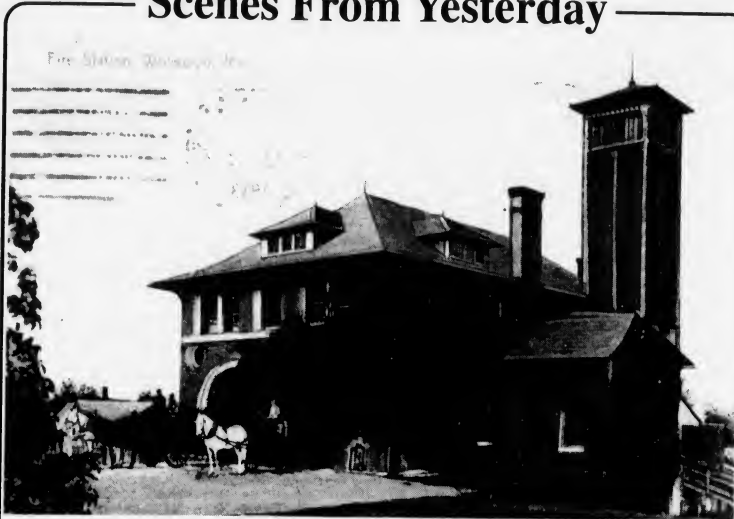

ATTENTION QUINCY & WEYMOUTH RESIDENTS
Due to Labor Day, Monday, September 4, 1995, rubbish collection will be a day late. Monday's rubbish will be collected on Tuesday. Tuesday's will be collected on Wednesday, etc. There will be a Saturday collection for rubbish usually collected on Friday. This applies to all routes. BFI

Dog Ordinance Being Ignored

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I am writing to highlight the blatant ignorance or defiance of the law by people who walk their dogs at Pageant Field in Quincy.

Last week, my friends and I were playing softball, as 10 to 15 dogs ran unleashed at the field. Every five minutes or so, one of the dogs would run off with one of our softballs. Each owner would either show indifference or laugh as though his/her dog's behavior was cute.

Although signs are clearly posted in the park, people continue to scoff at the city ordinance concerning dogs. As a former dog owner, I have no problems with people walking their dogs on leashes, providing they clean up after themselves. But the way these pet owners show zero regard for parkgoers is both ignorant and illegal.

More effort needs to be made to enforce our city's laws so that residents can peacefully enjoy our city's fine parks.

Echo Lake Site Seen For Incinerator

By PAUL HAROLD

Rep. James McIntyre urged that the proposed city incinerator be located at Echo Lake rather than at Hardwick Quarry as suggested by Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

The issue was back before the council because the Superior Court had ruled against earlier council action that rezoned the quarry land as "city property" instead of industrial as the mayor proposed.

McIntyre said his opposition to the Quarry St. site for incineration was based on three arguments. It would result in prolonged litigation, the Planning Board favored apartment construction in the area, not industrial use and a facility on the Braintree line at Echo Lake could be used jointly by both communities.

BLAST HURLS ROCK THROUGH W. QUINCY ROOF

Blasting at Swingle's Quarry hurled a 10-inch chunk of granite one half mile, across the Southeast Expressway, through the roof of the Manning family's home on Bates Ave.

The rock narrowly missed Rosemary Manning who was home at the time.

The police at first had no idea where the rock had come from, until Sgt. John Denneen smelled blasting powder and traced it back to the quarry site.

WIDOWS' BENEFITS VOTED BY COUNCIL

A proposal sponsored by Councillor Charles Shea was passed over the mayor's veto to provide for annuities to the widows of city employees.

It passed with seven votes. Councillor David McIntosh voted not. Councillor Carl Anderson, who was presiding as president, abstained.

About 55 widows would receive pensions of $1,000 a year under the new ordinance.

Crane Library To Participate In JumpStart Reading Program

The Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy will participate in JumpStart, a nationwide program which encourages parents and teachers to bring children in Grades 1-3 to their local libraries to receive their first library cards.

Crane Library Director Ann McLaughlin said the library will take part in the program, which is sponsored by The Prudential in conjunction with Friends of Libraries U.S.A. (FOLUSA), during September and October.

"I think the one of the most exciting things for any small child is when they get their first library card," she said. "This program is very important, and we're happy to be participating."

Participating schools will receive JumpStart packages that include a 10-page, four-color newsletter for parents and a classroom poster and stickers for children. The newsletter, designed for children to take home, offers tips to parents on motivating children to read and explains how the library and librarians can help children acquire the skill of reading early in life.

The newsletter also includes a "temporary" library card that children can take to the library and exchange for an official card in recognition of a "Library Card Sign-Up Month" in September.

The "temporary" card becomes a sweepstakes entry. The grand prize is a $50,000 contribution to a child's college expense fund. Other sweepstakes prizes include Macintosh Performa computers, World Book Encyclopedia and Childcraft resource libraries. Participating public and school libraries will also be eligible to win cash and other prizes.

Our Policy On ENGAGEMENT PHOTOGRAPHS And Wedding ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Woods School Of Irish Dance Coming To Wollaston Sept. 12

After years of practice, performances and competitions, dance instructor Peggy Woods decided to open the Peggy Woods School of Irish Dance.

Woods has been teaching classes in South Boston for the past five years and has decided to open an additional school in the Wollaston area.

Peggy, who works as a legal secretary when she is not teaching, said she receives personal fulfillment when she watches her students' perform.

"I get so excited seeing the students out on stage performing to the best of their ability. They come to me after every performance to show me their medals or to just ask how they did? The smiles on their faces alone is enough to make anyone proud," Woods said.

During their enrollment, students will be able to compete against other Irish dance schools from across the country. Those who do not wish to compete will be able to participate in a live recital at the end of the year.

Woods stressed the importance of not forcing students to compete as well as the importance of promoting the enjoyment.

"The whole point of taking Irish dance classes is for the enjoyment. I don't want the students to get caught up in the pressures of competitions. What it comes down to is that I enjoy teaching and I want them to enjoy dancing. It can be great fun learning how to Irish dance.

"Don't get me wrong," Woods continued, "Irish dancing is also very serious and there is much discipline in learning the steps and the intricate moves. But, all of this comes much easier when you enjoy what you are doing."

"You are also able to travel quite a bit," Woods noted she has travelled to Australia to dance and has competed in Ireland at the All World Competitions. She has also competed all over the New England area and parts of the United States. she is registered with the Irish Dance Coimisiun, Dublin, Ireland, New England and North American Dance Teachers' Association.

Woods comes from a long line of Irish dancers. Her grandparents immigrated to the United States from Ireland and her parents, aunts, uncles and cousins all dance.

Woods has the assistance of her two sisters, Roseann and Nancy, with all of her classes. They also have danced for years and competed in many competitions. Her aunt Jo does all of her attendance. The school is very family oriented, she said.

"My sisters Roseann and Nancy are great. We work great as a team. You'll love them and Aunt Jo!" Woods added.

"Irish dancing is gaining popularity," she said. "The kids love it." She added that dancing serves not only as a recreational activity but also as a great confidence builder.

"It's great," Woods said. "It gives children great confidence, especially after they began to get the steps. You should see even the little ones. When they see me at the park or walking down the street they want to show me the steps that they have been practicing. They will dance anywhere and everywhere."

The Peggy Woods School of Irish Dance, which will be located on Beale St., Wollaston, will open Tuesday, Sept. 12.

Classes will be held on Tuesdays from noon to 4 p.m. with an additional class from 5 to 6 p.m. Classes are open to all surrounding areas.

For further information, call Peggy Woods at 464-4417.

Concourse Committee Meeting Sept. 7

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) pertaining to the planned Quincy Center Concourse, will meet Thursday, Sept. 7 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room in City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Meetings are open to the public.

The CAC has been meeting for the past 18 months to obtain public comments and recommendations regarding the proposed concourse which would link Burgin Parkway with the west side of Hancock St. in the city's downtown business area.

CAC members agree that a roadway is needed and that recommendations contained in a recent city traffic control study are essential to reduce traffic congestion.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson urges all committee members to attend the next meeting in order to evaluate the information and data gathered to date.

The mission of the CAC is to make a final report and recommendations to Mayor James Sheets and the Quincy Concourse Task Force regarding the proposed roadway.

QCAP Head Start Free Preschool

Openings are available at QCAP Head Start for a free program for pre-school age children from Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Hull.

have her back," he said. Mayor James Sheets had nothing but kind words for Wilson.

"If she feels she prefers to go back to the classroom, then that's probably the best decision for her," he said.

Sheets added that while the college has had some major changes to deal with in recent months—the passage of the state Education Reform Act in June 1993, the fact that it has not had a permanent president since September 1993 and the establishment of the Board of Governors last fall—he feels it will make all necessary adjustments in the next three to five years.

Wilson, 48, of Rockland, was named interim president by the newly-appointed Board of Governors last fall when she received her renewable, one-year contract. At the time, the college already had an interim president, Donald Young.

Board members said they wanted to find time to become oriented to the college before naming a permanent president. In addition, they expressed reservations about doing so while a lawsuit by former Quincy College President O. Clayton Johnson, whom Young replaced, was still pending against the school.

Johnson was fired from the college in September 1993 for alleged mismanagement and insubordination and has sued to get his job back. He served as president for 10 years during the time the college was run by the Quincy School Committee.

The independent Board of Governors was formed last fall after being authorized by the state Legislature.

A Norfolk Superior Court judge recently ruled that School Supt. Eugene Creedon had the authority to fire Johnson when he did so, and the case has gone to arbitration through the state Department of Education. Raymondi said he is hopeful the matter will be resolved in the near future.

President Wilson: 'Decision Is Best For Everyone'

that this decision is the best for everyone concerned. Was it what I expected to happen? No. Am I disappointed?

Yes. But I wish only good things for the board and the college community. They deserve no less.

"I will take many nice memories with me, as well as some new and renewed friendships. For the help and support so many have given me, I want to say 'thank you very much.'

"We're looking forward to a good fall semester and we're very busy getting ready to start classes next Tuesday, Sept. 5. With so much to do, I prefer to concentrate my thoughts and energies on the positive aspects."

YOU AUTO KNOW

by Tony Centorino, Bill Starkie and Kevin McGroarty

EGGING YOUR CAR ON?

At one time or another, we all probably have noticed the smell of "rotten eggs" from a passing car or one in a parking garage. This sulfur odor emerges from the tail pipe due to hydrogen sulfide in the car's exhaust gasses. This condition, in turn, is the result of an overly enriched fuel mixture. Simply put, the engine is receiving too much fuel in proportion to the amount of air that it is getting. The problem behind all this may be as easy to isolate as inspecting for a clogged air filter. Those who are conscientious enough about their car maintenance will be rewarded with never having to encounter this problem. Those who fail to correct it once it occurs face the possibility that their catalytic converters might fail—an expensive oversight.

HINT: A car with a failed catalytic converter is not likely to pass an emissions test.

Follow the clues.

Ever hear an eerie rattling in the basement?

Find sooty footprints trailing up the stairs?

Discover your heating bill fluctuates recklessly?

It's elementary, dear Watson. You need gas heat.

Convert to gas heat now and get a $200 credit.

Because you're a Boston Gas customer, you know the many advantages of natural gas. But if you don't use it to heat your home, here's a solution that will save you money. With the Key to Conversion, you can receive a $200 credit on your gas bill when you convert to gas heat. In addition, you can have a conversion burner installed for just $795—a valuable savings. In most cases, it can be installed onto your existing heating system in just one day.

Call today. Natural gas burns cleaner and more efficiently than other fossil fuels. Our FREE home heating inspection will tell you if you qualify.

The Key to Conversion includes:

- A $200 credit on your gas bill after your system has been converted
- Two conversion options
 - Gas conversion burner installed onto your existing heating system for just $795
 - New heating system equipment installed through a plumber/heating contractor
- Optional financing plans.
- FREE chimney inspection and sweep with your conversion burner installation.
- FREE three-year Home Heating Service Plan that covers most repairs on your new system
- 50% or more off eligible energy-saving home improvements from Boston Gas.

The clues lead to the same conclusion.
1-800-755-4427

Offer ends September 30, 1995. You must have an active gas line and your heating system must pass a free inspection to qualify for a conversion burner. $200 credit applies to Boston Gas customers who don't currently heat with gas.

62 More Spaces To Be Added At Hancock

of those needed for shoppers, when they visited the downtown shopping district. Association members asked Gillon if between 50 and 75 spaces for shoppers could be added to the lot.

Gillon said after taking a look at the situation, he determined that 62 more spaces for shoppers could be added. In order to do so, he noted, he will have to reduce the number of shoppers' spaces at the Ross Garage by about 60 in order to keep a proper balance.

"It's a fluid operation," said Gillon. "We're adjusting the location and parking limits with the demand. It's not as complicated as it sounds, but it does require constant monitoring."

QCBPA members also suggested Friday that additional parking could be provided for shoppers at satellite parking areas in other parts of the city from which the customers could be shuttled by bus to Quincy Center. Gillon said he is open-minded about that suggestion.

"We obviously need more parking than we have," he said. "I'm supportive of studying the feasibility of that idea."

Mayor James Sheets said his first priority is to promote consumer turnover in the parking areas and that he intends to discuss the possibility of satellite parking with Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation.

"We have got to look at the potential of some kind of parking shuttle," he said. "I think it's feasible, and it's possible that Quincy 2000 may end up sponsoring the shuttle."

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Condo Market Alive And Well

By ART FOLEY
The condominium market in Quincy is alive and well. The accompanying chart (at right) shows the activity and average selling price for condos in Quincy for the last five years.

There's been a fairly steady

Year	Number of Sales	Average Selling Price
1990	348	$ 146,600
1991	341	$ 113,474
1992	225	$ 126,737
1993	278	$ 98,907
1994	371	$ 101,241
1995*	262	$ 96,212

*annualized six months decline in price since the peak in 1990. The present average selling price is 34 percent below the 1990 price.

To purchase a condo in 1990 at 9 percent with 5 percent down the monthly cost was $1,164. In 1995 that condo at 8.5 percent with 5 percent down costs 736 per month. That's a substantial reduction of $428 per month.

When you consider the tax deductions, condo fee and real estate taxes someone can own their own condo for around $800 per month. Not bad when you consider you'd pay more to rent a similar apartment.

Is the condo market at the bottom poised for a rebound? That's anyone's guess but prices are the lowest in five years, the economy is slowly rebounding and the Red Sox have won 22 out of their last 24 games. It's a good bet.

CNA Insurance Renews Presidents Place Lease

Peter Elliot & Co., Inc., the exclusive leasing and property management firm for Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center has announced that CNA Insurance Companies has expanded and renewed its lease which now totals 88,475 square feet.

The property is owned by Citizens Bank of Massachusetts.

"We are very excited with CNA Insurance's continued confidence in Presidents Place," said Michael Mulhearn, vice president of facilities for Citizens Financial Group, parent of Citizens Bank of Massachusetts. "This building offers tenants a terrific location, a wide range of services and amenities, along with a responsive on-site management and leasing staff."

A 350,000-square-foot office and retail complex, Presidents Place consists of two office towers, a 50,000-square-foot retail Galleria, as well as a five-story, on-site enclosed parking garage for 1,100 cars. The Galleria features a two-story atrium along with a variety of street-level restaurants, shops and services. The building is located directly opposite the Quincy Center MBTA station and only four minutes from Routes 128, 3 and 93.

Representing both Citizens Bank and CNA in the signing were Peter Elliot & Co.'s Senior Vice President John Cullinane and brokers Peter J. Sullivan and Peter W. Evans. Other major companies currently in the building include Boston Financial Data Services (BFDS) and Harvard Community Health Plan.

According to Sullivan, vice president of Peter Elliot & Co., the building's location was the key determining factor in the tenant's decision to renew and expand.

"CNA had expansion needs and evaluated the marketplace to compare what was available in Quincy and other areas. Staying and expanding in Presidents Place was the clear choice," said Sullivan.

"The retail Galleria of street level shops, food establishments and services has tremendous appeal to employees," he added. "The outside attraction for Quincy Center is strong as well—the building is directly across from the Red Line which is an important benefit for employees. In addition, Presidents Place has close proximity to dozens of public and private offices, retail stores and other service establishments."

A Message From Supt. Gene Creedon Exciting School Year Ahead As New Ventures Come To Fruition

Dear Readers:
I am particularly pleased to be able to share with youth some of my thoughts, hopes, and aspirations for our upcoming school year. Truly, this is an exciting time in the Quincy Public Schools. So many new ventures will come to fruition during the new school year.

The Beechwood Knoll School, closed in June of 1981, will find itself once again welcoming elementary school children in September of 1995. The Parker School will receive its long anticipated and very much needed gymnasium. In addition to the gymnasium, the basement space of the Parker School has been totally remodeled into quality educational space.

Quincy High School for the first time in many years will find itself with a sparkling auditorium that will seat over 500 people. The new auditorium at Quincy High School will have the benefit of the most up-to-date lighting and sound system equivalent to a theatre.

We expect to see a kindergarten class of some 700 students enter the Quincy Public Schools the first weeks of September. Our graduating seniors number just about 300 at each high school.

Further development of the middle schools world language program will be ongoing during the new school year and in September of 1996 middle school students at the 8th grade level will be afforded the opportunity to choose a language to study.

Probably one of the most significant undertakings anticipated for the new school year will be the planning for a new elementary school in the Quincy Point community. This additional school will allow us to return a middle school to the Quincy Point area thus alleviating the overcrowding at Sterling while at the same time building a first-rate contemporary elementary school.

The Center for Technical Education will continue to expand its programs offering significant career paths to Quincy High School students that will do much to place our graduates in competitive employment situations throughout the Greater Boston area. In October of the coming school year the Quincy Public Schools and the Quincy Community Partnership will sponsor a conference on the topic of the transition from school to careers. This event will bring together the numerous business partnerships that are working so effectively within the Quincy Public Schools.

In June of this year the Quincy School Committee and the Quincy City Council approved a $1.6 million bond issue for technology in the Quincy Public Schools. This money will establish the technology infrastructure in all of our schools and will allow us to make the advance of technology accessible to every single Quincy Public School student.

During the new school year it is our hope to strengthen the many and diverse programs which so affect the lives of families and young people throughout the city, programs such as the Renaissance at North Quincy High School, the Teen Mother program, the Tech Prep College Connection program at both high schools, the ROTC at both high schools, the Work Study and EVA programs all with a focus of making sure that each and every student has the necessary support to continue his or her education.

As I indicated when I began this letter, there is much to anticipate in this new school year. There is a great deal of excitement as we await that first school bell and there is tremendous pride in the fact that the Quincy Public Schools are on the move and the future before us is very bright.

Motorists Should Be Alert When School Opens

By SAFETY OFFICER
DAVE DOHERTY
Quincy Police

With school beginning very shortly now is a good time for all operators of motor vehicles to give some thoughts of the potential traffic hazards children can cause.

Children are not small adults. They do not think like adults. Their experience with traffic is limited at best. Their perceptual skills are limited sometimes to the point that they cannot tell if a vehicle is moving or stopped. Most young children cannot judge the speed and distance of a vehicle for safely crossing the street. They'll get totally involved in their play and run right into the street without looking, or the peripheral vision (not fully developed) allows them to step into your path without realizing the danger.

Children don't exercise good judgement all the time in traffic situations. So be alert for anything and ready to yield the right of way.

Learn to recognize traffic and roadway situations where accidents with children most often occur. More accidents occur in residential areas than on main streets. Watch for the child who will run into the street often from between parked cars, without so much as a glance.

Also keep in mind to make sure no children are behind you when you are backing up, every year too many children are struck while playing in their own driveway, or riding their tricycle on the sidewalk while a vehicle is backing up. Think when you see a vehicle, car, bus or truck stopped in the street; it may hide a child or even an adult pedestrian.

The school bus is the safest form of transportation in this country, but we still have far too many accidents involving the school bus. They happen while the children are going to and getting off the buses. In other words with other motor vehicles and not the school bus. Such as the bouncing ball when you see a school bus stopped you'll see a child not far from it.

As a helpful hint, leave early enough for wherever,

Quincy Educator Gives $17,000 To Library Althea Sawyer Donation To Buy Beechwood Books

Thanks to a $17,000 donation from a well-known veteran Quincy educator, the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School will be able to purchase a basic library collection, including reference books, and an enhancement for the collection.

The generous contribution was made by Althea Sawyer, head guidance counselor emeritus at the Broad Meadows Middle School. Althea Sawyer, and her sister, the late Merle Sawyer, are virtually synonymous with Quincy public schools since the 1930s.

"The Sawyer sisters are a big part of our schools," said Supt. Eugene Creedon. "Althea, she opened Broad Meadows as a counselor and is linked with the whole history of that community."

Both Sawyers have established student scholarships, and given generously to the schools over the years, the superintendent added.

Kathleen Morris, principal of the Beechwood Knoll School, said Althea Sawyer made the financial gift because she wanted to make sure the school had library books upon its reopening in September.

The late Merle Sawyer was a leader in education, serving as principal at three city schools. She was highly regarded for her stewardship of Wollaston's Massachusetts Field School, now closed.

The Mass Field School and Beechwood School are linked, Morris noted. When Mass Field closed, elementary children in North Quincy were redistricted to the Parker School. Students who attended Parker School last year will be among the youngsters entering Beechwood next week.

"They've given us years and years of service to Quincy Public Schools and they still continue to do so," Morris said, referring to the Sawyer sisters.

As a gesture of gratitude, the Beechwood Knoll School's library will be dedicated as the Sawyer Library and Technology Center. A plaque will be commissioned at the school honoring both sisters.

'Back-To-School' Spells Stress For Families

As the school bell tolls, a new school year becomes both an exciting and stressful time for students and their families.

Whether it's entering a new classroom, making the transition from middle school to high school, or going to a new school, these experiences can often lead to irritation, parental stress and family turmoil.

Much of the stress that parents and child caregivers feel stems from a change in the family's daily schedule. School-year strains like getting children to bed early, having a balanced breakfast and making sure children arrive at school on time once again become the daily routine as summer vacation ends.

Fads and fashions of the classroom can be stressful on parents' pocketbooks as well as on children when they want to sport the same trendy fashions as their classmates. Boarding the school bus for the first time may also add additional tension to the start of school.

Parents' and Children's Services (PCS) suggests the following tips for a stress-free return to school:

•Two to three weeks before the school year begins, start talking to your child about going back to school. Try to visit the school with your child before the year begins to introduce yourself and your child to the teacher(s). Making the trip can calm concerns either your child or yourself may have.

•Children and their families need to talk about their school-year anxieties. Select a quiet time during the evening when children may be more willing to talk about their day. Listen closely to what they say.

•Don't feel pressured to spend a lot of money on new clothing for school. One or two new outfits may help your child feel good about himself or herself. Review old clothing to see what fits and wait to buy new things until after school starts so that children can see the latest fads. Remember that more items may go sale after the start of school.

•Gradually ease the family into a new wake-up and bedtime routine before school begins.

•Arrange car pools with other parents.

•Establish open communication with children at the beginning of the school year and keep it going for the rest of the year. Become good listeners.

•Remember that help is available. Parents and other caregivers who have concerns can call the statewide toll-free PCS Parental Stress Line 24 hours at 1-800-632-8188.

Operated by Parents' and Children's Services, the statewide PCS Parental Stress Line is an anonymous telephone counseling service.

Municipally-Managed Institution Affordable, Diverse

Quincy College Serving Needs Of The Region

Community colleges, with their distinct mission of serving a community by identifying the needs of a region, and providing access to quality higher education, continue to factor prominently in whether Americans will continue to have access to a much-needed college education.

Registration continues at Quincy College for all fall semester courses at all locations. In keeping with its unique mission as a community college, Quincy College offers an affordable option for individuals considering a return to school or for those who might be intimidated by the vaulting costs of attending college.

"Paying for a college education can be staggering," said Sean Barry, the college's director of public affairs. "What Quincy College can do is help you cut those expenses significantly."

While many area colleges and universities increase their tuition and fees each year, Quincy College remains the most affordable college in Massachusetts.

"Our per-credit cost is the lowest, our fees are reasonable, and we don't have hidden costs. We encourage people to make the comparison," said Barry.

Quincy College can factor prominently in any financial plan for higher education. First, as an option for returning students, the college offers small class sizes and a truly supportive faculty and staff.

"Certainly our affordability makes us appealing, but there is an additional dimension to our services, as many of our students are people who came to college later than most traditional students," said Barry. "As a result, we are much more aware of the concerns, challenges and issues unique to our students."

Nationally, college tuition and fees increase at a rate of nearly 10 percent annually. A student enrolling in a four-year program at a modest liberal arts college in New England will often need loans, grants, savings, work study money and parental contributions to meet those expenses.

"Some people are intimidated by the initial costs," said Barry. "They look at a four-year college and add the four years' worth of tuition and fees, room and board, and then pass out when they read the bottom line. If they spend a year or two at Quincy College, they could cut their costs in half."

Throughout the nation, students are being priced out of higher education, and many are using community colleges to bridge the financial gap, Barry said. In Washington, Congress is questioning its commitment to higher education and the outlook is "not wonderful," he noted.

Using Quincy College as an example, a student could enroll full-time for two years in a fully-accredited degree or certificate program, and expect to pay about $5,000 for most of the expenses including tuition and fees.

"This has been done, and many students find they can transfer as a junior to a better college or university than had they simply skipped Quincy College and entered a four-year college right away," Barry said.

Additionally, special arrangements which guarantee advance standing admissions to local four-year colleges and universities from Quincy College are being developed. Currently, Curry College and Emmanuel College have articulation agreements with Quincy which guarantee admission to similar programs as juniors for Quincy College students who meet course and G.P.A. standards.

"These arrangements are doubly important in that they make a big difference to students at Quincy College when they know there is a program out there that will recognize their work," Barry said. "Secondly, and perhaps just as important, is the symbolic value of these arrangements. Quincy College is demonstrating that we can exist alongside other area colleges and universities. Our ultimate goal is providing an education to the people of southeastern Massachusetts."

"As the marketplace demands, we want to help our graduates realize their goals beyond Quincy College. It is in our interest to build the best possible relationship with four-year colleges that appeal to our students."

Because Quincy College is a municipally-managed institution, Quincy can offer a variety of courses in flexible scheduling options. Day courses meet Monday, Wednesday and Friday or Tuesday and Thursday. Saturday courses are another option. Finally, the Quincy College evening schedule makes it possible to take one class each night each week. In addition, Double-Ups allow students to take two evening courses back-to-back in a single evening.

A typical class at Quincy College will usually have a wide variety of individuals from different social, economic and age groups.

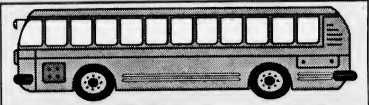

"While diversity is the catch-phrase for many colleges, Quincy College is truly diverse. Our instructors students fresh out of high school, parents returning to college, senior citizens, displaced workers seeking retraining, and students from countries all over the world," Barry said.

Quincy College offers a Business Administration Degree and Certificate Program in Labor-Management, a Physical Therapy Assistant Program, and a reputable Paralegal Studies Program.

"Paralegal studies believe to be one of the fastest growing career options," Barry said. "We've identified unique programs like the Labor-Management, Environmental Science and Communications programs which, like our Hospitality and Computer Programs, give students skills and the needed exposure to make them appealing employees and attractive to employers."

"Quality programs and flexible schedules mean very little to people unless we meet the first test...and that is affordability. While many younger students head off to live at college in the next few weeks, a large number of people will consider returning to college part-time. Our hope is that they know we are here with an affordable, supportive, quality program."

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL'S new auditorium is admired by School Supt. Eugene Creedon, left, and School Principal Lloyd Hill. The new facility, featuring state-of-the-art lighting and sound systems and 520 seats, replaces the school's method center. A number of events are scheduled at the new auditorium, including a gala dedication. Several prominent Quincy High School graduates have been invited to perform at the gala, including Broadway entertainers Louise DuArt and Richard Hebert.

School Safety Tips For Motorists

when the school buses will be on the road and if you happen to get stuck behind one with its lights flashing lights, seize the moment to reflect on less stressful times in your life, perhaps much the same as the happy child getting on or off the Big Yellow School Bus.

Intersections can be extremely difficult for children, and for that matter adults, too. Left turns, right turns on red, WALK - DON'T WALK, cross with the green light where pedestrian signals are not present, don't cross with the red light, cross only with the RED and YELLOW where they exist.

Many adults don't know what to do in all of the above situations, and if they do, they do not set a good example for the children. At best it is a complex hazard for the child at most intersections. They may not realize that you want to turn into their path. For the motorist it can also be tough, watching for pedestrians, other vehicles and a gap in the traffic to make your turn. There are rules to guide both the motorist and pedestrians, at the intersections and we will discuss them later.

520-Seat Facility Replaces Method Center Curtain To Rise On New Auditorium At Quincy High

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
It's "back to the future" for Quincy High School's auditorium.

The high school, which had an auditorium until it was converted into a method center in the 1960s, will open its doors Wednesday, Sept. 6 with a brand new auditorium in the same spot as the original auditorium and method center.

The state-of-the-art theater facility has a contemporary look, unlike its predecessor which featured a balcony and distinctive, colonial design. School Supt. Gene Creedon said the cost to revert the method center to the style of the old auditorium was prohibitive, in the $1.5 million range.

"It was much too expensive to return to the colonial design so we decided to keep the contemporary design," Creedon said.

The contemporary looking auditorium, which cost nearly $600,000, features three sections of comfortable blue seats, gray aisle rugs and shiny wooden stage floor with side wing for orchestra and choral groups. The walls and ceilings are white.

The facility is also equipped with "first-class, computerized lighting, a wonderful sound system like modern-day theater, and seats for the handicapped," Creedon said in a recent on-site interview.

"The auditorium is also climate-controlled and we have the ability to shut down the air-conditioning and open the windows."

The stage's "side wing," which takes the place of the old "pit," allows orchestra and choral groups to coordinate with the stage for such productions as musicals.

Creedon said the original price tag was approximately $200,000. However, the project cost rose considerably after it was determined the ventilation system had to be fixed and asbestos was found inside the old concrete floor.

The asbestos situation was solved by "encapsulation," a process which added several inches of new concrete to the old floor. Air quality tests were also run and evaluated for safety reasons.

Creedon said the new auditorium gives Quincy High School much needed auditorium space. "It will allow us to bring a full class together in one space. You can't bring all 1100 students in here but for a class of 300 there's more than enough room."

The superintendent said the auditorium corrects an apparent "inequity" between Quincy High and North Quincy High. When North Quincy High was remodeled in the 1970s, a first-class auditorium was part of the renovation.

However, Quincy High did not have an auditorium at that time. Quincy High students who participated in drama, theater and music programs rehearsed in the high school but performances had to be held in other places, such as Broad Meadows

School, Bethany Congregational Church and the Masonic Temple.

Creedon credited Mayor James Sheets for realizing there was an inequity, prioritizing and correcting it. The money for the project was part of a $10 million bond issue submitted by Sheets and approved by the City Council.

"The effort to restore the auditorium was really spearheaded by Mayor Sheets. The parents go behind it, too," Creedon said, noting several other groups, including Friends for a Better Quincy High School and an auditorium committee got actively involved in the project, meeting regularly with the architect, construction company and the school system's plant director, Jim Wilson.

As it turns out, the Quincy High School auditorium is larger than North Quincy's: 520 seats for the former, 480 for the latter.

Quincy High's new auditorium also benefits the rest of the community, Creedon said. He said the facility provides "badly needed" space for civic functions in the city's center. Quincy College is also interested in utilizing the auditorium.

As school approaches, a slate of activities are already underway in the new auditorium. School administrators held an assembly there yesterday (Wednesday). An orientation for ninth graders is set for Friday.

Principal Lloyd Hill will greet students there one class at a time on the first day of school. Later that evening, the School Committee will hold their meeting in the auditorium.

Other events are planned in the fall and winter.

Creedon said he hopes a gala dedication can be held sometime in the fall. Several prominent Quincy High alumni, including well-known performers Louise DuArt and Richard Hebert, will be invited to return to their alma mater and perform in the new facility.

DuArt, a 1968 Quincy High graduate, was welcomed home in April, 1993. The impressionist-comedian, who has performed on Broadway and on national television, did a stand-up routine in the school's method center. She told the capacity crowd on that day that she would return if the auditorium were restored.

Creedon said he was

Chiropractic Update
by Mark C. Jaehnig D.C.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

Chiropractic is that branch of the healing arts that deals with the structure and function of the spine, and specializes in the evaluation and treatment of back and neck pain among other symptoms. Chiropractors feel that the cause of many back and neck problems stem from the misalignment of one or more of the 33 spinal bones (called vertebrae), and the subsequent nerve pressure that may result. A Doctor of Chiropractic may often use an X-ray and extensive diagnostic tests to determine if such a misaligned vertebrae and/or "pinched nerve" exists. These "pinched nerves" may often be the cause of back and neck pain, headaches, or perhaps pain, tingling and/or numbness in an arm or leg. It is the job of the chiropractor to determine if such a problem exists, and to correct it, naturally, without medication or surgery.

The Doctor of Chiropractic uses techniques learned through years of study whereby he/she applies pressure with his/her hands to areas of the spine that are misaligned in order to restore joint mobility and function and relieve pressure on pain sensitive structures. A chiropractic adjustment provides a safe, painless, drug free method for reducing the pain and pressure caused by the pinched nerve or misaligned vertebrae.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

New Gym, Renovated Basement For 79-Year-Old Building

$1.8 M Parker School Project Nearly Complete

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
The Parker Elementary School will have a new look inside and out for students when school starts Sept. 6.

A $1.8 million renovation and addition is expected to be completed in time for the first day of school, said School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

A brand new gymnasium will mean Parker students will be able to do indoor athletic activities at the school site. Up until now, Parker students had to go to Atlantic and Quantum schools for gym programs.

Creedon said the new addition will also provide a community gym for the Parker neighborhood, giving residents in that area of Quincy an opportunity for evening and recreational programs in their own backyard.

The 79-year-old Parker School is the last existing school in Quincy to have a major addition to its original facility. The gymnasium will double as the school cafeteria during lunch hours.

"This is a long awaited and much anticipated project," Creedon said.

Besides the gymnasium addition, the school basement was completed renovated and remodeled to provide improved educational space in four classrooms. Remodeling includes new bathrooms, new food prep area and new windows.

An outdated oil furnace has been replaced with a state-of-the-art gas heating and ventilation system which will improve air quality throughout the school.

Creedon noted the basement classrooms will have better acoustics and old exposed ducts have been removed for aesthetics. Another major change is a new corridor in the basement which will allow people to encircle the entire floor without interrupting a classroom.

A technology conduit has been installed which will allow all classrooms to network computers, similar to the set-up at the Beechwood Community Knoll School. Creedon said a $1.6 million bond issue recently submitted by Mayor James Sheets and approved by the City Council is earmarked for improving the technology infrastructure at the city's other schools.

"Our goal is to have all schools on-line in the near future," Creedon said.

Essentially, the atmosphere of the Parker basement has been converted from an ordinary cellar to a productive learning area. "This is an example of using space and making it as attractive as possible and making it appropriate for the ages of the boys and girls school will be here. This is the primary education area. There's no stairs for the kids to climb. They can also access the building, gym and food prep area separately from the main building," Creedon said.

Creedon, who served as Parker School principal for 11 years, said the project is a dream come true.

"The addition and renovation is extremely rewarding. It's a dream I've had for a long time. It's a wonderfully old, architecturally sound building. That's one of the reasons the school committee decided not to close it. It's a well constructed building," Creedon said.

Tips For Choosing A Child Care Center

By SHARRON BEALS

Choosing a child care facility is one of the most important decisions a parent will make for a child. Child care will never be a substitute for the home; time spent in child care will be an important contributing factor to the development of a child.

Parents must spend a considerable amount of time choosing child care taking into consideration the reasons for which care is needed.

There are two types of child care available for a family's consideration. In Massachusetts both should be licensed by the Office for Children (OFC). The first option is Family Day Care, where OFC limits the number of children on site, including children of the provider, to no more than six. Family Day Care is operated out of a person's home and may be a good environment for a child who has never been in day care or a group setting before.

Child Care Centers enroll more than six children. Group care can be operated out of a home; however, regulations concerning staffing are different than Family Day Care. Group Child Care Centers may provide care for infants through kindergarten and After School Care for school aged children.

Important questions that families can ask during a tour of a prospective center should include:

(1) Administrative Oversight/Management. Meet the Center Director - Learn about special characteristics of the center and philosophy of care/education/enrichment. Ask about credentials and backgrounds of director and staff. Ask for details of specific supplemental enrichments activities and programming.

(2) Staffing and Qualifications. In order for teachers to be basically qualified, they must meet OFC requirements that include being at least 21 years of age, have a high school diploma or GED, complete courses in child development and then gain experience by working with a particular age group of children under the supervision of a licensed teacher for nine months. Individual centers may have additional educational and personnel expectations. Ask about the credentials of the director(s) and the teacher who is in charge of the room.

(3) Child/staff ratios. Count the children in the room. Count the teachers. Ask the person in charge of the room if they are in fact teacher qualified.

Teacher - child ratios are important

OFC ratios are: one teacher for the first three infants (1-15 months) and an additional teacher or teaching assistant for four to seven infants. No infant groups shall be larger than seven.

One teacher for the first four toddlers (15 months - 2.9 years) and an additional teacher or teaching assistant for five to nine toddlers. Toddler shall not be in groups larger than nine.

One teacher for each 10 or fewer children younger pre-school (2.9 years - 4.9 years). Groups shall be no larger than 20 children.

One teacher for each 15 or fewer children preschool age (4.9 years - 6 years).

Groups cannot exceed 30 children.

It is also important to remember that children, for safety reasons, should not be in widely mixed age groups. To obtain all rules and regulations, contact the Secretary of State and request a copy of 102 CMR 7.00 Standards for Licensee and Approval of Group Day Care Centers. (There will be a $2.00 charge for ordering.)

(4) Social Development or Academic. A quality child care should provide your child with a range of materials and experiences. By reading or asking about the center's philosophy, you will get a feel about their goals as care givers and educators. I firmly believe in Development Day Care where children five years and under learn social interaction skills and "learn how to learn." Pre-school children who learn communication and interaction skills will be better prepared for school than children who memorize numbers and words by sitting through formal academic lessons. To be sure, children will learn "academics" (such as counting, spelling and printing their names) simply by being exposed, through a variety of learning materials, games, and activities about numbers and letters. However, they should be encouraged to learn at their own pace, in a caring environment, without pressure from teachers or parents through natural exposure and interest. When considering full day care for a kindergarten child, the teacher should be a credentialed kindergarten teacher.

(5) Safety and Cleanliness. Check the classrooms, bathrooms and food preparation. They should be clean and sanitary. (Don't expect everything to be sparkling at lunch and snack time.) You must also have reasonable expectations about an environment with many children. Positive and creative activities, and energetic children often result in some disorder and noise.

It is often suggested that parents check out the center at least twice to compare different times of the day. Check for safety hazards, broken toys, doors and supervision of children while they are playing on outdoor equipment. Ask about the "pick-up" policy and identification of family emergency plan, and building security policies/practices.

(6) Motivation and Attitude of Staff. Talk to the staff. Are staff positive about the center in general? About their assignment and classroom? Do they receive adequate supervisory support, training, salaries? Is the center well staff? It is the responsibility of the director to create and oversee an environment where staff are well trained, placed and supported. On-going training is important. A caring administrator who listens to teachers and parents ensures good communication, essential for getting understanding and solving problems. A director should also be a role model for the rest of the staff. For the children to be happy, to develop and learn in the Center's environment, the teachers must identify with the center's "mission" and philosophy of care.

Parents must remember they are selecting and paying for a very important service when planning child care. A family's child care center should be an integral part of family life and parents should have high expectations for a safe, nurturing and stimulating child care experience.

Beechwood Community Life Center has developed a "Child Care Check-List" for parents use. Copies can be picked up at Beechwood in the office.

Sharron Beals is executive director of Beechwood on the Bay.

unaware if Hebert has been back to Quincy since graduating in the 1970s. Hebert is presently on Broadway performing in "Sunset Boulevard."

In addition, Sheets plans to hold his inaugural in the spacious auditorium in January provided he wins a fourth term. The mayor held his first inaugural at the Vo-Tech gym and his last two at North Quincy High School Auditorium.

Helen Murphy, a secretary for Sheets, said a Quincy High School Junior ROTC cadet asked Sheets several years ago if he could hold his inaugural at Quincy High. Sheets answered that he would after the auditorium was restored.

"The mayor intends to fulfill that promise," Murphy said.

Creedon said the reason the original auditorium was converted to a method center was to fulfill a need. In the 1960s, enrollments increased, creating a space crisis. "We had a high school, at that time, which needed useful, contemporary space. The method center gave us the ability to do some things which were very contemporary."

"Now we need a place to bring a class or two together. . . I'm hoping that we can establish an auditorium fund so as years go on and things need to be replaced and improved, we'll have the revenue that we can call upon," Creedon added.

School Bells Ring Sept. 6

We'd rather not run that risk," Creedon said.

He noted the Quincy Public School calendar actually spans 185 days with the last day of school scheduled for June 21. "The extra days" give us a safety valve for snow days," the superintendent said.

Teachers will report for their first day of school Tuesday, Sept. 5 at their respective school buildings to prepare and orientate for the coming school year. They are also expected to meet with school principals.

Kindergarten orientation days will be held Wednesday, Sept. 6 through Friday, Sept. 8. Kindergarten classes start Monday, Sept. 13.

Creedon said school starting times are the same as last year. See the chart accompanying this story.

On the day before Thanksgiving, early dismissal hours will be the same for elementary students. Dismissal for middle schools will be 11:15 (Sterling Middle School 11:00) and high schools 11:00.

After School Day Care and Early Childhood Center hours are:

•Kindergarten and first grade 7:35 to 1:35 p.m. and Tuesdays 7:35 to 10:35 a.m.

•Preschool (Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday) 7:35 to 10:10 a.m. (early sessions) and 11:05 a.m. to 1:35 p.m. (late session).

The school year will begin without new contracts for Quincy's 700 public school teachers. Their three-year contract expired Aug. 31.

School and union officials are optimistic teachers will settle a new contract soon.

"In my own opinion, I think we're very close to reaching a settlement. I feel, right now, that we're not miles apart as we have been in past years," Creedon said.

Quincy Education Association President Thomas Walsh concurred.

"When we've had to negotiate over the summer, in some years we haven't been able to meet as often as we could. This summer we have. We've met weekly all summer long.

"I think we're moderately close. We're relatively optimistic we can settle this soon," Walsh said.

The union president said he hopes a tentative agreement can be reached between teachers and the school committee in three to four weeks and the final agreement can be ratified in late September or early October.

While negotiations continue and until a new agreement is struck, teachers will work under the provisions of their current contract.

Cheney, Colton Clash Over Recycling Program

newspaper tonnage per month.

Cheney said the bottom line is that B.F.I. has not paid Quincy enough for its recyclables.

"The bottom line is that the study I have done proves conclusively that the City of Quincy has lost a minimum of $279,000 by not ordering B.F.I. to go to another recycling outlet. As a result, B.F.I. is giving us the lowest possible return for city recyclables."

Cheney said he suspects B.F.I. is not paying the city enough for its recyclables by either dropping the price per ton for recyclables or lowering tonnage figures when the price for recyclables is high. He said he has asked for receipts showing tonnage but had not received them until last week after stories on the recycling program appeared in the local press.

Cheney said the tonnage amounts collected were lower than what the DPW had provided him. "There's no way to verify tonnage since we don't have a representative watching the scale or monitoring the program," he said.

The councillor said his overall goal is to make sure the city's recycling program is the best it can be. "I want to enhance the recycling program, make it profitable and return the profits to the participants which are the taxpayers by way of a tax credit," Cheney said the participation tax credit could be accomplished using a scanner system, similar to those utilized by companies tracking inventory.

"The tax credit would be a good incentive to increase participation in the recycling program," Cheney said.

Public Works Commissioner David Colton disputed Cheney's claims, saying B.F.I. is paying competitive prices for Quincy's recyclables. He added changing contractors will be addressed when Request for Proposals on the recycling/rubbish contracts go out to bid in the fall.

"The city negotiated three years ago a contract for recycling and rubbish collection that was the envy of every community in Eastern Massachusetts because we got a price of less than $50 per ton for disposal and we also got a no-risk deal for recyclables which was also unheard of at that time.

"That contract will expire June 30, 1996. We will begin a competitive process in the fall and negotiate real hard with all parties and again we will make the best deal we can for the City of Quincy."

"That's the bottom line," Colton said. "We've brought the cost of dealing with solid waste from a high of $5.5 million in FY92 to a low of $3.8 million in FY96. If there's a better deal out there, I'll get it. But it ought to be done by talking to more than one company."

Colton said a request for an audit on B.F.I. was originally requested by Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien, chairman of the city's recycling committee. Cheney recently made a similar request.

Colton said an audit will be conducted by Deloitte & Touche of Boston in the fall. The firm has performed other city audits as requested by Auditor Robert Foy, Colton added.

Reacting to several of Cheney's claims, Colton said Quincy has not lost any money with B.F.I. as the city's recycling and trash collector.

"We could not have done better given the state of the recycling market. We were pioneers. We made a deal that carried no-risk to the city in terms of the volatility of the market. Market prices of recyclable materials is not set by cities; it's a market commodity.

"You get the going rate. You might get a little more here or a little less there, but it all evens out," Colton said. For example, Colton said B.F.I. paid Quincy a low of $50 per ton in February for newspaper to a high of $140 per ton in June. From January to July, B.F.I. has collected 1,029 tons on newspaper in Quincy, a savings of $108,865, Colton said.

As for records of tonnage, Colton said the DPW has receipts for all weigh-ins. The receipts are public record, he said. Colton said Cheney's tonnage figure of 450 was probably an error. He said the city averages 325 tons of newspaper per month. The 450 figure is closer to the tonnage for all recyclables: newsprint, plastics, glass and aluminum, the commissioner said.

"The city collects on average 325 tons of newspaper per month. The tonnage price fluctuates based on supply and demand. In the last six months, it has gone from a low of $50 per month to a high of $140 per month. The city has certified weight slips which are public record."

Regarding Cheney's call for overseeing the weigh-in to make sure B.F.I. is reporting the actual tonnage, Colton said "the city performs routine 'spot' check of B.F.I.'s trucks."

"We do a spot check of the trucks for weights before they leave the city. We focus mostly on the solid waste trucks because we're spending $47.50 a ton for trash hauling to the landfill. We also spot check the recycling checks," Colton said.

Asked whether he thinks the city should have a representative to oversee the actual weigh-in, Colton said, "We've never had a reason to suspect that a weight taken in Quincy has been different than a weight taken in East Bridgewater."

Lastly, Colton said he would "seriously consider" a city-owned and operated recycling program. "I'm not adverse to looking at it. It's going to take a lot to convince me though, that it's in the city's best interest to do so."

Cheney's study shows Quincy could start and operate and curb-side recycling program with an initial investment of $266,876. That figure covers bond interest on four trucks (two other trucks would be paid by a state grant, Cheney said), equipment maintenance, and labor for six workers.

Colton said he believes a city-operated recycling program would cost more. "You'd probably need a few additional workers to cover if someone were out," the commissioner said.

Presently, Quincy is paying $3.8 million for rubbish and recycling. Of that number, $344,000 is recycling, $2 million is trash collection and the rest is disposal.

NQ Golfers With Big Holes To Fill

As the 1995 fall season approaches, the North Quincy High golf team is facing a bad lie in the rough.

And the caddy is nowhere to be found.

Well, things aren't that bad, but the Red Raiders linksmen are facing an uphill battle this year as they enter the season without the six young men who led them to a 13-3 record last year and a No. 2 finish in the Div. 1 state tournament. North Quincy placed behind only Braintree in the tournament, though they had beat the Wamps in capturing the South Sectional title.

Keith Cross, Chris Geary, Brendan O'Brien, Steve Heroux, Matt Fatsas and Dave Doherty have since graduated after leading North Quincy to its best season in recent memory; a season which included the school's first-ever win over vaunted Old Colony League rival Barnstable.

North Quincy split their two games with Barn-stable, as they did with other OCL opponents Falmouth and Bridgewater-Raynham.

Both O'Brien (St. Anselm's) and Heroux (Bentley) will be playing golf on the college level this year.

This time around, fourth-year coach Rick Hutchins will depend on juniors Brian Degan and Dave Klingenstein to carry his club (meaning his team, not his 3-iron). They are the only two players returning with experience in high school match play. Degan will captain the squad.

"It's safe to say that we're in a rebuilding year," said Hutchins, who feels that Degan and Klingenstein will be able to provide capable leadership.

"After those guys, it's basically wide open. We have a good group of underclassmen and seniors, we just need someone to step up for us."

It will be a junior-led squad, as only three seniors have come out, and two of those have never played golf for North Quincy before. Dan Hughes is the lone returning senior. Ken Ledwak and Russ Sevala are the first-year men.

The corps of juniors is rounded out by Bill Graney, Nick Shea, Eric (1) Wood, Tim (3) Wood, Mike Struzik and Greg Burke. The youngsters of the group are sophomore Billy Connolly and freshman T.J. Wilson.

"Connolly and Wilson have good skills and will have a great impact on the team in the future," said Hutchins.

"What I'm shooting for," said the coach, "is a 500 season which would allow us just to make the tourney. If we can do better than that, then great, we'll take it."

Hutchins will again be assisted by Bob Doyle.

High School Football on WJDA...

Our 47th consecutive high school football season is coming September 15th! Set your dial to 1300AM and don't miss a play!

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

As you all know by now, I am the self-declared Football Guy.

It's still August, but I've already attended my first football game, having made the trip to the Big Apple for the weekend to take in the Boston College-Ohio State game at Giants Stadium.

I'm already on pace to top the 40 football games I went to last year. That's about one football game every living, breathing, non-sleeping, non-working hour of the fall. Basically, I have no life. But loyal Sports Spotlight readers (Hi Mom!) already know that.

Anyway, my fine feathered friends, being the Football Guy, the purpose here is to give you my predictions, in no particular order, for the 1995 football season. Here we go...Wecceeeeee!

Ω Though they may start slow, the New England Patriots will win 11 games. Last year I boldly - and correctly - said they would win 10 games.

Ω The winner of the Thanksgiving Day game will be.....decided on the field of battle.

Ω From Sun editor Bob Bosworth: the Patriots will win nine games.

Ω Bob Bosworth will owe me $5 at the end of the Patriots' season.

Ω My friends and I will drink beer before, during and after the Boston College-Notre Dame, Boston-College-Michigan and Boston College-Miami games.

Ω Sun assistant editor and limb-climber Mike Whalen predicts the Patriots will beat the expansion Carolina Panthers.

Ω Denver Broncos quarterback John Elway will get his teeth filed down to an unoffensive length.

Ω Cronin's Public House, a Beacon of Truth, Light and Knowledge and all that is Good and Just in the World, will burst at the seams on Oct. 23 when the Patriots play the Buffalo Bills on Monday Night Football. Record number of half-price Jim Kelly broken-arm Buffalo wings will be sold.

Ω My boldest prediction: there may actually be single women at Cronin's Public House that night.

Ω Cronin's Public House will offer free beer to local sportswriter.

Ω Boston College will beat West Virginia and Miami.

Ω Auburn will win the national title, thanks to Heisman Trophy winner Stephen Davis.

Ω Drew (Moses) Bledsoe will lead the New England Patriots to the Promised Land. (Well, maybe not this year.)

Ω Former Boston College star and Philadelphia Eagles first-round draft pick Mike Mamula will prove once and for all that he is twice the player as highly-overrated former Miami Hurricanes star Warren Sapp.

Ω The football geniuses who lambasted the Patriots for picking Bledsoe over Rick Mirer will eat healthy portions of crow - if they haven't already.

Ω The people who whined about the Patriots' 1-3 preseason record (probably the same people as above) will forget it ever happened about two games into the regular season.

Ω Dave Meggett will single-handedly win two games for the Patriots.

Ω Football in this part of the country will be overshadowed by the stunning performance of the World Champion Boston Red Sox. The seas will part. Worlds will collide. Cats and dogs will live together.

One final baseball note:

Massasoit Community College star Dave (Dinger) Reinhart, who hates his nickname, has racked up a series of lofty awards following his freshman year of college ball. Reinhart was named first-team All American in the Division II National Junior College Athletic Association. He was also named to the All Conference (Colonial States Athletic Conference) and All New England teams.

Reinhart, an outfielder, will be a sophomore this year at Massasoit. He also plays for the Quincy Sheriffs of the Cranberry League. He played baseball and football at North Quincy High School and batted clean-up for the Morrisette American Legion baseball team.

"Dave came in strong his freshman year," said Massasoit coach Tom Frizell. "He hit over .400 for most of the year and was obviously a strong leader in getting the team into the World Series."

Massasoit placed fourth in the nation in the Junior College World Series held in Millington, Tenn.

"He's already drawn the attention of a number of scouts from four-year colleges," said Frizell.

Reinhart will play this weekend in the New England Invitational in Brockton. The event features the finest baseball talent in the region.

Quincy's Brennan Named Xaverian Hockey Coach

Michael Brennan, of Quincy, was named head hockey coach at Xaverian Brothers High School, announced headmaster Brother Daniel Skala C.F.X. recently.

Brennan has taught and coached at Fairfield Prep, was an assistant coach at Brown University, and most recently was an assistant coach for the University of Massachusetts hockey team. He will take over the Xaverian program for the 1995-96 season.

A teacher in English department at Xaverian, Brennan has also coached the varsity and freshman baseball teams during his four years at the Westwood school.

Brennan is a graduate of Holy Cross College where he played hockey for four years.

"I am extremely happy to have the opportunity to coach," said Brennan. "The program will be fun, instructional and competitive, and my players will focus on academics and on hockey, and also take time to work and be active in the community."

"I am excited to have Mike as our head coach," said Xaverian athletic director Don Mills. "He brings a great deal of hockey experience with him to our program. He is an enthusiastic and committed head coach. We are confident that Mike is the person who can take our hockey program to the next level."

The Xaverian Hawks open the season in December. They play in the Catholic Conference and will face powerhouses such as Catholic Memorial, B.C. High and St. John's (Shrewsbury).

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Labor Day was first celebrated in 1882 by a parade and holiday in New York City.

Today, in the minds of some people, Labor Day will signal the end of summer, the last long holiday of the season... a time for a final outing for swimming, picnicking, boating or just loafing. The real meaning of Labor Day has been lost for many in the frantic pursuit of fun.

This is unfortunate, because never before have so many people been able to enjoy the leisure, the luxuries and comforts we see around us in our United States. The rights of labor never have been so certain, nor its obligation to act in a responsible manner more necessary. We must never, therefore, become insensitive to the time-honored virtues of thrift, competence and pride in a job well done.

These are the characteristics that have made possible the turning of Labor Day into a holiday of fun and leisure. These are the virtues that Labor Day ought to commemorate and, if the nation is to survive on its greatness, they will be needed as never before in the years to come...

Harold A. Nannis, 83 Former Quincy Mayoral Candidate

A funeral service for Harold A. Nannis, 83, of Boynton Beach, Fla., a former mayoral candidate in Quincy, was held Tuesday in the Schlossberg & Solomon Memorial Chapel, Canton.

Mr. Nannis died Aug. 26 at Easton Nursing & Rehabilitation Center, Lake Worth, Fla.

A deputy tax collector in Quincy in the early 1960s and later for Braintree, Abington, Hull and Taunton, he received many awards for outstanding service.

Active in Quincy government, he ran against Mayor James R. McIntyre in 1967. Part of his platform included a waste disposal project that proved to be many years ahead of its time.

He was a director and past president of the Wollaston Park Association, past president and treasurer of the Quincy Republican Club and a member of the Republican Committee.

A newspaper distributor most of his life, he also worked for Bethlehem Steel at the Fore River shipyard and was a member of Shipbuilders Union Locals 5 and 25.

Mr. Nannis was a longtime member of the Wollaston Yacht Club and Coast Guard Auxiliary of Palm Beach where he taught boating safety.

He was an accomplished violinist.

Born in Attleboro, where he spent his early years on the family farm, he eventually moved to Quincy where he graduated from Quincy High School in 1929.

Husband of the late Marilyn (Alpert) Nannis, he is survived by a son, Stephen Nannis of Lexington; two daughters, Elaine Nannis of Silver Springs, Md., and Marjorie Asnes of Braintree; six grandchildren, and three great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park.

Memorial observance will be through today (Thursday) at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Asnes and was also scheduled through last night (Wednesday) at the home of Michael and Susan Marx.

Donations may be made to Temple Isaiah, 55 Lincoln St., Lexington, MA 02173 or to Temple B'Nai Shalom, 41 Storrs Ave., Braintree, MA 02184.

Chiang Chen, 81 Pianist; Photographer

A traditional Chinese ritual for Chiang Chen, 81, of Quincy, was held Monday.

Mr. Chen died Aug. 23 in Quincy Hospital.

Born and raised in the international port city of Shanghai, he found joy in the arts of music and photography and eventually became a professional pianist.

Mr. Chen was orphaned as a child and brought up by an uncle. He grew to love photography while working at his uncle's film developing shop.

When he was 13, he took up the piano. He was instructed by an American living in Shanghai.

Although he played music of all kinds, it was his swing band that became famous in the 1930s.

Mr. Chen moved to Taiwan in 1950 and moved to Quincy six years ago.

He is survived by his daughter, Hui Chuan Chen of Quincy; and several grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Henry E. Moore, 68 World War II Navy Veteran

A funeral Mass for Henry E. "Randy" Moore, 68, of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Joseph's Church.

Mr. Moore died Aug. 24 in Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

Born, raised and educated in Boston, he lived in the Dorchester region of Boston before moving to Quincy 22 years ago.

He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

Mr. Moore is survived by a son and two daughters; five sisters, Geraldine

C. Ray and Donna A. Marston, both of Quincy, Ruth C. Casey of Plymouth, Lorraine E. Adams of Chicopee and Marilyn C. McGourty of Braintree; and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Massachusetts National Cemetery, Bourne.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

Donations may be made to the charity of one's choice.

William R. MacPherson, 73 Carpenter, Polisher, Decorated Veteran

A funeral service for William Roy MacPherson, 73, of Quincy, was held Aug. 24 in the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Mr. MacPherson died Aug. 22 in Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

A carpenter with Perini Corp. and other companies for many years, he retired in 1985.

He also worked at the Fore River shipyard and was a polisher at Bielle Granite Corp., Carrig Granite Co. and Charles Ross Builders.

Mr. MacPherson was a Marine Corps veteran of World War II and received the Silver Star Medal for his service.

Born and raised in Quincy, he attended Quincy

Trade School for two years.

He was a member of Rural Masonic Lodge in Quincy and Taleb Grotto, a branch of the Masonic Temple.

He is survived by his wife, Marion (Lints) MacPherson; a brother and sister, James K. MacPherson of Quincy and Lois McHoul of Weymouth; and many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Donations may be made to Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169 or the memorial fund of Bethany Congregational Church, 18 Spear St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Marie F. Duval, 90

A funeral Mass for Marie F. (Connors) Duval, 90, of Quincy, was celebrated Monday in Sacred Heart Church.

Mrs. Duval died Aug. 25 in Quincy Hospital after a long illness.

Born in Quincy, she was a lifelong resident of the city.

She was a member of the North Quincy Catholic Women's Club.

Wife of the late Raymond R. Duval, she is survived by two sons, Raymond E. Duval of Quincy and Paul J. Duval of Newbury; two daughters, Diane O'Riordan of Florida and Maureen Duval of Quincy; seven grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren, and two nieces.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to The Jimmy Fund, 1 Harvard St., Brookline, MA 02146.

The quality of life enjoyed in our country today results from the labors of so many.
Let us be ever grateful.

Could Start In November

City Eyes Satellite Parking

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city may implement a system of satellite parking, through which shoppers will be shuttled to the downtown shopping district in Quincy Center, by mid-November.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday the need for additional parking in the downtown has necessitated the plan. The city's municipal parking system, which includes the Ross Parking Garage and Hancock Parking Lot, cannot alone provide parking for shoppers as well as downtown employees and others who pay $35 for monthly parking passes, he said.

"We have found there are far more monthly parkers than we realized," said Sheets. "We plan to do it (use satellite parking) if it's feasible, and we think it's feasible. Mid-November is our target date."

Sheets said he has discussed the idea of satellite parking with Quincy 2000 Executive Director Joseph Mannarino and Caryn Smith, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA). Both have expressed support of the concept, he added.

The idea of satellite parking first came up at a recent QCBPA Parking Committee meeting after downtown merchants voiced concerns about hearing complaints from customers who said there is not enough parking in the Hancock Lot.

Sheets said he would like Quincy 2000 to run the satellite parking program. While Mannarino has expressed support of Quincy 2000 sponsoring the program, Sheets said, he must discuss the matter with the Quincy 2000 Executive Committee before the public-private planning corporation can do so.

The mayor noted that details of the satellite plan have not been finalized but that a bus or van may be used to shuttle the shoppers. The city may use one, two or three satellite parking lots, Sheets added, and while several sites have been discussed, he would not say where they are.

Sheets said in the meantime, City Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon will continue to make adjustments in the municipal system where he sees fit to make the situation as convenient as possible for all those affected by it.

Eventually, the mayor said, more parking garages will have to be built in the downtown to keep up with the demand for parking spaces.

"In the long run, we're going to have to find more parking in the downtown," he said.

Sheets said the availability of state funding will be key in determining when such a plan could be implemented.

Will Study Cheney Figures But:

Sheets Is Skeptical Of City-Run Trash Plan

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets has expressed skepticism concerning the idea of the city collecting and disposing its own rubbish and recyclables.

Mayor James Sheets has expressed skepticism concerning the idea of the city collecting and disposing its own rubbish and recyclables.

Currently, the rubbish/recycling contract is held by Browning-Ferris Industries (B.F.I.) which is in the final year of a three-year contract with the city that expires June 30, 1996. The mayor said the Department of Public Works plans to send out three R.F.P.'s (requests for proposals) on the contract before that time.

City Council President Michael Cheney recently claimed that his research proves conclusively that the city can save money by owning and operating its equipment. Most recently, Cheney said the city could save $1.25 million by taking over the trash collection contract and added that the potential savings of three other options proposed to him by EAC Operations Inc. ranges from $465,000 to $746,000.

Cheney said he submitted the report to City Auditor Robert Foy for verification of financial details.

"The numbers which were used to put together the city's own trash collection program are the numbers submitted to me by the city auditor and taken from the city budget," he said. "Labor wages and benefits were furnished by the personnel director. I was able to formulate a proposed budget using consistent, verifiable numbers."

Cheney's proposal would utilize Seamass, Inc., a trash-to-energy plant which he said can recycle up to 86 percent of all refuse collected in the city and is better than what he termed the "outdated" method of utilizing landfills for trash disposal.

Wanted: 300 Volunteers To Get Out Kids Vote

Three hundred volunteers are needed to help get out the vote--the kids' vote--in the Quincy city final election Tuesday, Nov. 7.

Quincy students, from kindergarten through high school, will have the opportunity to cast their own ballots in that election in the innovative Kids Voting Program.

Quincy is the first community in Massachusetts to take part in the national Kids Voting USA program and will serve as the model for the Kids Voting Massachusetts Program.

Kids Voting is a non-partisan, non-profit, grassroots education program which gives young people actual experience in the election process by casting ballots alongside their parents in real national, state and local elections.

Quincy's participation in the program was suggested by Mayor James Sheets by K. Prescott Low, publisher of The Patriot Ledger. The program is now in 26 states.

Quincy Project Coordinator Harold Crowley said the 300 volunteers are needed on Nov. 7 to serve at the city's 30 voting precincts--10 at each precinct.

Most will serve on two to three hour shifts while the polling places are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Others may volunteer to spend the entire day as precinct captains.

The volunteers will assist the youngsters in voting, following the exact check-in, vote, check-out procedure as adult voters. They will vote for mayor, city council at-large, ward council and school committee candidates.

The only difference is that youngsters will have their own different colored punch-card ballots with photos of the candidates on them. They will punch

Construction Work On Sea St. Sunday

Construction work in front of the new Custom House Restaurant, 125 Sea St., could cause some traffic delays Sunday.

Jim Dunn of JTS Construction Co. of Quincy said the work will take place from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. The street will be shut down one side at a time--beginning with the north-bound side--while traffic traveling from Quincy Shore Drive to the north-bound side of Sea Street will be restricted, he added.

Dunn said the work involves construction of a water main for the restaurant and the nearby Quincy Youth Hockey Rink.

in their choices and their ballots will be tallied separately. There will be two sets of election results that night, adults and youngsters.

Crowley said voter registration for the students will be conducted by the Board of Registrars during the week of Oct. 16 at all public and parochial schools.

Before the election, the students will have the opportunity to practice voting on 40 punch-card voting machines that City Clerk Joseph Shea will make available.

Crowley said the states now participating in the Kids Voting program have experienced three to 20 percent increases in voter turnout.

"It is family together voting developing a future generation of voters while renewing civic responsibility for parents," he said.

Four members of the Quincy Kids Voting Board of Directors are serving on the Volunteers Committee. They are: Linda Wilson, interim president of Quincy College; Debbie

Orman, Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women; Margaret (Peggy) King, former Quincy School Committee member and Richard H. Arbella Insurance Company.

Those wishing to volunteer for election service may contact Crowley by calling 478-6881 or by filling out and submitting the volunteer form on this page.

Voting Place Changes For Two Precincts In Ward 4

Notices are in the mail to 5,000 registered voters of two precincts in Ward 4 informing them of a change in polling place locations for them.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said voters in Precincts 2 and 3 are affected because of the sale of Morrisette Legion Post building where they used to vote.

Voters of Precincts 2 and 3 will now cast their ballots at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 (rear) Quarry St. (Elks Lane).

The change will be effective for the Sept. 19 preliminary election and the Nov. 7 final city election.

Shea said that voters of Precincts 1, 4 and 5 in Ward 4 will vote at their usual locations:

Precinct 1: Arthur Drohan Senior Citizens Housing, 170 Copeland St.

Precincts 4 and 5: Lincoln-Hancock Community School, Water St.

A public notice regarding the polling place changes appears on Page 13 in this week's Quincy Sun.

Meeting Today On Ambulance Overbilling

City and hospital officials will meet today (Thursday) with representatives from an ambulance company that has mistakenly overbilled Quincy residents in an attempt to determine how much the firm should pay back as compensation.

The meeting will be held at 8 a.m. in the office of City Solicitor Stephen McGrath. Also on hand will be Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymondi as well as representatives from the company in question, Norfolk-Bristol ASA-Ambulance Systems of America; Quincy Hospital, through which the company provides service to Quincy residents; and Feeley and Driscoll of Boston, which recently completed an audit of the firm at the request of the hospital and the city.

Raymondi, who first discovered in May that two of his clients had been overbilled by the company, said this week he hopes the two sides can agree on a dollar figure as quickly as possible. Since the problem was discovered, the company has admitted to mistakenly billing more than 120 Quincy residents for its services.

According to its contract with the hospital, the ambulance company cannot charge indigent or uninsured residents for its services. If a patient has insurance, it must charge no more than the allowable rate and must bill the insurance company directly. Norfolk-Bristol cannot bill the patient for the balance if the insurance company declines to pay the full amount.

Raymondi said he wants the figure paid by the firm to include compensation for the following:

- The amount overpaid by Quincy residents.

- The amount overpaid by Quincy residents that went to collections agencies.

- All expenses related to the audit.

- The cost of a public awareness program that will be used to educate residents about the over-billing problems.

Raymondi said he hopes the company might also agree to some form of self-analysis that will help to prevent such an occurrence in the future.

Raymondi said he does not believe figures from the final audit are yet available. Preliminary findings in July, however, indicated that Quincy residents were overbilled between $300,000 and $900,000 in the last two fiscal years and that patients paid between $57,000 and $134,000 to the company as a result.

The auditors also said in July that an additional $151,000 to $393,700 in bills were sent to collections agencies. At that time, city officials said they wanted the ambulance company to place $500,000 in an escrow account as compensation, although company representatives said they felt $200,000 would be a fairer amount.

The company has set up a toll-free hot line for anyone who has a question on his or her ambulance bill. The number is 1-800-498-0480.

SS Mental Health Conducting Asian Community Assessment

South Shore Mental Health (SSMH) is conducting a mental health needs assessment of the Asian community in Quincy.

The assessment will help SSMH, a community-based, comprehensive mental health agency headquartered in Quincy, learn how to best meet the needs of the growing Asian population in the city.

Alaric Bien, a graduate student in clinical psychology, is conducting the needs assessment as the basis for his doctoral thesis. He has begun working with formal and informal networks of community leaders, agencies and religious organizations.

"I am pleased Mr. Bien is working with SSMH to complete this mental health needs assessment in Quincy. This information will be extremely helpful to the staff at SSMH, who are devoted to finding new and better ways to meet the needs of all of our ethnically diverse consumers," said Harry Shulman, president and CEO of SSMH.

The mental health needs assessment, scheduled to begin in early September, will be comprised of information from community members who are fluent in various languages, including Mandarin, Cantonese, and Vietnamese.

SSMH is conducting the assessment due to the outcome of recent strategic planning efforts.

Health Care Seminar Sept. 11

A free seminar on Medicare, Medicaid and long-term health care planning will be held Tuesday, Sept. 11 from 10 to 11:15 a.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock

St., Quincy Center.

The seminar is being presented by the Quincy Council on Aging and John Hancock Financial Services. An attorney will be present to answer any legal questions. Coffee and pastries will be served.

HEPATITIS ABCS

With so much attention focused on other public health issues, you don't see headlines about hepatitis very often. Still, viral hepatitis affects millions of Americans, causing symptoms from flu-like fatigue to liver damage and even death. People can also carry the virus without having any symptoms themselves. Hepatitis comes in three forms: type A, B, or C. In hepatitis A, the least common in the U.S., the virus is typically spread through contaminated food or water, although it can also be transmitted sexually. Hepatitis B and C, more serious forms, are spread via body fluids. Common causes include needle-stick injuries, IV drug use, transfusion, sexual conduct and transmission from mother to child at birth.

P.S. Hepatitis can be tough to treat, but it is preventable through good hygiene and vaccination. Talk to your doctor.

If you are traveling out of the country to a less developed area, it is important to receive the appropriate immunizations before you go. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I believe in prevention and work to educate our patients. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. No Sheets College Timetable

There are some along the political front who think there was a timetable for Mayor James Sheets to become President of Quincy College and it is now all snafued.

The decision by interim President Linda Wilson not to renew her one-year contract which expires Jan. 1 fouled up the political mechanism, they contend.

They would have you believe that Wilson would have continued on as interim president after Jan. 1 as a seat warmer until Sheets' appointment as permanent president later next year.

Now, they argue, the Board of Governors is forced to move faster on a search to find a permanent president which leaves Sheets out of the picture.

Interesting theory, my dear Watson. But it really doesn't hold water.

Sounds more like old wishful thinking on the part of some politicians who have been hoping Sheets would become college president and leave opportunity knocking for them.

If Sheets left the mayor's office it would trigger a wide-open race for mayor. And that in turn would create open city council at-large and ward seats and probably a school committee seat or two.

But the whole scenario doesn't make much sense.

Wilson is not the type to accept the role of seat warmer. She's got too much class for that. If things had turned out differently she would have been a candidate for the permanent job. And in fact, the early betting was that she had the best shot at becoming permanent head of the college. Until she and the board developed a bit of incompatibility which has been known to wreck a few marriages.

Those who are kicking around the Sheets-timetable-is-now-out-of-whack-theory are forgetting one important little tidbit: Sheets doesn't want the job.

He's on record as saying so.

There was speculation in 1994 that he might leave the mayor's office in 1995 to take over the presidency from then interim President Donald Young who had said he only wanted to stay a year.

We put it to Sheets here on April 7:

"Are you interested in the Quincy College presidency?"

"No, I'm not interested. There's no challenge there for me."

That's what the man said back then, plain and simple.

That kind of knocks the timetable theory into a cocked hat.

Unless, of course, he's had a change of heart. But that doesn't seem likely.

Being mayor until the turn of the century seems more interesting to him and more likely.

MIKE CASALI, a Quincy public school legend over a distinguished 45-year career, will be honored at a retirement reception Wednesday, Sept. 27, 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd.

Tickets are $25 each and the deadline for them is Sept. 21. Make checks payable to Colleen Harris, Broad Meadows Middle School, 20 Calvin Rd., Quincy, MA 02169.

For 30 years, through 1980, Mike coached football, basketball and baseball at then Central Junior High School and then was a guidance counselor for 15 years, Mike was an outstanding role model for thousands of Quincy youngsters as a coach, teacher—and person. And in retirement, he will still be that role model.

Happy retirement, Mike. And best wishes.

THE FRANK McCAULEY Committee is holding a reunion fundraiser Tuesday, Sept. 12 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd. Tickets are $50 per person.

McCauley, a four-term mayor and former School Committee member, is looking to return to that board for the two-year term.

McCauley was a penny-pincher during his eight-years as mayor. In fact it is pretty much a toss-up as to who was the tightest with a municipal buck: him or Amelio Della Chiesa. The latter also knew how to pinch pennies until Abe Lincoln turned blue.

Don't look now, but is there a new Frank McCauley emerging? Evidence: at the reunion there will be—get this—complimentary champagne. (The real bubbly stuff, Frank?)

A CAMPAIGN RECEPTION for former State Senator Paul Harold, candidate for one of the three City Council at-large seats, is set for Wednesday, Sept. 13 from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Common Market, 97 Willard St., West Quincy. Donation: $15 per person.

RON MCCARTHY, candidate for one of the two four-year terms on the School Committee, has a cook-out fundraiser this Saturday, 2 to 6 p.m., at the Merrymount Beach Park, Quincy Shore Dr. and Shore Ave. Tickets are $15 per person and $25 per couple. Call 471-7243 for more info.

AND A CAMPAIGN Reception for Steve Durkin, who is giving up his School Committee seat to run for Ward 5 city councillor, will be held tomorrow (Friday), 6 to 9 p.m., in the Presidents Room at the Quincy Neighborhood Club, Glendale Rd. Tickets are $25 per person and $40 per couple.

QUINCY WAS WELL represented during the Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy Telethon on Channel 5 Monday.

Vin Moscardelli of ERA Central Real Estate, presented a $12,000 check for Jerry's Kids. It represented proceeds from an ERA Lock-Up Event and a golf tourney. Several more thousand dollars are expected to come in from the two events.

Bob Bosworth, editor of The Quincy Sun and Diane Garte of Fine Light Photography, presented a check for $5,001 raised in a Beautiful Baby Contest co-sponsored by Fine Light and The Sun.

And, old faithful George Parker of the Yellow Cab Co. in Quincy, stopped by The Sun Tuesday with two $400 checks for MDA, one from the company and one personal. He's been doing this each year for nearly 20 years.

CITY SOLICITOR Steve McGrath has a new look: a mustache. No, he didn't lose a bet. And he didn't do it on a dare. Just thought he would try one out. Mixed reaction to it so far. (If you bump into him, let him know: should he keep it or shave it.)

The first known woman writer of detective stories was Anna Katherine Green of Buffalo, N.Y., who wrote The Leavenworth Case in 1878.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS QUINCY PICTURE POSTCARD view was taken at the Harvard Airmet held in Squantum from Sept. 3-10, 1910, eighty five years ago this week. Marina Bay is now to the left of this view which shows the Squantum peninsula in the distance. On the right, near what is now Beechwood-on-the-Bay, can be seen some of the tents and viewing stands for the more than 20,000 spectators that attended the show. Among those who came to Quincy for this important demonstration equipment and aviator skills were President William Howard Taft and his family, The Secretary of the Navy, Army generals and even the Russian Ambassador. Quincy Mayor William Shea hosted Boston Mayor John F. "Honey Fitz" Fitzgerald and New York state senator Franklin D. Roosevelt. Englishman Claude Grahame-White, shown in the photo, was the hero of the show, he won most of the trophies and prize money.

City Seeing Substantial Savings Through Current Recycling Program

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As members of the City of Quincy's Recycling Committee (QRC), Councillor Cheney's proposal to deprivatize the City of Quincy's trash collection, recycling and disposal of solid waste has piqued our curiosity to say the least, but quite frankly leaves us with more questions than answers.

Since the program's inception in 1988, the QRC has served as the city's citizen advisory committee on matters pertaining to solid waste pick-up, disposal, and recycling. During the last seven years, Quincy's recycling program has grown enormously, thanks to the leadership of Mayor Sheets, Councillor Chretien, DPW Commissioner David Colton, Mike Wheelwright of the DPW, and an all-volunteer recycling committee. In fact, Quincy's program has been successful enough to capture awards from the U.S. EPA and Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Interestingly enough,

Councillor Cheney has never directly raised concerns about the recycling program to the Committee, even as recent as our August 9th public meeting. Quite the contrary. Councillor Cheney has been quite a supporter of the program over the years, and even took the opportunity to demonstrate his support at a press conference with Mayor Sheets and Councillor Chretien when the 1993 BFI contract was signed.

Those who have not closely followed the program's development may not be aware of the cautious approach that has been taken to ensure a well run and cost-effective program. We endorse holding the present program up to scrutiny and have supported the idea of an audit. What we do not support is the misleading figures offered in Mr. Cheney's proposal.

Questionable figures in Councillor Cheney's proposal include the purchase and operation of recycling equipment; reliance on state grants -- as if they are guaranteed; the absence of recognizing hundreds of thousands of dollars in past savings to the city by avoiding the hauling costs associated with disposal; and the assertion that the North Shore Recycled Fibers proposal guarantees the City of Quincy $432,000 per year when NSRF's 8/14/95 written proposal actually guarantees approximately $240,000 annually, without taking hauling costs into account.

We applaud Mr. Cheney's desire to run a cost-effective and environmentally sound trash pick-up, disposal and recycling program in the City and look forward to the opportunity to discuss his proposal at a recycling committee meeting. But until such time, we find that not only do the proposal's estimated savings require a greater level of scrutiny, but his timing--during an election year--seems suspect. We hope The Quincy Sun will join us in our quest for thorough analysis of the numbers, and we hope Mr. Cheney will exhibit such interest in the program next spring, when the disposal, collection, and recycling contract comes up for renewal--a more appropriate time for informed input.

Councillor Cheney's figures may or may not be correct, but the fact remains that the City of Quincy is seeing substantial savings through its recycling program and protecting the environment in the process. Quincy residents should be proud of their participation in the program and realize that their participation makes a difference.

Quincy's Yesterdays

15,000 Guests Invited To Shipyard Open House

By PAUL HAROLD

Samuel Wakeman, general manager of the Quincy shipyard, announced that for the first time in years, an open house was planned at the yard for employees and their families, politicians and business leaders from throughout Greater Boston. The "guest list" was estimated at 15,000.

At the yard, visitors would be able to see the nuclear powered cruiser Long Beach, three-guided missile frigates, two 46,000-ton tankers and a 70,000-ton tanker.

LAB CLASSES BEGIN IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Dr. Paul Gossard, superintendent of public schools, announced that the "advanced school program" for 5th and 6th graders would begin this week.

The "experiment" would provide advanced work for a group of 135 gifted pupils from across the city at centers located at the Mass Fields, Montclair and Cranch schools. With 17 pupils, Wollaston would have the largest number of students in the program.

VOTE SOUGHT ON GARBAGE CONTRACT

Councillor David McIntosh announced his intention to try again to get the city council to pass the garbage contract. The vote was delayed at the last meeting by a parliamentary move.

"If this is defeated, the councillors who vote against it will be responsible to the taxpayers for the loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars in the years to come," he said.

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, the Public Works department and the Quincy Taxpayers Association worked for more than a year on the plan that would have a private contractor replace the city workers in the garbage collection.

Fred Padula, the Quincy contractor who submitted the lowest bid on the collection contract, said he would not hold open his bid beyond the time of the council meeting.

Two To Perform At First Parish Coffeehouse Sept. 16

The Clock & Bell Coffeehouse at United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center will present Greg Greenway with Kerri Powers in a pre-release CD Party Saturday, Sept. 16 at 8 p.m.

Greenway left his native Virginia to live in Boston because of its wealth of musicians and acoustic venues. In the fall of 1994, he appeared at Carnegie Hall as part of

New York City's first Singer/Songwriter Festival and was included in "Shelter," the compilation CD of that concert.

Proceeds from the festival concert and CD benefit the homeless.

Greenway's first CD, "A Road Worth Walking Down," was nominated for two Boston Music Awards including Best Song on an Independent Label for "Free at Last" and for Best Acoustic Album. His second CD, "Singing to the Landlord," will be released this month on Eastern Front Records.

Opening for Greenway is Powers, making her second appearance at The Clock & Bell Coffeehouse. Her first CD, "Sleepwalking Again," has just been released.

Tickets are $10. For more information, call 848-0907.

Zucchini, Eggplant, Tomato Combo

With the abundance of zucchinis and fresh tomatoes this time of year, I took advantage and cooked zucchini, eggplant, and fresh tomatoes for a great healthy combo.

It can either be eaten as a side dish, or over rice or pasta.

ZUCCHINI, EGGPLANT, TOMATO COMBO

- 1 medium zucchini
- 1 medium eggplant
- 1 medium onion
- 2 cloves garlic
- 2 large fresh tomatoes

fresh parsley
1 cup tomato sauce
2-3 tablespoons olive oil
salt and pepper to taste
grated cheese (any favorite)

Cut the zucchini, eggplant and tomatoes in bite-size pieces. The eggplant can be peeled if preferred.

In hot oil and garlic, saute the onion, zucchini and eggplant adding a smidgen of water. Add the parsley, tomato sauce and tomatoes and cook covered for about 20 minutes or until tender.

Serve hot with grated cheese and some crusty bread.

4 QCTV Programs Video Awards Finalists

Continental Cablevision of Quincy announces that four Quincy Community Television programs have been selected as finalists in the national Hometown Video Awards, recognizing the best in local cable programming.

The Hometown Video Festival is sponsored by the Alliance for Community Media. This year's contest attracted nearly 1800 entries from throughout the United States and Canada.

QCTV's nominees included "QCTV High School Football", "Senior Beat", "Inside Quincy Schools", and "The Quincy Senior Olympics."

Continental Cablevision staff member Darlene Mendoza received the nomination for Best Programming for Senior Citizens in the Media Professional Division for coordinating QCTV's week long coverage of "The Quincy Senior Olympics", and producing a special highlighting of week's events. The program was the result of the combined talents and effort of several staff members and community volunteers who worked to spotlight the men and women who make the Senior Olympics so important to the entire area.

"Inside Quincy Schools" was honored as a finalist for Best Educational Program by a non-professional. Quincy teacher Jack Raymer produces the program, with the assistance of Continental's Mendoza and School Media Specialist Brian Smith. Each month that team, along with several young students, spotlights the program and people of the Quincy Public Schools.

Producer John Noonan earned a nomination for Best Programming By Senior Citizens in the non-professional division for his work on "Senior Beat", QCTV's popular magazine series focusing on issues, events and personalities of interest to the senior citizen community. Noonan works with Mendoza and QCTV volunteers, interns and staff members to produce this terrific series.

The men and women who make up the QCTV Sports Team took the fourth nomination, for Best Sports Programming by community volunteers. They were honored for their coverage of the Quincy and North Quincy High School football games at Veterans Stadium. Coordinated by Continental Studio Manager Mike Robinson, the crew included Bill Early, George Cappadona, Keith Nickerson, Rita Lund, Tom Saniuk, Charlie Ross, Sue MacDougall, Mike Loneragan, Leo Shea, and many other community volunteers.

"We're obviously very proud of this national recognition of our efforts," said Continental Program Director Bill McColgan. "But we're more proud of our wonderful partnerships with community groups, school officials, city agencies, and the great community volunteers who devote their time and talents to producing programs by and for the people of Quincy."

Impact Quincy To Announce Youth Survey Results Sept. 13

Impact Quincy will release the results of the 1995 Survey of Quincy Youth at the fall IQ Coalition meeting on Wednesday, Sept. 13 at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, located behind North Quincy High School, 12 Hunt St.

A panel of community members will respond to the survey results, followed by an open discussion on the information. The public is invited to attend and participate in the meeting, which begins at 7 p.m.

Nearly 2,500 youth ages 11-18 took part in the survey last spring, which was administered for the third year in a row. The survey asked questions regarding youths' attitudes and behaviors regarding alcohol, tobacco, and other drug use; medical and personal health; safety; and "life satisfaction."

The 1994 survey indicated Quincy's youth were following national trends, which most youth not using alcohol, tobacco, and other drugs, while those that did showed some disturbing trends. Among these were that the use of marijuana and of inhalants had almost doubled in the previous year, and that by 11th grade, girls were using alcohol, tobacco, and marijuana at higher rates than their male classmates. Also revealed was the fact that almost one out of four high school aged girls and one out of 10 high school boys had considered committing suicide in the previous year.

"The results on surveys like this are invaluable to our prevention efforts throughout the city," said Mitch Finnegan, Project Director for Impact Quincy. "We have shared the information from our surveys with many organizations that are concerned about youth, and this has helped us all to develop more effective programs and approaches to helping our young people lead healthy lives."

National surveys continue to indicate an increase in the use of alcohol, tobacco, and other drugs by young people. "We know that the pressures on young people to use and abuse these harmful substances are tremendous," said Finnegan. "From the billions spent to advertise alcohol and tobacco, to the glamorization in the media of their use and the use of other drugs, to the sometimes poor role modeling that we adults provide to our kids, we have to continue to think carefully about the environment in which we are raising our children, and work intentionally and deliberately to keep them healthy and safe."

The Sept. 13th meeting of the IQ Coalition will also include a brief overview of the activities of the Coalition throughout the city. Refreshments will be served beginning at 6:30 p.m., and the meeting begins at 7 p.m.

For more information, call the IQ office at 472-6027.

Owners Lorraine And Chris Kusy
Have A 'Hands-On' Approach

Rhyme 'N Reason Toy Store Accents Child Development

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Rhyme 'n Reason, located at 74 Washington St., Quincy, certainly lives up to its billing as "the hands on toy store."

While some stores may frown upon children "test-playing" toys, owners Lorraine and Chris Kusy encourage it. They say Rhyme 'n Reason is distinct because their merchandise is geared toward child development in an atmosphere that promotes "playing before buying."

"We encourage kids to be in the store and to handle the merchandise and to see what they're all about," Chris Kusy says. "Our purpose is to address the needs of not only parents and grandparents in Quincy and on the South Shore but also to focus on a more personalized service. We provide individual attention on informative and educational toys and how they are best suited for children's needs."

Rhyme 'n Reason has several toys on display in the store at all times. It also has a separate, child-safe play area which allows toddlers to play with a toy.

"Kids come in and play. They may take to one type of toy more than another. That way, parents will know what they (the children) like and what their interest is. They can look into the room and see how the child responds to the toy," Lorraine says.

Because they are sensitive to children's perceptions of themselves, the Kusys sell toys which reflect the multi-ethnicity of Quincy.

"For every child, there are toys that should encourage their development," Lorraine explains. "They shouldn't have to be faced with only blond-hair, blue-eyed dolls or action toys. We have toys that encourage creativity, development and a feeling of self-worth."

"A child shouldn't have to identify with another perception of what a toy should be. We have toys that reflect the real world."

For instance, Rhyme 'n Reason carries ethnic dolls

RHYME 'N REASON owners Chris and Lorraine Kusy play with their three-year son, Michael, in the toy store, located at 74 Washington St. (Quincy Sun photo/Robert Bosworth) which encompass a multitude of different origins, including Afro-American and Asian.

"We want to meet the needs of all families. In a racially and ethnically diverse community such as Quincy, it's a challenge," Lorraine says.

Rhyme 'n Reason has toys for all ages, from infant to teenager, and for all levels of development, creativity and imagination. Lorraine noted Rhyme 'n Reason also has unique toys for youngsters with special needs.

"Dolly Downs", a doll personifying a child with Down's Syndrome, comes with a map and backpack. "Not only does she tell the story of what it's like to have a disability, she also says what qualities are the same amongst all children," Lorraine notes. "I don't think anyone in the Greater Boston area has them."

Rhyme 'n Reason caters to all budgets, too.

"The bulk of the toys we sell are in the $10 to $12 range but we also have kids who come in with 50 cents and buy a sticker book. They're able to save their quarters and buy something they're happy with," Lorraine says.

Rhyme 'n Reason has a wide selection of toys. Dozens of products are stocked in the aisles, on the shelves, in glass display cases.

Toys range from traditional wooden blocks and Legos to the more contemporary Madeline, a doll which experiences worldwide travel through accessories like clothing and books. Other items include puzzles, dollhouses and furniture, wagons, art easels, craft kits and felt boards.

"A lot of the toys are made out of rubber, felt or foam for texture which kids really like. They're not just plastic and wood," says Chris, a retailer with more than 20 years experience.

Rhyme 'n Reason also has an array of educational books and greeting cards.

Among the more popular toy lines Rhyme 'n Reason carries is Play-Mobil geared for children three years and up. The durable toys feature small figurines situated in a myriad of play settings and themes, such as pirate ships, castles and the Wild West.

Other popular products are Sesame Street characters, Brio wooden toys, and Battat develop-mental toddler toys.

Besides toys, the store has customer-oriented programs. Frequent buyer cards give customers free mer-chandise after 12 purchases of $10 or more.

Schools can have fundraisers, too. School groups arrange a time and date at Rhyme 'n Reason and during that period, a certain percentage of the profits are shared with the group.

The Birthday Club is particularly popular, Lorraine says. Parents and grandparents sign up a child and when that child's birthday approaches, Rhyme 'n Reason sends that youngster a birthday postcard. The postcard entitles the child to a free small present and also 20 percent off a gift of their choice.

Beyond toys, Rhyme 'n Reason conducts storybook hours as well as arts and crafts sessions for youngsters. Call ahead for times.

Other upcoming events include:

• A visit by author Laurie Krasny Brown, who will sign copies of her educational book "The Vegetable Show" on Saturday, Sept. 23 from 1:30 to 3 p.m. She is the wife of Marc Brown, who writes the "Arthur the Aardvark" book series.

• A Brio play day on Saturday, Oct. 28, featuring prize drawings and lots of Brio toys.

• A Play-Mobil play day Saturday, Nov. 25 also featuring free give-aways.

Since opening their doors five months ago, the Kusys, who have three sons, David, 13; Justin, 10; and Michael, 3, say their mission "has been to bring a quality toy store to Quincy that would appeal to everyone."

And the response?

"People have been very positive," Lorraine says. "A lot of people have wonderful things to say. They're glad there's a toy store in Quincy. They're tired of going outside Quincy to get educational toys."

Chris said Lorraine's parents, Michael and Lena DiCarlo, were instrumental in launching their business.

"The overall support and encouragement shown by Lorraine's parents has been very helpful," he says.

Rhyme 'n Reason accepts personal checks, MasterCard, Visa and American Express (Christmas only), and offers gift certificates.

Fall hours are Monday through Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Thursday 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. Parking is available adjacent and in front of the store.

The phone number is 617-472-9500.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Private Party Auctions A Growing R.E. Trend

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

Because of the large number of bank failures in the late 1980s, most notably the Bank of New England failure in October 1987, real estate auctions have been widely associated with distress.

Announcements of foreclosure sales of single and multi-family homes, condominiums, commercial buildings, and land and subdivisions filled the classified advertising pages. Though a necessary procedure, real estate auctions ended up exceeding all expectations of the sellers and created an alternative market in the real estate industry.

However, due to the improving economy and the resolution of bad loans, the number of foreclosure auctions (or mortgagee's sale of real estate, as they are more formally called) has decreased dramatically. Though the number of foreclosure auctions has decreased, there are still a good number of auctions being conducted.

Why is that? Private party auctions.

My office receives dozens of calls each week, and the conversation generally starts with "I have had my house on the market for about a year, and I just want to sell." There is a surplus of property for sale and it is essentially a buyer's market right now, and private property owners are looking for alternate solutions to sell their property. They perceive an auction as a relatively quick solution to sell.

And they're right. The approximate timeframe from scheduling an auction to the actual auction day is three to four weeks. From there, the successful buyer will usually have 30 to 45 days to close the transaction.

One of the many people who are pursuing the auction method is Patricia Hoey, who owns Unit 212 at the Elms at Arbor Hill in South Weymouth. She decided on an auction because of its short timeframe.

"Timing was very important in deciding to sell my home," said Hoey.

"I had researched auctions, had seen great results, and I believe an auction is the best way to get at my equity rather than have my condo languish on the market for an extended period of time."

Hoey's condo will be auctioned Saturday, Sept. 16 at 11 a.m.

An auction differs from traditional real estate brokerage in numerous ways. With an auction, the seller names the date and time he or she wants to sell the home. Another difference is the type of marketing done on the sale. While a broker may have six months or a year to find a buyer, an auctioneer has only four weeks to attract a high bidder to the sale.

Marketing is a key element in conducting a successful auction sale.

The campaign is generally more concentrated and done on a higher scale. The typical auction campaign includes display advertising, direct mail, press releases, leafleting the surrounding area, as well as signage.

However, auctions differ from brokerage in that the seller pays for all marketing. It must be noted, though, that the auctioneer's commission is many times lower than that of the traditional broker's.

There are many different types of real estate auctions. Some sellers choose to sell their property absolute with no minimum, no reserve, meaning the property will be sold the day of the auction regardless of the price. Absolute auctions attract the greatest number of bidders because of the possibility of getting a great deal. However, we have found that because of the enormous attendance, the bidding competition is greater and the sales price far exceeds expectations. Many times the auctions are conducted with a reserve price, or minimum bid, meaning that the bidding will start at the absolute lowest dollar figure in which the seller will accept. Sellers should realize the lower the minimum bid, the greater the number of auction attendees, which means the greater the bidding competition.

Many people in New England don't realize the auctions, or public sales, are the primary methods of selling real estate in many different parts of the United States, especially in the South, and the public sale is the only method used in Australia.

Auctions have created a market for selling and buying. Real estate investors, first-time buyers, people looking to get a little more for their money, among many others have benefitted and shall continue to benefit from what auctions have to offer. Because of the improving economy, banks are loaning again and people can expect to finance their acquisition.

Private party auctions will be the wave of the future, and both buyers and sellers alike will feel comfortable with the fact that they are getting the fair market price of their property.

Century 21 Teams With Coca-Cola, Wendy's In Customer Promotions

Except for being industry giants, Century 21, Wendy's and Coca-Cola don't have much in common, except that the combination of the three can be pretty powerful.

Century 21 Liberty at 1212 Hancock St., Quincy Center and Century 21 Annex of Beale St., Wollaston have joined with thousands of fellow real estate offices throughout the country to team up with the two other giants in producing customer promotions which will give away everything from French fries to a house.

Both Quincy offices have chipped in for prizes which include a year's worth of mortgage or rent, car, utility and long distance service payments as well as food prizes for lucky winners.

"This is one of the first times in real estate history that companies of this scale have co-branded to produce such a promotion for consumers," said Carolyn Weber, vice president of marketing for Century

21 of the Northeast, Inc. "We think it's a terrific way for consumers to win substantial prizes and generate good will towards our brands for donating the money."

In order to qualify for prizes, which are available for one month as of this past Monday, consumers must stop in at their local participating Wendy's to pick up peel-off game pieces on 20-ounce soft drinks. Prizes will be listed under the sticker of some pieces. In addition to the cash awards, several million food prizes will be granted.

First Time Homebuyer's Workshops Begin Sept. 12

Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., an approved first-time homebuyer counseling agency, will hold a series of four First-Time Homebuyer's Workshops beginning Sept. 12.

The other workshops will be held Sept. 14, 19 and 21. All will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Fletcher Hall Conference Room at Braintree Town Hall, One JFK Memorial Drive, Braintree.

Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass. Housing Finance Agency and other financing options. Workshops are sponsored by the City of Quincy and EOCD.

The workshop agenda will focus on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within one's budget, how to make an offer, and the types of financing best suited to one's needs.

Advanced registration is required. Space is limited. Cost is $30. For more information, call Debbie Kidd, housing specialist at 479-8181, ext. 115.

Senior Facilities Proposed For Marina Bay Site

Continuum Care Corporation of Needham announces its plans to develop Lots 23 and 24 at Marina Bay in Quincy into a complete range of health care and housing facilities for senior citizens.

Specifically, the development program calls for 120 independent living units, 80 assisted living units, a 132-bed nursing home, and a 40,000-square-foot medical office building. The proposal also includes 580 parking spaces.

"The demand for quality senior housing continues to grow," said Andrew D. Gosman, executive vice president of Continuum Care Corporation. "Specifically, developments that incorporate a range of housing and health care options which allow seniors to 'age-in-place.' This proposed Marina Bay project will let Quincy residents remain in their community, close to family and friends."

Continuum Care Corporation is a diversified health care company specializing in the development and construction of health care facilities for its own account and for third parties, the operation of senior housing and long-term care facilities and, through its Medical Services Group, the provision of regional networks of outpatient services including home health care services, rehabilitation, cancer treatment, infusion therapy, and lithotripsy.

Merrymount Students Present Dinosaur Program

Second graders in Kathleen Fitzpatrick's class at the Merrymount School recently presented the annual Dinosaur Program for parents and other guests.

The dinosaur study is an interdisciplinary unit involving all areas of the curriculum.

Under the direction of Merrymount art specialist Jonathan Boughton, the children participated in many projects including a dinosaur mural, pipe cleaner dinosaurs, dinosaur mobiles, craypous pictures and self-hardening clay models of fossils. All art work was displayed in the school.

At the conclusion of the program, the children were presented with a Certificate of Achievement in the areas of social studies, science and language arts.

The following children received certificates: Michael Arrufat, Mitchell Baker, Stacey Baszkiewicz, Joseph Cafano, Nicole Chiarelli, Jennelle Desmond, Courtney Duke, Jessica Duncan, Kimberly Grossi, Stephen Haddad, Genevieve Humez-Rouss, Katlyn Magnell, Paul McKeen, Francis McKenna, Emily Ross, James Spellman, Katie Walsh, Derek Young.

The students also enjoyed a "dinosaur brunch" prepared by their parents. The menu included Pterodactyl Wings, Triceratops Treats, Jurassic Blocks, Stegosaurus Veggies and Dip, Tyrannosaurus Cake and Saltosaurus Soda.

Your Social Security

Social Security As Life Insurance

By CAROL BOYLE

Many people don't realize how much of their Social Security taxes counts for the protection of their families when they die. But it's true that your Social Security survivors insurance protection could be worth more than the commercial life insurance you may (or may not) have.

This misperception is strengthened by ads like that of a current TV life insurance commercial in which a widow refers to her husband's Social Security survivors payments as "not enough to bury him with." She was referring to the $255 lump sum payment Social Security makes to the widow of deceased workers.

To the extent that the statement indicates that the lump sum benefit is the sum total of Social Security survivors benefits, it is misleading. About 7.3 million or 18 percent of the 42 million persons receiving monthly Social Security benefits are survivors of deceased workers. They are aged and disabled widows and widowers, children, including adults disabled since childhood. The list also includes divorced surviving spouses, parents and grandchildren.

While most workers have life insurance policies, the average value of a group policy is less than $30,000 and an individual policy less than $40,000. Under Social Security, however, the survivors protection of the family of a worker who dies at age 25 with average earnings is worth about $333,000. If the worker had maximum earnings subject to the Social Security tax, the survivors benefits would be worth about $519,000. The average benefit paid to a widowed mother and two children in 1995 is $1,365. The maximum benefit payable to such a family in which the worker paid maximum earnings under Social Security is $2,430. And these benefits increase with the cost of living, something few private plans offer.

The chance of collecting survivors benefits is greater than most people realize. Social Security actuaries estimate that today's 20-year-old faces roughly a 2-in-10 possibility of dying before reaching retirement age. And virtually all workers have Social Security benefits help them maintain their life-styles in the absence of a wage earner; for others, it helps keep them above the poverty level; and for others, particularly large, low-income families with young children, Social Security benefits have been known to make the difference between staying together as a family or splitting up.

If you are interested in more information on this important Social Security protection, call the Social Security office and ask for the booklet Survivors.

Durkin Stresses Wollaston Roots To Senior Citizens

Stephen J. Durkin, candidate for Ward 5 city councillor, recently addressed Wollaston senior citizens at Tobin Towers, Wollaston Manor and the Fenno House as a series of "Ice Cream Sundae Parties."

In his remarks to seniors, Durkin stressed his roots in the Wollaston area.

"As someone who grew up in Wollaston, I am absolutely thrilled with the opportunity to represent Ward 5 on the City Council," Durkin said. Recalling his ties to Wollaston, Durkin told his audience that "Wollaston is where I attended elementary school at the Massachusetts Fields School, where I learned to swim at Wollaston Beach, and where I got my first job at Purity Supreme" (now Wollaston Market).

Durkin said he is "very familiar with many Wollaston families and residents' concerns" and told seniors that "it would be an honor and privilege for me to serve the Wollaston area, as well as other Ward 5 neighborhoods, on the City Council."

A lifelong Quincy resident, Durkin cited his accomplishments on the school committee, where he served for three terms, and stressed that as a ward councillor public safety would be on of his top priorities. "I pledge to be a 'watchdog' for public safety concerns such as crime, pedestrian accidents, sidewalks in disrepair, and the effects of the Shaw's project. Keeping our neighborhoods and streets safe for our citizens is paramount."

Durkin and his wife, Maureen, live at 125 Colonial Dr. with their two daughters, Mollie and Bridget. Durkin is an attorney, and serves as president of the Board of Directors, Quincy After School Day Care, and teaches C.C.D. at St. Ann's in Wollaston.

'Make-A-Wish' Bowl-A-Thon In Memory Of Quincy Woman

The family and friends of Ann Marie Notarangelo will host their second annual Bowl-A-Thon Saturday, Sept. 9 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at O'Lindy's Bowling Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., Quincy to benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Greater Boston (MAWFGB).

The event raised $20,000 last October for the charity which grants wishes to children who have been diagnosed with life-threatening or terminal illnesses.

The Bowl-A-Thon is held in memory of Notarangelo, a Quincy resident who died of a brain aneurysm three days before she was to be married in 1993. Family members said she had a special fondness for children.

"One of her greatest loves of all was children," said Justine Notarangelo, Ann Marie's mother. "It is for this reason that we have chosen the Make-A-Wish Foundation as the annual recipient of our fund-raising efforts."

"If it weren't for the generosity of individuals like the Notarangelos, we would not be able to fulfill the wishes of all the eligible children in eastern Massachusetts," said Carin Townsend, executive director of MAWFGB. "We are so appreciative for all of their tremendous efforts on our behalf."

Bowlers of all skill levels and ages are invited to participate in the event, which attracted over 275 bowlers last year. Individuals and teams of five are encouraged to participate. The day will include bowling contests, raffles, clowns, prizes and more.

Suggested registration fee is $50 per person. All proceeds will benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation. For more information, call 471-5178.

Chretien Receives Labor Endorsements

Lawrence Chretien, candidate for councillor-at-large, has received a number of labor endorsements.

In June, Chretien received endorsements from several individual locals, including, the Bricklayers Local 3, the Carpenters Local 424, the Plumbers Local 12 and the Ironworkers Local 7.

"I'm pleased with the large number of labor endorsements I've received because it means that working people understand and appreciate my record of support for working men and women while on the City Council," said Chretien, who added that he expects more labor endorsements in the coming weeks.

Chretien, who has been Ward 3 councillor since 1988, said his present campaign is his best-organized one. He added that it is maintaining an aggressive schedule of visibilities with supporters at T stations and intersections throughout Quincy. Chretien is continuing his own schedule of house parties, visits to senior citizen complexes and door knocking in neighborhoods across the city.

To show his appreciation to those citizens who have been working hard on his campaign, he will host a Volunteer Appreciation Party Monday, Sept. 11.

Rendle: 'We Don't Want To Come Away Empty-Handed'

Red Raiders Goal: Another State Title

The goal for the North Quincy High volleyball team is simple: recapture the Div. 1 state title.

The Red Raiders have gone a whole two years without hanging a volleyball championship banner on the gymnasium wall. Last year they came oh-so-close, falling in the title match to New Bedford.

But the Whalers have lost their entire starting lineup, opening the doors for a North Quincy club which may be "the best offensive team we've ever had," according to 11th-year head coach Jim Rendle.

"We have plenty of experience and I think we can win it again," said Rendle. "We lost of couple of starters, but we have a lot of people coming back and we're going to be strong. We're looking to be in the finals again, but this time we don't want to come away empty-handed."

North Quincy will warm-up by hosting a 12-team pre-season jamboree Sunday from 12-6 p.m. They open the regular season with a rematch against New Bedford on Wednesday, Sept. 13 at 5:30. Last year the Whalers handed the Red Raiders three of their losses in a 16-5 campaign. North split its season series with Barnstable, a team which may provide its biggest challenge this year, and lost to Chelmsford.

The Red Raiders have the horses to go the distance, including senior co-captain and middle blocker Linda Jellison, who may be the best volleyball player in New England. "Right now, Linda is playing as good as anyone in the state," said the coach. Also captaining the North Quincy squad is senior middle blocker Sara Stanton. Both Jellison and Stanton.

North Volleyball Team Will Hit The Road

The North Quincy volleyball team will take the show on the road for an invitational tournament at Fox Lane High School in Westchester, N.Y.

Northern east coast teams from as far away as North Carolina will take part in the event which begins Sept. 30.

"We have two reason for going," said Red Raiders coach Jim Rendle. "We want to see the best teams in the East and we want to expose the kids to the higher level of competition that they may find in college and expose them to college scouts."

Rendle said all six of his starters have the potential to play on the collegiate level. His top starter and co-captain, Linda Jellison, "will be heavily recruited."

North Quincy's other co-captain, Sara Stanton, will have the choice of playing either volleyball or basketball in college.

Another Q-NQ Showdown?

Five Returning Starters Lead Quincy Into Battle

Last year the Quincy High School girls volleyball team was swept by North Quincy, 3-0, in the South Sectional final.

With all but one player returning from that 13-9 team, Quincy could again be on a collision course with their heated cross-town rivals.

"Right now our goal is to make the tourney," said head coach Tom Henderson, who is entering his 11th year at the helm and his 12th with the program. "Somewhere along the line we'll probably run into North Quincy."

But first, the Presidents must deal with a schedule that includes an opening game at home against Dennis-Yarmouth on Sept. 13 at 4 p.m. On Friday, Sept. 15, they travel to New Bedford for a game against the defending Div. 1 state champions.

They have a final pre-season tune-up Sunday from 12-6 p.m. in a jamboree at North Quincy High. Twelve teams will participate with each playing four other teams.

The returning starters for Quincy are seniors Kristen Priscella, Kerri Connolly, Toni Kabilian and Kristen Sheehan and junior Felicia Tam. Helping to shore up the group is the return of senior Katie Gallagher who played volleyball in her freshman and sophomore years but opted to pursue track in her junior season.

Athletically, it is a very talented group as the majority of the girls are multi-sport athletes. "We are good athletically across the board," said Henderson. "In the off-season some play volleyball or lift weights or play basketball. As long as they're active, that's all I care about."

Priscella will captain the squad. "Kristen is a great leader in terms of attitude and the way she plays. She is on of the most genuine athletes I've ever had," said Henderson.

The coach is also looking for "significant" contributions from junior Angela Hogrell and sophomores Mary Chenette and Erin Barry. "Each of them played for the first time last year and I'm looking for them to step up this season," said the coach. A freshman, Laurie Picot, "showed up unexpectedly and could be very interesting. She's very athletic and very strong."

Though he does have an experienced, athletic group, Henderson's club lacks one thing that can not be taught: height.

"Since we are vertically challenged," he said in his most politically correct tone, "we're going to have to be more flexible in terms of who plays where."

"We'll have to rely on good ball handling skills and be very aggressive defensively. We're not going to overpower people at the net."

As a result, Henderson has no set positions for his team. At least early in the season, his players will experiment with multiple positions.

"The first week of practice is always intense. I like what I've seen so far. We have more kids than usual competing for playing time, which is something we haven't had for a few years."

What will it mean come the regular season? "I think New Bedford will have a hard time repeating. Our schedule is not as tough as in past years, but still, it's not easy."

Included on the schedule are two regular season battles with North Quincy and, quite possibly, a third playoff showdown. "They're quite a bit taller than us, so they're going to be tough," said Henderson.

Veterans To Spark Improved Quincy Girls

With nine returning starters, it looks like the Quincy High School girls soccer team should be able to improve over the one that struggled throughout the 1994 season.

"Basically, we lot just three kids and only two starters," said third-year coach Sonya Herring. "With the majority of our starters returning we should have a good season. I think you'll see some improvements over last year."

They will get their first chance to see if things are going to improve Saturday when they travel to Taunton for a 10:30 a.m. opening game. Their second game is at Weymouth Tuesday at 5 p.m. The Presidents do not get its first home test until Sept. 20 when they battle Plymouth South at 4 p.m.

The Presidents were able to mount just three ties during the 1994 campaign. One bright spot was a 1-1 tie against arch-rival North Quincy.

Herring will count heavily on offensive threat Kelly Howard, who led the Presidents in scoring last year. "Kelly was one of the top five players in the Old Colony League last year and we're going to depend on her to lead the offense again," said the coach.

Howard is just one of a handful of seniors on the Quincy squad. The other key players will be senior goaltender Mary Kelly, a second-team all-league selection last season.

The other seniors are Andrea Gill, Janet Kane and Heather Wakelin.

The junior set includes Kim Garthwaite, Kim Mackey, Erin Flaherty and Katie Sullivan.

The Presidents squad this year includes a large and promising group of sophomores led by Kara McSweeney, a likely starter and goal-scoring threat at forward. The others are Jessica DiBona, Marissa Ross, Michelle Boncek, Kim Haslett, Jessica Furtado, Becky Mackey, Kristen Stenberg and Diane Hanlon.

"I expect Kara and (juniors) Flaherty and Sullivan to do some good things for us this year," said Herring.

The freshmen groups includes Molly Jacobs, Krystal Kazolias, Leanne Martin, Kim DiBona, Heather Setztl, Laura McEvoy, Beth Perry and Julie Gibbons.

"We just have to do our best and hopefully we'll have a better season," said Herring. "I just want them to realize that they can be a good team; want them to work together as a team and some good things will happen."

they'll provide leadership for us on and off the field to help us reach the next level," said Bregoli.

Other seniors on the squad are midfielder/forward Sarah Mulvey, midfielder Kim Fitzgerald and midfielder/forward Jessie Ceurvels. He also expects good things from juniors Laura Shea, Hillary O'Donoghue and goalie Lisa Bragg, and sophomores Katie Koch, Laurie Flynn and Joclyn West.

"We have some returning kids who can play," said the coach. "We have some talent, and that's a starting point. I want to maximize the girls' potential. My job as a coach is to make them better players."

The club will also benefit greatly from the addition of freshmen Rachael Powers and Betsy Stone. Both are highly-competitive athletes who are likely to make names for themselves over the next four years: Powers is coming off a baseball season in which she was a key member of the Babe Ruth champion Elks team. Stone is a multi-sport athlete and in the winter she will tryout for the Red Raiders hockey team.

"I'm real excited about the group I have. They're a good bunch of kids; very enthusiastic."

"I think they were apprehensive about my approach at first, but they've responded well."

New Boys Coach Aims At Winning Tradition At NQ

Mark Scanlan stood yelling orders as the dust of a rainless summer swirled around his players. Over and over he had his men run the same set-piece play.

"Hey, we got all day to get this right!" he barked to no one in particular.

Scanlan has yet to coach a boys soccer game at North Quincy High School, but if his sweaty practice was any indication, a new era is dawning for the North Quincy boys soccer team. The first-year head man minced no words when asked what his goals were for the 1995 season and for the future of the program.

"We're going to try to make the tournament," he said. "I want to have more than just a good team, I want to build a winning tradition." Certainly a lofty and admirable goal.

Scanlan, a 1986 graduate of North Quincy and now a history teacher at his alma mater, inherits a program which has had trouble winning more than a handful of games over the past decade. The new coach brings tournament experience as a player on the last Red Raiders team to make the post-season in 1983. He played under then boys coach Paul Bregoli who took over the North Quincy girls soccer team this year. Scanlan took his talents beyond NQ and played at Clark University.

"I think you have to set goals," he said. "Whether they're makable or not you find out later. You just have to go out and see what you got."

"Quincy should be a great soccer town. North Quincy had a winning program even before Bregoli was around. But we got to start here and get a good outlook on next year so we can get more athletes out and get them into a winning system."

Scanlan knows that he will not reach his goals over night, particularly in light of the challenges that await he and his team in the talent-laden and ever-tough Old Colony League. "It's a great league and it's going to be difficult, but we got a great group of guys. If these guys are aggressive and attack balls in the air - that's our key - we're gonna win some games. We going to play an aggressive English style of soccer."

"The way we're going to beat people is to beat them up a little. We have to be the most conditioned and most aggressive team on the field in every game we play."

They will get their first test Saturday at 10 a.m. when they travel to Plymouth South. Their first home game is Tuesday at 4 p.m. against Falmouth.

Leading the unit into battle will be senior captains Peter Johnson and Dan Stone. Johnson will be the trailing forward and Stone will command the defense as sweeper.

"Both are the anchors of their respective positions," said Scanlan. "Dan will run the defense and Peter will distribute the ball on offense. Both worked very hard and will do their jobs as captains and set the tone for the team."

Joining Stone as the likely starters on defense in North Quincy's 4-2-4 alignment will be junior Billy Barron and sophomores Steve Wilson and Colin Shea.

"We've got a young defense," said the coach. "They've got to work as a unit, meaning they've got to be vocal. They're not yet."

At midfield will be junior Neil Costa and junior Mike Johnston or junior Matt Bromley.

Junior Chris Erler will play striker, sophomore Billy Walker will man the left wing and senior Chris Morris will handle the right wing.

Senior Paul Towne is the likely starting goalie.

Scanlan will count on Johnson, Erler, Costa and Walker to provide the goal-scoring punch.

The coach is counting on his men to work hard this year. "We're not going to lose any games from lack of effort," he said.

Red Raiders Eye State Title

Stanton are three-year starters and have four years of varsity experience.

They lead a starting six in which each girl has the potential to play volleyball on the college level. Rachel Repoff, an outside hitter, is the third senior on the starting crew.

Keying the potentially explosive attack is junior setter Kerry Ginty. She joins Jellison and Stanton as the third returning starter from last year's finalists. It is Ginty, a three-sport star, who could prove the difference between North Quincy and the rest of the pack.

"We have an experienced setter," said Rendle. "A lot of other teams don't, and I think we're fortunate in that respect. I hope it will be an advantage for us."

Also on the starting rotation are junior outside hitters Erica Crawford and Kerry Jellison.

Sophomore setter Megan O'Donnell will back up

Ginty. "Megan's one of the reason why we're strong at setter," said Rendle. Others among the 35 girls on the squad who are likely to pick up varsity experience are seniors Joanna Timbone and Shannon McCauley, and juniors Sara Downey, Courtney Mitchell and Jill Picardi.

Though confident in his team's abilities and single-minded in his goals, Rendle is not going to crown his club prematurely.

"I would say anything can happen. We can have an injury or whatever. But we have potential. When you have potential a lot of good things can take place."

"But we have a lot of things to do. We have to improve over the course of the season. All five girls can attack well. The big question is, can we play defense as well as our past state championship teams?"

Rendle takes pride in knowing that teams will be shooting for North Quincy every time they take the court and will have his team ready for all-comers. "I don't want some hungry young team coming up and taking it away from us."

"I think everyone knows that the road to the state title goes through North Quincy. We're kind of use to it and I enjoy it. I think it's complimentary to our program and complimentary to our kids."

"It reminds the kids of the responsibility they have to work and to gain respect. There's a price that has to be paid to earn that respect."

Among those 'hungry young teams' is North Quincy's most intense rival, Quincy High. "Quincy will be much better and much improved," said Rendle. "I definitely think we'll meet up with them in the tournament."

Last year the Red Raiders disposed of the Presidents in the South Sectional final.

Fitzgerald Soccer Captain

Nichols College junior midfielder Brian Fitzgerald, a 1993 graduate of North Quincy High School, has been named co-captain of the Bisons soccer team.

"Fitzgerald has good leadership skills and is poised to have a strong season," said head coach Al Grudzinskas.

Fitzgerald was one of only six players to see action in 20 or more games for the Bisons last fall.

The 5-10, 197-pound midfielder will be counted on to lead Nichols College boys and girls ages 6 to 18.

Swim Team Tryouts

Nichols College junior midfielder Brian Fitzgerald, a 1993 graduate of North Quincy High School, has been named co-captain of the Bisons soccer team.

"Fitzgerald has good leadership skills and is poised to have a strong season," said head coach Al Grudzinskas.

Fitzgerald was one of only six players to see action in 20 or more games for the Bisons last fall.

The 5-10, 197-pound midfielder will be counted on to lead Nichols College boys and girls ages 6 to 18.

The Strypers compete in Eastern Mass. Div. 1 swimming from September through March. They also compete in United States Swimming.

A RECEPTION for the University of Massachusetts men's basketball team was recently held at the State House. Among those attending were, from left, Coach John Calipari; Quincy attorney and former UMass basketball standout George Burke; Carmello Traviso and Sen. Michael Morrissey. Burke and Traviso, of Dorchester, each attended Thayer Academy before enrolling at UMass. Morrissey also attended UMass.

In Memory Of A Local 'Hero' Sept. 17 Degan Race Will Support Charities

The August, 1992 events at Ruby Ridge have been the subject of widespread publicity: articles in national news magazines, a major federal investigation, even a novel based on the standoff that took place between U.S. Marshals and Randy Weaver in the isolated Idaho location.

Forgotten amid the hoopla is the fact that a loved and respected Quincy man, William F. Degan, died in the entanglement while in the service of his government.

His friends and family have not forgotten and have set up a road race in the hopes that through Bill Degan's name, they can help others. The third annual William F. Degan Memorial Road Race will take place Sunday, Sept. 17 in Quincy.

"Bill Degan felt strongly about drug abuse, education, sports and the community," said race chairman Dan Stock. "We hope, through annual scholarships and grants to different youth organizations, Bill Degan will be remembered for the hero he was and some good will come of a terrible tragedy."

Proceeds will go to Quincy DARE and USMC Charities. Degan was a member of the United States Marine Corps before joining the Marshal Service.

The 1994 race raised over $10,000.

The event includes 10K and 5K road races and a 5K fun walk.

The races begin and end at Veterans' Memorial Stadium. The starting time is 10 a.m.

Stock expects over 2,000 participants, doubling the number for the second consecutive year. Many of the participants come from law enforcement agencies from across the country. Degan's family will also take part.

Free refreshments and raffles will be included for all participants and their families. Awards and T-shirts will be presented and family post-race activities will include, among others, clowns, face painting and McGruff the Crime Dog.

Quincy mayor James Sheets will start the race.

Registration and number pick-up is from 8-9:30 a.m. at the Stadium on the day of the race. An entry fee of $10 must be received by Sept. 1. The day-of-race fee is $12.

Each race will include eight divisions based on age and sex. There will also be a wheelchair division.

For more information call Dan Stock at 472-6159 or 848-9284; Bill Graney at 472-8220; or Steve DesRoche at 472-4867.

YOU AUTO KNOW

by Tony Centorino, Bill Starkie and Kevin McGroggy

SETTING YOUR SIGHTS To avoid the blind spots that spots.

are bound to occur with poorly adjusted car mirrors, the Society of Automotive Engineers recommends the following setup: Sitting in the driver's seat, lean your head against the side window and adjust the side mirror so that you can just see the side of the car. While sitting on your normal driving position, this alignment should allow you to see a vehicle passing the left lane in your side mirror before its image leaves the rearview mirror. Then, its image should appear in your peripheral vision before its image leaves the side mirror. Next, lean your head over to the car's centerline, while still sitting in the driver's seat. Align the right side mirror so that you can just see the side of the car. These adjustments should eliminate blind spots. HINT: Typically, drivers adjust their side mirrors so that they can see the sides of their cars while seated in the normal driving position.

Safe driving starts with the proper maintenance of your car. At LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we understand that the science of auto technology has actually become very advanced and sophisticated. Whether you have a question about your car, or need to have us look at something specific, trust our professional technicians. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Much has been written about aging... Some humorous; some serious. We came across a little gem we thought you might enjoy as much as we did. It is titled, "IT'S LATER THAN YOU THINK."

"Everything is further than it used to be. It's twice as far to the station for instance, and they have added a hill. I've noticed."

Seems to me they are making staircases steeper then they used to make them in the good old days. And have you noticed the small print they are using? Newspapers are getting farther and farther away when I hold them, and I have to squint to make out the news. No sense in asking to have them read aloud. Everyone speaks in such a low voice a person can hardly hear them.

The barber doesn't hold a mirror behind me any more so that I can see the back of my head. The material in my suits is always too skimpy around the waist and in the seat. And shoe laces are so short they are all but impossible to reach.

Even people are changing. They are so much older then I am. I ran into an old classmate the other night, and he had aged so he didn't recognize me. I got to thinking about the poor old fellow while I was shaving this morning. While doing so, I glanced at my own reflection in the mirror. Confound it! They don't have the same kind of glass in mirrors any more!"

Designed To Aid In Presidential Search College Board To Attend Special Workshop Friday

The Quincy College Board of Governors will meet Friday for a special workshop designed to assist them in the process of searching for a new college president.

The workshop, which is open to the public, will be held from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the college.

The board needs to find a replacement for Interim College President Linda Wilson, who recently announced she will not seek the renewal of her one-year contract with the college which expires Jan. 1, 1996.

Initially, it was believed that the workshop would be led by George Vaughan, a professor at North Carolina State University affiliated with the Washington, D.C.-based Association of Governing Boards of Colleges and Universities. The association assists schools that are searching for a president on an individual basis to determine what each school needs in filling in vacancy.

Board Chairman Daniel Raymondi, however, said this week that an unexpected personal emergency forced Vaughan to bow out. Raymondi added that the workshop will instead be led by Dr. Barbara Leandar, a search consultant affiliated with the association.

Fewer License Board Meetings Through December

The Quincy License Board will schedule fewer meetings for the rest of the year, but according to Chairman Joseph Shea, they will be "fuller and longer".

The board will meet Tuesday, Sept. 12 at 10 a.m. in the second floor of City Hall.

The new three month schedule Shea said will give people "more time when their notices are sent."

Shea added that there were a "lot of conflicts of various department heads" who sometimes were unable to attend weekly meetings. Shea said he left out "election day" Sept. 19, but said he felt as though he "stuck close to as normal a schedule as possible."

The schedule is as follows:
•Sept. 12 and Sept. 26.
•Oct. 3, Oct. 24 and Oct. 31.

•Nov. 7 (tentative), Nov. 21 and Nov. 28.
•Dec. 5, Dec. 12 and Dec. 19.

Sheets Is Skeptical Of City-Run Trash Plan

landfill is located in East Bridgewater. Cheney said the cited is slated to be closed in 1996, according to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts D.E.P. Closure Lists.

Sheets, however, said while he intends to view figures submitted to him by Cheney with an open mind, he is skeptical that the savings is enough to compensate for the efficient service provided by B.F.I.

"We are satisfied that B.F.I. has provided us with excellent service," he said. "They pick up the trash very, very efficiently."

Sheets said bottom-line figures are not the only factor to consider when examining an operation such as the pickup of rubbish and recyclables. Efficiency of operation is equally important, and B.F.I. has more than fulfilled its duties in that area, he said.

In addition, the mayor said there are "hidden costs" associated with municipal pickup-including workers' compensation, equipment maintenance and others-that bottom-line figures do not consider.

Singling out workers' compensation as being a particularly important factor to consider, Sheets said he has spoken to other mayors about the matter and noted that workers' compensation issues have been a problem for some communities that handle their own rubbish/recyclables collection. Sometimes, the mayor added, there are as many employees out of work with injuries as there are doing the work.

Sheets said the city has always done all it can to provide the most efficient pickup at the best possible price.

"This administration is capable of negotiating a contract that is very beneficial to the city's taxpayers," he said. "(DPW Commissioner) David Colton is a very good and astute negotiator. We have a system that has saved $1 million in each of the last three years."

"I think projections on paper are one thing, and what happens on the street is another. We're going to give it (municipal pickup) consideration, but we're not convinced at this point of a savings, and we're not convinced we can do as good a job as B.F.I. You have to be extremely careful when you are going to change a program that works exceptionally well."

Sheets also said he does not believe the public in general wants to see a change in the rubbish/recycling contract. He noted that the only two residents who have approached him on the street to discuss the issue have asked him to keep the status quo.

"I think that speaks to the very efficient job B.F.I. has done," he said.

Colton, who last week refuted Cheney's claim that the current contract has cost Quincy thousands of dollars, is out of state at a conference this week. DPW Program Director Michael Wheelwright said the department plans to address the contract situation "in a timely manner" and will send out separate R.F.P.'s for rubbish collection, rubbish disposal and recyclables as soon as it can.

Quincy Teen's Body Found By N.J. Jogger

The body of a 19-year-old Quincy man who was caught in a rip tide and drowned in New Jersey last week was found over the weekend by a jogger taking a midnight run.

Police in Spring Lake, N.J., said the body of Scott Portesi, a 1995 graduate of North Quincy High School, was found about a quarter-mile north of where he disappeared after he attempted to rescue a friend early in the morning of Aug. 30.

A police spokesman said a woman running along a boardwalk early Saturday morning spotted the body at the edge of the surf.

Police have ruled the death as a drowning but are awaiting results of an autopsy and toxicology tests. Results will not be available for a number of weeks, according to the spokesman.

Members of Portesi's family had no immediate comment at press time. Funeral arrangements will be handled at the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Ayers Center Institutes Customer Service Program

Ayers Handicap Conversion Center has instituted a new Customer Service Program.

With the creation of the program, Ayers representatives said they would continue their commitment to provide a comprehensive, "one-stop" approach to the purchase and installation of all handicap mobility and accessibility products.

Ayers has been converting vehicles, homes and businesses to promote greater accessibility for the handicapped since 1979.

Daniel Keating, a 1994 graduate of Boston College, was recently hired by Ayers to undertake and oversee the program. Prior to joining Ayers, Keating worked as a marketing communications assistant for the Massachusetts Office of Business Development.

a state agency which assists companies in expansion or relocation to the Commonwealth.

"His experience assisting companies both large and small, combined with a marketing background, makes Dan uniquely qualified to help Ayers expand while providing a higher level of Customer Satisfaction," said Company Administrator Bruce Ayers.

Keating said Ayers Handicap Conversion Center will undertake a greater penetration of the entire New England market through an expanded marketing program.

Increased advertising and expansion of their industry networking system will demonstrate that Ayers has the resources to help customers find the answers to their accessibility questions.

"Ayers provides products, installation and service for something as simple as a steering wheel spinner knob, with services ranging to full van conversions. Complete home or business adaptations can also be arranged," said Keating.

SCHOOL COMMITTEE MEMBERS Ronald Mariano (left) and Daniel Raymondi survey the site they have in mind for their proposed elementary school to be built in Quincy Point. The site, a parking lot currently owned by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, is located at Cleverly Court and South St. across the street from the Fore River shipyard.

Sheets Backs Point School Site

By MICHAEL WHALEN
A proposed site for a planned elementary school in Quincy Point has received initial support from Mayor James Sheets.

The 1.8-acre site, a parking lot currently owned by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, is located at Cleverly Court and South Street across the street from the Fore River shipyard. It has been identified as the best site for the new school by the two men who first proposed the project last month: School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi and School Committeeman Ronald Mariano.

Sheets said he strongly supports the concept of a new school in Quincy Point and thinks the site is a good one. The mayor added that he will send a bond issue to the City Council for the school project if a committee led by School Supt. Eugene Creedon sends a favorable report on the proposal to the School Committee Nov. 1, at which time the later committee will likely vote on the matter.

Sheets also said he wants Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon to take a look at the traffic situation in the area to see if any traffic adjustments would have to be made with a new school there. He added that he wants to make sure the site is large enough for the project.

Still, the mayor expressed enthusiasm about the idea.

"No community is whole, which is the size of Quincy Point, without an elementary and middle school," said Sheets. "And it's all but guaranteed that the state would reimburse the city for 63 percent of the construction cost."

Raymondi and Mariano said after discussing several sites, they agreed the MWRA parking lot is the best choice.

"This particular site was always the one we seemed to fall back on," said Raymondi. "The location just seems to be getting stronger and stronger and stronger."

"I think this is the best site," added Mariano. "I liked this site from the beginning. We have a chance to put something of value in there and add to the quality of life in the neighborhood."

Both men said they have discussed the matter with MWRA Executive Director Douglas MacDonald and that he agrees a school would be a good use for the site. Raymondi noted that the site is available because the MWRA currently has no immediate master plan for the lot.

Mariano said the MWRA's real estate division has come up with an initial sale price of $220,000, but he believes city officials can negotiate that number down.

In order to sell the property, the MWRA must move through the state Legislature, Mariano, who serves as a state representative, said he will file a bill to allow that end if all goes well.

Raymondi and Mariano have proposed building the new school to help relieve overcrowding at Sterling Middle School in South Quincy. Under their proposal, the new school would accept pupils who now attend Point-Webster

Only Wards 4, 5 To Cast Ballots Light Vote Seen On Tuesday

Voters in only two of Quincy's six wards will go to the polls in next Tuesday's city preliminary election.

City Clerk Joseph Shea is predicting a 30 percent turnout overall in Wards 4 and 5 where the only contest is for the respective ward City Council seats.

He said the Ward 4 turnout could be a little higher than in Ward 5 due to more active campaigning there.

The four candidates in Ward 4, in order of their appearance on the ballot, are:

Incumbent Thomas A. Fabrizio, 40, a social worker, seeking his fourth term.

Gregg T. Rennie, 29, of Gridley St., a financial advisor.

Michael John D'Amico, 20, of Willard St., a newsdealer, sales representative and college student.

Michael Larkin, 51, of Alrick Rd., a juvenile parole caseworker.

Two will be nominated to square off in the final city election Nov. 7.

Rennie and Larkin are making their first bids. D'Amico challenged Fabrizio two years ago and was turned back by Fabrizio by a 277-vote margin. Fabrizio polled 1,553 votes to D'Amico's 1,276.

In Ward 5, four candidates are seeking the council seat being vacated by Charles Phelan to devote more time to his family and business.

The four, in the order they appear on the ballot:

Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, 64, of Clay St., retired hairdresser and salon owner and former chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging.

Steven P. Reilly, 37, of Beach St., a lieutenant in the Norfolk County sheriff's office.

Dennis M. Dockham, 32, of Elm Ave., a Hanover Mall store manager.

Sun Marks Its 27th Year

The Quincy Sun marks its 27th anniversary with this week's issue--our 1,404th.

The Sun was founded in September, 1968 as Quincy's hometown weekly community newspaper and in that role focuses on Quincy news, features, civic, social and church activities and youth and high school sports.

The Sun has won a number of awards for editorials, photos, special articles and supplements from the New England Press and Massachusetts Press Associations, the American Legion Fourth Estate Award as well as awards and citations from Quincy organizations.

It has also been designated a National Blue Ribbon Newspaper by the National Newspaper Foundation in Washington, D.C.

We are looking forward to our 28th year which begins with next week's issue.

And as we look ahead we again want to thank our faithful readers--many of whom have been with us from the very first issue--our advertisers who make it all possible and our young newscarriers who play an important role in bringing us to your home.

Thank you all. We appreciate your loyalty. We couldn't do it without you.

Quincy, Boston To Discuss Use Of Moon, Long Islands

Mayor James Sheets is scheduled to meet with Boston Police Commissioner Paul Evans to discuss the use of Moon Island and Long Island today (Thursday).

Sheets said he plans to meet with the commissioner at 8 a.m. in Boston. At issue are the rights of both cities regarding the two islands, which are owned by Boston but are accessible only through the Squantum section of Quincy.

The mayor noted that a bi-city commission has already begun negotiations, but he will meet today with Evans anyway. It is not yet clear whether Boston Mayor Thomas Menino or Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen will become involved in future talks, he added.

Quincy has questioned Boston's actions a number of times regarding the use of the islands in the last two years, including its use of a gun range and detonation of bombs on Moon Island and announcement last July to have tons of gravel through Squantum for a shore stabilization project on Long Island.

Both mayors have said they are confident a compromise will be reached.

Still to be resolved is whether Quincy will drop a lawsuit over Boston's planned gun range expansion and demands for a state environmental report. A state review would require Boston to consider alternatives to the Moon Island site.

Presidents Place Sponsoring Red Sox Memorabilia Contest

Patrons at Presidents Place have a chance to win Red Sox memorabilia and merchandise such as Mo Vaughn's shirt, an autographed baseball and other Sox apparel.

Through Sept. 18, the Red Sox items will be on display at stores inside Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Although they are not for sale, each one will go home with a lucky customer.

Just by stopping by Presidents Place to fill out an entry form, customers will have a chance to win four skybox seats to a Red Sox game, a baseball autographed by Mo Vaughn, Tim Lincecum and Mo Vaughn shirts, a jacket, helmet, cap, seat cushions, pennants, posters and inflatable balls and bats.

Completed entry forms, available at all merchant stores and the security desk, should be deposited in the box located in the Presidents Place atrium.

Winners' names will be drawn the week of Sept. 18. Contestants need not be present to win.

Participating businesses include ATS Mobil Electronics, Buck-a-Book, Lazzarino's Gourmet Pizzeria, Dunkin' Donuts, G.J. Coddington's, HCHP Optical, Presidential Dry Cleaners, Presidents Place Dental, Tedeschi Food Shop, Treasure Chest and Weight Watchers.

For more information, call 773-8339.

Donut Chain Gets License At Eddie's Diner Site

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board issued a license Tuesday to Honey Dew Donuts, 382 Quincy Ave. (former Eddie's Diner) to operate 24 hours with restrictions from Jack Gillon, traffic engineer and building inspector Matt Mulvey.

Mulvey told the owners he would not issue a building permit unless Gillon was satisfied with his parking concerns. Gillon cited a problem with angle parking with restrictions on the Northerly side of the establishment. He also suggested no left turn on Quincy Avenue.

Police Chief Francis Mullen suggested a camera security system while Fire Chief Thomas Gorman suggested window operation only at certain hours.

Gorman told the board that he was in favor of issuing the permit even with restrictions noting that the site is an "eyesore". He added that it has been used by homeless people sleeping there since the diner closed. He said a new business at the site would be a "great asset to the city".

Restrictions are as follows:

- A sign be constructed on Quincy Avenue reading "no left turn".

- No inside services between the hours of 2 to 4:30 a.m.

- A suitable landscaping plan.

- No angle parking at the drive-through site.

Traffic Topic Sept. 20 For Montclair-Wollaston Assn.

The Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association will hold a special meeting Wednesday, Sept. 20 at 7:30 p.m. in the Montclair School Auditorium to discuss the Holbrook Rd. one-way and related traffic problems.

The association, with the assistance of Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien, has invited Quincy Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon and a representative of the Quincy Police Department to attend the community meeting.

Residents have been concerned for some time about the Holbrook Rd. one-way and the safety of students of Montclair, Wollaston and Sacred Heart schools. Those attending the meeting will suggest changes to help alleviate the traffic situation.

Sheets Calls Planned Old Colony Station 'Economic Stimulus'

Mayor James Sheets has called the state's plan to build a new station for the Old Colony Railroad in Quincy Center an "economic stimulus" that will help the revitalization of the downtown and the entire city.

The open-air station would be attached to the Quincy Center Red Line station. It would be built between Burgin Parkway and the parking lot at City Hall.

Sheets said he sees the planned station as something that will have a major positive impact on the city.

"It's truly an economic stimulus that will have a major impact in the development of tourism, a downtown hotel, and revitalization in general," he said. "It will connect us with Kingston and Plymouth. I'm thrilled."

The $4 million project, announced by state officials late last week, will come at the expense of a planned Old Colony station in Braintree which the state has decided not to build. Braintree officials said they are happy for Quincy but they think both communities deserve commuter rail stations and promised to fight the decision.

Sen. Michael Morrissey, who represents Quincy and Braintree, also has said both communities deserve a station.

Sheets denied his vocal support of Gov. William Weld resulted in a special deal for Quincy.

"Braintree has the right to be upset with what has happened," he said. "But though I argued Quincy's case for a community rail station, I never argued at the expense of Braintree."

Asked about Braintree's plans to fight the decision, Sheets said, "That's exactly what I would do in their situation."

The Quincy Center station is scheduled to open in December 1996 when restoration of Old Colony lines in Middleboro and Plymouth is completed.

The downtown project calls for the extension of the T platform about 300 feet south to provide access to the nearby commuter track. The mayor said construction would cause little disruption to Quincy Center and will not affect the historic Hancock Cemetery.

Sheets added that no parking facilities will be added and no reconfiguration of nearby streets will be needed.

The Old Colony rail line runs from Boston to Braintree, where it splits into three branches. Construction of Plymouth and Middleboro branches is well underway, while the governor has delayed indefinitely a decision on whether to rebuild the Greenbush branch.

State officials said more detailed plans for the station will be drawn up in the coming weeks.

Last year, Quincy submitted a study by a New York consulting firm to the state that showed building a commuter rail station would be inexpensive and that the station would be well-used.

The city has not always been supportive of a commuter rail station. In 1989, the MBTA offered to build a commuter station in the city but city officials declined, fearing increased noise and vibrations.

FORMER SCHOOL COMMITTEEMAN Charles Sweeny is sworn in as a member of the Board of Registrars by City Clerk Joseph Shea as Mayor James Sheets, who appointed him, looks on. Sweeny succeeds Louise Randall who retired as a Republican member of the board.

(Quincy Sun photo/Robert Noble)

Charles Sweeny Named To Registrars Board

Former School Committeeman Charles Sweeny was named to the Board of Registrars by Mayor James Sheets this week.

Sweeny, who succeeds Louise Randall as a Republican member of the board, was sworn in Monday by City Clerk Joseph Shea.

Sweeny lives on Ames St., West Quincy and served on the board during Mayor Frank McCauley's administration.

He served 16 years on the School Committee between 1956 and 1977. He is a former member of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

He retired in 1986 as Chief of the Veterans Services Administration in the Boston Regional Office where he served 40 years.

Citizens Police Academy Applications Available

Police Chief Francis Mullen announces that the Quincy Police Department is accepting applications for its third Citizens Police Academy class.

The department has graduated a total of 57 citizens from the academy in the past year.

The Citizens Police Academy provides residents with an opportunity to learn more about the department, officers, and tasks performed by the police. Topics covered in the academy include Criminal Law, Patrol Procedures, Weapons and Tactics, Radar, Domestic Violence, Crime Scene Investigation, Drug Investigations and a ride along with an officer.

The academy will begin

Thursday, Oct. 5 and continue meeting one night each week for 10 weeks. Classes will be held from 6:30 to 10 p.m.

Applicants must be Quincy residents and at least 21 years of age. All applicants will undergo a thorough background check.

Those interested in attending the academy can obtain applications at the front desk of the Quincy Police Headquarters, One Sea St. Applications must be received no later than Sept. 22. Successful candidates will be notified the week of Sept. 25.

For more information, call Bob Hanna, project director at 479-1212, ext. 349.

Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico were first explored in 1901 by Jim White, a cowboy who saw large numbers of bats come out of an opening in the ground.

A POTENT REASON FOR HEALTHY LIVING

As if they needed it, men may have another reason to follow all that good advice about living a prudent life-style: the ability to enjoy a healthy love life. Researchers have found that a man's overall health is a leading indicator of his ability to perform sexually throughout his life. Men who are being treated for heart disease, hypertension or diabetes were up to four times more likely to experience impotence than their healthier counterparts. When the heart disease or hypertension patients were also smokers, their risk of becoming totally impotent rose to 56 percent. Even HDL levels (the amount of "good" blood cholesterol) make a difference, with higher HDL readings reducing the impotency risk.

P.S. About half of all U.S. men between the ages of 40 and 70 suffer from some degree of impotence.

Making sure you take good care of your health is essential—and routine exercise, enough sleep, and eating healthy foods can all help ensure your well-being. AT COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I focus on treating and preventing heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're here at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550 for an appointment. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE.

Early Election Night

It should be an early—and less expensive—preliminary election next Tuesday.

With preliminary contests in only two of the city's six wards, City Clerk Joseph Shea expects to have the final vote tabulation all wrapped up between 9:15 and 9:30 p.m.

"If of course," he notes, "a gremlin doesn't creep into the picture. But the election punch card reader has been running smoothly the past three elections and we should be in good shape Tuesday."

The two preliminary contests for Ward 4 and Ward 5 city councillor will cost about $35,000, Shea estimates. Or, about $15,000 less than a preliminary election with a city-wide mayor, city council at large or school committee run-off would cost.

The savings is due to the fact that only 10 of the city's 30 voting precincts have to be manned next Tuesday.

The similar preliminary election was for Ward 3 and Ward 5 councillor in 1987. That was the year Larry Chretien and Charles Phelan went on to win the Ward 3 and 5 council seats respectively in the final election.

SUSAN GALLAGHER, former chairwoman of the Quincy City Republican Committee is running for the U.S. Senate—as a Conservative.

GALLAGHER

A former Quincy resident who now lives in Milton, she says she has changed her political affiliation because: "The Republicans have become too liberal. Weld's budget is more than Dukakis' was. The Republicans want millionaires for candidates. They are out of touch with the middle class."

"The middle class unfairly bears the burden for society as a whole. In most families, two people need to work just to make ends meet. While the number of work hours for families has increased, the quality of life has decreased."

"People are worried about their jobs, about their children receiving a good education, about crime in their communities and many feel that no one is listening to them. Perhaps it is because the people who are now in Washington don't have a clue what it is like to live in the real world."

SHEA

Gallagher, who owns a Wollaston real estate agency, doesn't pussy-foot around where she stands on issues.

She's for: Less government, pro-life, welfare reform, the death penalty for those convicted of first-degree murder, middle class tax reductions, a Constitutional amendment protecting the U.S. flag from desecration. She's against: preference programs such as affirmative action, gay rights and quotas.

Gallagher underwent an emergency appendectomy two weeks ago but is back to work and launching her campaign.

JEANNE REARDON, clerk of City Council Committees, underwent gallbladder surgery at Quincy Hospital last week and is "doing fine." She expects to return to her desk shortly.

REARDON

THE ISSUES MAY not be as grave as some discussed at the women's conference in China but if you haven't heard them before, you might find them interesting. Especially if you are a woman.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD shows the Pratt estate in Squantum in 1909 when it became known as Lee's Inn. The inn was operated here until 1916 by Mrs. Christina Lee, widow of James Lee who had previously owned the old Squantum Inn. A few years after Mrs. Lee died, this inn closed and in 1919, the land of the estate which overlooks Dorchester Bay was divided and sold as house lots. Today, this building and the barn on the left are used as residences. The porches, tower and other features have been removed and another house has been built between them but these two structures are in their original location on what is now known as Parke Avenue.

T Extension Building Boom Begins

By PAUL HAROLD

Evidence of the long-awaited building boom from the T extension began opposite T stations and north of the rail line.

Sept. 14 - 20 1971
24 Years Ago

In Quincy Center, George Reardon announced that family properties on Hancock St. between Russell Park and Huntly Rd. were under plans for development. Included was the building that housed his father's doctor's office for 50 years. Previously it was the home of the Norfolk County sheriff.

Robert M. Faxon, owner of the Monroe Building, said his development options included adding 2-3 floors to the existing building.

The most expansive and some said radical plan was that of Frederick Mahoney of Exchange Realty who proposed a building of 10 stories or more along Hancock St. and Temple St. that would require the demolition of the Quincy Savings Bank, Adams and Patriot Ledger buildings.

MCINTYRE CALLS ON U.S. REPS TO SAVE JOBS

Mayor James McIntyre, in a letter to the South Shore Congressional delegation, urged a meeting with President Nixon to help save 8,000 shipbuilding jobs at the Quincy shipyard.

Addressed to Senators Edward Kennedy and Edward Brooke and Congressman James Burke and Hastings Keith, the McIntyre letter noted that there were no contracts beyond September, 1972 and that immediate action was needed to ensure the long-term stability of the yard.

$4.4 MILLION FOR MENTAL HEALTH CENTER

Governor Francis Sargent included in his budget $4.4 million for the construction of the new South Shore Community Mental Health Center on a 9-acre site in Quincy Point acquired by the state last February.

The facility was originally planned for Furnace Brook Parkway and later next to the Quincy City Hospital, but neighborhood opposition at both locations lead to the Quincy Ave. location.

Why Should We Have To Pay For Inexcusable Mistakes?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

If a hospital or doctor badly goofs and is successfully sued, nothing really happens to them. To err is human, but to be incompetent, negligent, indolent, or in a rush when dealing with a life is not!

In either case, their insurance coverage increases. So (very unfairly) they compensate themselves by passing on, to (innocent) you and me, those higher costs. They foul up, lose nothing, and we pay! They don't miss a beat or lose a buck.

Example: In one recent case, a large Boston hospital settled out of court (millions) for a patient's wrongful death. She was given lethal, highly toxic drug overdoses for four days while several medical professionals overlooked the error.

Why aren't laws passed so that when gross mistakes occur, causing insurance increases, in no way are they to be passed onto the people by either hospital or doctor? Shouldn't those particular increases be borne by them?

Is it fair that we who did no wrong must pay for their unconscionable blunder? Isn't it their responsibility to pay for and police-up their faults and weaknesses in dealing with human life? They suffer nothing; they just increase their fees or charges to us!

Today anyone who owns a business, is a professional or services people just increases our costs to compensate himself or herself for any increased incurred whether righteous or not! We do not have that option (we can't compensate); we are forced to pay "through the nose" again.

Is there any legislator who will right this injustice?

Mahoney: Community Help Needed Plans For Korean War Memorial Move Ahead

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Plans for the $60,000 Korean War Veterans Memorial to be built in front of Veterans Memorial Stadium in Quincy are beginning to gain momentum, but more community involvement is needed in order for the project to be completed.

That's the message John "Butch" Mahoney, chairman of the committee behind the endeavor and social health coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools wants to send to Quincy residents who may be interested in helping the cause.

"It's been a long struggle, but this is a community effort," said Mahoney, who was among those to first begin making plans for the project two years ago. "Everything counts, from the very biggest thing to the very littlest thing. This [memorial] is something that's going to be there forever, and everybody can participate. Everybody can be part of it."

The planned 10-ton black granite memorial was designed by Jack Kelly of A. Monti Granite Co. of Quincy. A model of the finished project was unveiled in front of the stadium in June 1994.

Mahoney said it is important that the memorial be built in honor of the 38 Quincy men who died in what is sometimes referred to as "the forgotten war."

"If we forget the 38 guys, then it really is 'the forgotten war,'" he said. "I think it's important that we not forget them."

Mahoney added that the committee hopes the memorial can be unveiled June 25, 1996, the 46th anniversary of the day the Korean War started. An armistice was signed July 27, 1953, although the official Korean War era did not end until Jan. 31, 1955, he said.

Among the items being sold in an effort to raise the necessary $60,000 are:

- 400 chances at $100 each on a 1995 Mercury Mystique, and an equal number of chances at the same price on a 1995 Harley-Davidson 1340 motorcycle. Mahoney, who noted that about 110 motorcycle chances and 50 car chances have been sold, said if all goes well, drawings will be held in November.

- Six granite benches and three flagpoles bearing the American, state and city flags to be installed at the site, at $1,000 and $1,500 respectively. Mahoney said one bench has already been sold and another tentatively sold, while two flagpoles have been purchased and the third also tentatively has been bought.

- Bricks to form a "Walk of Names" at the memorial—similar to the one in front of City Hall—at $100 apiece. The committee has sold around 40 and hope to sell about 200 more, according to Mahoney.

- Commemorative key chains and T-shirts at $10 apiece and lapel pins for $5 each.

Mahoney noted that the project has been gaining support in recent weeks, saying "the momentum is picking up." He added that a number of people have stepped forward to assist with the effort in one way or another.

Among those Mahoney credited with being a major help are Mayor James Sheets, honorary chairman of the committee who has sent out letters trying to promote the car raffle; Bob Derbes, for helping with landscaping, cement and the project's foundation; City Plumbing Inspector Ralph Maher, who organized local unions that have assisted by raising funds and offering their expertise; local electrician Dick Joyce, who will install the lights at the memorial; former City Councillor and Quincy Board of Assessors member Joseph LaRaia, for fund-raising assistance; Jack Dunne of Fore River Motors, for offering the automobile "at a minimum price;" Frank and Richie Barrett of The Tent, for helping to secure the motorcycle; Quincy Municipal Credit Union, for assistance in purchasing the Harley; Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, for purchasing a flagpole; Parks Department Executive Director Thomas Koch, for construction assistance; Forrest and Paul Mason of Mason's Texaco and Atty.

KOREAN WAR VETERANS Memorial sign sits at the site of the planned memorial at the corner of Hancock St. and Southern Artery adjacent to Veterans Memorial Stadium. Officials hope the memorial will be unveiled next summer.

Tom Kiley, for additional volunteer work.

Mahoney, an alumni of the New England Patriots who played cornerback with the team in 1961, added that the Patriots organization has agreed to allow the memorial committee to display the motorcycle in front of Foxboro Stadium at an upcoming game. He credited Frank Barrett with the idea of approaching the Patriots and noted that raffle tickets also will be available outside the stadium on the day of the game.

The Harley is currently at The Tent in Marina Bay and tickets for the raffle can be purchased there, Mahoney added. The car is still at Fore River Motors, he said.

In addition to those listed above, Mahoney said local veterans organizations are assisting with the project and that union bricklayers and ironworkers, as well as a landscaping firm, have also offered their services.

While Mahoney, a Korean War era veteran, said it has been "a slow process" organizing the effort, he is heartened by the support offered in recent weeks and that he is confident the committee can reach its $60,000 goal.

"Community involvement is critical," he said. "I'm so pleased I'm seeing something happen, that people do care."

Donations may be sent to the Korean War Memorial Fund, P.O. Box 0161, Quincy, MA 02169. For more information on how to help with the project, call 773-5476.

City To Receive Nearly $1.5M In State Funds For Roadway Repairs

Quincy has been given the green light to receive $1,466,578 for local roadway construction, according to members of the city's State House delegation.

Rep. Michael Bellotti said the state's Executive Office of Transportation and Construction is currently making arrangements to disperse a total of $150 million in the second and final round of a $300 million capital improvement program.

"These monies serve as a vehicle to improve our community's roads and bridges while simultaneously providing jobs for local contractors," said Bellotti, who supported adding language to the recently-enacted FY96 state budget to ensure the timely release of the funds in order to make them available for use during the current construction season.

Rep. Stephen Tobin said the funds are commonly referred to as "Chapter 90" monies and that "in order to provide more flexibility at the local level, the Legislature expanded the definition of projects which are eligible for these funds. Traditionally reserved for road and bridge repairs, municipalities can now utilize the monies for such items as sidewalk construction, repair and renovation, engineering services and for the purchase or leasing of road-building machinery, equipment and tools."

The delegation's advocacy for Quincy and the 350 other cities and towns in the Commonwealth has produced even greater state support for local services. The recently completed budget deliberations saw Bellotti, Tobin and Rep. Ronald Mariano successfully work to increase school aid by $209 million over and above the prior year's commitment as well as to increase lottery distribution by $51 million, bringing the total to $1.83 billion and $442.6 million respectively.

Overall, $3.2 billion, and increase of $264 million, was distributed to cities, towns and regional school districts for the current fiscal year.

Accompanied by municipal supports such as a $12 million community policing grant program, a $25 million library capital program, and a $3.1 neighborhood stabilization effort, Mariano said, "this 9 percent increase in local aid, in a year in which overall spending rose just 2.6 percent, is a strong indication of the level of commitment that we and many of our colleagues in the Legislature have for local governments."

"This funding will work to remove the inconvenience and safety risk of bad roadways, enhance our infrastructure and help prepare Quincy for future economic growth," added Mariano.

Giarratani Endorsed By Labor Council

Sal Giarratani, candidate for the Quincy School Committee, has been endorsed by the Norfolk County Labor Council, AFL-CIO.

Francis Toland, president of the labor council, told Giarratani in a recent letter that he received the endorsement "based on your current support for labor issues and your pledge of support for future issues affecting the men and women of organized labor."

Giarratani said he was pleased to receive the news.

"As a longtime union member, I am grateful to Frank Toland and the Norfolk County Labor Council for their support," he said.

Council On Aging To Receive $58,548

State Sen. Michael Morrissey announces that the Executive Office of Elder Affairs will soon be mailing grant award notices to local Councils on Aging, including $58,548 to the Council on Aging in Quincy.

Each grant was based on the population figures from the most recent federal census (1990) at a rate of $3.20 per elder. All Councils on Aging are eligible for a minimum grant award of $1,000 regardless of the number of seniors in the community.

"The process began in May when the applications were due, which spelled out exactly how each individual council would spend the grant, and will conclude in roughly four weeks, when the actual money will be available," said Morrissey.

He added that the $58,548 Quincy receives will be used to employ a van driver and defray van operating and maintenance costs, employ three secretaries/dispatchers, a custodian, an intergenerational chores coordinator and an Asian outreach worker.

ALL IN ALIGNMENT

Aside from a car's propensity to pull to one side on a flat road, there are other indications of the need for a wheel alignment, including uneven tire wear.

For instance, excessive wear on the inner or outer edges of one or more tires indicates the need for a camber adjustment. Camber is a measurement of the angle at which the top of a wheel is tilted out or in from the carbody. Excessive wear on the outside edge is due to excessive positive camber, while wear on the inside edges is caused by excessive negative camber. When wear takes the form of uneven tire edges, an incorrect toe-in setting (a difference in the distance between the front and rear edges of the front tires as measured at hub height) is the culprit. Keep an eye on tires for the signs of uneven wear.

HINT: Tires that scruff or make screeching sounds when going around corners may also be indicators of the need for a wheel alignment.

People generally put a great deal of money into their cars. With the initial purchase price, insurance, tune-ups and repairs, you can end up with a sizable investment. Doesn't it make sense to make sure you have your car, aligned, serviced and repaired by the best auto technicians around? You and your car deserve the very best and here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, you'll get it from ASE certified technicians. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550), and get acquainted. Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

Telemarketing Fraud

It can be hard to resist, a phone call from a charity seeking desperately-needed funds for flood victims, endangered species, or the homeless. A postcard claiming you've won an amazing sweepstakes prize if you'll just call and send an "administrative fee," or an investment offer giving you an "exclusive" chance to earn potentially enormous profits.

But resist you must. These are just a few examples of the kinds of fraudulent schemes Americans run across every day. Experts estimate that consumers lose more than $100 billion annually to a broad assortment of frauds, cons, and scams. Fraudulent telemarketing and direct mail appeals account for $40 billion of the total loss.

Alarmingly, the elderly are a major target for con artists, especially phony fund-raisers and hucksters hawking bogus investment and insurance schemes. Whether they are widowed and lonely, eager to help others, or merely intrigued by a "once in a lifetime" opportunity, increasing numbers of older Americans are falling for sophisticated and slick appeals that can wind up costing them thousands of dollars, not to mention untold anguish and stress.

Taking your money is the number-one goal of the nation's scamming scoundrels. Many concoct their cons just to get a credit card number so they can go on a spending spree financed by Y-O-U. Others will bill you incredible sums for merely calling them to find out more. And still more want a check or cash as soon as possible--by overnight delivery, by wire or even by courier--so they have their money before you have figured them out.

Remember: If an offer sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

Light Vote Seen For Preliminary Election Tuesday

Stephen J. Durkin, 39, of Colonial Drive, an attorney, who is leaving the School Committee to run for the Ward 5 council seat.

Stenberg has run unsuccessfully for the City Council in the past. This is the first run for Reilly and Dockham.

The polls in Wards 4 and 5 will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Shea expects the final results to be in early.

He reminds voters in two of the Ward 4 precincts that they will cast their ballots at a different voting location next Tuesday and again on Nov. 7.

Those in Precincts 2 and 3 will vote at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254 (Rear) Quarry St., also referred to as Elks Lane.

The change is necessitated by the sale of the Morrisette Legion Post building where Precincts 2 and 3 used to vote.

Voters of Precincts 1, 4 and 5 in Ward 4 are not affected. They will vote at their usual locations:

Precinct 1: Arthur Drohan Senior Citizens Housing, 170 Copeland St.

Precincts 4 and 5: Lincoln-Hancock School, Water St.

Notices were sent out last week to 5,000 voters in Precincts 2 and 3 informing them of the change in their polling location.

A public notice regarding the polling place location change appears on Page 19 in this week's Quincy Sun.

This year's preliminary election is similar to the one in 1987 when the only contests were for Ward 3 and Ward 5 city councillor.

In that election, Larry Chretien and Phelan topped the preliminary field and went on to win in the final election.

The 1987 preliminary brought out only 29.9 percent of the voters in those two wards.

★ ★ 1995 City Of Quincy Preliminary Election ★ ★

The Quincy Sun invited each of the eight candidates appearing on this fall's Preliminary Election ballot to participate in a special candidates' forum focusing on the issues of their respective wards and city as well as their qualifications for elective office.

The candidates, four running for Ward 4 city councillor and four running for Ward 5 city councillor, were each asked to submit their responses to the following questions:

Question 1: What do you consider the three most important issues facing your Ward, and, if elected, what would you do to address them. Candidates were allotted 200 words to answer each issue.

Question 2: What do you consider the most important issue or problem affecting the entire city, and, if elected, what action would you take. (200 words)

Question 3: Why do you think you could do the best job for your ward?

Candidates, listed in the order as they appear on the ballot, were also asked to list their name, age, address, occupation and education.

WARD 4 CITY COUNCILLOR

THOMAS A. FABRIZIO

AGE: 40
ADDRESS: 36 Reardon St.
OCCUPATION: Social Worker
EDUCATION: Northeastern University

Question 1:

The three most important issues facing the Ward are - education, public safety and development. I have taken a leadership position in resolving the overcrowded condition of schools that service the area.

Issue #1: Education

The Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center was the first new school built in Quincy in over 30 years, and I am proud of my involvement in working with parents, school officials and neighbors on that project and the addition to the Bernazzani School. Overcrowding at Sterling Middle School is a pressing issue. I have taken a leadership position in front of the school committee in support of the plan currently before that committee to resolve the overcrowding at the school. Recently I supported a bond issue for computerization which will put the Quincy School System in the forefront of technology.

Issue #2: Public Safety

Public safety is another important issue facing Ward 4. As a member of the City Council, I have supported appropriations for increased police personnel as well as equipment and training for the police and fire departments. I have established a Neighborhood Crime Watch Program and support community policing. The establishing of the ambulance sub-station in Ward 4 is also an important component to public safety and "Operation Streetlight" which I established to keep community streets well-lit as a detriment to crime. Continued support of the Police Athletic League and the DARE program are also important components in long-term safety plans.

Issue #3: Development

The issue of development is of particular concern to residents of Ward 4. The area has the largest amount of land available for development and we need to address and establish long-term plans and goals for future development. As the ward councillor, I have rezoned over 60 acres of land to ensure public input and mitigation on future projects. I have also outlined a site plan review ordinance which sets community standards for development and requires public input on plans and development. The Home Depot

GREGG T. RENNIE

AGE: 29
ADDRESS: 100 Gridley St.
OCCUPATION: Financial Advisor
EDUCATION: Archbishop Williams, 1984; UMass, BA in Economics

Question 1:

Issue #1: Urban Renewal

Enough has been said about the deteriorating industrial and business-zoned areas in our ward and not much has been done. My approach to planning would be to inquire into who owns these dilapidated and abandoned buildings in our neighborhoods, work with the owners to improve them or sell to a builder/investor who can not only improve the way they look but can turn them into something that our community needs, i.e. retirement housing, child care centers, family housing, businesses, etc. By combining the public and private sectors, not unlike the Mayor has brought urban renewal to Quincy Center, we can look to improve our ward.

As a member of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and Quincy 2000, I have supported and witnessed firsthand some of the current projects that improve our city for tourism and business. My job as city councillor would be to direct the increased tax revenue and jobs to Ward 4 through urban renewal and uniform structure programs.

Issue No. 2: Public Safety

I believe that public safety touches upon three key areas: crime, traffic and youth programs. First of all, crime is a very important issue that Ward 4 faces. Gangs are moving into our neighborhoods and we all know what follows: graffiti, drugs, prostitution, violence and break-ins. Whether we want to face it or not these things are here and happening every day in our ward. These question then becomes, what do we do about it? Rebuilding community network and neighborhood watch programs are essential to keep problems out in the open as they arise and report them to the proper authorities.

Secondly, the traffic problems we face are directly related to poor judgement and lack of planning. It is a very difficult and complex issue that has no simple solution. I do not feel that any of us expected to bear with the traffic problems that we face every day. I do not think it is right! In fact I see it getting worse: If the proposed golf course/recreation project, off Ricciuti Drive, does break ground, the

MICHAEL JOHN D'AMICO

AGE: 20
ADDRESS: 602 Willard St.
OCCUPATION: Sales Representative for Community Newsdealers, Waltham, Mass.
EDUCATION: St. Mary's School, West Quincy; Xaverian Bros. High School, Westwood; Stonehill College, candidate for B.A., Political Science, 3rd year.

Question 1:

Issue #1: Constituent Services

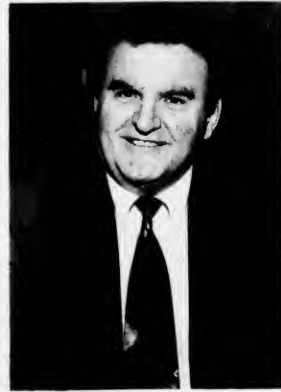

The cornerstone of my campaign has and continues to be the need to enhance constituent services. It is a common complaint that our elected officials are not responsive to the needs of those they serve. Neighbors are often informed of decisions after they are made. I have formulated the unique concept of a Neighborhood Advisory Committee to encompass the ideas and answer the questions of fellow residents in a monthly forum. In addition, I would like to assemble a Neighborhood Volunteer Staff at City Hall for the purpose of channeling residents' concerns more efficiently than ever before.

To further allow for optimum communication, I will conduct weekly office hours at City Hall and at the Ward 4 Community Center. I will also issue a periodic newsletter to all Ward 4 residents. As a director of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, I was able to pilot the very first community newsletter last year, a letter that is still being circulated. As councillor, I look forward to providing a periodic newsletter to all Ward 4 residents. It's about time that accountability is restored to the office. I am confident that my agenda will accomplish that goal.

Issue No. 2: Public Safety

The issue of public safety is of utmost importance to myself and the people of Ward 4. Daily headlines constantly makes us assess the safety of our own streets. As a Committeeman on the Massachusetts Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee, I work with various law enforcement officials across the Commonwealth while making decisions in allocating a 1.5 million dollar state budget for juvenile crime prevention programs. I would like to put that experience to work for the people of South and West Quincy. In the near future, there will be a pilot Community Policing program in our city. I have discussed the concept for quite some time. If elected, I will push hard to see that program initiated in Ward 4.

MICHAEL LARKIN

AGE: 51
ADDRESS: 89 Alrick Rd.
OCCUPATION: Juvenile Parole Caseworker, Comm. of Massachusetts
EDUCATION: University of Massachusetts, B.A. Human Services; University of Massachusetts, Youth Workers Certificate; Boston Management School, Boston, Certificate in Business Management; South Boston High School.

Question 1:

Issue #1: Lack of Communication

The number one issue I feel that needs to be addressed is the lack of communication and accountability from the City Council to the constituents.

If elected, I will put together a communications system which will respond to the concerns of Ward 4, and together with concerned residents, I will hold weekly meetings at which we will address matters of concern to the community. In this forum, much can be accomplished to air out grievances and concerns. I also feel it will force the councillor to be active and accountable throughout the elected term.

Issue #2: Public Safety

As a juvenile parole caseworker for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, I know I can best address our public safety issues in both the on-the-job experience I have gained and my involvement daily at the Quincy Court House and with the Quincy Police. I know the problems our children face every day, with both drugs and weapons being used more commonly in our society. I commended Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen for re-establishing the Community Crime Watch program and I have pledged my support and help to Officer Hanna, who heads up the Community Crime Watch program.

I also feel the need for more night-time recreational programs to help keep juveniles off the streets and in structured programs. The purpose and goals of these programs would be to instruct and involve young men and women in their most volatile years when boredom and free time can only hinder their values. I'm sorry to say that most teens between the ages of 16 and 19 are not going home at night at 9 or 10 p.m. For this reason, I feel the system must extend its hours, in some cases, to midnight to accommodate this group with activities as basketball, gym and street hockey and other activities geared to

SABINA KAVANAGH STENBERG

AGE: 64
ADDRESS: 80 Clay St.
OCCUPATION: real estate broker; drug and alcohol counselor EDUCATION: University of Massachusetts, Human Services and Alcohol and Drug Counseling.

Question 1

Issue No. 1: Drugs and Alcohol

Being an alcohol and drug counselor there is a real problem with this issue. Being a counselor at Long Island (shelter), Fr. Bill's and having beauty schools it is a serious matter. There is a lot of crimes such as rape, murder, robberies, suicide, homes being robbed. Most parents are the last to learn about their children being involved. It causes a lot of mental sickness, and destroys families, marriages.

If elected, I would have a program, of Drop and Dime, to a number to report to follow up of a person abusing drugs or alcohol in the neighborhood. This would be a private number, not the police as it won't be on radio scanner. The person calling does not have to leave their name—any parent, child, neighbor will be protected at any time of day. It has been successful in Boston—this program would work very close with the Federal Drug Office.

Issue No. 2: Senior Drop-In Centers

We have a drop-in center for seniors like the Kit Clark in Fields Corner, Dorchester.

Open all year—serve coffee, tea, play cards, crafts, classes, knitting, sewing, checkers, chess, etc., and counseling.

The senior suffers from being lonely. I live at Arthur Tobin Towers. I know. I see what happens. Children are busy days working, trying to bring up their children working. It is impossible to take care of parents. Seniors that aren't ready for a nursing home this program would prevent older people from getting depressed and not being a burden. They can still be independent. They need relationships and company. Seniors are living longer today because they are receiving more medical care.

I am aware of seniors and problems. I was on the Board of Council and Aging and also the chairperson. This would be a different program than the Council on Aging. This program would need a store front on the Main St. near transportation usable for wheelchairs.

Issue No. 3: Business

I would also work on bringing more commercial and other large businesses to the downtown area.

Question 2

Open the shipyard by selling it back to General Dynamics. Bringing business to the shipyard would put people to work. This would bring business back to downtown

(Cont'd On Page 20)

STEVEN P. REILLY

AGE: 37
ADDRESS: 287 Beach St.
OCCUPATION: Lieutenant at Norfolk County Sheriff's Office EDUCATION: Quincy Public Schools; attended Quincy College.

Question 1

Issue No. 1: Crime

As a lieutenant with the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, I know as a law enforcement professional that fighting crime will be a high priority of mine as Ward 5 city councillor. We have to make sure our Police Department has the necessary tools and technology to fight crime in our community going into the 21st century. Citizens should feel safe and live without fear while bringing up families in our neighborhoods and while shopping in our business districts.

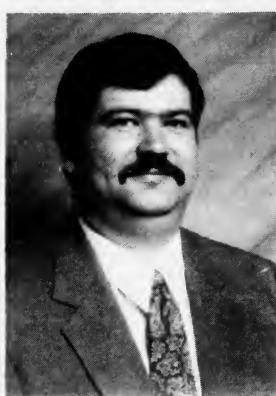

Crime prevention programs are the key to stopping crime, and we are fortunate that we have many such programs in Quincy. With the tremendous increase in juvenile crime, it is important that we develop a strategic plan to help adolescents keep busy and stay out of trouble. We need to work with parents to make sure they understand that fighting the increase in juvenile crime begins at home. I would like to start a program called "Meet Your Neighbor," which would give parents the opportunity to communicate with one another about children in the neighborhood stepping out of line and any other problems they feel should be addressed in the neighborhood.

Issue #2: Traffic

Throughout my campaign, one of the major concerns conveyed to me by Ward 5 residents is the issue of traffic. Not only the traffic problems created with new development, but also pedestrian safety. My youngest brother, Richard, was killed as a pedestrian in a motor vehicle accident in 1982 on Quincy Shore Drive. Understandably, the traffic issue is one that I feel very strongly about.

The Shaw's Supermarket development will increase the amount of traffic in the Wollaston area and all of its residents will be impacted. With the reopening of Beechwood Knoll School the issue of child safety will also be one of major concern. I have asked Mayor Sheets if he would consider repaving crosswalks so that they would be prominent enough for drivers to see before they are upon the crosswalk. I have made recommendations to the Quincy Police Traffic Division regarding the feasibility of installing warning signs in school districts in addition to the traffic lights they have already planned. The issue of pedestrian safety and potential traffic dangers should also be addressed in the classroom to insure the safety of our children and to prevent an accident before it happens.

DENNIS DOCKHAM

AGE: 32
ADDRESS: 63 Elm Ave.
OCCUPATION: Manager, McDonald's, Hanover; Vice Chairman, Operations for American Red Cross EDUCATION: Boston Technical High School, Graduate

Question 1

Issue No. 1: Public Safety

There are so many issues that I consider to be of great importance. It's hard to narrow it down to just three. However, safety as you know has been on the top of my list. Life is a precious gift not to be taken lightly. I have already taken steps to address this very important issue. Due to the serious nature of accidents which in most cases could be prevented if people just slowed down.

I have begun a five-phase process of implementing a first of its kind speed watch in Quincy. If elected, I would take the five step phase even further. I would ask our police chief to set up an intense radar patrol. This way we could identify our biggest problem areas and make drivers aware that this reckless regard for life will no longer be tolerated, in Ward 5 or any other part of our city.

After the police department makes a determination, I would then ask the citizens for input. We need to get back to community involvement to solve the problems in our neighborhoods.

Issue No. 2: Youth

The options that our youths have after school and weekend programs are very limited. JoAnn Bragg has started a youth center at the United Methodist Church. We need to expand this youth center from one night to six or seven nights a week. I pledge, if elected, to lobby the other members of the City Council and the Mayor for a permanent location. There is a location on Chapman Street that would be perfect for the expansion of this wonderful program.

Our young people are the key to our future. They need a place to go that is safe and they can call their own. I have heard many promises with few results about what will be done for our youth. Before and during this campaign I have proven that I am a man of action. Our young people need a voice and someone who will take action on their issues. I plan to do just that. Politicians are quick to do for political supporters and taxpayers, but what have they done about investing in the future of our youth. Absolutely nothing.

Issue No. 3: Finances

I have begun to review the city's financial situation. I feel very confident that if elected City Councillor for Ward 5, I could be instrumental in keeping our taxes at the present rate. I feel that this could be done

STEPHEN J. DURKIN

AGE: 39
ADDRESS: 125 Colonial Dr.
OCCUPATION: Attorney
EDUCATION: New England School of Law, law degree; University of Massachusetts, B.A.; North Quincy High School graduate.

Question 1

Issue No. 1: Public Safety

The security and safety of our citizens is of paramount importance in Ward 5, as with of the city's other wards. As a city councillor, I intend to work closely with the Mayor's office, city departments and the various neighborhoods to improve safety for our children, senior citizens and all Ward 5 residents. I will work in cooperation with our police department to make sure officers have the resources to prevent the spread of crime, and with our fire department to ensure that the department continues to have modern and properly functioning equipment. I would oppose any attempt to close the Wollaston fire station.

With respect to the police department, I support the concept of community policing, "neighborhood watch" programs and the police department's involvement in our schools with its drug prevention program.

Another critical public safety concern, in my view, is the condition of streets and sidewalks throughout the Ward 5 area. Many are in extreme disrepair and pose a serious public safety problem, particularly for many of our senior citizens. As councillor, I intend to push for an ongoing sidewalk, curbstone and street maintenance program that would continue until all necessary repairs are made in each and every neighborhood of Ward 5.

Finally, I intend to work hand-in-hand with police officials to see that driving laws are strictly enforced and that pedestrians are safer on our city streets.

Issue No. 2: Traffic and Development

I believe that a major concern for the next Ward 5 councillor will be traffic congestion and other negative effects of development. Among my top priorities as councillor will be to preserve the residential character of our neighborhoods so that Quincy (and Ward 5) remains a great place to live and to raise a family.

Specifically, I intend to work closely with neighborhood residents to ensure that traffic problems resulting from the Shaw's project are properly addressed so that residential streets don't become congested speedways.

While the projects does, of course, offer some benefits to the city, the next Ward 5 councillor must work to closely monitor any other negative impacts of the project, and make certain that Shaw's complies with every condition of the special permit granted by project I feel demonstrates that positive results can happen when the community and developer work through a project together. I am particularly proud that the Home Depot permit has been used as a blueprint for other large projects recently permitted by the City Council.

Thomas Fabrizio

(Cont'd From Page 16)

Question 2

The most important issue regarding the entire city is maintaining a stable tax rate for our residents. As chairman of the City Council finance committee we have worked diligently in providing city services without burdensome tax increases. In fact in 1995 with all improvements to schools, parks and recreation, public safety, streets and sidewalks the city had no tax increase. The fiscal actions taken by the Mayor and City Council have increased city services and improved the quality of life for our residents without over-straining our taxpayers. Legislation passed by the City Council has saved taxpayers money and allowed the city to improve services. As chairman of the finance committee, I was instrumental in cutting over $850,000 from the budget without cutting essential services. We must continue to fight the unfair and burdensome MWRA water rates by advocating for a more fair and equitable rate system.

Question 3

This is an important election for the people of Ward 4. I feel I am best defined in terms of aggressive leadership with the ability to be decisive and get things done. The formula for success in Ward 4 has been hard work, input from residents, working together, making a decision and taking a leadership position.

Michael D'Amico

As I've canvassed the ward on many occasions, I have found that residents want stronger neighborhood watch groups. In acting on that concern, I will form a partnership with neighbors by issuing a periodic Ward 4 police log. This will give residents the opportunity to better organize watch groups as they'll know of alleged crimes and where they are happening in our community. Issue No. 3: Development

This issue is pertinent because it must be handled delicately. The threat of overdevelopment is very real. Development must occur in the right places or problems are bound to arise. I started a resident petition in 1994 to fight the proposed Home Quarters store on Willard Street at the threshold of Quincy and Braintree. The proposal would've brought a calamitous traffic situation to an already highly traveled thoroughfare while essentially providing no tax dollars to our city.

I spoke out at countless meetings in Quincy and Braintree; the neighbors ultimately prevailed. If elected to serve you, I am committed to making progress in Ward 4, but I shall never sacrifice our neighborhoods in order to do it. This is why I propose a Full Site Plan Review ordinance that focuses on residents' input regarding any and all commercial development proposals. Currently, the city only needs to notify residents within 300 ft. of a proposed commercial site. In representing you, I would work to ensure that all residents in a respective precinct are notified and afforded public hearings before a proposal is put before the Zoning Board of Appeals. Right now, many vicinities are grappling with "mixed zoning" hassles because of poor planning. I want to see to it that business owners and home owners are able to co-exist. With the right leadership in tact, they can.

Question #2

Sustaining economic growth should be a main concern of the city in the years to come. Opportunities for economic growth must be seized and acted upon. We must work vigorously to attract a major hotel to Quincy. Such a proposal will yield the creation of new jobs, spur increased tourism to the city's historic attractions, and produce new revenue as well. I think it is quite realistic that the Quincy shipyard can thrive once again and bring much needed industry back to the city. Along with most Ward 4 residents, I would welcome the proposed Public Recreational Facility in West Quincy. The fact is that these plans won't come to fruition unless they are carefully guided. If elected, I will implement the needed precautions to safeguard our community. Meanwhile, I know that we must stand strong against the MWRA. Their outrageous rate formula will most certainly balloon, unabated, if we do nothing. Those with equity in a home or business should not be shortchanged.

Question #3
I have a proven record of involvement in our community and across our state. I recognize that Ward 4 is home to hundreds of closely knit families that have lived here for generations. My family is one of them. I understand the issues and the people of South and West Quincy. I offer a sound plan to crowd our local economy, stabilize our taxes, protect our neighborhoods, and restore accountability. I vow to answer every telephone call I receive in order to be there for you; I will work hand-in-hand with parents and teachers to responsibly alleviate overcrowding at Sterling Middle School; I will open our Ward 4 Community Center for year-round programs appealing to all age groups; I will put forth an effective traffic plan for Ward 4. Throughout my campaign, I have talked with over 4,000 residents and have addressed issues large and small in most every neighborhood across Ward 4. As a city councillor, I bring a culmination of heritage, dedication, experience and ideas as we look toward a new century. As your next Ward 4 city councillor, I will always meet every challenge.

Working with residents we have been successful in many areas of importance, and I am proud of our accomplishments. I have provided positive leadership to any number of important decisions, and I feel I am better equipped to make these difficult decisions. Many residents have joined me in advocating positions before the License Board, Board of Appeals, Planning Board, City Council and School Committee and this dramatizes the difference between myself and the opponents in the race. A city councillor needs to have the ability and willingness to advocate in front of public boards for the system to work in the public interest.

It is a great privilege and an honor for me to be the Ward 4 councillor and will continue to represent my area as a neighbor and an effective voice in City Hall.

Working with residents we have been successful in many areas of importance, and I am proud of our accomplishments. I have provided positive leadership to any number of important decisions, and I feel I am better equipped to make these difficult decisions. site is situated on a one-way street, therefore another traffic problem. I have also noticed the need for traffic reform in South Quincy where most of the neighborhoods are confronted with the combination of residential and industrial zoning problems that have made some areas unsafe for local families. City Hall should know and as your city councillor I will make sure that proper planning is undertaken and developed before we continue to add to the problem.

Issue No. 3: Youth

Third is youth programs. We live in an era that has a constant decrease in the availability of public funds for these types of programs, but the need for them will never go away. If we do not do something about the void in this area it will be all of us, not just the parents, that will pay the price.

We need quality programs; floor hockey leagues, rollerblading, basketball, baseball leagues, wrestling and gymnastics. I realize that my ideas are not perfect, and everything that I propose will take time and great effort. I am sure there will be mistakes made along the way, but I am also confident that my plan is a giant step in the right direction. I, along with my committee, which includes single parents, are developing a Youth Program Action Plan that will rely very little on public funds and will include athletics and social programs for children of all ages in Ward 4.

Issue #3: Development
In Ward 4, over the past several years, communications from City Hall and its Planning and Zoning boards to residents has been fairly non-existent unless confronted by an issue. This failure will be the first resolution in my councillorship. I feel it is the duty of the elected councillor to keep the constituency well informed of any and all development and zoning changes put forth before the City Council. This should be done in a timely manner so that all concerns are heard and resolved.

My proposal is to place two community volunteers from each precinct on an advisory committee. They will sit at the Council hearings and planning boards to insure their input is heard and information is gained, before action is taken which will surprise the community as has happened in the past. Volunteers would have no voting powers; their sole responsibility would be to keep their precincts informed of each proposal. Volunteers would have no personal interest in any of the proposals, and they would not be city-employed or have any affiliations with any of the developers.

Question #2

The MWRA's escalating

water and sewer rates for the residents of Ward 4 and the City of Quincy. Since day one of my campaign I have been in the forefront of this issue. We can no longer sit back and let the MWRA force us into moral and financial bankruptcy. Every resident and town (of the MWRA's member communities) is feeling the financial crunch of the unfunded, federally mandated, Boston Harbor cleanup program.

It's time for us to join together and make Washington understand it either needs to put its money where its mouth is, or make plans to down-size the project. Once elected, I plan to mobilize local and neighboring elected officials and community activists' participation in this endeavor. If our only alternative to paying consistently higher water and sewer bills each year is to bring a class action suit against the federal government and the MWRA, be sure that I'll do everything in my power to organize and drive this effort successfully through completion. I am in favor of cleaning up Boston Harbor, but not at the expense of Quincy residents. As of July 1, 1995, the City of Quincy will be paying over $13 million, an increase of 2.5% from 1994.

Question #3

In my 51 years, I have had the opportunity in my life to pursue many endeavors, so I feel my experiences will and business trade for downtown and surrounding Quincy areas.

Question #3

We are moving into a new era of change, not only in time but in the way that government works. It seems to me and I am sure to the many voters of Ward 4, that politics as usual has worn out its welcome.

As your next city councillor, when given an issue or complaint, I will address it immediately and do what I can to the best of my ability to correct it.

When looking at the other candidates the voters should look into their credentials and experience in dealing with major issues that will face them in city hall, such as cash management, floating in municipal debentures, licensing, zoning, taxes and dealing with local business concerns.

I feel that I am the candidate that possesses the ability to make an immediate impact to improve Ward 4, and that I am the candidate that has the time, ability, and knowledge to take our Ward and Quincy into the 21st century.

I believe that as a lifelong Quincy resident and business owner, I can better represent our ward and city in the future.

Michael Larkin

make me the best candidate in this campaign for Ward 4 city councillor.

With my experience as a former small business owner (Chippewas' Sporting Goods) for over five years, and as a (civilian) senior administrative assistant for the Boston Fire Department, and presently a juvenile parole caseworker for the Comm. of Mass., I feel I can best address the varied problems a community must face in order to remain a pleasant and viable neighborhood in which to live and work.

I am a family man (married 30 years), a father, and a homeowner. I feel my 51 years of experience dealing with many issues both personal and professionally can only help, not hinder, in dealing with community issues. My experience as a businessman and as an administrator will help when dealing with community leaders and administrators. I feel there is no substitute for life experience and I feel I bring the best of both: (A) a strong professional record and (B) a stable personal life experience. Together with my B.A. from the UMass/ Boston, in Community Service and Youth Work, and my Boston Business Management Certificate, I feel I can truly best serve and address the present and future concerns of our Ward 4 business people and residents in a fair and productive manner.

Ayers To Offer Free Transportation To Polls

Bruce Ayers, owner of Ayers Handicap Conversion Center Inc. in North Quincy, will offer courtesy transportation to the polls in his handicap vans for physically challenged voters Tuesday, Sept. 19, the day of the city's preliminary election.

"I believe a person's physical mobility should never interfere with his or her fundamental right to vote," said Ayers. "This service is offered throughout every election because I want to see the physically challenged fulfilling their duty as a citizen of Quincy."

Requests for transportation can be made by calling Ayers at 328-0102.
